A Railway Revolution (?)

A Cobourg Newspaper Discusses the Situation.

The following from the Cobourg Post is perhaps a great deal like the Trent Valley Canal, in the hands of the present government—a "big thing on paper." If our Cobourg contemporary is well "posted" in what it says, Peterborough might as well have its $40,000 ready to hand over by the time the "deal" is effected :—

"On Saturday last the rumor that the Midland railway of Port Hope was about to be taken by the C.P.R., was largely circulated in Cobourg and other places. The Port Hope papers announced that there was no truth in the reports, and of course the excitement was considerably abated. It is supposed that the cause for the report becoming circulated was owing to the fact that the Grand Trunk had declined to renew the lease on the terms hitherto existing. Another reason for abandoning that line is ascribed to the company's recent purchase of the Harwood road and the extensive work now going on putting it in order for traffic. It is a well known fact that at present the Grand Trunk are expending a large amount of money on this branch, and it is also well known that they must have something more in view than the output of lumber at Harwood to repay them for the heavy expenditure. Orders were issued this spring to put the road in shape so as to allow the heaviest trains to pass over. Now an order of the above kind is indicative of something more than the contemplated lumber shipments. Last fall G.T. Engineers were at work taking soundings in the neighborhood of the old bridge, and it is said that plans and estimates have been forwarded to the head office at Montreal. When the engineers were here just before the road closed down last season, it was said then that the company would build the bridge across Rice Lake and connect with Peterborough. Should they carry out the scheme they would call on the Provincial Government for the $26,000 they have locked up in their safe, which was voted for the extension of the old road, and also will ask the town of Peterborough to contribute the sum of $40,000 voted by that municipality for the same purpose at the same time. In all likelihood the R. R. company would get the money, and the work would go on at a very small outlay to the Grand Trunk. That the Grand Trunk have become tired of their bargain with the Midland is quite evident. It has been a losing speculation to them from the start. Whether the loss is caused by poor management, or lack of business, it is hard to say. In the face of the above we cannot see why the C.P.R. should be anxious to load themselves with a white elephant of such huge dimensions, and at such a high rental as it would be necessary to pay. It would be far more to their advantage to go on and assist to build the C., N. & P. R. R., and operate it on the terms agreed upon than to guarantee such a heavy sum annually as they would be obliged to pay the bondholders of the Midland. The new road would cover the point of securing an outlet with a good harbor, and at a rate thousands of dollars cheaper than the line running into Port Hope. However, if the Midland should pass into the hands of the C.P.R. it is quite evident that Mr. Van Horne will have no use for an outlet at this place, and the citizens of Cobourg will see the money they have already advanced "melt" silently away. Should the scheme burst like a bubble, it will only be a termination such as the people have every right to expect. The last money voted by the council might just as well have been thrown into Lake Ontario."

Northward from Victoria, B. C.

Fort Simpson, B.C.

To the Editor of the Examiner :

The sealing schooner "Adele" of Victoria, B. C., Captain Hanson and mate O. M. Lundberg in command, was wrecked off the coast of Queen Charlotte Islands about 75 miles from here and 20 miles from Marsett, a village on the island. Your correspondent learned from the mate that as they were making for the island—one of the Q. C. I group—to engage hunters for the seal-catch ; a heavy wind from the south east overtook them and although they cast three anchors she was driving right on the rocks dragging her anchors with her. However none were lost and nearly all the provisions saved, After burning the schooner to get the copper bolts from her, they made their way in canoes to Massett where they bought a sloop and set sail for this port. The crew went south to Victoria on the last "Danube."

Mr. Hall and family have removed to Victoria where that gentleman enters a more lucrative employment under the "Hudson Bay Company

The United States naval steamer "Patterson" called here on her way to Alaska. She will be engaged this summer, as she has been for a few years past, in taking note of the soundings along the coast of Alaska. Would it not be well to suggest to our Dominion Government the duty they owe to such a loyal Province as British Columbia, which sends a straight Conservative party to Ottawa, and to fulfil that duty by making a more exact chart of the coast? Only last week the "Danube" struck a rock near Skidegate, Q.C.I., and was delayed for a few days in her trip. Consider what the United States owes to Alaska, and then consider what the House at Ottawa owes to British Columbia, and who will say no to such a suggestion?

The Rev. Mr. Beavis and his sister, formerly of Asphodel, Peterborough county, are visiting here, having come from the Naas to attend district meeting. " " " It is expected that Mr. Clifford will succeed Mr. Hall as manager of the Hudson Bay store here.

Electric Street Cars.

The new electric street cars, says the Ottawa Free Press, were placed in the company's building on Saturday. An inspection of a car gave the impression that the work is being done in a thorough manner. The car is 22 feet over all, being two feet longer than any other style. It is finished in the interior in salmon and lemon yellow with black lining, being lettered very neatly, the words "Parliament Buildings" occupying the full length of the car, and the destination of each car being announced on a moveable sign of improved construction. The rails and similar portions are of polished brass. The entry to the car is protected by gates, which will always be closed at the forward part of the car. In the interior the finish is of polished oak, very comfortable spring seats with carpet trimming, a neat coal stove, (removable in summer) large windows with sliding shutters and good ventilators, making everything very complete. The usual appliances for stopping the car are provided ; a Lewis & Fowler register for fares is provided ; three incandescent lights illuminate the interior, with one on each platform and two in the red lights. The motor will be placed beneath the car. The driver will control the motor from either end of the car, a drill-reached brake stopping the car is also provided, and by a motion of the foot a large gong gives warning of the approach of the car at all crossings. There will be two men to each car. In addition to the ten cars of this description there will be trailers for attaching to the regular cars at times of large travel. The cars are made by Patterson & Corbin of St. Catherines — a firm by the way, which the readers of the EXAMINER have already been informed, are going to leave St. Catharines, and are seeking a new place, dont Jem some live manufacturing centre like Peterborough, to establish their works in.

North Monaghan.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A very pleasant event took place at the residence of Mrs. T. A. Lillico on Friday evening, May 15th, when the Royal Templars, together with members of the High Park Brass Band had gathered to offer their congratulation, &c., to Mr. Thos. Lillico, who had an evening or so previous joined himself in the holy bonds of wedlock to Miss Emma McKee. When the happy crowd had got comfortably seated Miss Lizzie Fowler stepped forward and read the following address :

MR. THOS. LILLICO,—DEAR FRIEND AND BROTHER,—We the officers and members of North Monaghan Council No. 356, R. T. of T., together with the members of the High Park Brass Band, have met on this memorable occasion to show to some extent the very high esteem in which you are held by the above organizations. Being a charter member of the first named, you have always taken a very great interest in its meetings.

We have found you ever ready to give sound advice in matters pertaining to the advancement of our council, and the cause of temperance generally. You have shown in your every day life a true temperance principle, and we hope that this change may be instrumental in strengthening your purposes, as we feel confident your respected partner will now join you in this noble work, and by your united efforts, may many be saved from the drunkard's doom.

As a member of the band, by your affable manner and general sociability you have won the respect of all the boys.

We would now ask you as token of our high regard for you, to accept this Holy Bible, hoping you and your estimable bride will be guided by the sacred truths contained therein, which will bring you peace and happiness in this life, and eternal bliss in the life to come

Signed on behalf of Royal Templars and Band.

Herb. D. Williamson, S.C., and Richard Lillico, P. C, Royal Templars ; and R. J. Williamson and Jas. B. Fowler, the Band.

The presentation was made by Mr. Herb. D. Williamson. Mr. Lillico, though taken completely by surprise, replied in a very neat little speech, thanking the friends for their kindness in remembering him in such a manner. But he assured them that he had always looked on it as a sense of duty to attend the Royal Templars' meetings, as it was a society that was doing a great deal of good, not only in North Monaghan, but over the whole Dominion, and he only hoped that that they would work on and progress.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells for 50c. and $1 a package, and is called Lane's Family Medicine. dw

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects ; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated ; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

Excellent

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. R. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Felicia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hauel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

SUN LIFE

ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company :—

Life Assurances in force, 1st January, 1891	$16,759,255.92
Increase over previous year	2,421,272.84
New Applications received in 1890	6,371,599.15
Increase over 1889	2,265,588.60
Cash income for year ending 31st December, 1890	889,078 87
Increase over 1889	285,938 35
Assets at 31st December, 1890	2,473,514.19
Increase over 1889	667,691.47
Reserve for Security for Policy-Holders	2,100,822.68
Increase over 1889	567,732.71
Surplus over all Liabilities and Capital Stock	232,173.69
Increase over 1889	75,649.05
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961.65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6.04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures :—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$64,924 07
" " " 1886, "	99,452 97
" " " " 1890, (four years)	232,173 69

MADAME BLAVATSKY.

THE PRIESTESS OF THEOSOPHY DIED ON THE 8TH MAY.

Glimpses of the Checkered Career of a Remarkable Woman—Manifestations Which Made Her World Famous—Her Converts Reside in Every Clime.

So many rumors and statements having appeared to the effect that Mme. H. P. Blavatsky died three weeks ago, and that the death was concealed, W. Q. Judge, secretary of the American Section of the Theosophical Society, of New York, begs to say that a cable received by him from the private secretary of Mme. Blavatsky states as follows: "She died Friday, the 8th of May, at 3:25 in the afternoon."

A REMARKABLE CAREER.

Helena Petrovna Hahn, whose death is announced, was born in Ekaterinslow, in South Russia, in 1831.

In 1848 she was married at the age of 17, to General Blavatsky, whose age was placed by the bride's people at various stages of senility ranging from 50 to 70 years. She did not live but three months with the General, and those three months were full of the most exciting domestic storms. After three months of wrangling, she one day escaped and went to Constantinople. At this point her wanderings began. The tender, fragile bride of 17 became the elephantine Mme. Blavatsky, of Theosophical notoriety. Mme Blavatsky came to America in 1873, taking out her naturalizing papers a short time after landing. In 1874 she began the series of manifestations that made her world famous. In that year, too, the Theosophical Society was founded, of which Colonel Olcott, whom Mme. Blavatsky had met with the Eddys and others at a Vermont farmhouse, was made the President. Madame Blavatsky was enormous in size and weighed more than 300 pounds. She rarely went out of the house, as it taxed her strength too greatly. She never was addicted to the use of alcoholic liquors, but was an incessant smoker and at times experienced great difficulty in refraining from the practice long enough to deliver a lecture. She could swear in all languages, but there was a certain novelty and polish about her swearing that destroyed much of the unpleasant impression it made at first on persons who made her acquaintance. She wore the conventional attire of her sex usually, but her fancy was oriental in the matter of materials.

From America she went to India to plant the Theosophical Society in that soil and during the long years spent there with Colonel Olcott, at Madras and elsewhere, gave many manifestations of the power of the mysterious occult master, of whom she was the visible agent. These manifestations consisted of the sudden appearance of letters in all sorts of places containing immediate written answers to mental questions of different persons; of gold letters and shining characters bursting forth from the walls of the flying of articles through space to Mme. Blavatsky's hands, and all the other phenomena which have made her name famous and her power a mystery. She returned to Europe in 1884 and then followed the exposure by the Coulomos and the Society of Psychical Research. Before this, however, Mme. Blavatsky made many converts in London, Paris, and in portions of Germany. A peculiarity of Mme. Blavatsky was her dislike of meat as an edible. She revolted at the English taste for rare beef, though it was impossible to resist the impression that she did so largely on account of her violent Anglophobia. Among the persons who became converts to her remarkable theories and doctrines was Mrs. Annie Besant, who came to this country from London a short time ago. She delivered several lectures on Theosophy, the last being last Tuesday. During the lecture Mrs. Besant suddenly remarked: "I have received a message from Mme Blavatsky and will return to England." Wednesday she took passage on the steamship City of Chicago, sailing the same day. It is not known whether she had previously heard of the death of Mme. Blavatsky or whether she had just learned the news. Some persons present at the lecture thought Mrs. Besant made the remark for effect, but it would appear now that she had just learned of her friend's death.

BARRY SULLIVAN'S BRAVERY.

The Death of a Great English Actor Recalls the Story.

The recent death of Barry Sullivan, the great English actor whose Richard III and Macbeth were such great creations, has recalled a story of his early days which does the man infinite credit. A friend of the dead actor tells the story as follows: I was with him once in Cork when we were both young men, and he was fast making a name for himself. We were on our way to a rehearsal one morning, when we came to a crowd watching a burning house, the home of a prominent physician. There was a cry that the doctor's little daughter had been left in her nursery and calls were made for some one to volunteer to save her. None of the firemen would venture into the burning house, and each minute the flames and smoke grew greater in volume. Suddenly Sullivan, who had my arm, uttered an oath and rushed across the street and into the blazing building.

"He was gone what seemed to be an age, and the excitement grew intense. Then he came staggering out, pale as death, but with the child in his arms. He handed it to its half-distracted mother—the father was away from the city—and instantly bolted into the cheering crowd and, in spite of the people's efforts to detain him, escaped. I told the reporters who he was, and that night at the theatre, when he came on in a rather unimportant part, the house rose and gave him three rousing cheers."

Out of Which the Opium Ring is Said to Have Made $1,200,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—The yacht Halcyon, it is now stated, has succeeded in smuggling 109,600 pounds of opium into this country from China. The opium was transferred from the yacht to a small steamer, which, in turn, loaded the drug on a lumber schooner in Puget Sound. The duty on opium is $12 per pound, so that the opium ring have made a profit of $1,200,000 by the transaction. The owner of the Halcyon, Mr. Whaley, is in this city, while the yacht lies in Barclay Sound, B.C.

Suspected Train Robbers Caught.

BANGOR, Maine, May 27.—There were arrested at Costigan two men, George Ormsn and Samuel Julian, hailing from Nova Scotia, for alleged participation in Monday night's attack on the Maine Central train at Enfield. They are evidently tramps and disclaim all knowledge of the affair. There are said to be four others in the gang and officers are after them.

Old School Presbyterians.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 27.—The sixty-second annual synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America began this morning in the Eighth-street church with 300 delegates present from all parts of the United States, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. This synod is that branch of the Reformed Presbyterian Church known as the old school, and the same question will come before this synod that caused the split in 1833: The right of suffrage. In that year the question was hotly contested and caused a split. The new school, claiming the right of suffrage, left the old school, which deni d the right of suffrage.

Why his Wife is "Fidgety."

I have the best cook in the town,
Whose bread is delicious and white;
Her coffee is fragrant and brown,
Her pastry a perfect delight.
But she daily complains of the worry they bring
She's my own darling wife, but a fidgety thing!
Your wife is worn out, and needs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the only medicine guaranteed to cure debilitated women. How many over-worked American ladies we see with lack-lustre eyes and haggard faces, growing old before their time, from those exhausting ailments that men know nothing of. They can be permanently cured by this remedy, as numberless grateful women will attest. Price refunded, if it fails to give satisfaction in every case. See guarantee printed on bottle-wrapper. b

HEAD OFFICE—103 Yonge St., Toronto.

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not claim this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy them, but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Fire Alarm System Test.

As mentioned in yesterday's issue, Mr. Forsythe, inspector of the Canadian Fire Underwriter's Association was in town yesterday. Last night he gave a test fire alarm, ringing it from the box at the corner of Antrim and George streets. In exactly seven minutes from the braking of the glass the water was ready for use, hose in hand, and firemen in place. The alarm was a genuine surprise, the inspector only being privy to it. He thought the response was fairly prompt but as it is understood decided to recommend some changes. These will be probably the raising of the general alarm bell and placing it in the top of the market hall tower (outside). He will perhaps recommend that a team of horses be kept constantly in the fire hall in conformity with the agreement of the town with the Fire Underwriters' Association. Mr. Forsythe yesterday visited back premises in different parts of the fire district (in the centre of the town).

Dr. Davies and His Pupils

Professionally Present a Pleasing Programme.

The concert given last night in Bradburn's Opera House was a success in more ways than one. There was a better house of better musical culture than is usually expected to be got together when the season of evening concerts is past. The programme provided was judiciously selected and pleasing in the nature, of first rate character but not pedantically classical. The several performers acquitted themselves in a manner that reflected the greatest credit upon the instruction they had received.

The programme opened with a part song Barnby's "Tell me Roses" by a chorus of about thirty or forty voices, who sang, without accompaniment, to Dr. Davies' conducting, and the performance was excellent. This same chorus sang besides during the evening, "The Sands of Dee" by MacFarren and "Sweet is the hour of Rest," Mercadente. Without disparagement to the soloists and other performers, it is only just to say that these part songs were the gems of the evening. All of them were capitally performed, especially the "Sands of Dee", which enjoyed the unusual compliment for a chorus of receiving an enthusiastic encore. The parts were judiciously balanced, the time was quite unexceptionable and the light and shade were splendidly excellent for an amateur chorus. Good voices, good natural tastes and a ready response to excellent instruction on the part of the chorus, account for the delightful musical treat the part songs afforded. Vocal solos were also very pleasingly given by Miss Davidson — "My Lady's Bower," Temple; Mrs. J. E. McIntyre—Recitative and Aria, "David's Song before Saul" — Buddese; Miss Nellie Wrighton, "The Bells of St. Mary's Tower"—Rodney; Miss Ethel Rogers, Sullivan's "Lullaby," and Miss Edith Hall, "The Song that Reached My Heart"—Jordan. All sang very creditably, and the two latter were so successful in pleasing the audience that they were recalled and responded. The vocal duet by Miss Wrighton and Mrs. J. E. McIntyre was excellently sung, but the ladies declined to respond to the hearty encore that greeted the conclusion of their number. The instrumental portions of the programme were equally pleasing with the vocal numbers. Mr. J. Churchill Arlidge rendered two charming flute solos with the facile execution, delicate taste and brilliant virtuosity that mark his playing. Mrs. W. J. Morrow's pianoforte solos comprised the difficult numbers represented by Welmawski's "Grand Valse de Concert" and a Chopin polonaise. These were very brilliantly and smoothly performed, with great spirit, beautiful shading and roundness of tone. Mrs. Morrow was recalled after both her selections, but only responded the first time. The value of a recall for something so common as a pianoforte solo is exceptional and is a tribute to fine playing, of which any performer may well be proud. The pianoforte and organ duet, the andante from Beethoven's first Symphony, was very well rendered by Miss Wrighton and Mr. Fred Clarke. The concert was closed with the the performance of "God Save the Queen" as a programme number, and its grand harmonies were never presented in Peterborough in so appreciable a form. Mrs. Macklin took the solo with great success and the well balanced chorus gave the audience a rendering of this national hymn that was a decided musical treat as well as an expression of patriotic prayer. Dr. Davies wielded the baton with excellent judgment and taste, and ably assisted by Mr. Fred Clarke, gave the necessary accompaniments during the evening.

NOTES.

The Heintzman piano used was kindly loaned by Messrs. Jackson & Co.

Speaking of pianos, it is a pity that there is not a grand pianoforte in town available for use at concerts, etc.

It is worthy of congratulatory note that Mrs. Morrow played the music of her selections entirely from memory. The finest performance of a virtuoso loses much from the distracting effect to both performer and hearer by the repeated consulting of music or turning of leaves.

The arrangement of the chorus on the stage, and the keeping of the chorus in their seats had a charming effect. The tedium of the entr' acte waiting, inseparable from amateur entertainments, was reduced to a minimum by the contemplation of so pleasant a picture.

The excellent singing of the chorus, and their ready and intelligent response to the regulation white wand of the conductor, is worthy of general and complimentary remark amongst those who attended the concert. In view of the success of this concert it is contemplated calling a meeting at an early date to organize a Philharminic Society for the performance of more ambitious music than that given so successfully last night.

Mr. Fred Clarke, a young musician of much industry and promise will not be over paid if he receives special mention for the excellent manner in which he contributed the accompaniments last night.

It is to be hoped that the long delayed day is drawing nearer when the musical talent of the town will be brought, so to speak, into score, and that the general co-operation in musical matters will be an "available asset."

The Bradburn-Carton Assault Cases.

Conclusion of the Hearing—The Charge Against Mr. Carton Sustained—That Against Mr. Bradburn Dismissed—A Fine of $20 and Costs Imposed—An Appeal From the Conviction.

At 3 o'clock the case was resumed.

Mr. CARTON testified to having been in the habit of invariably locking the front door since he turned over the stock to his successor, to avoid interruptions. Mr. Bradburn came into the shop about eleven o'clock on Tuesday. There was a boy present when he came. When Mr. Bradburn came in he turned the key in the door and left the key in the lock where it remained during Mr. Bradburn's stay. He took a look at the shop and witness asked Mr. Bradburn to name the amount required to make the repairs he demanded and if the amount was reasonable he would accede to it or otherwise he would do the work himself. Mr. Bradburn continued his examination of the premises, including the back door which was not locked. Witness told Mr. Bradburn that $5 would repair all that he (Mr. Carton) was responsible for. He said $40 was nearer the mark. I refused to pay that amount. At length Mr. Bradburn agreed to accept $25, and was then paid by cheque.

To the Magistrate.—Mr. Graham was not present.

To Mr. Edwards.—Mr. Bradburn and witness had agreed upon $25 before the receipt was signed. The cheque was signed after the receipt was written. Mr. Bradburn wrote the receipt on the counter sitting on a chair. I got the pen and ink from a shelf behind the counter. Mr. Bradburn wrote the receipt, except a clause at the end, agreeing to take the key off witness' hands. Witness dictated that part of the receipt. There was no objections to writing the receipt. Witness looked over the receipt and Mr. Bradburn, swearing, told him to write out a receipt to suit himself. Witness did not use a word of profane language nor threaten Mr. Bradburn. There was no violence whatever on either side up to the signing of the receipt. Did not kick Mr. Bradburn. After the receipt was signed and witness had given the cheque, witness said he was glad he had the receipt as he wouldn't take a shop from Mr. Bradburn because he had exacted an exorbitonate sum for repairs from witness. Mr. Bradburn then used stronger language, caught at the receipt and caught witness by the arm, and witness never touched him except to push him back. Mr. Bradburn picked up a stick and threatened witness, who picked up another stick, saying that he could not frighten witness. Witness believed that the stick would have struck him if it had fallen, had he not stepped back. Mr. Bradburn then went out, saying that he would yet give witness a good deal of trouble.

To Mr. Wood.—Everything was fairly pleasant till the receipt was signed—there was nothing to excite anybody. Mr. Bradburn began the trouble by snatching at the receipt. Witness swore positively that Mr. Bradburn's story was a complete fabrication. There was something like an agreement on Friday night when Mr. Graham was present, as to estimates of repairs. Witness told his brother that he had a satisfactory settlement with Mr. Bradburn, Don't remember that he told Mr. Wylie of a satisfactory settlement with Mr. Bradburn and that both were pleased. Witness had laid an information for assault. The assault consisted in Mr. Bradburn's catching witness by the arm and picking up a piece of board and threatening to murder him. Both of these acts were what he counted assault. It was correct as Mr. Graham said that witness could not open the back door on Friday night.

B. M. WYLIE recalled said, that on Tuesday afternoon he had a conversation with Mr. Carton, and the latter had said that he had had a very satisfactory settlement with Mr. Bradburn and that the latter was well pleased that he had done so much business in his shop.

After the addresses of the counsel, the magistrate remarked that he had made the case so that the evidence of both parties might be available. He had taken the evidence of both sides, measured the possibilities, and weighed the facts, and pointed out that Mr. Bradburn's statement had not been contradicted in any substantial effect by the apparently contradictory testimony of Mr. Carton. He enlarged upon the seriousness of the offence. Though the offence was classed as common assault, the circumstances attending it—the personal restraint and coercion which were the acts of a highwayman and not compatible with the spirit of the age—were of such a nature that money was hardly an adequate compensation, but he (the Magistrate) had decided not to avail himself of the privilege the law gave him of inflicting imprisonment, but he would impose a fine of $20 and costs, or in default of payment, one month in gaol.

Mr. Edwards, counsel for Mr. Carton, gave notice of an appeal against the decision of the Magistrate.

The magistrate remarked that, taking the evidence of the present case to apply to the counter charge of assault against Mr. Bradburn brought by Mr. Carton, he would dismiss the latter charge.

Is Not "Canuck" Correct?

The Empire of to-day (Friday) contains the following letter under this title:—

A MANLY ANSWER FROM PETERBOROUGH.

To the Sporting Editor of the Empire:

SIR,—In your issue of Saturday you criticise the conduct of the Peterborough cricket team severely with regard to their disappointing Parkdale. As one of the team, allow me to say that I quite agree with you. It was not, however, from carelessness, or wilful "bad form" that this incident arose, but from sheer inability to get a team. The Peterborough people are growing less fond of cricket yearly, at least to all appearances, and a small number of men cannot hold out under the expense of carrying on a good club. An apology is due to Parkdale, and I hope that they will accept it from us and return us their sympathy in the present unsatisfactory condition of "the noble game" here.

CANUCK.

It seems to be lamentably true that "Peterborough people are growing less fond of cricket yearly." It is the apathetic attitude of the public towards cricket as a sport that has caused the practical retirement of several of our very best players. A few of the leading cricketers have carried the club till their bank account has together with their patience, become fatigued A few men have worked heroically to keep a cricket club in shape, incurring heavy expense in maintaining a professional coach, which is as much a necessity to a first-class cricket club in a town as to the same in a city. The best of clubs the continent produces have been brought here, and in meeting them the local club has always come off creditably. Yet what encouragement has the public given the cricket club? As matches the attendance of the public is about equal to the attendance at a prayer meeting in the summer holidays. The usual "gate" receipts are only about enough to oil the hinges to prevent them squealing at the citizens who help to pay the expenses by looking over the fence at the match. If cricket does not die here this summer it will soon have to be rallied from its present condition of collapse. It would be a pity that a game like cricket, the only manly game that has kept itself clean from the objectionable "professionalism," that has in some cases destroyed the very essence of manly sports, should be allowed to languish and die in Peterborough, which has, from the days of the fifties always had a team that kept the banner waving at the top of the pole—that made the best teams on the continent work hard for any victory they might win. What is to be done? Something must be done without delay. The EXAMINER had much rather write a poem on the resurrection of cricket, than write its epitaph.—SPORTING EDITOR EXAMINER.

Spring.

Important season of the year
Which joy should to us bring,
When nature is making all around
Tell of the coming spring.

The farmer taps his maple trees
To make the sweet molasses,
And hangs a pail to catch the sap
On each tree as he passes.

Those little streams and rivulets
That swell the mighty river,
Should make us think of God above
The rich and bounteous giver.

The farmer now begins to work
To fix his fences up,
That have been blown down by the wind
To make secure his crop.

The woodchuck from his den appears,
The chipmunk too we see;
And butterflies flit through the air
From their small prison free.

The frogs are croaking in the ponds
The robin sings on tree,
And other birds pour forth their songs
Of cheerful melody.

The farmer then goes forth to sow
The precious golden grain,
That a good harvest he may reap
Matured by sun and rain.

The dormant buds their leaves unfold,
The trees are getting green;
The orchards too, they look so gay
With their fair blossoming.

Horses and cattle seem so glad,
When the cold winter's gone,
And field are green with fresh sweet grass
For them to feed upon.

The little lambs sport on the green,
How cheerfully they play
With on another in the field,
Until the close of day.

The flowers, too, their beauties show,
Of many tints and colors,
While some sweet odors do send forth
Superior to the others.

Some for to please the sense of smell,
And some the sense of sight;
Each one their mission to fulfil,
And give our hearts delight.

Grant, Lord, those beauties here below
In springtime which we see,
May lead our thoughts to soar above,
Where we may gaze on Thee.

As in the spring we sow clean seed,
A harvest good to grow,
So all who reap eternal life,
Must to the spirit sow.

But if you on the other hand
Unto the flesh do sow,
And don't repent of sinful ways
You'll reap eternal woe.

Our days are numbering fast, dear friend,
The springtime's flying by,
How brief the time that yet remains
When you and I must die.

Then now at once, without delay,
Your heart to Jesus give,
If you would in the better land
A crown of life receive.

Then when the resurrection morn
Shall dawn o'er sea and land,
May we be found among the blest—
Enthroned at God's right hand.

Young's Point.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

PICNIC.—On Saturday, May 23rd, the Methodists of Ebenezer Church held their annual picnic on the grounds here. In the afternoon they were reinforced by the arrival of a large number of friends from Lakefield on the steamer "Mary Ellen," which also ran a trip around the lakes for all those who wished to enjoy a sail. Tea was served about four o'clock, and after ample justice had been done to the good things which the ladies had so plentifully provided, a choice musical and literary programme was furnished by the young people of the church assisted by some Selwyn friends. Much credit is due to the pastor Rev. F. Johnston, and the committee of management for their untiring efforts to make the celebration of their thirteenth anniversary, what it undoubtly was—a success.

DEATH.—We learn with regret of the death of Mrs. Hamilton Davis on Wednesday morning after a very short illness. The funeral took place on Thursday morning to the North Dummer Cemetery, and was largely attended by the friends and neighbors of the deceased. Mr. Davis and family have the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community in their sad bereavement.

PUBLIC WORKS.—The Ontario Government are making considerale improvements in their public works here, under the able supervision of Mr. George Delaney of Lindsay. A portion of the steamboat wharf, which was built last summer, has been lowered in order that passengers and freights may be landed conveniently at both high and low water. The swing bridge across the canal is also being thoroughly overhauled and in a few day the work will be completed. The Ontario Government officials deserve credit for the prompt manner in which they attended to any necessary repairs in their works, and we wish the county officials would follow their example, and take prompt action in the matter of replanking the bridge across the river here.

LUMBERING.—A drive of logs of Mr. A. McDonald, of Peterborough, consisting of 20,000 pieces, swung into the bend here on Tuesday evening, and in ten hours, under foreman John Lynch, every stick had passed over the slide. This is the first drive of the season to pass through here, and the work went on very quietly, and we hope that those following will conduct themselves as creditably to themselves and with as little annoyance to others as these men did.

VANDALISM.—On Tuesday evening while Rev. Mr. Johnston of Lakefield, was attending a meeting in the church here, some scoundrel removed the nuts from the axles of his buggy, which he had left in a neighbor's yard. Mr. Johnston had proceeded but a few yards homeward when two wheels came off, the carriage was tipped and he was thrown out upon the road. Fortunately the horse was quiet, otherwise a serious if not fatal accident would have happened. Such vandalism as this should not go unpunished, as it was undoubtedly done with malicious intent. The leading men of the village are putting forth every effort to discover the perpetrator of this dastardly deed, and should they be successful in their search we heartily wish that the scoundrel may receive his just deserts.

A Splendid Canadian Journal.

The Dominion Illustrated not only maintains, but steadily improves upon the high standard of literary and artistic excellence which has especially marked that splendid Canadian journal since its enlargement at the beginning of this year to 24 pages weekly. The handsome engraving produced each week are well selected, and in addition to general views there are alwas some relating to current matters of general interest. A group of bright and gifted writers ar regular contributors to its literary contents, and its pages reflect the best thoughts of clever men and women. Such a journal deserves the gratifying export which it receives at the hands of the reading public. The enterprising publishers, the Sabiston Litho. & Pub. Co., Montreal, make it their constant aim to improve both the matter and appearance of the journal, and their success is certainly gratifying and most creditable.

DEATH AT A DANCE.

The Sad Fate of Pretty Kitty O'Brien at Hamilton Last Night.

HAMILTON, May 28.—A pretty young girl named Kitty O'Brien, aged 23, daughter of James O'Brien, bridge carpenter, 130 Young-street, went to a party at Mr. Horning's house in Glanford, accompanied by her sister and Charles Horning. They arrived at the house about 9.30, and the girls took off their wraps and went to the ball-room. Before they had commenced to dance Miss Kitty O'Brien complained of feeling ill and sat down on a chair. Almost immediately after she fell forward on her face on the floor before anyone could help her. Dr. Boyce was summoned, but before he arrived she was dead. He pronounced it a case of heart disease.

On Fire with Eczema

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby—Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail—Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his face, breast, arms and head, until he was nearly covered. His screaming equaled were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $5 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were ceased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

SIR JOHN DYING

Death is at the Premier's Elbow.

His Physicians Give Up All Hope of Recovery.

He Had a Relapse Yesterday Afternoon and Suffered from the Effusion of Blood on the Brain. He May Live Two Days and May Not Live Two Hours—The Cabinet Assembled at His Residence—Parliament Adjourned Sketch of His Wonderful Career—Characteristics of the Man.

OTTAWA, May 29, 11 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald is dying. A few moments ago a fierce conflict possessed the Chamber of the Commons. All day the subject of the Premier's condition had been in many mouths, and the bulletins from Ernscliffe were sought with eager interest. During much of the day the report current was that his condition was easier and the prospect hopeful. This was the first bulletin issued.

"ERNSCLIFFE, May 29, 10 a.m.—The Premier passed a quiet and comfortable night and this morning his physical strength shows distinct improvement since yesterday.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D."

All evening, however, the rumors grew more ominous and disturbing. It was learned that at 6 Sir James Grant and Dr. Wright has been called to Ernscliffe. It began to be whispered that the Premier's condition was gravely critical. At first the more alarming rumors were generally discredited, and few were prepared for the shock which came later with the sad but pitiless news that and that death was at the door at Ernscliffe. The debate in the House had attracted a large crowd to the galleries. The Speaker's and Senators' galleries were crowded with the beauty and fashion of the capital. The bright faces, the handsome costumes and the eager buzz of gossip formed an interesting scene. In the chamber there were few vacant seats, for although it was Friday evening a division was expected and the House was much fuller than usual. The speeches were keen and vigorous, and the applause was frequent and hearty, reaching at times to the height of enthusiasm. Outside in the lobbies, there was a great throng of gossipers and promanaders, when, like a cruel blow, came this bulletin, which was posted up on one of the pillars by the Commons postoffice at 9.30 o'clock:

ERNSCLIFFE, May 29, 1891, 8 p.m.

Sir John Macdonald suffered a relapse this afternoon while I was with him at 4.15. He is quite conscious at present, but his condition is most critical.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.

In a moment the bulletin was surrounded. Signs of grief were upon every countenance. Sympathetic glances and sympathetic words were exchanged by political friend and political foe. The sad message flew from lip to lip into the premroom, into committee rooms, into the party headquarters, into the chamber and into the eager galleries. A few minutes later the ominous message, whose passage from Minister to Minister had been observed was made public, as follows:

ERNSCLIFFE, 10.30 p.m.

I have just seen Sir John in consultation. Speech gone, hemorrhage extended to brain. Condition quite hopeless.

(Sgd.) DR. POWELL.

At 9 o'clock, it may be mentioned, a message of a disturbing character had also been received by the Cabinet from the room at Ernscliffe, and Ministers were in a measure prepared for this final blow. Just before this message was delivered to the Ministers the House had sunk into a quieter state, while Mr. Mackintosh read newspaper extracts incidental to the line of argument. Sir John Thompson passed down to the seat beside Mr. Foster, near the dying leader's chair, and then the Ministers on the front benches whispered together for a moment. An intimation was conveyed to Mr. Mackintosh to cease speaking, and the chamber roused to anxious interest as Sir Hector Langevin rose in his place. There were marks of sorrow on his face and his voice was low toned and tremulous as he told the House the intelligence, which seemed to be given additional gravity by its announcement in Parliament. Standing beside the vacant chair of the Premier, Sir Hector said: "Mr. Speaker, we have known that for the last few days the Premier has been lying ill at his residence. I have the painful duty to announce to the House that the news from Ernscliffe just received is that the First Minister has had a relapse and that he is in a most critical condition. We have reports from the medical men in attendance on the right hon. gentleman, and they do not seem to believe that he can live many hours longer. Under these circumstances I will move, seconded by Mr Laurier, that this debate be now adjourned." When Mr. Laurier rose all eyes were turned towards him. "Mr Speaker," he said, "under such sad circumstances it is a painful duty for me to second the motion of the hon. gentleman. The country will, of course, be shocked to hear the sad news, and I am sure it will not be possible to proceed with business further. I second the motion." Sir Hector then moved the adjournment of the House, seconded by Mr. Laurier. The members moved hurriedly from their places and around Sir Hector to question him whether he had any further intelligence and then stood about in groups and in subdued voices talked of the news. The voice of criticism was hushed and human brotherhood reigned. Up to midnight the telegraph offices were crowded, and messages were flashed from end to end of the Dominion, across the continent and by cable to England.

The Premier's illness really dates from early in the year, but he only disappeared from public view a week ago to-night and on Sunday became seriously ill. On Wednesday night the physician slept at Ernscliffe. Last night the patient was mending and slept well all night, so much so that Lady Macdonald, who had been up all the night before, retired to bed, and only occasionally went in to see how Sir John was resting. Dr. Powell arrived early this morning and found the Premier much improved. Sir John slept well and rose and took some beef tea for breakfast. He spent a portion of the morning dictating a few letters on public matters to his private secretary, Mr. Joseph Pope. He was doing a little work all day. He was weak, but Mr. Pope states that his mind was perfectly clear. "In fact," added Mr. Pope, "he was the same man." More than this, during the day the Premier discussed under public policy and tactics, these things finding the foremost place in his mind. At 4 o'clock Dr. Powell arrived and found his patient sitting up and feeling better. He was telling the doctor how he felt and what nourishment he was taking. The doctor had hold of his hand, when suddenly and without warning the terrible stroke descended. The features, so familiar to all, became white and set, and Sir John fell back in the awful embrace of paralysis. The alarm was given and messengers were de spatched for two consulting physicians. Sir James Grant and Dr. Henry P. Wright, who arrived quickly at the bedside of the unconscious Minister. This was between 4 and 5 o'clock. The Premier had no pain prior to the attack, and probably suffered little or more.

Leaving the doctors alone with their patient, the reader is invited to consider the effect outside of this fearful news. The Governor-General had called at Ernscliffe about 1 o'clock to inquire about the condition of his chief adviser. He stayed only a short time. Word was sent to him at 6 o'clock of the state of affairs. Major Sherwood, commissioner of Dominion police, come down to Ernscliffe and took charge of the outside arrangements. He posted a sergeant at the crescent approach to the grounds and another man was placed on duty at the gate opening on to the broad drive leading to the main entrance. These men were relieved at regular intervals. Major Sherwood himself remained on hand and rendered valuable assistance to the scores of visitors who came down to learn, if possible, that there was hope of recovery. The Premier's son, Mr. Hugh J. Macdonald, M. P., was in the House at the time the stroke came and hastened down on the receipt of the news. Mr. Fred White, the former secretary and an intimate friend of the family, went down, as did also Mr. George Sparks, a nephew of Lady Macdonald, and Mr. Beard, the Premier's assistant secretary.

Hemorrhage of the Brain.

Meanwhile the worst was taking place in the side. Paralysis had been succeeded by hemorrhage of the brain and all hope was gone. One of the consulting physicians wrote between 8 and 9 o'clock to Sir Hector Langevin as follows: "I have seen Sir John Macdonald in consultation with another. I found him paralysed with hemorrhage of the brain. His condition is hopeless. He may live a few hours." Sir Hector received other notes to the same effect. The Minister of Public Works had not seen Sir John since council on Saturday. Sir John Thompson, Messrs. Bowe's Carling, Dawdney and Haggart were the first Ministers to arrive at Ernscliffe after the adjournment. Mr. Bowell, who next to Sir Hector Langevin is the Premier's oldest colleague, could not conceal his grief. These Ministers went inside and conversed with the physicians. As they came out they met Sir Hector, Mr. Chapleau and Mr. Ouimet going in. Mr. Foster arrived later with several members of the House. At 11 o'clock His Excellency entered the grounds accompanied by Capt. Walsh, A.D.C. He remained with Major Sherwood while Capt. Walsh entered the house, and in a few minutes Dr. Powell came out and held a long conversation with his Excellency, who then departed, leaving instruction that should any further change ensue he should be notified at once.

The Latest Word.

At 11 o'clock the newspaper correspondents who were sitting in the front hall were handed the following bulletin:

ERNSCLIFFE, 11 P.M.

Sir John still continues very precarious. Loss of power of speech. Rest somewhat better than during this afternoon. Takes a moderate degree of liquid nourishment.

(Signed) W. R. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

At midnight the doctors said the Premier was in nearly the same condition as he was at 5 or 6 o'clock. His voice and consciousness had so far returned as to enable him to say "Joe" and "Fred" when he saw Mr. Pope and Mr. White, and he was able to freely motion with one hand. Sir James Grant and Dr. Wright, the consulting physicians, who were in attendance upon the Premier until a late hour, hold out no hope whatever for his recovery. It may be a question of a few hours or a day or two, but both are agreed that the end is near. Sir James describes the symptoms as those of severe cerebral hemorrhage, the result of overwork. There is complete paralysis of the limbs and muscles on both sides of the body from the crown of the head to the soles of the feet. The paralytic stroke began first on one side, but rapidly ex tended to the other, and when the consulting physicians left the patient shortly before midnight the only indication of physical power was the capability of protruding the tongue at intervals. The power of speech was entirely gone and consciousness had departed. Dr. Wright, while exceedingly reluctant to go into details, coincides with Sir James Grant in the opinion that the stroke has been the result of the party's mental strain to which Sir John has been subjected lately. It is not uncommon for men of Sir John's age, or even those many years his junior, to succumb to cerebral paralysis, but in Sir John's case there is every reason to believe that an exceedingly active brain has suffered from overwork.

OTTAWA, May 30.—1 a.m.—Latest information from Ernscliffe is that Sir John is somewhat easier and has been able to utter a few words. His brain seems clearer and he has been able to touch his lips and otherwise indicate his wants, but this is not regarded as any indication of recovery. Indeed, it is rather looked on as the brief recovery which so frequently is the immediate pressure of dissolution. Lord Stanley visited Ernscliffe as soon as he heard of Sir John's condition and remained a while. Sir James Grant, who left Sir John about midnight, says he may live two days but may pass away in as many hours.

OTTAWA, May 30, 2.30 a.m.—Latest reports at 2 o'clock from Ernscliffe are that Sir John is resting quietly, breathing more regular. Still there is no revival of hope.

His Career.

John Alexander Macdonald was born in Glasgow, Scotland, on January 11, 1815. He was second son of Mr. Hugh Macdonald, who lived originally in the parish of Dornoch, Sutherlandshire, but who, when John A. was aged 5 years, removed to Canada. This was during the great emigration movement of 1820. The family settled at Kingston, which was then the most important town in Upper Canada, and after residing there for upwards of four years removed to Quinte Bay, leaving John Alexander—then in his tenth year—at school in Kingston. At the Royal Grammar School he remained until his sixteenth year, when his father articled him in the office of George Mackenzie, where he threw all his energies into the study of law. At school he had given no promise of the remarkable career he has run, being prominent only in mathematics. But at law he soon excelled and was called to the bar at 21, an age at which law students to-day very often only enter on their course.

When he commenced active practice the first mutterings of coming trouble shook the country, and soon Papineau in Lower Canada and William Lyon Mackenzie in Upper Canada rushed to arms. A body of hunters, as the invaders were called, under command of a Pole named Von Shoults, crossed from the American side over to Prescott, but Shoults was captured and his followers killed and dispersed. Courts-martial were established at London and Kingston, and at the latter city Shoults and his comrades were put on trial. Young Macdonald defended the unfortunate Pole who had been induced by illusive representations to cross the border after the rebellion proper had been put down. Barrister often at a stroke create a name but none ever did so more signally than did this young lawyer, in the defence of the Pole, whom no ability could save from hanging in face of the evidence.

Thus in 1839, at 25 years of age, he took rank as a leader of the bar. In the same year he entered into a legal partnership with Mr. Alexander Campbell, now Sir Alexander, and Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

In 1844 Mr. Macdonald was elected to represent Kingston in the second legislature under the union, defeating Mr. Manahan. He entered Parliament at a very trying time. Sir Charles Metcalfe, the new Governor-General, had come freighted with notions of authority imbibed in India and Jamaica, and was not disposed to submit to dictation by a Canadian House. A quarrel with the ministry resulted over some appointments to office and the latter resigned. The historical battle for responsible government followed, in which the Conservatives found themselves by hereditary duty called upon to support the Governor-General. The young member for Kingston showed his great tact by withstanding the strong temptation to break himself on the wheel. He did not plunge with premature impetuosity, as most young members do, into the debates of the House. He sat unmoved at his desk while the frays for which that period of Parliamentary history was remarkable went on, "looking half careless and half contemptuous," as a gentleman who had seen him there recently said. "Sometimes in the thick of the melee, he was busy in and out of the library. I scarcely ever remember then seeing him about the House that he was not searching up some case either then impending or to come up at a later date. He was for a great part of his time, too, buried in constitutional history." His first speech was a bold one—in reply to Hon. Robert Baldwin—but it did him credit.

In May, 1847, he was selected by Attorney-General Draper for the vacant office of Receiver-General, who said: "Your turn has come at last, Macdonald." Very soon he assumed the management of the Crown Lands Department, which was in a very topsy-turvy state, and with surprising speed brought it under business methods. Previously the department had been nearly as famous as the English Court of Chancery for its vexatious delays, but this changed at once, and has never since fallen back into the pernicious methods from which Mr. Macdonald rescued it.

History shows and the student of history is surprised by what a small majority the Draper Administration held power from 1844 to 1848 and during the troublous times at that. In the meantime Lord Metcalfe returned to England, Lord Cathcart filling the gap in the Governor-Generalship until the arrival of Lord Elgin.

On the defeat of the Draper Ministry in 1848 by Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Lafontaine the stirring times took on more stirring guise, but Mr. Macdonald was conspicuous for his wise attitude. Six years in opposition afforded him valuable discipline, and when he again sat on the Government benches there was but a single antagonist in the House for whom he was not a full match. While in opposition he opposed the reform of King's College and the Rebellion Losses Bill. It was an insecure period for governments and the Baldwin-Lafontaine Ministry soon showed signs of weakness. Finally the double-headed leadership made way for Sir Francis Hincks in 1851, and then it became apparent that Reform disruption was complete. It broke into two sections, one led by Sir Francis, the other by Mr. George Brown. Against foes within and without the Government staggered along until 1853, when an appeal to the country caused its overthrow. Then came a great surprise. The Reform wing which coalesced with the Conservatives in the fight were passed over in the House and the defeated wing joined the Conservatives in a Coalition Cabinet. In this McNab-Morin combination Mr. Macdonald became Attorney-General, and great interest was excited by speculating as to whether the Reform or Conservative element would predominate. That the latter prevailed was chiefly due to the tact of the Attorney-General. Sir Allan McNab was soon relegated to the sick room and John A. Macdonald led the Ontario section and George E. Cartier the Quebec section.

The Pacific Scandal.

Immediately after the general election of 1873 Sir John Macdonald fell on evil times Hardly had the election concluded before rumors began to fly about to the effect that the elections had been won by gross corruption. There was nothing remarkable in this, as it is the common cry of the defeated party after an election. But in this case the cry instead of waning as time elapsed rather increased and grew in magnitude. The substance of these charges was that Sir John Macdonald and some of his colleagues had accepted from Sir Hugh Allen large sums of money, which had been used in corrupting the electorate and winning their way back to power. It will be remembered that Sir Hugh Allan, head of the great Allan Steamship Line, was also president of a company which proposed to build the railway across the continent. For the purpose of securing the return of Sir John Macdonald and his friends who Sir Hugh realized would be more favorable to his proposals than the Opposition would be likely to be, it was said that the great steamship owner had subscribed $300,000 to the campaign funds. Bit by bit the evidence on this point accumulated. Letters were published that had been got in an underhand way, but the first real thunder of the storm was heard on the floor of parliament. About 30 days after the first session of the second parliament had reassembled Lucius Seth Huntington, a member from the provinces of Quebec, stood up in his place in the House and read from a paper in his hand the following resolution, which has since become historical.

The Huntington Resolutions.

That he, the said Lucius Seth Huntington, is credibly informed and believes that he can establish by satisfactory evidence that in anticipation of the legislation of last session, as to the Pacific Railway, an agreement was made between Sir Hugh Allan, acting for himself and certain other Canadian promoters, and G. W. McMullen, acting for certain U.S. capitalists, whereby the latter agreed to furnish all the funds necessary for the construction of the contemplated railway and to give the former a certain percentage of interest in consideration of their interest and position, the scheme agreed upon being ostensibly that of a Canadian Company with Sir Hugh Allan at its head—

"That the Government were aware that these negotiations were pending between the said parties;

"That subsequently an understanding was come to between the Government, Sir Hugh Allan and Mr. Abbott that Sir Hugh Allan and his friends should advance a large sum of money for the purpose of aiding the elections of Ministers and their supporters at the ensuing general election, and that he and his friends should receive the contract for the construction of the railway;

"That accordingly Sir Hugh Allan did advance a large sum of money for the purpose mentioned, and at the solicitation and under pressing instances of ministers;

"That part of the moneys expended by Sir Hugh Allan in connection with the obtaining of the act of incorporation and charter were paid to him by the United States capitalists under the agreement with him;

"That a committee of seven members be appointed to enquire into all the circumstances connected with the negotiations for the construction of the Pacific Railway with the legislation of last session on the subject and with the granting of the charter to Sir Hugh Allan and others, with power to send for persons, papers and records and with instructions to report in full the evidence taken before and all proceedings of said committee."

Mr. Huntington merely read this resolution without further comment. There was a moment of painful silence in the House. The Premier was motionless as a statue. The Speaker then put the resolution and it was voted down by a majority of 31.

Such weighty charges, however, could not drop thus. Nor was it to be so. Next day in the House Sir John Macdonald gave notice of a motion, which was passed on the 5th of April, to the effect:

That a select committee of five members be appointed by this House to enquire into and report upon the several matters contained and stated in a resolution moved by the Hon. Mr. Huntington, member for Shefford, relating to the Canadian Pacific Railway, with power to send for papers and records, to report the evidence from time to time and if need be to sit after the prorogation of Parliament.

The committee was composed of Messrs. Blanchet, Blake, Dorion, Macdonald and Cameron. Into all the difficulties that supervened before this committee could get to work it is not necessary to enter. Suffice it to say that an oaths bill, which had been passed by the House to facilitate the laying of evidence before the committee, was disallowed by the Queen and the meeting of the committee was postponed from time to time. During the interval the committee got possession of some important documents, and on the 4th of July some of these were published in The Montreal Herald. They were letters and telegrams sent by Sir Hugh Allan to two Chicago gentlemen, George W. McMullen and Charles M. Smith. In more than one of these Sir Hugh spoke of an expenditure of $300,000 in promoting the scheme to secure the contract for building the Canadian Pacific. Later still telegrams of Sir John Macdonald, Sir George E. Cartier, Sir Hector Langevin and other members of the Ministry were produced, which showed that these gentlemen had drawn for large sums of money for election purposes. These documents were so incriminating that Lord Dufferin, the Governor-General, determined to hold an active session of parliament, beginning Aug. 13, 1873. Nevertheless, the House only met to prorogue. The committee was discharged and the whole matter referred to a Royal Commission consisting of three judges. The commissioners were Judges Day, Polette and Gowan.

Parliament Meets.

Parliament met again on Oct. 23. The report of the Royal Commission was laid before it. It was perhaps the most memorable session of the Canadian Parliament ever held. The attack on Sir John Macdonald began at once, and some of the ablest speeches ever heard on the floor distinguished it. It raged for seven days, during the course of which the hero of it all made one of the ablest addresses that had ever issued from his lips. He spoke five hours, concluding with the statement that he had given the best of his heart, his brain and his life to the service of his country.

Nothing could save him, however, and after the debate had raged for seven days he, on Nov. 5, announced in a crowded House the resignation of his Ministry.

It was difficult to adequately appreciate the weight of the blow. It was a poor ending of 25 years of public life. It would have crushed even an extraordinary man. The rapidity with which he recovered from its effects and once more leaped into public favor and to power remain to this day the historical marvel of our time.

Evil Days.

Sir John Macdonald's political career was closed, so everybody said. He had ruined the Conservative party. A proposition was made to depose him which was only prevented by the plucky opposition of a journalist, who stood in the breach and reminded the ingrates who would have knifed him how much they owed to their old leader. But even after this acceptance and endorsement the old chief endured many trials and mortifications. The Liberals were delighted at the action of their opponents. They felt assured that the man whom they described as thrice guilty would have too heavy a load to carry. There was no denying the seriousness of the charge which had been established against him. The Conservative phalanx had his defence, which it has more than once been mysteriously hinted would one day be given to the world, but in the meantime that defence could not be used. There is reason to believe that he at times himself considered that the party would be relieved of a burden if he would voluntarily retire. Indeed, it is a fact, although not generally known, that he authorized C. H. Mackintosh, editor of The Ottawa Citizen, to announce his retirement from public life. Mr. Mackintosh, who was a warm follower of Sir John Macdonald, prevailed on him to delay the announcement with the result that it never reached the light. Looking back at these days, the very limited range of human wit and foresight is abundantly apparent. The Liberals who thought that in adhering to Sir John Macdonald the Conservatives had damned their party for the rest of the natural life of their leader have had reason to acknowledge by the light of subsequent events that they were mistaken. They have had reason to feel assured that no other leader could have led his party into the land of promise so readily, so skilfully and kept it there so permanently as the man whom they deemed had abnegated his political life on that memorable day on the floor of Parliament when he bowed to the forces arrayed against him and gave up the seals of office.

Of Sir John Macdonald's subsequent career the salient points are warm in the public memory. Since the election of 1878 he has submitted his claims three times to the Canadian people, and three times they have declared him to be the darling son. In that period two great measures stand prominently forth—the upbuilding of the National Policy and the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Notes.

Sir John was a man eminently alone. He had thousands and thousands of admirers and associates at Ottawa who aided his every wish. But he had no friend to whom he went, with whom he talked things over, or to whom he gave his dearest confidence. He communed and counselled with himself.

Sir John was one of the best tempered men in the world. He is not known to have lost his temper in all his eventful history half a dozen times.

He was a man of the utmost simplicity. He never concocted "big head." He never sought to impress you that he was Prime Minister of Canada, and that you were an ordinary voter. He talked to the Queen in the same way that he talked to the humblest citizen—with respectful deference, and forgetfulness of his own personality.

Don't Feel Well.

It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will lift you out of that uncomfortable, unprofitable, unproven condition, into a state of good health, confidence and cheerfulness. You've no idea how potent this peculiar medicine is in such like cases.

3 PRACTICAL POINTS.

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. During the past ten years over one million bottles have been sold in Canada, and, although we guarantee every bottle to do all we claim, we have not received a single complaint.

DIRECT AND INDIRECT TAXATION.

Direct taxation has a very depressing sound, and in Ontario, Tory politicians have tried to get their hands on the Ontario public chest to prevent the Grits from squandering the Provincial funds, and alienating the Provincial assets, thus bringing on direct taxation. They have tried to frighten the electors with the cry of direct taxation, as if this were an evil of terrible magnitude. If it were an evil, however, direct taxation would have one good feature—the people would see that they were paying out good money and would watch the expenditure of it with much greater vigilance than now, when they pay enormous sums in indirect taxation and do not feel it except in a vague sort of way, which they do not ascribe to high taxation, but to that convenient expression for tariff robbers — hard times. To show the people that direct taxation, which seems to them to be so terrible an affair, could not be much worse than the indirect taxation under which they are now struggling, the following statement of the situation by the Globe may be submitted:

According to the trade returns of the United States for 1889 90 the sum of $5,642,000, or over a dollar per head of our population, was collected by that Government on the products shipped from this country across the line. Here are some of the larger items:

Animals	$ 577,000
Barley	1,133,000
Soft Coal	362,000
Copper ore	96,000
Iron ore	10,000
Fish	256,000
Flax	44,000
Hay	249,000
Barley malt	42,000
Potatoes	169,000
Beans and peas	63,000
Raw wools	114,000
Lumber, etc.	1 603,000

This was under the American tariff which ceased to be operative on October 5, after the close of the last fiscal year. The McKinley tariff, which went into force the next day, is a much more rigorous measure. Our exports of hay in the last fiscal year were 124,500 tons, which, under, the old duty of $2 paid, as above, $249,000, whereas under the McKinley tariff of $4 per ton the payments would be just twice as much, or nearly half a million dollars. Our barley exports were set down at 11,327,052 bushels, which at the former duty of ten cents paid $1,133,000. This would be trebled under the new duty of 30 cents. Of beans and peas we exported last year 626,000 bushels, valued at $630,300. The old duty of 10 per cent. ad val. represented a tax on the Canadian producer of $63,000; but the new duty of 40 cents per bushel would tell a very different tale. The eggs we sold them last year, numbering 14,917,000 dozen and valued at $2,065,000, were admitted free. The McKinley duty of five cents per dozen would represent a loss to the Canadian farmer's wife of three-quarters of a million dollars. As a rule the Canadian producer pays these direct taxes. There is no doubt about that. Sir John Macdonald used to illustrate the process by citing the case of two barley growers, one on each side of the line, the Canadian one being obliged to pay the American toll at the frontier before he could sell his stuff. Sir David Macpherson put it in this way:—"Suppose a farmer in this country takes five horses, valued at $100 each, to Detroit to sell. The duty on horses in the United States is 20 per cent., which the Canadian farmer must pay before he can enter the Detroit market; that is, he must pay $20 for each horse, and on his five horses $100, or the value of one horse, at the United States custom house before he can take them to the market." Alas! since Sir. David spoke at Walkerton the United States duty has been augmented. The Canadian farmer would now have to pay toll to the extent of $150, that is, he would suffer the loss of a horse and a half. These duties, it will be seen, are not collected in any roundabout way—there is no sugar on the pill. They come directly out of the proceeds of the farmer's labor, as much so as a poll tax or a tithe on his wheat; and, what is worse, they go not to pay the running expenses of the Canadian Government but to swell the surplus in the United States treasury and redeem Uncle Sam's debts. The loss entailed is greater than appears at first site. For, besides taking just so much out of the farmer's pocket, the duties obliterate the margin of profit in the case of certain coarse products and prevent him from growing them at all or from growing them as extensively as he would like to do. This year, for instance, many Central Ontario farmers, whose soil is specially adapted for the cultivation of barley, have been forced by the McKinley tariff to grow less remunerative crops.

When our Tory friends insist that continental free trade would entail a loss of Federal revenue which would have to be made good by new taxes, they forget that even so the measure would relieve us of direct taxes to the amount of many millions a year which we now contribute to a foreign nation, besides enabling the natural industries to turn their resources to the best account, of itself no small boon. Moreover, it would tend to diminish the vast annual tribute in choice men and women which restriction compels us to pay to the same foreign nation—a consideration which ought to commend it to all Canadians, and especially to the decimated population of Quebec.

THE TORONTO Telegram has strong Tory leanings, but never loses its equilibrum so much but it can recognize honest administrative ability in a political opponent. In a recent issue it thus refers to Hon. C. F. Fraser, Commissioner of Public Works in the Mowat Administration:—"Ontario is getting full value for every cent that is being spent upon the new Parliament buildings. As the structure rises near completion its outlines are a credit to the architect, and in point of goodness the work will stand as a monument to the honesty of Hon. C. F. Fraser. Party friendship has not influenced the minister in dealing with contracts for various services in connection with the new building. He rejected an offer because he considered it too high from a tenderer who had been the candidate of the Liberals in a Tory stronghold. The bid was the lowest, but not low enough, and party considerations did not keep the minister from throwing out all the tenders and calling for new offers."

Sault Ste Marie.

The Water-Power Canal—The Opinion of an Authority on Hydraulics—The Work to be Commenced at Once.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 21st, 1891.—Mr. Wilde, the resident engineer of the Water Power Company, left for Minneapolis to-day with complete plans for "the water-power canal," for the purpose of consulting Mr. J. T. Fanning, the consulting engineer for the work. Mr. Fanning has a wide reputation as an engineer, and is considered an authority upon hydraulics in this continent. He spent three days in making a thorough examination of the water-power canal site here and pronounced it unexcelled for the low price at which power could be obtained, facility for shipment by boat and rail and geographical position, being, as it is, the natural outlet for the great wheat fields of Manitoba and the Northern States. He has been employed by the Water-Power Company, and the construction of the great water-power canal here will be under his supervision, which is a guarantee that it will be built second to none in the world. A gang of one hundred men continue clearing and stripping the right-of-way preparatory to the heavy work of excavation, and there will be no more cessation in the work until the canal is completed. Mr. Wilde will return next week with the approved plans, and the work of excavation will at once begin.

An Eminent Professor Saved.

A well-known and highly respected professor of music in one of our large Canadian cities is at present one of the happiest and most thankful men in the Dominion. He always enjoyed a large measure of success as a teacher, and his pupils were numerous and all from the best families of the country. The professor a short time ago became so weak and ill, that he was forced to give up his work, much to the regret of his classes. He became so exceedingly nervous and weak, irritable and dispondent, that his family became alarmed at his condition. The family physician after two weeks constant attention and treatment was not able to discern any improvement. One of the professor's pupils, a young man of considerable attainments, and who called daily to see the professor during his illness, boldly and without hesitation, recommended the use of Paine's Celery Compound, which proved to be no stranger in the young man's home. The professor acceded to his pupil's request, and commenced to use this great compound; and most wonderful to relate, an almost perfect cure was affected in less than five weeks. The joy of the professor's family was unbounded, and his expressions of thanks to his pupil were heart felt and touching. From a knowledge of the facts, we are enabled to state that the professor is now building up a strong and vigorous constitution, and has resumed tuition much to joy of his many pupils. He still continues the use of Paine's Celery Compound, and refers to it as his great preserver.

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. R. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Felicia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hauel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

SUN LIFE

ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Life Assurances in force, 1st January, 1891	$16,759,255.92
Increase over previous year	3,421,272.54
New Applications received in 1890	6,371,529.15
Increase over 1889	2,265,553.60
Cash income for year ending 31st December, 1890	869,078.57
Increase over 1889	325,935.25
Assets at 31st December, 1890	2,473 514.19
Increase over 1889	667,691.47
Reserve for Security for Policy-Holders	2,100,223.68
Increase over 1889	561,733.71
Surplus over all Liabilities and Capital Stock	232,175.60
Increase over 1889	75,649.95
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961.65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6.04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$64,824 07
" " " " 1886, "	80,462 97
" " " " 1890, (four years)	232,175 60

A GREAT IRISHMAN DEAD.

Dr. Magee, Archbishop of York and Greatest of Anglican Preachers.

The Right Hon and Most Rev. William Connor Magee, Archbishop of York and Primate of England, who has for some time past been ill with influenza, died at London, Eng., on the 5th May.

Within the past twelve months the Anglican Church has suffered an unparalleled succession of losses. Lightfoot, Bishop of Durham; Thomson, Archbishop of York; Church, Dean of St. Paul's; Plumptre, Dean of Wells, and Cannon Liddon have passed away. Dr. Magee is one that can be ill-spared

The Right Rev. William Connor Magee was remarkable as being the last connecting link between the Church of England and the disestablished Church of Ireland. He was born at Cork in 1821. His father, the Rev. John Magee, was curate of the Cathedral parish, in that city. At 13, an unusually early age, young Magee matriculated in Trinity College, Dublin, where his course was a continual succession of prizes ending with a scholarship.

Mr. Magee took holy orders about 1843 and for a short time held a curacy in one of the Dublin parishes, which he was compelled to resign on account of ill health. After a residence of two years in Malaga he returned to the United Kingdom and accepted a curacy at Bath.

In this post he remained twelve years, while his fame was gradually rising as a preacher of special sermons, as a debater on Church questions and as a Lenten lecturer at Oxford.

His ability was so conspicuous that the Bishop of Bath and Wells conferred on him the honorary rank of Prebendary.

In 1860 Mr. Magee accepted the office of Minister to the Quebec Chapel, London, in succession to Dean Goulburn, but in the following year received an offer of the rectory of Enniskillen by Trinity College, Dublin, in whose gift the living then was. In 1864 he became Dean of Cork, and shortly afterward was transferred to the deanery of the Chapel Royal, Dublin.

In 1868, just before the disestablishment of the Church of Ireland, Dr. Magee was appointed Bishop of Peterborough, being, it is said, the only Dublin Trinity College man ever appointed to an English see.

In right of his see he became a member of the British House of Lords and there delivered his famous speech against the disestablishing of the church of Ireland. The impression which this speech made at the time of its delivery has never been forgotten, and one consequence of it was to place Dr. Magee in the front rank of English speaking orators.

From 1868 until 1890 Dr. Magee presided over his diocese with assiduity and ability. He had a caustic wit, peculiarly his own, which was hardly relished by either the cranks or the dull parsons who came under his rule. It is related that when a curate ventured to ask that he should not be forgotten in the shower of livings, Dr. Magee promptly sent him an umbrella.

The most famous expression attributed to him was from a speech in the House of Lords, in which he said he would rather see "England free than England sober." This gave much offence to the temperance party, but the fiery Irish Bishop didn't mind. Lord Beconsfield, no mean judge, placed him only second to the late Dr. Tait, Archbishop of Canterbury, as the best parliamentary debater of his time.

After the death of Archbishop Thomson a few months ago Dr. Magee was promoted to the Archiepiscopal See of York. The cranks and extremists of all parties were disappointed at this appointment, but the bulk of the Episcopalians were satisfied that the new head of the Northern province would rule wisely and well.

Dr. Magee was a strong churchman, but tolerant withal. He was not identified with any of the extreme parties in the church. His loss at this time will be almost irreparable.

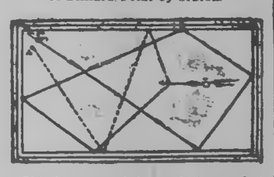
EYES OF WILD ANIMALS.

Beasts in Their Natural State Can All See a Long Distance.

A curious communication has been made to the "Academie de Medicine" by M. Motais, of Angers, whose works on the various diseases of the eye are highly esteemed, says Murray's Magazine. He has closely examined the effect of captivity on the sight of wild beasts, such as lions, tigers, etc., and asserts that all animals in a savage state are far-sighted. The same remark applies to man in an uncivilized state, and even to those who, though civilized, follow avocations which oblige them to remain constantly in the open air, such as sailors or farm laborers.

The same faculty exists in caged animals when they have been taken after the age of six or eight months; but when born in captivity, or kept in cages when very young, they become near-sighted, which M. Motais attributes to the narrow space in which they are confined, and the training which obliges them to follow the eye of the keeper or tamer to obey his will. The near-sightedness of school children may, in his opinion, be ascribed to the same cause—the habit of concentrating the sight on one point, and the fact that the power of the visual organ becomes modified according to the requirements to which it is subjected.

A Billiard Point by Sexton.



This shot was made by me during my last game with Slosson. The cue ball should be hit on the right side just below the centre, striking the object ball on the left side. This drives the object ball to the right hand cushion then to the left, when it rolls to the corner with the other. The cue ball takes five cushions, as shown in the diagram, and counts on the second object ball, leaving all three in the corner.

Quarantining Canadian Lambs.

MONTREAL, May 28.—The recent quarantine of Canadian lambs at Buffalo and other points west where they are shipped to the United States has been so severely felt that it is likely some effort will be made to have the quarantine removed. The American market has hitherto been practically the only one for Canadian lambs outside of the comparatively limited number taken for local consumption.

An Advance in Coal.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Sales agents of the Anthracite Coal Producing Company to-day ordered an advance of 15 cents per ton on all sizes June 1. They also decided to restrict production in June to 3,350,000 tons.

Died of the Whipping.

POSTIAC, Mich., May 28.—Miss Jennie Webb, a school teacher, whipped Frank Cook, a pupil, severely a year ago. He went home with great welts all over him, was taken with paralysis and died. Miss Webb was held for trial before the Circuit Court and the case has been on for two weeks. After three hours' deliberation the jury returned a verdict of assault and battery.

The Socialist Must Go.

SCOTTDALE, Penn., May 28.—The 2000 Socialists in the Connellsville coke region who took an active part in the late strike must go. The superintendents of the coke companies have received rigid instructions to dispense with their services. When any of them apply for work they are told, "This company has no use for Anarchists." Some of the men have changed their names in the vain hope of obtaining employment. Sixty men have been discharged at Morrell for their conduct during the strike.

He Can be a Real Ghost Now.

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 28.—A burglar disguised as a ghost entered Farmer McGowan's house at an early hour yesterday morning. McGowan awakened and fired at the burglar. When daylight came the intruder was tracked by a trail of blood to the banks of a creek about a hundred yards from the house, where all trace of him was lost. He is supposed to have fallen into the creek and drowned.

Fell to His Death.

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont., May 28.—Albert Wallwin, aged 22, son of J. E. Wallwin of Midhurst, was riding on a load of manure, when he overbalanced and pitched forward headforemost under the wagon wheel and broke his neck. His death was instantaneous.

A Pioneer's Sudden Call.

AYLMER, May 28.—Edward McConnell, 74 years of age, one of the pioneers of the 1st concession of Malahide, had just disposed of some cattle and returned to the house when he dropped dead.

Died in the Garden.

RICHMOND HILL, May 28.—Miss Leek, who resided on the homestead near Headford with her sisters and her brother George, walked out into the garden and expired in a few moments. Heart trouble was the immediate cause, but she had been in delicate health for some time previous.

"My modest, matchless Madeline
Mark my melodious midnight moans;
Much may my melting music mean—
My modulated monotones."

This young man stayed out too late, serenading his lady love. He caught a cold, which developed into catarrh, but he cured it with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, a sovereign specific for chronic cases. "Cold in the Head," Catarrhal Headache. It corrects the tainted breath, stops the offensive discharges, heals the irritated throat and nose, leaving the head clear, and smell and taste unimpaired. 50 cents but 50 cents, and the proprietors offer in good faith $500 for a case they cannot cure. c

A Welcome Announcement.

Those who have tested it say that for the grippe, and especially for the cough that hangs on after the disease itself seems cured, there is nothing equal to Kemp's Balsam, the specific for all throat and lung diseases, and the best cure for coughs and colds. The first dose will convince you of its excellent effect. All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a bottle. dw

Self Application of Electricity
FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES
BY THE DORENWEND
ELECTRIC BELT
And Attachments.
HEAD OFFICE—103 Yonge St., Toronto.
THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASES, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCY, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.
Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.
Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM; but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Our Fire System.

Mayor Stevenson to-day received a letter from the secretary of the Fire Underwriters' Association, stating that as the Association had received complaints regarding the Peterborough fire system they had sent an Inspector down to inspect it. The Inspector in his report had called attention to two requirements—one, that the fire hall should never be without at least one team of horses, as sometimes occurs now, and the other that the general alarm bell should be raised higher in the tower. The letter enquired what the corporation would do about these suggestions. The letter will be laid before the council.

A Clerical Visitor.

The Rev. J. W. McCleary has arranged an exchange of services with the Rev. J. W. Thrush of Christ Church, Detroit, for the next three Sundays. Mr. McCleary has many friends in the city whom he will be glad to meet again. It will not be an entire holiday, however, as he will perform the duties at Christ Church instead of Mr. Thrush. The last named clergyman although a young man was originally a Congregational minister, but has found a more congenial home in the Church of England. It will be his first visit to Canada, although he is an Englishman and has spent the greater part of his life in his native land. The Protestant Episcopal church has a strong hold on the people of Detroit and Christ Church is the finest church property in the city.

Almost a Bad Fire.

Last night the residence of Mr. John Fraser, Downey street, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire. Mr. Fraser and the family were absent from home, the house was shut up, and a coal oil lamp left burning on the table. Shortly before ten o'clock a blaze was discovered inside the house, caused, as was subsequently found, by the explosion of the lamp. The alarm was at once rung, and this time the fire department made a splendid record. In exactly three minutes from the time the alarm was rung from the box at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets the firemen and hose reel were on the spot ready for work, but fortunately their services were not needed—the fire was extinguished without much trouble by the neighbours. Mr. Fraser's loss is about $100, fully covered by insurance. It is fortunate that the house was closely shut. Had there been the slightest draught the house and its contents would, without doubt, have been practically destroyed.

A Novel Invention.

A novel invention in oiling vehicles has been secured by Harford Ashley, of Belleville, Ont., by which the oil is drawn from a reservoir in the axle up through a wick to the top side of the axle, in the same way as the oil is drawn up the wick of a lamp to burn by the capillary attraction, and has been in use in Minneapolis, Minnesota, for the last two years, working perfectly at ten degrees below zero. The oil used is made from petroleum by the Standard Oil Company, U.S., and will not gum or stick up like lard or castor oil. Several wagons with these Oilers constructed in the axles, are now and have been in use for several months in Belleville, Toronto and this city, and in not one single case have the parties driving the same had to oil the axles, which are guaranteed against breakage and to also oil the axles perfectly by supplying oil only once a year. Mr. G. A. Howson, of this city, is running a milk wagon which has these self-oiling axles, and to whom Mr. Ashley refers the public as to its merits. 1dw

Sons of Scotland.

Scotchmen have never been charged with any disposition to neglect keeping the family together. Now, as though the St. Andrew's Society was not satisfying enough to the Scottish soul—did not keep the patriotic fire in the altar of the Celtic heart supplied with fuel, in the shape of heather, haggis and recollections of auld lang syne, another society has been organized. This is the Sons of Scotland, a social, fraternal and benevolent society. In the unavoidable absence of the Grand Chief, Grand Secretary Banks instituted the lodge. The following officers were elected:—

Past Chief.....G. H. Noble
Chief.....Dr. Caldwell
Chieftain.....Jas. Munroe
Rec.-Sec.....W. J. Minore
Fin.-Sec.....M. R. Kidd
Treasurer.....Chas. Brown
Marshall.....Wm. Hamilton
Inside Guard.....Thos. Brooksbridge
Outside Guard.....J. Gemmell

The lodge begins its existence with twenty five charter members and will no doubt have a prosperous existence, for they say what a Scotchman gets a "grip" on has to go.

Police Court.

SATURDAY, May 30th.

Mrs. Vought appeared in court asking protection from the tempestuous tongue of a neighbour, but the magistrate advised her to go home and keep quiet, restrain herself and her neighbour would cease her annoyance when it ceased to annoy.

Charles Stevens was charged with committing a nuisance by the pollution of the streets by the carless removal of night soil. On promise of future carefulness, the charge was dismissed on payment of costs, amounting to $4.95.

Joseph Christe and John Cunningham were charged with neglect to obey an order to clean their closets. It appears that an attempt had been made to clean them but the work had not been done thoroughly enough to suit the inspector. The cases were enlarged for one week to see if the work should be done in the meantime. Both parties charged are tenants, having only occupied the premises a short time, and they were informed that if they notified the landlord of the order of the inspector to have the closets cleaned, and if he (the landlord) refused to have the work done, those tenants could have the work done themselves and legally reserve the cost of the cleaning from the amount of rent due the landlord.

From Harvey and Chemong to Burleigh Falls.

Three Churches Join Forces for an Excursion.

The Methodist congregations of Lakehurst, Indian village and the 16th Concession of Smith have appointed a joint committee to make arrangements for an excursion and picnic to Burleigh Falls on Wednesday, June 10th. The posters will give full information concerning this event, which is in the hands of an energetic committee who promise the best excursion of season. All friends of the congregations are urged to attend. The steamer Maple Leaf, with the scow Chemong, will leave Fawcett's Landing Harvey, at 7.30 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday, June 10th, and run to Indian village, Chemong station and Doris' Point, to pick up passengers. The steamer will be at the village at 8.15 and Chemong station at 8.30. Hochborn will be reached at 10 a.m., and the excursion will then proceed to Burleigh Falls. Refreshments will be served on the boat by D. Wheatung, and the Indian village brass band and choir will furnish music. Tickets are placed at a most reasonable figure—30c. for adults and 15c. for children. Tickets may be procured from any of the committee—Robt. Shaw, reeve of Harvey, and Arch'd Johnston, of the Lakehurst church; Wm. Northy and Mr. Graham, of the 16th concession, Smith; and Chief Irons and D. Wheatung, of the Indian village. The net proceeds are to be tendered to Mr. Smith, the pastor of the above churches.

AT THE POINT OF DEATH.

Sir John Macdonald Turning the Last Millstone.

Canada's Premier on His Death-bed—His Physicians Cease to Hope—Paralysis Followed by Bleeding of the Brain.

MAY 30th.

Shortly after the return of Messrs. Jas. Stevenson, M.P., and John Burnham, M.P., to town with the sad news of the death of Sir John Macdonald, flags were placed at half mast and citizens greeted each other sadly and made anxious inquiries for particulars and general sadness prevaded the town.

Happily the rumour that circulated was without foundation, as a bulletin dated 6 a. m. reported the Premier still alive, and at frequent intervals bulletins came during the morning giving various reports of his condition, but none of them giving any hope of recovery.

A despatch received near noon reads—

OTTAWA, May 30, 1891.

Lord Stanley cabled a report of Sir John's condition to Her Majesty and Lord Salisbury.

OTTAWA, May 30, 1891.

11.37 a.m.—Sir James Grant, Dr. Powell and Dr. H. P. Wright are now in consultation. The case is hopeless. Sir John retains consciousness, but suffers no pain. His efforts to speak are pathetic. He is able to articulate indistinctly various names repeated by Lady Macdonald.

OTTAWA, May 30, 2 p.m.—There is at this time no apparent change in Sir John's condition.

The EXAMINER is authorised to announce that at evening service in St. John's, unless in the interval, death should unfortunately supervene, special prayers will be offered for Sir John. All friends of the Premier are invited to be present.

Sir John Macdonald enjoys a wide personal popularity, and to thousands of persons in town, regardless of political creed, who learn of his illness with the deepest regret, Sunday will be a day of sad suspense.

Town Teachers' Association.

The Second Meeting—By-laws and Constitution Adopted—Papers Read and Discussion Held.

The second meeting of the Teachers' Association of Peterborough was held in the Central School buildings this (Saturday) forenoon. Most of the town teachers were present. After routine, the committee appointed at the organization meeting to prepare draft constitution and by-laws for the Association presented their report, submitting draft, which was, with a few unimportant amendments, adopted.

Mr. Brick, headmaster of the Separate Schools, then favoured the Association with a paper on the teaching of English grammar and literature to junior classes up to the second book, and the ideas it suggested formed the topics of an interesting discussion.

This was followed by a paper on "Writing," read by Mr. Blanchard of the Peterborough Business College, particular attention being given to the capital letters. The matter of securing for the Peterborough Association the $25 granted by the Government to teachers' associations in cities and counties was discussed. It is not probable that there will be another meeting of the association before October, the holidays being so close at hand.

Rev. Sam Small.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—The Rev. Sam Small, under the auspices of the Charlotte street church, has been here and has delivered one of his peculiar lectures. He told us without a blush and with loathsome minuteness that for seventeen years of his life he had been a blasphemer and a gambler and a drunkard and then in his usual style he turned aside to slander and said what was untrue about the medical profession. Nevertheless Sam says that his heart is now overflowing with the grace of God. Perhaps it might be as well to remind this Rev. Sam Small that the medical profession in this country can neither be elevated nor depressed by any thing which can be said or thought of them by an ex-bar-room bummer. At the close of his lecture Sam got a vote of thanks and some money which is likely to be the last he will ever get from this town.

OBSERVER.

P.S.—Since writing the above I have noticed a paragraph in the Mail, which, if you have spare, you may reprint as follows:

The itinerant Sam Small has been levelling his small wit at the members of the medical profession, of whom he said in a recent lecture in Brantford that "their credentials are summed up in their piece of sheepskin, a bottle of quinine pills, and a jug of liquor." The doctors need no defence from a man of Small's calibre, but a good many Canadians would like to see his credentials to the title of "Dr.," which he has picked up since his former visit to this country.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Sharp, of Mariposa, Mrs. John Irwin, of Port Hope, Mrs. James Irwin, of Finch, have been visiting in town the guests of Mr. John Sharp.

At the recent examinations of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, Mr. V. Halliday, town, passed his primary examinations in medicine, and the following passed their final examinations. Mr. McLelland, Bensfort; G. K. Mark, Keene; A. G. McCall, Campbellford; and J. C. Clemsha, Port Hope.

Great Removal Sale.

LeBrun & Co. Going into New and Larger Premises—Big Sacrifice and Clearing Sale of Their Present Stock.

H. LeBrun & Co. must have more room. Their business has been so well done and so greatly in the public interest, that it has outgrown their present premises. The Stetham hardware premises will be fitted up for LeBrun & Co. in the latest city style, and will be stocked with an entirely new stock of goods. These new premises will be very commodious and convenient, giving double the room now occupied by the firm, and making one of the finest stores in Peterborough. Therefore the present stock in the present premises must be cleared out. Never were such bargains offered in ready made and ordered clothing and gents' furnishings as the great removal sale of LeBrun & Co. will give. The staff is now remarking goods—wiping out the cost mark and putting it down as the selling price. The sale will begin on Wednesday, June 3rd, and nothing like the bargains in first-class clothing and gents' furnishings, that you can get at this sale has ever been seen in Peterborough. Don't forget it. The goods must be cleared out, and will be cleared out if cheap prices for the best of goods will do it. 2d126

Telfordian Temperature Topics

Mr. Thomas Telford gives the Meteorological Record for Ten Days.—An Interesting Record.

Mr. Thos. Telford, the well-known meteorological expert, has furnished the following interesting record of the month of May for ten years—1881 to 1891 inclusive. Mr. Telford is a shrewd and careful observer, and his interesting record of the behaviour of the merry month of May for a period of ten years will be examined with interest:—

PETERBOROUGH, May 23.—For some three hours a number of people have been enquiring if we ever had a dryer May than this May closing to-morrow, and when will we get rain. Some, I believe are almost of the opinion that I can bring rain when I like. I shall now from what information I can furnish to these anxious enquirers, give them the record of the Mays of the last decade, so they can read and judge for themselves.

During the month of May, 1881, rain fell on 11 days to the enormous depth of 9 inches and 41/100, with three thunder storms — on the 16th, the first one, rain falling to the depth of 3 inches and 25/100; on the 15th again falling 2 inches and 14/100; and the day after this storm rain again falling to the depth of 1 inch and 56/100. The 3rd and 4th were the only low registering days, being each day at 24° at sunrise, but on the 19th it went as high as 71°, the frost injuring vegetables, but no snow.

In May of 1882 we find rain fell on twelve days to the depth of 3 inches and 47/100, with white frost on five days, but doing little harm, the lowest being 28° with slight snow on the 1st and 2nd, but no thunder storms.

In May of 1883, rain fell on 21 days to the depth of 4 inches and 67-100. We had only two small thunder storms, but no frost of any account, the lowest being 24° on the 4th. This was a fine month.

In May of 1884 we find rain fell on 12 days to the depth of 2 inches and 73-100; we had twice distant thunder but no rain, but on the 14th, 15th and 16th it was one continued gale from the north west with some snow and hail on the 16th; on the 28th, 29th, 30th and 31st it was one continued frost, the last day going 4° below the freezing point and killing all vegetables and crop that frost could destroy.

May of 1885 was a peculiar month, rain falling on 9 days to the depth of 1 inch and 91-100, snow fell on 6 days to the depth of 3 and ¾ inches. There was neither frost nor thunder of any consequence. The lowest thermometer was on the 3rd at 25° but twice in the shade at 2 p.m. it went up to 85° and once to 88°.

In May of 1886 rain fell on 11 days to the depth of 2 inches and 53-100. We had no thunder, but on the 28th, 29th, and 30th we had sharp frost with ice on each morning, the thermometer being down to 26°.

The May of 1887 was undoubtedly our pet month; rain fell on 7 days to the depth of 1 inch and 17-100, with scarcely ever the appearance of frost, the coldest being on the 14th, but only down to 36°, but on the 8th we had 84° in the shade at 2 p.m., on the 9th at 82°, on the 10th at 86°, on the 12th at 82°, on the 16th at 82°, on the 20th at 88°, the 21st 92°, the 22nd at 94°, and the 23rd at 90°. How is that for May, with corresponding degrees for night and morning?

The May of 1888 was both warm and cold; rain fell on 11 days to the depth of 1 inch and 53-100; twice thunder, but no rain, and twice some snow; three times frost, and on the 17th the ice was a quarter of an inch thick. The lowest thermometer reached during the month was 6° below the freezing point, but on the 11th, in the shade, at 2 p.m., it stood at 81°, on the 22nd and 23rd at 84° each day.

Rain fell on 12 days in May of 1889 to the depth of 4 inches and 53-100. There were three slight thunder storms, twice slight snow, sharp frost on seven mornings, the coldest being on the 29th, the thermometer going down to 5° below the freezing point, but on the 6th, at 2 p.m., it went up to 84° in the shade, on the 7th to 86°, on the 8th to 90°, on the 9th to 90°, on the 10th to 80°, on the 11th to 84°, on the 12th to 80°, and on the 18th to 90°, being the steadiest hot month during the ten years under review.

In May of 1890 rain fell on eighteen days to the depth of 2 inches and 76/100; snow on two days, thunder on four, but little rain; on four mornings we had frost, the coldest being on the 8th, going down to 6° below the freezing point and on the 31st, rising to 86° in the shade; but this year April was dry, rain only falling 1 inch and 50/100.

In May, now about gone, we have had both hot and cold and also very dry, rain only as yet falling 28/100 of an inch and not more than eight mornings have we had dew. From the above every one can see for themselves our hottest, our coldest, our wettest and our dryest month of May.

Otonabee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Council met in Keene 27th May, all the members present. The following accounts were passed:—Kingan & Co., nails, 90c.; Robert Borland, repairing Duck Pond drain, $5.00; Joseph Redmond, gravel, $4.85; Protestant Home, Peterborough, for Mr. Walton, 2.50. T. Blezard, M.P.P., was appointed arbitrator to alter the bounds of Union school, No. 12 and 18, Asphodel and Otonabee, as petitioned for by Charles Leitch. On motion it was decided not to levy a dog tax. Mr. Redmond was heard, urging the council not to allow the proposed telephone line to interfere with or destroy the shade trees on the public highways. He, Mr. Redmond, spoke at considerable length as to the beautifying of the country by planting shade trees along our highways and the shelter they will afford in the future to the weary traveller, and strongly denounced the destruction of them by telephone and telegraph companies. The council decided to do all in their power to have them protected. Mr. Redmond also referred to the very poor fences the G. J. R. Co., has built along its line through Otonabee, he has great trouble in preventing his stock from getting on the track. The council are going to look into the matter. Robert Borland was appointed care taker of the Duck Pond drain. Adam Thompson was appointed to expend the sum of $40.00 to improve the quarter line between lots 21 and 23, con 12. On motion Samuel Sargent was allowed to commute his statute labor for two years. A resolution was passed that the council has no objection to the incorporation of the Peterborough city railway company. Council and Court of Revision adjourned to 15th June.

An Emily Accident.

Mr. John Smith, who resides on the 13th con. of Emily, met with a very serious accident on Friday last, the result of an unusual circumstance, as the Lindsay Post is informed. He, with a companion, had unearthed a hedge-hog, and being hotly pursued the animal took refuge in a tree, from which it was impossible to dislodge it, though stones and sticks were showered at it to no end. Finally Mr. Smith spat on his hands and "shinned" it up the tree in good style, when the "varmint" at once retreated to the farther end of a large limb, which upon being shaken vigorously broke under the strain, precipitating Mr. Smith upon the hard ground beneath, breaking four ribs and cutting a deep gash in his forehead. Medical aid was called in, and he is now progressing rapidly towards recovery. Those acquainted with the habits of the hedge-hog assert that it is a rare sight to see one take to a tree when pursued, as above mentioned.

On Fire with Eczema

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby—Speedy Restore and Two Hampshire Pigs—Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 3 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and heat under the scales of the crusts spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered. His sufferings were pitiable to witness, for he had no peace day or night, and lost flesh rapidly. He was under the care of a physician, but grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $9 per week for medicines, and was constantly in attendance. I commenced using CUTICURA REMEDIES, and CUTICURA SOAP found Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were ended, and rest and sleep were restored. He steadily improved, and in nine weeks was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and as fine a baby as any mother could wish to own. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Blemish.

THE DYING PREMIER

His Condition Unchanged the Past 24 Hours.

FIGHTING THE UNEQUAL BATTLE.

The End May Come Any Hour Now.

The Situation of Affairs at the Capital - Meeting of the Cabinet to Be Held To-day - Who Will Be Called to Form a Ministry? — The Queen Personally Cables Her Regrets—Lord Dufferin Sends a Message of Condolence to Lady Macdonald.

OTTAWA, June 1.—There is practically, no change in the Premier's condition at this hour (2.30), from what it was 48 hours since. During the day these official bulletins were issued:

ERNSCLIFFE, May 31, 5p.m.

I find nothing new to report in the Premier's condition at this hour. He has just partaken of some nourishment, which he swallowed more easily than usual. He has composed himself since in a comfortable position and is now dozing.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.

ERNSCLIFFE, May 31, 11.30 p.m.

The Premier passed a quiet day and we find no marked alteration in his general symptoms. He retains consciousness much as in the past few days and is free from suffering.

R. W. POWELL.
J. A. GRANT.
HENRY P. WRIGHT.

The Situation at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, SUNDAY NOON—The Premier's condition remains practically unchanged since last evening, except that his vital powers seem weakening.

Touching references to the Premier's condition were made in all the churches, both Catholic and Protestant, this morning. At St. Patrick's Rev. Father Whelan said: "At this moment Sir John Macdonald, a great figure in Canadian history, is lying at the point of death; a statesman who for nearly 50 years has been intimately connected with public life in Canada, and for nearly all that period has guided her destinies. Universal sympathy would be extended. Even his bitterest political enemy would not deny him sympathy or fail to offer prayers for his recovery."

The Free Press says editorially regarding the situation: "Was it with the view of preventing a stampede from the party ranks that the ministerial organs announced that Sir Charles Tupper would not be sent for to act as premier during Sir John Macdonald's illness, or did Sir Hector Langevin kick against the proposal to ignore his claims to the party leadership?"

Hon. David Mills, M. P., gave it as his opinion this morning, that in the event of Sir John's death, the ministers would not have to resign and appeal to the people before accepting office under a new chief. He said that the law was still in force that allows a minister to resume office within thirty days after his resignation, without re-election. The only change made in the law after the "Double Shuffle," was that this could not be done if any other minister intervened.

"Take a suppositious case," he was asked. "Suppose Sir Charles Tupper were called upon to form a Ministry, and could not reach here for two weeks, could Parliament sit in the meantime?"

"It could," replied Mr. Mills, "but it would not be likely to. Sir Charles might do as Sir Robert Peel did when Lord Melbourne was beaten in 1834. Sir Charles was travelling on the continent and the Duke of Wellington lead the Ministry until he could reach London; thus Sir Charles might delegate his duties to Sir John Thompson, until he could arrive."

A View of Ernscliffe.

Sir John's life now hangs on a slender thread. He is fighting with his characteristic tenacity against the dread visitor, but with a vitality slowly ebbing away. The unequal struggle cannot be much longer maintained. Since Friday afternoon, though deprived of the power of speech, he has maintained the cheerfulness, for which he was famed in health. Not the appearance of a regret or disappointment has been manifested. Though still conscious, he realizes his doom is approaching, and seems prepared for the final call. With his left arm, which is still serviceable, he makes known his desires. He passed the night quietly and engaged in periods of brief rest. Whenever Lady Macdonald entered the sick room his face, which has assumed an ashen hue, lights up. Nothing can describe the attachment he entertains for the talented woman who for so many years has been both wife and nurse to him. On a large-sized brass bedstead he lies, his head slightly propped up. The windows of the sick room, which look out from the second story on the well kept lawn, are flung wide open. The heat is oppressive and only a slight coverlet is over the dying man.

In an ante-room is a large table where hundreds of cablegrams and despatches from Canada, England and the United States are being momentarily deposited. Two secretaries are busily engaged dictating replies to assistants. Her Majesty the Queen, Lord Salisbury, Lord Lorne, the Viceroy of India, Lord Lansdowne, and scores of other distinguished people have sent cablegrams of enquiry, coupled with regret at the Premier's condition.

Relatives Arriving.

Mrs. Hugh John Macdonald, Sir John's daughter-in-law, has arrived from Winnipeg, and Miss Fitzgibbon, a relative of Lady Macdonald, reaches the capital this morning from the west. Mr. Fred White, who spent the night in the sick room, says Sir John is making a brave but hopeless fight.

Political Crisis.

A crisis in political circles is imminent. The Cabinet sat six hours yesterday, but as f by arrangement the lips of all the Cabinet Ministers are sealed.

Sir Hector Langevin, as senior Privy Councillor, will in the event of Sir John's demise be summoned by the Governor-General. With the McGreevy scandal hanging over him as a drawn sword, he will naturally decline leaving the question of leadership between Sir Jno. Thompson and Sir Chas. Tupper. The Government has already held an informa conference with the Minister of Justice, but indications are that a large wing of the Conservative party will insist upon the selection of Sir Chas. Tupper as the next premier.

A caucus of the party will be held at an early date, and Parliament to-morrow will be asked to adjourn probably for a week. The general feeling is to the effect that Sir Chas. Tupper's antagonism to the Grand Trunk will prove a serious obstacle to his successful administration of affairs.

Sir John Thompson is a Roman Catholic. This to many Ontario Orangemen, who blindly supported Sir John, will prove a serious stumbling block but the approaching event at Ernscliffe has tended to consolidate for the present at least, the warring elements in the Conservative ranks.

Archbishop Walsh's Tribute.

At St. Michael's Cathedral His Grace Archbishop Walsh spoke feelingly in reference to the Premier this morning. He said:

"Sir John Macdonald, our Premier, still lives, but no hopes are entertained of his recovery. All honest Canadians, of whatever political party, must admit that he has done much good for his country. The prayers of the faithful are earnestly requested that the blessing of God will rest upon him."

[From the Saturday Night Edition.]

OTTAWA, May 30—At 5 o'clock Sir John is still alive. That is about all that can be said. He has taken nourishment several times in the shape of whisky and milk and he retains thorough consciousness, but the paralysis shows no sign of improvement and he is still speechless. None of the doctors who have seen him hold out the slightest hope, and so far as human knowledge goes, it is only a question of a few hours when the dissolution will come.

Rumors of Change.

The air is positively heavy with political rumors and the wildest stories are afloat of all sorts of possible and impossible combinations. Coalition seems to have taken possession of some people's brains, and a good deal of the talk is about that. But I do not think there is the slightest possibility of either Mr. Blake, Mr. Mowat, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Alexander Galt, all of whose names are used, being asked to form a ministry. What will probably occur will be the formation of a temporary Government with the Hon J. J. C. Abbott as Premier and Sir John Thompson as leader in the house, with the distinct understanding and a positive promise from both leaders that the Cabinet is to be entirely reconstructed immediately after prorogation and nearly all the Ontario and Quebec portfolios changed. From talks with leading members of the Conservative party I find that there are strong objections amongst the Ontario members to Sir Charles Tupper and that any talk of Sir John Thompson as Premier is always qualified with the name of D'Alton McCarthy or some other prominent Protestant Equal Righter from Ontario as an offset to the fact of Thompson being a Roman Catholic. Sir Hector Langevin is completely counted out and nobody has for a moment considered the possibility of Mr. Laurier being sent for. Indeed I happened by chance to overhear the leader of the Opposition himself say to a prominent official of the House that he expected Sir Charles Tupper would be sent for. By a curious coincidence this took place while the motion of want of confidence in the Government on account of Sir Charles Tupper's participation in the late election was under discussion last night. I know that the general impression amongst the Opposition is that Sir Charles will be sent for, but that is not the impression amongst Conservatives.

Of course in the matter of "sending for" anyone to form a Ministry, it must always be remembered that the Governor-General acts on his own responsibility. As Dr. Bourinof, clerk of the House of Commons said to to-to-day, that is the one act in which the Opposition cannot say the Governor-General is a mere figurehead as he has the undoubted right to exercise the perogative of the Crown in this matter, and being deprived of his chief adviser, send for whom he pleases to advise him. Of course it becomes incumbent on that adviser to obtain the support of Parliament, but His Excellency is not bound by either law or precedent to send for any particular person.

Sir Hector Out of It.

As the senior privy councillor, it would appear under ordinary circumstances as if Sir Hector Langevin would be the most likely person for His Excellency to send for. But it is not at all probable that he will send for a man over whom such grave charges of malfeasance in office are hanging as are at present pending over Sir Hector Langevin. Therefore I am of the opinion that Abbott, as leader of the Government in the Senate, will be sent for. What will be done then? Will there be prorogation? Will there be an adjournment? Will there be an immediate reconstruction of the Cabinet? Does the death of the Premier involve the resignation of the whole Cabinet. These and a dozen other questions have been asked a hundred times to-day.

I cannot pretend to uncover them all but commencing with the last question first I may say that Dr. Bourinot informs me that the death of the First Minister does not mean as is generally supposed the death of the entire Cabinet, the only precedent in Canada is the case of Sir E. P. Tache who died on the 30th July, 1865, while premier of the Coalition Government formed to carry confederation. On that occasion Lord Monck, who was Governor-General, sent for Sir John Macdonald (then Hon. Mr. Macdonald and Attorney-General for Upper Canada) to form a ministry. Hon. George Brown, who was then in the ministry and Hon. W. P. Howland objected to serve under "John A." and a compromise was effected by the selection of Sir Narcisse Belleau who took the presidency of the Council and the seat in the Legislative Council of which he became leader, held by Sir E. P. Tache. There was no dissolution, no reconstruction of the Cabinet, no resignation of any of the ministers although George Brown left the Ministry shortly after on another question as to prorogation or adjournment of the House. The last information I can get is that there will be no adjournment except for the funeral.

There has been a lot of talk to-day that the House will be asked to vote a lump sum for the purpose of carrying on the business of the country, but it is not likely this will be asked and almost certain that the opposition will refuse if asked. It is true that what are called votes on account are common in England, but there the circumstances are different, and I know of no precedent in connection. As to the reconstruction that may be considered certain and may take place immediately, or at all events immediately after prorogation, leading Conservatives say that Bowell and Carling will both have to go and Kirkpatrick and Clarke Wallace, are spoken of as their probable successors. There will be another vacancy from Ontario, of course, by Sir John's death and many names are mentioned for that, among them Peter White, the present speaker, who I consider the most likely man. In Quebec both Caron and Langevin will, it is said, be retired, and Lieutenant-Governor Angers and Ex-Speaker Ouimet are spoken of as their most probable successors. In case of Angers entering the Ministry Langevin is spoken of as the next Lieutenant-Governor, provided he can clear himself of the McGreevy scandal, but if his appointment depends on that he may find it difficult to get the appointment.

A caucus of the party will probably be held on Tuesday, although no call for it has yet been issued, and there will probably be some pretty plain speaking at it.

THE CAMPAIGN TOO MUCH.

Senator Sullivan Says Sir John's Health Was Greatly Impaired.

KINGSTON, May 31.—Senator Sullivan returned from Ottawa. He said that just before he left the Capital Sir John sent a messenger after him asking him to come and see him. When the doctor went into Sir John's room he held out his hand and seemed unusually bright. He told about some of his symptoms and the doctor explained the character of them.

In the course of conversation Sir John said the Montreal doctors wanted him to take a rest. He ridiculed this idea, saying: "Do they want me to shut my eyes and do nothing? You know, doctor, I could never do that."

The doctor said he did not examine Sir John and was not in a position to state exactly what the nature of his sickness was.

Dr. Sullivan supposed that Sir John's sickness originated here during the election campaign. The labor of attending meetings at night and visiting public works and canvassing was too great for him in his old age. He was not rugged enough, and the work which used to be enjoyment was disagreeable to him. He attended public meetings in the city and Napanee, and became very much prostrated. But what did him most harm, causing him to be confined to his room until after the election, was a visit to the Canadian engine and locomotive works the day after attending a public meeting. The labor of climbing stairs and the dusty air tended to weaken his constitution and made him feel as if he should be in bed. After this work he became ill, and medical aid had to be called to his relief. Dr. Sullivan was the physician chosen to wait upon him. The doctor, in diagnosing his condition, found that he was suffering from congestion of one lung, and that his heart was weak. After skilled treatment and careful nursing he rallied sufficiently to keep two secretaries busy. But he at last made a grave mistake by going to Ottawa the night before the election.

It would have been better for him had he remained until he had entirely recovered. He should have retired for several months. He was not physically in a fit state to engage in the arduous work of directing the affairs of the state. "Why" said Dr. Sullivan, "the day before the Montreal physicians came to see him he kept his two secretaries busily employed."

When Sir John arrived here from Ottawa on the eve of the last elections he gave evidence of great vigor of both mind and body, greeted his old friends of both political parties with a warm grasp and entered into the business of preparing for the approaching contest with his usual spirit and determination. His activity put renewed life into the whole party. The Tuesday before nomination he addressed a large meeting of his supporters in the opera house and still gave no sign of yielding to the great mental and physical exhaustion which must have resulted from his tireless labors for the party. It was not till Wednesday, after the meeting at Napanee, that he put himself into the hands of the medical men after an attack of faintness, which on Thursday became so serious that Dr. Sullivan, who attended him, gave orders that he must not on any account be present at the nomination. His final election success, combined with the enforced rest, probably tended to put him on his feet again and at the opening of the House was in his place as usual. John McIntyre, Q.C., was in receipt of numerous telegrams from Ernscliffe this morning announcing the condition of Canada's statesman.

VICTORIA SENDS REGRETS.

The Queen Personally Sends a Message to Sir John.

OTTAWA, May 31.—Her Majesty the Queen cabled Sir John last night expressing regret at his illness and expressing her desire to be constantly informed of his condition. The cablegram was signed "Victoria." Lord Dufferin also cabled from Rome this evening as follows:

Pope, Private Secretary, Ottawa:

Regret to learn of Sir John Macdonald's illness. Convey my sympathy to Lady Macdonald. (Sgd.) DUFFERIN.

A Honeymoon in Bed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 30.—Robert L. Dulaney and wife, of near Washington, D. C., to-day began proceedings to recover $50,000 damages from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. They were on their bridal tour on November 14 last, when they were both injured in a wreck at New Florence, Pa.

They spent a honeymoon of over three months in a Pittsburg hospital, lying at the point of death the first few days. As soon as they were able to travel the railroad company placed a special car at the disposal and sent them home.

Taps from the Telegraph.

Chief Justice Dorion died in Montreal last night.

Riotous strikers in Bilboa, Spain, were dispersed by cavalry.

The daily average number of expelled Russian Jews passing through Charlottenburg is 600.

An unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday to steal the body of P. T. Barnum at Bridgeport.

The murderers of William M. Barbour of St. Mary's, Ont., have been arrested at Butte Montana.

Four men were killed by an explosion of dynamite in the Atlantic & Pacific tunnel, on the Kelso Mountains, 8 miles from Silver Plume, Col., yesterday.

The doctors who conducted the autopsy on the body of McClanaghan, the Montreal hotel-keeper, state that in their opinion the remains had been placed in the canal after death, as the usual signs of drowning were absent. They expressed the opinion that death might have been caused by strangulation. The investigation has been adjourned until Monday.

SIR GEORGE STEPHEN CREATED A PEER.

The First Occasion on Which the Peerage has Been Bestowed on a Colonist—The Atlantic Steamship Service—General European News of a Night.

LONDON, May 30.—The Queen's Birthday honors list is chiefly notable for omissions. Only three names of Canadian interest are included. Sir George Stephen is made a peer. Robert Gillespie, chairman of the Canada Company, is made a knight; General Sir John Ross, commanding the troops at Halifax, is made G.C.B.

The Times says: Sir George Stephen's honor is the first instance of colonial services being recognized by a peerage." The Times claims it is an indication that the present Government exceeds previous Governments in the desire to draw closer the bonds of union with the colonies.

The Pall Mall Gazette says it is an Imperial incident the beginning of a Colonial House of Lords—the first swallow of the summer of Colonial recognition. It urges that the honor be followed by the adoption of the principle of Colonial life peerage.

THE CZAR FRIGHTENED.

By Dynamite Found in the Customs Department of the French Exhibition.

MOSCOW, May 31.—The discovery of four large boxes of dynamite in the customs department of the French exhibition last Sunday was in part the reason for the delay of the royal visit to Moscow. The boxes would have been seized on the frontier but for the concessions made by the customs department, which allowed exhibits to pass unopened. The whole ground under the dais erected for the Czar was then excavated, owing to fears that it had been undermined, but nothing was found. Rumors that mines were discovered on the railway and under the roots taken by the Czar are unconfirmed, but the most extreme precautions were taken. The police even removed the roof of a triumphal arch in their zeal to insure the safety of the Czar, and every window facing on the streets was ordered closed.

Awarded to Holland by the Czar.

LONDON, May 31.—The Czar, as the arbitrator in the dispute between Holland and France, regarding the Guiana boundary, has decided in favor of Holland, taking from France the territory lying at the fork of the rivers Tapanohomi and Araua, and giving it to Holland. This decision increases the suspicion as to France's sincerity in seeking an understanding with Russia.

SENSATION IN AMHERSTBURG.

Rev. William Wye Charged with Disorderly, Criminal and Scandalous Conduct.

WINDSOR, May 30.—For the past year there has been trouble among the parishioners of Christ Church, Amherstburg, and a number of charges have been made against the presiding clergyman, Rev. William Wye. A commission appointed by Bishop Baldwin met in Amherstburg on Thursday and went into the matter. The prosecution and the defence were both represented by lawyers. The charges brought against Mr. Wye are of "disorderly, criminal and scandalous conduct." He is also charged with making false returns to the synod. The evidence for the prosecution was principally a copious report of a hearing before F. E. Marcon last June, when Mr. Wye was up on a judgment summons, and the prosecution contended that he swore falsely. The commission will report to the Bishop, who will then give his decision.

Another British Victory.

CAPE TOWN, May 30.—Details received here about the recent fight between the British and Portuguese show that the Portuguese attacked the force commanded by Capt. Hayman of the chartered company, who was camped on Chua Hill, six miles west of Massikesse, on the road to Mitassa. The conflict was waged for two hours, and finally the Portuguese were repulsed. No British were killed.

Seized the Pictures.

PARIS, May 29.—The third art sale was opened here to-day. While the galleries were crowded with visitors a sensation was caused by the police, seizing two pictures hanging on the walls. One picture represented Emperor William on horseback trampling on the prostrate figure of France and carrying off women, representing Alsace-Lorraine. The other picture depicted a desert stream with skulls, one of which bore a likeness to the features of Jules Ferry.

By the Speaker's Casting Vote.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 30.—The Assembly divided yesterday on a motion of want of confidence in the Government and against the resolutions in favor of Australian federation. The result of the division was a tie, 63 members voting on each side. The Speaker threw his casting vote in favor of the Government.

Atlantic Steamship Service.

LONDON, May 31.—Mr. Chaplin, President of the Board of Agriculture, will introduce in the House of Commons to-morrow a bill to regulate cattle traffic on the Atlantic. The bill is a short and simple one, and mainly proposes to enable the Board of Agriculture to impose regulations on the cattle traffic giving effect to the recommendations of the committee which recently investigated the matter. The steamship companies are organizing to oppose the bill, as the measure will involve an extensive alteration of the internal fittings of vessels in the cattle carrying trade. The Government does not expect to pass the bill this session.

THE MESSENGER KILLED.

A Deaf and Dumb Man Killed on the Grand Trunk.

PARIS, May 31.—James Havill, 50 years of age, deaf and dumb, was instantly killed by a westbound train on the G.T.R. this afternoon, about a mile west of here. He was walking on the track intending to deliver a message to a neighbor when the train overtook him.

SUN LIFE

ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Cash income for year ending 31st December, 1890	889,976 87

Surplus over all Liabilities and Capital Stock	232,175 69
Increase over 1889	75,649 05
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961 65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6.04 per c-nt. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$64,324 07
" " " 1886, "	80,452 97

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It would appear that the electors of this district are more credulous or more easily purchasable than the electors of Soulanges, Quebec. In the recent Dominion Elections, and in many other previous elections, the electors in this district have elected Government supporters on the shady strength of politicians' promises, made much more shady by being obfuscated by forgetfulness. By way of contrast it may be mentioned that in the House of Commons the other day Dr. Mousseau, the member for Soulanges, P. Q., pointed out that with the view of securing his defeat the Dominion Government passed an order-in-council, shortly before the recent election, authorizing the construction of a canal through Soulanges, and overcoming the Cedars and Cascades Rapids at a cost of nearly five millions of dollars. Very few constituencies would have rejected the Government candidate under such circumstances, but Dr. Mousseau was elected, being the first Reformer returned in the county since confederation. A promise of five millions of dollars for a canal would be sufficient, the Ottawa Free Press thinks, to buy up the whole of British Columbia six times over. Dr. Mousseau has reason to feel proud of the way that the electors of Soulanges stood by him in the face of the attempt to buy them up en bloc. Per contra, an expenditure of about $300,000 spread over ten years has been sufficient to keep a dozen constituencies along the T.V.C. in line.

The Ottawa Free Press very happily, applies the tu quoque argument to Sir Hector Langevin's connection with the Tarte charges:—In his speech apologizing for the execution of Louis Riel, in the House of Commons in 1886, Sir Hector Langevin stated that though Riel's connection with the rebellion did not, perhaps, justify his execution, yet his former offences, notably his participation in the Scott murder, had to be considered when clemency was asked for him after his conviction for treason. Suppose we apply Sir Hector's reasoning, with respect to Riel, to the charges preferred against himself. Are we to try Sir Hector for "absorbing" $32,000 of the Pacific Scandal fund, and also for accepting $17,000 from contractors who had claims against his department, as well as upon the charges now preferred against him by Mr. Tarte? And if the evidence brought out in the pending investigation is not sufficent to warrant Sir Hector's expulsion from public life, cannot the deficiency be made up by some proofs of his former misconduct? Surley Sir Hector cannot object to having his own case dealt with according to the reasoning he gave for executing Riel. The Metis leader could not plead "previous good character." Sir Hector is in a very similar predicament.

The Imperial authorities are not excessionly deferential to Canadian feeling, opinion or interests in the negotiations carried on with foreign powers in matters affecting Canada. We have had repeated proofs and the way Canada is generally ignored has been recently illustrated. Last Friday when shown the telegrams from Washington and London, announcing the introduction by the British government of legislation prohibiting Canadians from catching seals in Behring sea. Mr. C. H. Tupper, minister of marine, said the information was new to him. He had no advices regarding such legislation. From this it appears that the British government has determined to adopt Mr. Blain's proposals in reference to the seal fisheries without even asking the Canadian government's opinion on the subject.

The Canadian Pacific earnings for April, 1891, were:—Gross earnings, $1,604,308, working expenses $1,098,824, net profit $599,485. In April, 1890, the net profits were $440,162, and for the four months ending April 30th, 1891, the figures are as follows:—Gross earnings $5,822 063, working expenses $4,058,992, net profits $1,763,071; for the four months ending April 30th, 1890, the net profits were $1,207,294. The earnings and expenses of the New Brunswick railway are included in both years.

The druggists of Peterborough are human, and therefore are looking out for themselves and their interests, in forming an Association. But it appears that some other druggists have mounted the high moral horse and become philanthropists, and, it is to be presumed ceased to be business men, accordingly. The druggists of Oxford, Norfolk and Perth held a convention at Woodstock recently, and pledged themselves to discourage the sale of morphine and opium, except upon doctor's certificate.

The secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, of London, England, sends to the Montreal Board of Trade a request for trade information, "useful to engineering and agricultural manufacturers" of the old country. What they appear especially to desire are "brief accounts of any novelties or inventions or advice as to the prospects of trade and the possible future demand," and they want them before the end of June.

Mr. Blaine, the United States Secretary of State, seems to be laid aside from business by very much the same illness as that which has prostrated Sir John Macdonal. Nervous exhaustion, owing greatly to general physical weakness, is apparently the trouble with both, and exactly the same reports in regard to the condition, both mental and physical, of each are in circulation.

The calendar of the English Court of Divorce contains no fewer than 189 cases for hearing during the approaching term. The principals in the suits are drawn from all classes and conditions of society, and range all the way from an earl and a countess down to a pair of ill-mated and dissatisfied ballet-dancers.

Returning to Boost.

So far the only defence offered by the ministerialist organs in connection with the Langevin-McGreevy business is a whine about the impropriety of using private letters in support of Mr. Tarte's charges. But the Tory leaders have established an excellent precedent for Mr. Tarte's course. Did they not use private letters—stolen private letters at that—in the effort to discredit political opponents during the recent election campaign? What about the private correspondence of Messrs. Hiles, Wiman and Farrer, used by the Ligh commissioner? Did any Tory paper rebuke Sir Charles for using confidential correspondence? The letters which have been submitted to the Privileges and Elections Committee by Mr. Tarte were not stolen. They have been produced and identified before the committee by the men who received them. They are proper evidence in support of a charge of conspiracy to rob the public exchequer. In a contribution to the last number of the Contemporary Review, Sir Charles Tupper, referring to the Hiles-Wiman-Farrer letters, says: "These letters had been sent to me by a gentlemen who obtained them from Mr. Wiman himself and who did not disapprove of the use I made of them." Mr. Wiman, on the other hand, states that the letters in question were stolen from him and that he does not know how they came into Sir Charles' possession.—Ottawa Free Press.

Beecham's Pills act like magic on a Weak Stomach

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. R. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Felicia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hauel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

TO ENCOURAGE MINING.

THE NEW BUREAU OF THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Archibald Blue Director—An Efficient Officer and the Work He Hopes to Do—Practical Rather Than Scientific, and Useful to the Premier Province.

Looked at from an industrial point of view the most important act passed at the session of the Legislature recently closed is that to amend the general mining act. This law is a recognition of the growing importance of the mining industries of the Province. So great is the development already made or promised in the immediate future that it has been deemed necessary to establish a new branch of the Crown Lands Department to have charge of affairs relating to mines. Though some features of the new law met with bitter opposition, the proposal to organize the new Bureau of Mines and to appoint the Director of the same met with general approval.

The Government has lost no time in carrying out its plan. The first step, the appointment of a Director of the Bureau of Mines, has been taken with judgment which must be generally commended. The choice has fallen upon Mr. Archibald Blue, for years chief of the Bureau of Statistics and Deputy Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Blue has already taken up his office in the Crown Lands Department and in a very short time will have have his new work in full swing.

It is impossible at this time, of course, to give exactly the form and scope of the work for the new Bureau of Mines, but, if the general plans explained by Mr. Blue to the writer are carried out, the results are certain to be of the greatest benefit to the Province. In the first place the Bureau of Mines will aim to develop the mining industry rather than to collect scientific facts about minerals. Enough has been learned already to convince the most sceptical that vast as is the wealth possessed by Ontario in her fertile soil and in her great forests, that which lies hidden in mineral bearing veins is equally calculated to attract capital and yield rich reward to industry. The work of getting out the ore and of extracting the metals which form its riches is that which now commands attention, in this respect much has to be learned. The experience of other lands may guide us generally, but research and experiment on the ground are necessary in order to apply the principles of metallurgy which are already known. To collect and make available the knowledge gained in such experiments will be one of the greatest objects of the Bureau. This work Mr. Blue is particularly well fitted to perform. His administration of the Bureau of Statistics proves that he has both the industry and the judgment necessary to collect facts and present them in useful form. In applying hisability as a statistician to the special work he has now undertaken he will be greatly assisted by his wide and accurate knowledge of the present mining development of Ontario. In his late office, Mr. Blue collected a vast mass of information concerning the mines and minerals of the Provinces and the knowledge thus gained he extended and improved as a member and Secretary of the Mining Commission whose report, prepared largely by Mr. Blue, is one of the most interesting, complete and valuable state documents ever presented to the legislature. The establishment of a museum of mineralology and metallurgy is another of the means proposed for collecting and disseminating information among the people. At present but little can be done in this way for sheer lack of room. But it is to be hoped that in the new Provincial buildings in the Queen's Park, Toronto, now well advanced in construction, a place will be found for the display of specimens which will be of interest and value to those engaged in mining. In the future it may be found advisable to have the business connected with the sale or lease of public lands for mining purposes left in charge of the Bureau of Mines. The inspection of mines will be an important feature of the work. In the Port Arthur silver district, in the Sudbury nickel region and in the rich iron deposits of Hastings and Peterborough counties there are already large mines in operation with every prospect of the number rapidly increasing. The Directorship of the Bureau of Mines will be no sinecure. Under its present head, the people may feel assured, the whole object will be to make the work tell in a useful way in the development of the present infant industry of mining.

Mr. Blue is a Canadian by birth and life long resident. He was born on a farm in Orford township, Kent County, and spent his early days partly in work and partly in gaining an education. He attended for some time an excellent school in Dewart village and of this school he became teacher while still a mere youth. In 1867 he entered upon the journalistic career which has done so much to fit him for the important public duties he has been called upon to perform. He was engaged as reporter on the St. Thomas Home Journal, then, as now, one of the best provincial newspapers. By faithful and intelligent work he steadily improved his position until he became the responsible editor and part owner of the paper. In 1879 he removed to Toronto and became connected with the Globe, holding in succession several important positions. Subsequently he became part proprietor and editor of the World This position he relinquished in 1882 to become the head of the Bureau of Statistics. The organization of this branch of the public service, the methods of gaining and compiling the information respecting the industries of the Province was mainly Mr. Blue's work, and the results have fully justified the confidence the Government reposed in him. His appointment as Deputy Minister came a few years later. Mr. Blue is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, of the American Economic Association, of the American Academy of Political Science, of the Canadian Institute and of other important scientific bodies. He has been a students all his life, his special line of research being in the direction of economic s[illegible] on some branches of which he has written a number of important papers. Mr. Blue is now in the prime of life. His friends believe that his best work is yet to be done, and they are glad to believe that in the new branch of the public service he has had given into his charge there will be greater opportunities for the development of his abilities than any he has had up to this time.

Ontario's Pioneer Poet.

William A Stephens, of Owen Sound, is the pioneer poet of Ontario, although, says Saturday Night, this simple fact is known to but few Canadians. Mr. Stephens has been a writer of no mean rank; and to him belongs the honor of having published the first volume of poems ever issued from the press in Upper Canada. Born in Belfast, Ireland, in 1809 he emigrated to Canada with his parents at a very early age, and may be looked upon as a Canadian more than an Irishman, especially as his writings show that he imbibed a strong colonial spirit, and as he has always been known as a man of the highest Canadian national feeling.

The first edition of Mr. Stephens' poems, published in 1840, contained 180 pages, but the latest, that of 1871, has expanded to 410. He has since published "The Centennial: An International Poem," 1878, which contains some admirable passages.

Mr. Stephens was also the author of many impromptus, crisp and epigrammatic in their style; and in 1848 appeared from his pen, A Poetical Geography and Rhyming Rules for Spelling. In 1853 he edited the Owen Sound Lever, and for years contributed both prose and verse to some of the leading Canadian and American papers, among which may be mentioned The Niagara Gleaner; The Palladium, The Examiner and The Leader, Toronto; The Streetsville Review; The Owen Sound Times; The Philadelphia Saturday Courier; and The Baptist Magazine, Montreal. He was for a long time Collector of Customs at Owen Sound, but advancing years forced him to resign.

Now, at the ripe old age of eighty-one, he is entirely unknown as a contributor to any papers. Few of our younger writers have read his works; few have even heard his name. Yet he is a man, who, unfavored by circumstance, wielded his pen at one time with great ease and force, and won for himself a more than local name. Certainly as the pioneer poet of Ontario, he deserves a much larger place in the records of this young country's young but vigorous literature than he has yet been accorded.

When Moltke Was Excited.

Archibald Forbes says he saw Count von Moltke only twice excited. The first time was on the evening of the battle at Gravelotte, when he announced to the King of Prussia (Kaiser William I) the change of fortune in favor of the Prussian arms. The second time was when Forbes himself was bearer to the Field Marshal of the news of the recovery of his nephew, who was expected to die Tears of gratitude came into his eyes.—Foreign Letter.

The Good Old Times.

"Than times were good,
Merchants cared not a rush
For any other fare
Than Johnny cake and mush."

But now times have changed, and the plain and simple fare of the forefathers is done away with. Patent flour, and high seasoned food, and strong drinks, have taken its place, and, as a result, dyspepsia, impure blood, and diseases of the stomach, liver and lungs are numerous. This great change has led one of the most skilful physicians of the age to study out a remedy for these modern diseases, which he has named his "Golden Medical Discovery." Dr. Pierce in this remedy has found a cure for dyspepsia, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, in its early stages, and "liver complaints." a

A Spring Medicine.

There are few who do not at this season feel the need of a spring medicine, and to all such we recommend Lane's Family Medicine as the best. This is a pleasant herb drink made by pouring boiling water on the dried roots and herbs. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1. It is the best as well as the pleasantest cure for constipation and headache. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

From the Pacific Coast.

We quote from a letter recently received form Miss Eleanor Pope, Port Haney, B. C: "For sore throat, coughs, croup, bruises, &c., Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the best thing I have ever used." dw

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS.—My mother was attacked with a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS. KENNEDY, Hamilton, Ont. 2w20d

Directly and Indirectly.

Kidney complaint, dropsy and similar troubles depend directly on wrong action of the kidneys and indirectly on bad blood. Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the action of the kidneys and cleanses the blood from all impurities, in this way curing kidney complaint, dropsy, etc. 2w20

The Sawdust Question Again.

Legislation to Remove Exemptions Introduced.

The act for the protection of navigable waters forbids anyone to throw sawdust or other mill refuse into navigable steams, but has a further clause which provides that the governor in council, when it is shown to his satisfaction that the public interest would not be injuriously affected thereby, may by proclamation declare any stream exempt from the operation of the act. Under this permissive clause the mill owners at the Chaudiere and elsewhere have continued to dump refuse into the river. Senator Clemow introduced a bill on Friday to repeal this clause and make the prohibition absolute.

A Good Appointment.

Mr. C. D. Barr Appointed Registrar of Victoria.

The EXAMINER begs to congratulate Mr. C. D. Barr of Lindsay, editor and proprietor of the Post on his appointment as Registrar of Victoria and at the same time congratulations are due the county of Victoria, for Mr. Barr is in point of qualification well fitted for the proper performance of the duties of the position. And besides he has deserved it. As is now everywhere conceded arduous and successful services to the party in power and properly recognized by appointments to positions of emolument and trust that Mr. Barr well deserves the position he has been placed in. For years he has been secretary of the local Reform Association and in that capacity has done faithful and efficient work; besides he has through his paper, the Post, for years fought the battles of Reform, done noble service in the promotion of its interests, and very largely helped to bring about the success which has attended the Reform party in the Victorias. Mr. Barr will make a good registrar.

Removal Sale.

Wall Paper Way Down.

As we have leased the adjacent premises about to be vacated by Mr. Jas. Stenson, boot and shoe merchant, which will be occupied by our fancy goods and wall paper department, as soon as the necessary alterations are made, our present immense stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore must be greatly reduced in order to facilitate removal. This great clearing sale of wall paper will continue for the next 30 days, regardless of prices. Cost marks won't count in this sale. The stock must be cleared out, or at all events reduced so that it can be handled easily. It comprises fall lines of all kinds of wall paper of the very latest styles and designs, which we got in this spring from the best makers on the continent. A particularly fine lot of gold papers will be sold at a sacrifice. A great variety of job ends will be cleared out at almost any price. This is the chance of a life time. Remember this sale will last 30 days, when we expect to remove the wall paper department down stairs into the new store. The stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore is by far the largest and most complete in town, and those who come early will get the benefit of a choice selection. This is a genuine slaughter sale of wall paper. We ask you to call and be convinced of the big bargains that are being offered the public at the Peterborough Bookstore.

A Business Jubilee.

The Stenson Boot and Shoe Business.

To-day Mr. J. T. Stenson is removing his boot and shoe business from George street north to the shop next door north of Ormond & Walsh's drug store, 364 George street. The new premises have been fitted up in a most complete and elegant manner. The floor is re-laid in maple, the walls and ceiling are elegantly papered, the shelving is brightened with new paint, and elegant shop fittings and furniture are being placed, and, above all, a complete new stock of the first-class grade of goods that has made the Stevenson boot and shoe store a popular establishment for the past half century. The business was established 50 years ago this year, and to-day's removal is the celebration of the jubilee of the boot and shoe business (now) of J. T. Stenson. Thirty years ago, when the great fire of 1860 wiped out nearly the whole block bounded by Hunter, Simcoe, Water and George streets, Mr. Stenson moved into a shop about the same spot of his new premises, one Saturday night and the first Sunday the great fire wiped out shop and stock. The EXAMINER hopes that the business which has just entered its new premises may ha d another half century of prosperity before it.

HOPE YIELDS TO DESPAIR

Sir John's Strong Struggle With the Last Foe.

Death Rallied for Moment Makes a new Onset—The Premier Drifting Onward—Slowly Sinking to Rest—His Greatest Last Stand League.

The profound sensation created in town by the news of the serious illness of Sir John Macdonald on Saturday continued unabated during the day and Sunday. As intimated in Saturday's issue, their was a special services of prayer for the Premier, held in St. John's church, which considering the busy hour of a busy day was largely attended. On Sunday in all the churches the latest bulletins announcing the moribund minister's condition were read, and fervent prayers offered up for his spiritual welfare and for his recovery, and in some cases references, more or less elaborate and direct, were made in the sermons preached. Everything went to show how intimately the strong personality of Sir John Macdonald has become entwined with the national life of Canada. Erstwhile political foe and political friend vied with each other, it would almost seem, in the betrayal of deep interest in the Premier's condition.

So that this morning this telegram was a general relief, though the conclusion could not be escaped that it was too sanguine—too good news to be true.—

OTTAWA, Ont., June 1st, 8:45 a.m.—Sir John's condition apparently shows a decided improvement and there is now an increasing belief that he will recover. Sir James Grant speaks very hopefully of the case.

The following dispatches are sufficient commentary on this, and they tell their own hopeless story:

OTTAWA, June 1, 11 35 a. m., 1891.—Doctors are holding consultation now. Reported action of Sir John's heart is becoming weaker.

OTTAWA, June 1—11:52 a.m.—Close examination of Sir John at our consultation this morning noticed an unmistakable lowering of the vital forces, notwithstanding that he has slept from time to time during the night and has taken no nourishment. Consciousness still remains and he suffers no pain.

R. W. POWELL,
GRANT,
WRIGHT.

OTTAWA, June 1.—NOON—Sir John has gradually grown weaker since 10:30 a.m., and it is not thought that he can last much longer.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 1, 2 10 p.m.—No change in Sir John since 11 a.m.

Otonabee.

In the death of Mr. Robert Jackson, of Otonabee, which sad event took place on Sunday, the county loses one of its most enterprising and successful agriculturists, and one of its most substantial and respected citizens. The late Mr. Jackson was a native of Lancashire, England, where he was born over sixty-seven years ago. At the age of 34 years he came to Canada. After spending ten years in South Monaghan, he removed to Otonabee, where he has since resided. Mr. Jackson was married in England to Miss E. Williamson, and had three children when he came to Canada. He leaves behind him six children, two sons and four daughters. Mr. Jackson was, as has been remarked above, an advanced farmer, who brought shrewd common sense, close observation and the lessons of experience to bear practically on farming, with the result that he achieved unusual success, and did much, by force of example, to introduce amongst many of his neighbours improved methods of tillage, which have been of great benefit. Mr. Jackson's figure was a familiar one at agricultural exhibitions and at the meetings of Farmers' Institutes, where, though he seldom read any specific paper, his shrewd suggestions and common sense comments afforded lessons of practical value. Mr. Jackson was a man of invariable probity and uprightness, and enjoyed the highest respect and esteem of the community. In politics Mr. Jackson was a stanch Liberal, and in religion a member of the Baptist denomination.

Great Removal Sale.

LeBrun & Co. Going into New and Larger Premises—Big Sacrifice and Clearing Sale of Their Present Stock.

H. LeBrun & Co. must have more room. Their business has been so well done and so greatly in the public interest, that it has outgrown their present premises. The Stethem hardware premises will be fitted up for LeBrun & Co. in the latest city style, and will be stocked with an entirely new stock of goods. These new premises will be very commodious and convenient, giving double the room now occupied by the firm, and making one of the finest stores in Peterborough. Therefore the present stock in the present premises must be cleared out. Never were such bargains offered in ready made and ordered clothing and gents' furnishings as the great removal sale of LeBrun & Co. will give. The staff is now remarking goods—wiping out the cost mark and putting it down as the selling price. The sale will begin on Wednesday, June 3rd, and nothing like the bargains in first class clothing and gents' furnishings, that you can get at this sale has ever been seen in Peterborough. Don't forget it. The goods must be cleared out, and will be cleared out if cheap prices for the best of goods will do it. 21126

Russian Barbarities.

Horrible Treatment of the Unfortunate Jewish Fugitives—Synagogues Broken Open and the Occupants Bound Hands and Feet.

BERLIN, May 30th.—The Hebrew Relief committee here has secured a long railway tunnel at Charlottenburg in which to shelter Russian Jews en route to Hamburg for embarkment. Stores of clothing and necessaries, enormous boilers of tea and coffee and supplies of bread and brandy are in readiness to relieve the misery of the crowds of fugitives that daily pour out of the railway trains. Many heartrending scenes are described, and tales are told of extreme suffering. Many of the fugitives had to leave on a day's notice, or were compelled to abandon everything but what they stood in, while others, hardly able to walk, are seen staggering under sacks containing all their worldly possessions. In many cases the fugitives are of the poorest classes, with numerous scantily clothed children dragging at their mother's skirts and crying for bread. All are shy and suspicious, remembering their ill-treatment at Russian railway stations, and the fresh torments in store for enter the waiting rooms. A doctor attends the children who are ill from the effects of the journey. The fugitives describe how the streets in which they lived would be suddenly cordoned with the police searching for Jews, who would fly to the synagogues for safety. How the doors of the synagogues would be wrenched, and troops of armed men would tie their hands and feet and plunder everything in the place, and how on arriving at the frontier the police would extort fresh bribes to allow them to cross.

LETTER FROM MR. GLADSTONE.

LONDON, May 29.—In response to a letter from Mr. Montague, M.P., asking him to join in claiming for Russian Jews the rights accorded to Mahommedan subjects of the Czar, Mr. Gladstone writes: "It would be easy to launch a denunciatory letter that would act like a dram and produce a momentary warmth, but such utterances not founded on a careful inquiry and real knowledge may do harm by strengthening the ultra party to whom and not the Czar these strange revolting proceedings are due. At one time I had influence with the Russian government, but when Premier in 1885 I had ample proof that my influence was gone, now my personal action would have no weight. The pressure of the opinion of the civilized world based upon ascertained facts is the best mode of proceeding. A widely effective organization of the Jews ought to enable the preparation of a complete statement, showing the exceptional laws bearing upon the Jews in Russia, and total absence of reason for such laws; also an adequate report on the recent persecutions. Such a statement seriously executed would bring powerful artillery to play upon the citadel and wrong no state or empire. The greatest nation on the earth would have the smallest title to complain of such a mode of interference." In concluding, Mr. Gladstone expresses the hope that the Sultan of Turkey will support the scheme for the settlement of the Jews in Palestine.

On Treating the Apparently Drowned.

The bathing and swimming season is at hand, and so is the season of many deaths from drowning. If every man of fair intelligence were familiar with the most approved method of reviving vital action in persons who had been a dangerous time under water many lives might be thereby saved. With the liberal dissemination of instruction on the method many persons would learn and remember the process and would employ it in emergencies. A new method, which has been by medical journals pronounced superior to the long-practised Sylvester or Marshall Hall method, has been recently suggested by Dr. Bowles, of London, Eng.

After the body has been removed from the water, place it for a moment with face downward, to allow the escape of water from the mouth and throat; turn it on the side and keep it on that side continuously, except when, about fifteen times a minute, the body is to be rolled, for a few seconds, on the face again. By KEEPING THE SAME SIDE ALWAYS UP, the lung on that side becomes clear. Turning first one and then the other side up is dangerous, because thereby the partly cleared lung is suddenly flooded with fluid from the lung which was downward. It is better to clear one lung entirely than to have both half cleared. Each time the body is turned upon the face for the few seconds, a little more froth and water escapes from the mouth and nostrils. When the upper lung has been almost or partly cleared, it is useful to raise the upper arm above the head, thus drawing up and expanding the ribs and walls of the chest that air may enter, as in the Sylvester method, then bringing the arm down firmly to the side again, and repeating these arm movements fifteen or twenty times a minute; since the entrance of larger quantities of air into the lung is now safe. Pressure upon the back each time the face is turned down, assists the escape of water somewhat, and has a good influence on the heart, aiding the profusion of the blood towards the lungs. The continued use of this prone-lateral method is said to be an excellent mode of keeping the pharynx clear of obstructions.

The artificial respiration process is far away the most important thing to attend to first. Not an instant should be lost before it is commenced.

If there be other assistants besides sufficient to keep up this process steadily and persistently for hours (for vitality has been restored after more than two hours of apparently fruitless effort) wet clothing may be removed, the body rolled into warm blankets and partly wrapped in them, and heat applied to the groins, feet and over the stomach, by means of hot water bottles or woolen cloths. A very hot brick applied suddenly and momentarily to the bare skin over the heart might help to restore its action, or an occasional sharp slap or two with the hand over this region might have a like effect.

When breathing is restored, but little usually remains to be done. A little hot drink or mild stimulant may be required, with dryness, warmth and quiet rest.

—Every tissue of the body, every bone, muscle and organ, is made stronger and more healthful by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A CANADIAN SWINDLER.

Death of a Former Montrealer in New York—His Eventful Career.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Edward H. Goff, president and general manager of the American Export and Trading Company, died Thursday night from Bright's disease at his house, No. 135 West One-hundred-and-thirty-fifth-street. Almost simultaneously the company was dispossessed from its offices, No. 4 Bowling Green, for the non-payment of rent, despite the fact that the advertised capital is $600,000 and the surplus, according to the treasurer's annual report, is $542,730.04. Goff first came into prominence about thirty years ago, appearing in Montreal as the agent of the Agricultural Insurance Company of Watertown, N.Y. Two or three years afterward he organized the Canadian Agricultural Insurance Company, with a capital of $1,000,000. In 1877, how ever, the company went to pieces with great loss to the stockholders.

During the same time he had various other schemes in hand, among them the Wingate Chemical Company, International Express Company and the National Insurance Company. They all failed. Railroad-building next claimed his attention, and in connection with some business men of St. Albans, Vt., he constructed the Montreal, Portland and Boston Railroad. Through the affair of this road he became mixed up in Dominion politics. The hatreds then aroused were followed by charges against him of forgery and embezzlement made by the officers of one of the numerous companies that had failed while under his management. Goff fled to New York and the Canadian authorities were unable to secure his extradition.

Since that time he has organized about 25 companies in Boston, New York and elsewhere, swindling people by wholesale, the American Export and Trading Company being the latest.

BURNED ALIVE.

Horrible Death of a Salvation Army Officer at Clinton.

CLINTON, May 31.—Yesterday afternoon a young man named Hitch, an officer in the Salvation Army, whose mother resides near here, was trying to kill worms and insects on trees with a lighted torn when the can exploded, the burning oil running down his face and on his clothes. The unfortunate young man, crazed with his sufferings, ran around the field until exhausted, his friends being unable to get near him until too late, and death ended his agony a few hours after. He was buried with Army honors to-day (Sunday). Deceased was 23 years old.

SUICIDE AT CLINTON.

Pat Corbett, Aged 22, Sends a Bullet Into His Brain.

CLINTON, May 31.—Pat Corbett, aged 22, son of Thomas Corbett, a wealthy and prosperous farmer in the Township of Hullett, rose from bed and procuring a revolver returned to bed and shot himself. He died a few hours afterward. No cause is assigned for the act, but rumor has it that a young lady had something to do with it.

Imagines He is Prof Koch.

CORNWALL, May 31.—During the last two or three days a man has been noticed in town, whose strange actions and appearance attracted much attention. His coat was buttoned up close to his throat and a heavy cap pulled down over his ears helped to hide his face, which was further concealed by a heavy scarf. An old barrel hoop hung about his neck and in either hand he carried a bunch of straw or horse hair, while under each arm was an old tin box or can. When arrested by Policeman Smith he resisted with such vigor that the officer had to call three men to his assistance, who had all they could do to force the crazy giant into the cells. About 20 white cards bearing the numbers three and four were found in his pocket along with a telegram. His name is unknown and he fancies that he is Prof. Koch. He keeps his back towards the door of the cell and amuses himself by dancing.

The Smith's Falls Victims Sank While Swimming for the Shore.

SMITHS FALLS, Ont., May 30.—The bodies of the three men who were drowned on Monday last were recovered this afternoon about fifty yards from the shore. They had evidently been making desperate efforts to reach land and were about twenty-eight yards from each other.

A Glorious Rainfall.

WINNIPEG, May 31.—Magnificent downpours of rain are reported to have been pretty general throughout Manitoba and the Northwest yesterday and to-day to the great benefit of growing crops. Rain was needed badly in some places and was gladly welcomed in all.

Drowned.

ST. CATHARINES, May 31.—A 2-year-old son of Mr. Charles Stewart of Stamford was drowned in a pond near the old brewery in the ravine. While the parents of the child were at dinner the little fellow wandered away from the house. The body was found in the shallow water some time afterwards.

Purify the blood in order to have perfect health. The importance of purifying the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

On Fire with Eczema

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby—Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail—Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and irritation was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered. His torments and agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $5 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were ceased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

Board of Education.

A Special Regular Meeting—A Variety of Business Transacted.

A meeting of the School Board was held last Monday night for the purpose of appointing an associate examiner to assist at the Entrance Examinations. The law says that the appointment shall be made on or before the first of June. The examiners this year will be Mr. Fessenden, principal of the Collegiate Institute; Dr. Tilley, Inspector of Public Schools; Mr. Brick, of the Separate School; and Mr. Wm. Smith, who was appointed at this meeting.

Mr. Chairman WRIGHTON presided over the meeting. There were present: trustees Dr. Burnham, John McKee, Dr. Boucher, H. Deane, W. H. Hill, W. G. Ferguson, P. Hamilton, J. Corkery, J. J. McBain and D. W. Dumble.

TWO RESIGNATIONS.

Miss Lizzie L. McDonald, having accepted a situation elsewhere, tendered her resignation as teacher in the North Ward School.—Referred to the Committee on Appointments.

Miss L. McClelland also tendered her resignation as teacher, which was referred as above.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The following reports of school attendance were read:—

	On roll.	Ave. att.
Collegiate Institute	187	172
North Ward School	156	131
South Ward School	369	307

Attached to the report was a post-script by Mr. Stirling, headmaster of the South Ward School, stating that Miss Martin, one of the teachers, was ill and would not be able to resume her duties this term. Mr. Stirling had engaged a substitute for the present, but asked instructions. This portion of the report was referred to the Committee on Appointments.

ACCOUNTS REFERRED.

The accounts of R. W. Errett, $8 00, for piano cover and stool; Geo. Benton, $1 00 for removing rubbish; and J. R. Stratton, $51.85, for stationery and printing, were referred to the Finance Committee.

The Board was notified that a cheque for $651.28 had been forwarded from the Education Department, the amount of Provincial grant.

A letter was read from the town clerk to the effect that the Town Council was ready to meet the Board almost any evening and discuss school matters.

FINANCE REPORT.

DR. BURNHAM, chairman, read the report of the Finance Committee, recommending payment of these accounts:—

J. W. Crosby	$ 14 00
Jackson & Co	12 00
W. H. Clurton	3 75
Peterborough Light and Power Co	7 20
Adam Hall	118 43
H. S. McDonald	95 26
Times (when certified)	19 02

The committee could not recommend the payment of $25 to the different papers for printing the annual statement, as in former years, as the amount has been equally divided between the reporters as authorized by resolution of the Board.

The report was adopted.

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION.

Mr. DENNE read the following report of the Supervision Committee:—

Your committee beg leave to report that they have considered the duties of getting further school accommodation, and advise the Board to accept the offer given by Mr. Birdsall, on the corner of Brock and Water streets, now occupied by Messrs. Fitzgerald & Stanger. The offer is attached to this report.

The report caused some discussion, and some objections were raised to the recommendation, and on motion of Mr. Dumble the matter was referred back to the committee.

AN EXAMINER APPOINTED.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, Mr. Wm. Smith of the Central School was appointed examiner.

Mr. FERGUSON moved in ammendment that, as the law required that the examiner appointed from the public school shall have a first class certificate, and Mr. John Stirling was qualified in that respect, that Mr. Stirling be appointed. The amendment was however lost.

Miss Ames was engaged by the Board to fill the vacancy in the South Ward School, caused by Miss Martin's illness, for the term.

Mr. Burnham moved, seconded by Mr. Dumble, that in future no bills for printing be paid unless the work is authorized by the secretary under instructions from the Board.—Carried.

Mr. McKee moved, seconded by Mr. McBain, that the Property Committee be requested to examine and report at the next meeting of the Board, on Tuesday, 9th June, the required work to be done to school property and probable cost of same—Carried.

THE JOINT CONFERENCE.

Moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Dr. Boucher, that the Secretary be instructed to notify the town clerk that the School Board will be pleased to confer with the council at the Board room on Tuesday evening, 9th inst, with reference to school accommodation.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Denne, seconded by Dr. Boucher, that the Property Committee be instructed to put water into the West Ward school for lawn purposes.—Carried.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Mr. DUMBLE referred to the motion passed at a late meeting of the Board, to the effect that the end of the school term should be marked by commencement exercises, and moved, seconded by Dr. Burnham, that the officers of the schools be requested to prepare to co-operate in the preparations for the proposed commencement exercises—Carried.

The Board then adjourned till next Tuesday evening.

Do Not Say, Impossible!

Mirabeau's hasty temper is well known. "Monsieur le Comple," said his secretary to him one day, "the thing you require is impossible." "Impossible!" exclaimed Mirabeau, starting from his chair: "Never again use that foolish word in my presence." It may be that some unfortunate sufferer is exclaiming, "New life and health for me is an impossibility; my case is an aggravated one, hopeless in every way." Not so sufferer. You have not yet reason to despair and give up hope. That terribly nervous state of body, those twitching muscles, your failing memory, those dreadful headaches and mental depression, that sleeplessness, has not rendered your condition altogether hopeless.

There is life awaiting you; a new lease of strength, vitality, robustness, pleasure and joy, if Paine's Celery Compound is used with regularity and fidelity. It will do more than any physician for you; it will strengthen the whole nervous and muscular system, build you up in flesh, strengthen the stomach and whet the appetite and give the hue of health to your countenance, which is now pale and hollow. Paine's Celery Compound has achieved these wonders for thousands in the past, and has now the same power to work out these blessings for you.

Our Lake Country Scenery Appreciated.

Year by year the merits of our lake region, both in the matter of picturesque scenic beauty, and of attractiveness as a summer retreat, is receiving wider appreciation. Every year tourists and pleasure seekers are drawn into the delightful vortex of summer pleasure and summer sport of the emerald island-studded bosoms of our crystal northern lakes. This year not only the meeting of the Northern Division of the American Canoe Association will take place on these waters, but the sixth annual sketching class of the Students' Art Club will leave Buffalo on July 3rd to spend a month in the Stony Lake region. The Buffalo art enthusiasts have made a wise selection. The scene of the summer tour will meet all requirements of the club—those addicted to scenery will have abundance of "bits," dear to the artistic soul, and those with piscatorial proclivities will have abundance of bites dear to the Waltonian soul. We make our Yankee cousins exceeding welcome.

TAM-O-SHANTER'S RIDE.

"Yes," said he thoughtfully, puffing ring after ring of smoke into the air above his head, "Tam-o-Shanter's ride through the midnight wind with the uncanny witches pursuing him, was a strange fancy of Burns'. It always reminds me of a certain time in my life when I seemed pursued by every demon of discase. Indigestion, dyspepsia, almost constant sick headache, weak lungs, boils and ulcers, everything seemed to ail me, and my physicians had finally given me up as a sure victim of consumption.

You know, in Burns' story, just as the foremost witch was seizing Tam's horse by the tail, he reached the middle of the magic stream—and his pursuers vanished. Well, just as I was giving up in despair, a friend sent me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I took. In an incredibly short time my disease entirely vanished. To-day I am as strong as any man in the room—thanks to the 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

Consumption is Lung-scrofula. For Scrofula, in its myriad forms, and for all Liver, Blood and Lung diseases, the "Discovery" is an unequaled remedy. It's the only guaranteed one. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you get your money back. It's the cheapest, Liver, Blood and Lung remedy, sold by druggists, because you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

"Golden Medical Discovery" strengthens Weak Lungs, and cures Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections. Don't be fooled into taking something else, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit. There's nothing at all like the "Discovery." It contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion. As peculiar in its curative effects as in its composition. Equally good for adults or children.

A Shocking Case.

A Young Woman Arrested for Infanticide and Her Brother Charged With Incest.

Globe Correspondence.

COBOURG, May 30.—At 11 o'clock last night Chief Constable Rankin made an arrest which has brought to light one of the most unnatural crimes that has ever been committed in this county. Upon the information of Albert Hearn, a young married man who lives in a house off George street, near the G.T.R. station, the chief constable arrested Melvina Jane Hearn, a sister of the informant, on a charge of infanticide. The unfortunate girl spent the night in the police cells and this morning was brought before the police magistrate and remanded until next Friday. Following are full particulars of the crime:—The prisoner is a young woman twenty years of age. She has a pleasant face and comely figure, and up till the present always bore a good name. Her parents' home is at Colborne. Last year she lived at service with Mrs. H. B. Gould, at Castleton. In midsummer while en route to Stoney Lake, where Mrs. Gould was going to camp out, the prisoner stopped over night in Colborne, where she stayed at the home of her parents. She went to bed about 11 o'clock, and shortly afterwards her brother, George Washington Hearn, a young man 30 years old, it is alleged, entered her room and committed the odious crime of incest. Several months later it distressed the poor girl to find that she was enciente. She left Mrs. Gould's employ and was at a Mrs. Macdonald's, in Peterborough, for a while. About five months ago she came to Cobourg, where her brother Albert was residing, and engaged herself as a servant to Mrs. M. A. Burk, a well-known dressmaker in town. No suspicion as to her condition was entertained until a few days before the child was born, which took place in her brother's house one night five weeks ago. The baby was a perfectly developed male child, weighing about nine pounds.

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prom; t and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. R. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Felicia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hauel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

SHEENY AL., THE GOLD MAKER, UNDER ARREST IN LONDON.

Startling as a Pickpocket. He Climbs the Criminal Ladder to the Top Round of Crooks—Well Known in Toronto 17 Years Ago.

Edward Pinter, an American, alias Sheeny Al, who is charged with attempting to obtain $40,000 from Edward Streeter, a jeweller, by false pretences, was again under examination on the 20th at the Marlborough street Police Court, London, Eng. The Government analyst testified that one of the powders found in Pinter's possession was composed of real gold. Others were composed of calomel mixed with charcoal. The prisoner again affirmed that he was able to make gold, and said he was anxious to prove the truth of his statement in open court. The magistrate, however, objected on the ground that he understood that a horrible stench was one of the features of the experiment. The prisoner then demanded that an unofficial analysis of the powders should be made, and the magistrate agreeing to this, Pinter's case was adjourned for a week.

Scotland Yard detectives are endeavoring to unearth the history of Al Pinter, the professional thief and confidence operator now in custody in England charged with having attempted to swindle a jewellery merchant there out of $40,000 by pretending that he was possessed of a process by which he could greatly increase the weight of gold without decreasing its value. Pinter had set up an establishment, and after fitting a darkened room with a crucible and other necessary adjuncts proceeded to secure a victim. Without disclosing his secret he got a wealthy dealer in jewellery interested, and by means of several experiments convinced the gullible merchant that there was something in the process. Several times the merchant threw a sovereign into the crucible, and each time Pinter brought it out greatly increased in weight, but he would allow no one but himself to approach the mysterious receptacle. In fact, it is said that Pinter used acids and other ingredients that made it impossible for anyone to approach close enough to the crucible to see the process, the fumes overcoming anyone not used to or prepared for them. The merchant, before paying over his money, became suspicious, and had Pinter arrested on a charge of attempting a swindle, and he is now awaiting trial.

Al Pinter was known in Toronto seventeen or eighteen years ago as Al Wise, and also as Sheeny Al, and he was looked upon by the police as one of the cleverest pickpockets, bank-sneaks, and confidence operators in the country. He was well educated, and of pleasing, almost fascinating, manners; but he was as crooked as a ram's horn, and was seldom out of trouble. He came from New York, where he was highly connected, to Toronto in 1873, and remained about two years, during which time he led the police and detectives many a wild dance. Among his intimate associates were Broken-Nose George, a clever bank-sneak and pickpocket; Uncle John Rand, who was caught in the act of robbing an express office in Brantford single-handed, and for which he served a term in the penitentiary; Joe Butts, an expert in his peculiar avocation; and Joe McCluskey, who was known all over the continent as a clever thief. Sheeny Al had been in the city but a short time when he won the affections of a young girl in whose father's house he boarded, and those who knew both believed that his affections were honestly engaged, and that he intended to marry her. She believed him to be a traveller, but one day when she discovered that he was a professional thief she sank into insensibility and died in a few moments. While planning robberies Sheeny Al succeeded in making wax impressions of the locks of a number of stores and houses, among them Gemmell's shoe store, King street, a jewellery store in the Rossin house block, several stores on Young street, and a number of private residences; and from these impressions keys were made.

He also concocted a scheme to rob the vault in the Grand Opera house, and which was the resort for the aristocratic families of the city. He arranged a plan to cut his way from the basement upwards into the vault, but before the job could be consummated or attempted, he got himself into trouble by trusting too fully in a pal. At that time Mr. John Bond, an old Torontonian, kept a furniture store on King street east, and it was generally believed that he always kept a large sum of money in his place sooner than trust the bank. His hiding place for the money was in a large bowl in the washstand, but this was not known until he sought the assistance of the police. Sheeny Al, heard of the old man's wealth, and at once conceived a scheme to secure it. With the blade of a paper-knife he pushed back the window fastening and crept quietly to the old man's bedroom. He could not find the cash-box, which, as was afterwards learned, contained upwards of $1,500, but secured $35 from a desk. Before entering the bedroom he found a woman's dress and put it on as a disguise, but the rustling noise it made awakened a number of the family, who met Al on the stairs. The inmates secured a good look at the midnight mechanic's face, but did not attempt to stop him. A few days afterwards Detective Hedgins who suspected Sheeny Al, arrested him in the Rossin House, and, being identified, he was committed for trial.

Before his case was called at the Assizes he was allowed out on bail, and he skipped to the States after the grand jury had brought in a true bill. From the States Sheeny Al went to France, where he continued his career as a swindler, until he was driven out of the country by the police. In Germany he conceived the idea of swindling gullible people by making gold heavier than its own weight, and, being arrested and convicted, served a long term. Upon being released he repaired to England, and was nabbed on his first venture, or within six months of the time that he was released from the German prison. Nearly all of Sheeny Al's pals are either dead or in the penitentiary. Uncle John Rand, probably the best known thief in Toronto, was the one who concocted the robbery of the express car on the Great Western railway in the spring of 1874, when upwards of $27,000 was stolen. He walked up and down King street during the whole of the evening while the car was being robbed near Mimico, for the purpose of being able to prove an alibi in case he should be arrested. He died in Bradford, Pa., about three years ago. Billy Montgomery, the express messenger who took part in the robbery, is now doing fourteen years in St. Vincent de Paul prison for helping to steal a safe near Montreal, carrying it on to the ice on the river, and blowing it open. His pals received the same sentence. The Greer brothers, who also took part in the express robbery, did not have much luck afterwards, as one of them was shot by a policeman in Brooklyn while he was in the act of committing a burglary, and the other was sent down for twenty years for the same offence.

Testing the Clerks.

I was in a book store in Nassau street a few weeks ago, talking about a new etching of Lowell, when a tall, gaunt youth rushed in, watch in hand, and so out of breath that he stuttered.

"Mr. M——. Mr. Pliny wants this book immediately, so that he can take it with him when he goes on the 4:30 train"; and the youth handed the dealer a slip of paper on which was written, "The Life of Adam's Father: bound in half calf."

"We haven't it in stock now, but you can get it at Scribner's," said Mr. M——, at the same time winking slyly at me, and adding, as the youth sped out into the street:

"That is the way —— & Sons, the bankers, test the brilliancy of their new clerks. The Life of Adam's Father has been in existence as a joke these fifteen years, and one clerk sought for it for four hours before he found —not the book, but that he was a dull fool." —The Critic.

Dropping into Verse.

You ask me, sir, to give a reason
Why I intend to move this season.
Well, first admitting I'm contented,
It would seem to some I am demented.
The place is perfect every way
And I confess I ought to stay.
But "circumstances alter cases"
As shaving whiskers changes faces,
About beginning of last Lent
I quite forgot to pay the rent.
(My loss of memory needs a tonic,
I guess the landlord thinks it chronic.)
At all events, the other day,
The agent happened round my way,
Presented me a note "to quit,"
And so I guess I've "got to git."

Extremely Frank.

"Now, Robby, if you don't want to go to Bessie Smith's party you must write a note and tell her so, and be sure and get it polite. You will find some models in this book of etiquette," said Mrs. Carhart to her little son.

Robby struggled with the problem for an hour, and then presented for his mother's inspection the following truthful but unconventional effusion:

"Mr. Robert Carhart declines with pleasure Miss Bessie Smith's kind invitation for the 14th, and thanks her extremely for having given him the opportunity of doing so." —Harper's Bazar.

How a Beautiful Flower was Named.

An old legend tells of two lovers walking by the river Rhine. The lady begged her suitor to pluck a little pale-blue flower growing on the bank. In doing so, he fell into the water and was drowned; but, while sinking, he threw the flower to her, and cried:—"Forget me not!" Thousands of women will never forget what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for them. It is prepared especially to cure those diseases from which they alone suffer, and often in silence, rather than consult a physician—as periodical pains, weak back, prolapsus, and all uterine troubles. Purely vegetable, and guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. b

A Spring Medicine.

There are few who do not at this season feel the need of a spring medicine, and to all such we recommend Lane's Family Medicine as the best. This is a pleasant herb drink made by pouring boiling water on the dried roots and herbs. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1. It is the best as well as the pleasantest cure for constipation and headache. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

From the Pacific Coast.

We quote from a letter recently received form Miss Eleanor Pope, Port Haney, B. C: "For sore throat, coughs, croup, bruises, &c., Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the best thing I have ever used." dw

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS.—My mother was attacked with a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS. KENNEDY, Hamilton, Ont. 2w20d

DORENWEND
ELECTRIC BELT
And Attachments.
HEAD OFFICE—103 Yonge St., Toronto.
THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you want to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Send name and address for Illustrated Book on Home Electro-medical treatment and mention this paper. J. D. TULLY, Agent, Peterborough. eod-w

Trinity College Interests.

Rev. Provost Body of Trinity College Toronto and Rev. E. C. Cayley arrived in town to-day in the interests of the University of Trinity College. A meeting will be held at the Rectory this evening for the purpose of arranging for infusing information and exciting interest in the work and interests of the University.

A Great Day Coming.

It may not be generally known that June 4th is the anniversary of the birth of King George IV. It is nevertheless true, and it is also equally true that on Thursday, June prox., the Sons of England will run an excursion to Toronto and return, via Grand Trunk Railway. Choice of two routes. Return fare, $1.85. d126

Abusing the Boom Business.

Peterborough seems to be bound to be a manufacturing centre, and the latest development of civic energy will be watched with interest. At the council meeting last night, it was agreed to give a bonus to the Doherty organ factory under certain conditions, but a bonus is given with every pound of hawley bros.' peerless teas, in the shape of extra value for the finest goods in the world.

HO! FOR TORONTO.

Business men, and in fact every one who desires a day's outing, should remember the S. O. E. Excursion on Thursday to Toronto, via Grand Trunk Railway.

The Late Mrs. (Dr.) Yelland.

The largely attended funeral of Mrs. Dr. Yelland, which took place this afternoon, afforded practical evidence of the high respect in which the deceased lady was held and the sympathy felt by the community with Dr. Yelland in his sad and painful bereavement. The deceased lady enjoyed great popularity amongst her wide circle of friends, and the awful suddeness of her demise, and the loss by the bereaved husband of the wife of a few years, are circumstances that evoke the most heartfelt sympathy and condolence. A very large concourse of the friends of the family followed the remains to their final resting place, the Little Lake Cemetary.

Peterborough Canoes.

The reputation of Peterborough built canoes is Dominion-wide, which is to be little wondered at, since Peterborough is the original home of modern, or rather, civilized canoe building and its chief manufacturing centre. To illustrate—the Welland Tribune, in referring to a canoe of local build, pays the highest possible compliment to the builder by comparing his work as follows:—"Master Harry Batten has just finished building a canoe. It is a beauty and will compare favourably with Peterborough built boats. We had the pleasure of seeing Harry start on his initial trip. The little craft floats like a duck."

Physicians in attendance—Drs. J. T. J. Halliday and E. McG[illegible]th.

A Pair of Fire Alarms.

Last night about one o'clock the fire brigade and hose wagon were rung out to subdue a fire in a roughcast building on the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer streets, used by successive tenants as a butcher shop. The fire was without difficulty put out. It was of undoubtedly incendiary origin. Some firefly seems to have a spite against the building, and repeated attempts have been made to fire it, but so far unsuccessfully. The incendiary might have saved himself the trouble; the building is to be moved in a few days. A new foundation is being prepared for it on the corner of Bethune and Simcoe streets.

At nine o'clock another alarm was rung for a fire in the house of Mr. John Lane, Water street. The brigade responded but their services were not necessary, because the fire was extinguished without their services. On both occasions the brigade turned out with the greatest promptitude—in the latter case the horses were out of the stall before the general alarm was rung.

North County Burglars Bagged.

This morning Wm. Coulter and Thomas Humphries were arraigned before County Police Magistrate Edmison, charged with burglarious assault upon the premises of George Booth in Galway township. The men were arrested by County Constable Geo. Cochrane, assisted by assistant Constable Cochrane says that Archie's sprinting powers stood him in good stead. It appears that a band of some twenty-five or thirty persons disguised, and with their faces concealed, made an attack on Booth's residence, breaking it up considerably and handling Booth and his wife in no gentle manner. Booth recognized of the number Coulter and Humphries, and Police Magistrate Edmison issued a warrant for their arrest, which was executed as above. The case was this morning enlarged till Friday.

Wall Paper Way Down.

As we have leased the adjacent premises about to be vacated by Mr. Jas. Stenson, boot and shoe merchant, which will be occupied by our fancy goods and wall paper department, as soon as the necessary alterations are made, our present immense stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore must be greatly reduced in order to facilitate removal. This great clearing sale of wall paper will continue for the next 30 days, regardless of prices. Cost marks won't count in this sale. The stock must be cleared out, or at all events reduced so that it can be handled easily. It comprises fall lines of all kinds of wall paper of the very latest styles and designs, which we got in this spring from the best makers on the continent. A particularly fine lot of gold papers will be sold at a sacrifice. A great variety of job ends will be cleared out at almost any price. This is the chance of a life time. Remember this sale will last 30 days, when we expect to remove the wall paper department down stairs into the new store. The stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore is by far the largest and most complete in town, and those who come early will get the benefit of a choice selection. This is a genuine slaughter sale of wall paper. We ask you to call and be convinced of the big bargains that are being offered the public at the Peterborough Bookstore.

Police Court.

TUESDAY, June 2nd.

At the police court this morning there was a light docket. The veteran pensioner on civic bounty, Mr. Dennis Slattery, who has served many a term for vagrancy in the county jail, was at the bar requesting another half year of court house hospitality. His plea was entertained and while his commitment was being made out the magistrate remarked:

"There Dennis, you might as well start up the hill now, your paper will be there as soon as you are."

Then Dennis, effusively:

"Begorra your honour, your a fine dacent man, and you give me the price of a drink, its a long time or I get that same again."

"No, Dennis, I couldn't do that, but I'll give you the price of a plug of tobacco," and he passed Dennis over a dime.

"God bless your honor," and Dennis saluted the magistrate and ambled down stairs and up the hill for a retirement of six months.

Joseph Garret, another old pensioner, who is ill in the jail, was committed for another six months.

A case of neglecting to obey a notice to clean a closet was enlarged for a week. In the course of the case, the party summoned said his closet was kept in the most cleanly possible condition, but the magistrate replied that he could not try such cases; he could only take the word of the health inspector that a notice to clean closets had been served and not complied with; he could only administer the law.

Christian Alliance Meeting.

Dr. Potts on Dr. Simpson.

Dr. Potts thus writes respecting Dr. Simpson who will be present at the Alliance Convention to begin in Peterborough on Tuesday June 9th:—I providentially heard this afternoon of this Convention. While walking through the street of New York wishing for six o'clock to come that I might get away, I heard that my dear old friend, Dr. Simpson, was in this meeting, and I felt I must come to shake him again by the hand. I am not a stranger to the testimonies I have heard here to day. I believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as a complete Saviour and I know whom I have believed. I have just returned from Virginia from the funeral of a dear brother, and I am going back to Toronto, feeling there is nothing worth living for but Christ. For a long time I staggered at the command in the Old Testament, "Thou shall love the Lord thy God with all thy mind, with all thy soul and with all thy strength," but the Spirit taught me "I will circumcise thine heart and will cause thee to do this." So, long ago, I accepted this circumcision and I have found it the easiest way to serve the Lord. The best kind of love is a perfect heart. I rejoice in Christ as a complete Saviour. I do not know your denominational complexion but I have found the atmosphere of Canaan in this place. The Lord grant you more of the fulness of His Spirit.

The Conference of the Councillors.

The Regular Meeting to Hold—Chiefly Financial—Minor Matters—Encouraging a New Industry—A Few Motions.

At the regular meeting of the council held on Monday evening the following members were present: The Mayor, in the chair, and Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Kelly, Hall, Bradburn, Dawson, Moore, Muldrum, Langford, Kendry and Donnelson.

The Mayor said that this was a regular meeting, but he felt very much disinclined to business on account of the impending death of the Premier. He felt that only the most absolutely necessary business should be transacted.

Mr. KENDRY thought that the council should adjourn at once.

It was decided, however, to transact a few pressing matters of business.

STREETS AND BRIDGES.

Mr. Langford, chairman, presented the following report:—

TO THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Street and Bridge Committee beg leave to report and recommend that in case the signers of the petition for a drain on Park street, present a properly signed petition under the drainage act, that the work asked for be proceeded with.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. LANGFORD,
Chairman.

June 1, 1891.

RAILWAY REPRESENTATION.

Mr. DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Mr. HALL, that the Mayor be authorized to attend all meetings of the Midland Railway Company, as representative of the town's stock in the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway Company.

The Mayor said that the town had no stock in the Midland Railway; they were mortgagor of the company; after considerable talk it was finally decided that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee to report.

CLOTHING OUR DEFENDERS

Mr. KENDRY brought up his motion, of which notion had been given, seconded by Mr. DENNISTOUN that the Police Supervision Committee have power to ask for tenders and award contracts for summer clothing for the police.—Carried.

Mr. BRADBURN, moved, seconded by Mr. KELLY, that the town solicitor be instructed to collect from the Grand Trunk Railway the damages awarded the property owners on Bethune street, if he is of opinion that such damages can be collected.—Referred to Finance Committee.

AIDING A NEW MANUFACTURING INDUSTRY.

Mr. HALL said that a Mr. Marcey, who had purchased the Doherty Organ Company's interests, was in town, and had had communicated with several local capitalists, who were inclined to take stock in the company and push the manufacture of organs in Peterborough with great vigour. His hands would be greatly strengthened and stock more readily subscribed if the town, which it could safely do, would promise its co-operation on certain conditions; and he moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that this council hereby agrees that if Mr. Marcey succeeds in securing the necessary amount of stock to start an organ factory to employ 125 hands to be established in Peterborough, that they will submit a bylaw to the people to grant that company a bonus sufficient to purchase the land therefor, not exceeding two acres, and to build the necessary buildings, not exceeding $10,000, the land and building not to be conveyed to the company till the company has been in operation at least 10 years, and to employ for that time the above number of hands during each year of said term, and also grant exemption from taxation for the term of ten years on the same conditions.—Carried.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that hereafter when new sidewalks are being built, the walk be placed upon the outer edge of the boulevard.—Carried.

On motion, the taxes of Frances White were remitted, and the council adjourned.

POR MAN AND BEAST.

A petition was presented, signed by the merchants occupying stores in the market block, asking the council to place a pump in the tank at corner of Mark and Elizabeth streets. After some discussion it was moved by Mr. Throop, seconded by Mr. Wand, that a pump be placed in said tank and also a trough for watering horses.—Carried.

APPLICATIONS.

An application was received asking for a sidewalk and crossing on Crescent street, and an entrance into Mr. Styles' residence, also for a sidewalk on west side of Driscoll street—Referred to Street and Bridge Committee.

BLOCK PAVEMENTS.

Street Inspector Craig was instructed to place a block pavement crossing on Elizabeth street, and to report to council the cost of same. They are of the opinion that such crossings are cheaper and better than the ones now in use, and intend to introduce them.

The largely signed petition of the ratepayers of the village in reference to street watering, which was left over at the last meeting of the council, was presented by the clerk. There was considerable discussion on this matter, and it was finally moved by Mr. Craig and seconded by Mr. Throop, that tenders be called for, for watering Elizabeth street, from Otonabee Bridge to Stewart street, till first October next, in such a manner as will keep dust laid, to the satisfaction of councillors Throop and Craig. THE BUTCHER'S BY-LAW.

MR. GOULD one of the village butchers appeared before the council in reference to the by-law relating to butchers, which was discussed at a previous meeting of the council. The council decided to deal with the matter at its next meeting.

THE DEPREDATING COW

Mr. D. O'Connell, Concession street was given a hearing. He said that a resident of the street allowed her cows to run at large, and they damaged his property considerably. He had frequently drawn her attention to the matter, but she replied that it was the Queen's highway. He asked the council to see that the cow by-law was enforced. The Reeve and Council instructed Street Inspector Craig to place every stray cow found on the streets in pound.

Council then adjourned.

Death of a Veteran Methodist Minister.

Rev. John Bredin, D. D., Passes to His Reward.

The many friends whom Rev. John Bredin, D.D., formed during his pastorate in Peterborough about forty years ago, will be pained to hear of his death, which took place at his residence, Colborne, on Sunday, last, May 30th. He is indeed a veteran in the ministry, having completed his half century, save one year—from 1842 to 1891. Rev. John Bredin, D.D., was born in Ireland in 1819—the same year as Her Majesty the Queen; came to Canada when a young man and entered the ministry of the Methodist church in 1842, being stationed that year in London, Ontario, his next place was Goderich, where he was stationed in 1843. He has occupied some of the most important pulpits in the church:—Woodstock, Toronto, Peterborough, Guelph, Cobourg, St. Thomas, Hamilton, Brockville, Baltimore, Yonge street, Bowmanville, Barrie, Walkerton, Alliston, Brighton, Colborne. He was superannuated four years ago and took up residence in Colborne, where he died on Saturday evening last, aged seventy-two. He leaves a widow and two sons, with several grandchildren to mourn his departure. Dr. Bredin was very popular as a preacher in Peterborough, in fact he was one of the best preachers in the Methodist church in this country. He was a splendid penman, his writing being equal to copper plate; his services were always secured as journal secretary of both the Annual and General Conferences. He will be greatly missed.—Guide, Port Hope.

Loading Cattle

A Description of the Work on a Cattle Steamer.

(Montreal Star.)

To those who have seen cattle loaded on a steamer in this port the sight is always an interesting one, and perhaps what strikes the casual observer more strongly than anything else is the patience required and the care exercised in running the animals on without exciting them or causing them to injure themselves in any way. A cargo of cattle loaded on the steamer "Texas" yesterday would probably give a fair example of how the work is done at this port. The cattle were driven down to the wharf early in the afternoon in bunches as required, and several hours had passed before they were all on, as the work is not hurried at all. Just at the gangway where the cattle are to go on board is built a temporary pen, which encloses three sides, and into this the cattle are driven. There they are held by the cattle attendants and passed one by one into the vessel. Curious spectators lined the sides of this pen, watching the cattle going on board and gazing wonderingly at the large letters "V.R." painted in red or blue on the sides of the animals, and which denote that the cattle have passed the veterinary inspection and have been pronounced free from all disease. As a usual thing the cattle while standing in the pen waiting their turn, were very quiet, but the bull appeared to be most obstreperous. Several large bulls, all of which had ropes round their horns, and were in charge of seperate attendants, would once in a while make a charge through the crowd of cattle, dragging their attendants, who manfully held on to the ropes, after them. The foreman, who was an intelligent fellow, and who kept all the while addressing them soothingly, stood at the mouth of the gangway and separated the animals, driving them one by one up the gangway on board the steamer. Sometimes two steers would make for the gangway at once and get stuck at the mouth. There they would heave and strain, neither giving away, until a blow on the nose of one animal from the foreman's stick and a poke in the rump of the other would break the deadlock. Entering the vessel, the cattle were driven along the ways into the stalls. When one stall was filled it was closed off from the others and nimble cattlemen quickly fastened the head ropes around the horns and the cattle were secured for the voyage across the Atlantic.

The Coroner's Jury Will Find Out

What Caused the Death of Mr. E. J. Hopkins—His Sudden Death This Morning—The Physicians Report the Case to the Coroner—An Inquest to be Held This Evening.

Mr. E. J. Hopkins, an Englishman, a native of Berkshire, England, living on Chamberlain street died very suddenly this morning, under circumstances of sufficient mystery to warrant the attending physician taking the grave step of reporting the matter to the authorities for the purpose of finding out the cause of his death. It appears that the deceased gentleman was in comparatively good health shortly before his death, which took place this morning at half past nine. It is premature to reproduce any of the rumours connected with the affair, as the facts will all be brought out to-night at the inquest before Dr. Bell, coroner, this evening in the police court room. The deceased has been about eighteen months in Peterborough. He has the reputation of being wealthy. He is about 35 years of age, and was married about the time of his coming to Peterborough.

AN ORILLIA FIRE.

Ramsay's Extensive Carriage Works Badly Gutted—Incendiaries at Sarnia.

ORILLIA, June 1.—The fire brigade was called out at 6 this morning to Ramsay's carriage works in Smith and Nottawasaga streets. The fire caught under the eaves of the paint shop, and as the buildings are all frame, covering three acres, the conflagration threatened to be extensive. The buildings burnt are paint shop, three-story wood workers' shop, machine shop, tire house and engine house, with all machinery and much of the stock stored therein. Loss about $3000 on buildings, $18,000 on machinery and stock. Insurance, $8500 in Royal Lancashire, Hartford, Phœnix and Caledonian.

Beer as a Fire Extinguisher.

BERLIN, June 1.—Auerbach & Glabschen's oil works at Breslau were destroyed by fire yesterday. The brewery of Hopf & Scarck, situated near the refinery, was in danger of destruction and was saved in another manner. The water supply proving insufficient the firemen were invited to make use of the beer stored in the place. A large number of casks of the precious fluid were brought out and their contents poured upon the flames, with the result of putting a stop to the spread of the conflagration.

Firebugs at Sarnia.

SARNIA, June 1.—Three attempts were made during last night to set fire to the grocery store of Randall Kenny in Front-street. Within the last few weeks there have been several attempts at incendiary fires and those last night were the most daring.

A Floater in Sarnia Bay.

SARNIA, June 1.—This morning the body of a man was found in the bay here, but not identified. He was apparently from 45 to 50 years of age, had short side whiskers slightly gray and was fairly well dressed. On his body were found an open-faced gold watch, eye-glasses, a small amount of United States silver and a pocketbook.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

After Advancing a Few Bills a Stage the House Adjourns.

OTTAWA, June 1.—The House of Commons met this afternoon at 3 o'clock and after advancing several bills a stage, debated the subject of granting second, homesteads to those settlers in the Northwest who had entered the country between 1883 and 1886. It was led by Mr. Davin, and was taken part in by a number of hon. gentlemen.

Hon. Mr. Dewdney suggested that the proper time to discuss a matter of this kind was when amendments to the Northwest Lands' Act were introduced at a later stage in the session.

From this proposition there was dissent and the discussion became very personal. The condition of the Premier seems to have inflicted the members for work and the debate was only noteworthy on account of the exchange of extravagant personalities between Nicholas Flood Davin and Hon. Mr. Dewdney, Minister of the Interior.

Sir Hector Langevin at 5.45 o'clock moved the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Laurier insisted that the debate should be carried on a division.

The result was that a straight party vote was called on to decide the question of adjourning the debate, and by a majority of 14 Sir Hector's proposition carried.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

On Fire with Eczema

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby—Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail—Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and irritation were intense; the eczema spread in his hands, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered. His suffering appeared very pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $3 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were ceased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

SLOWLY THE DYING MAN YIELDED

The Lamp of Life Flickering in the Sick Room at Ernscliffe All Day Yesterday, but When the Shades of Night Began to Fall the Premier Showed Signs of Heat Prostration, His Pulse Became Weak and Irregular and the Hopeful Feeling of the Early Morning Was Dispelled—A Graceful Tribute to Sir John in the British House of Commons.

OTTAWA, June 2.—This has been the quietest day at Ernscliffe since the crisis began. Miss MacPherson of Kingston, a distant relative, arrived this evening. Sir Leonard and Lady Tilley also came up from New Brunswick. Mr. and Mrs. Dewdney spend a great deal of their time at Ernscliffe. Mr. G. Johnson, Dominion Statistician, sat up with Sir John all night. He says the Premier passed a good night and partook of more nourishment than he had done since the attack last Friday.

In a note written at 9 o'clock this morning to Senator Boyd, Mr. Pope said: "Sir John's condition is slightly improved. He passed a quiet night and had no more bad turns. He took quite a lot of nourishment for him and is now sleeping quietly. I do not want to cheer you unduly, but these are facts." At 8 a.m. the following bulletin was issued:

Sir John passed the night composedly and comfortably without any drawback. The several periods of serious depression that occurred throughout the day yesterday have not been repeated since 9 o'clock last night. As I write this bulletin he is sleeping.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.

About noon the following bulletin was issued:

ERNSCLIFFE, 11.45.—We find Sir John Macdonald resting quietly at the time of our visit, having recently partaken of light refreshment. The past night has been satisfactory, as expressed in the 8 a.m. bulletin. While we are gratified to find such an exhibition of vital strength as we see exemplified in him, yet we cannot alter our opinion as to the final result of his illness.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

Message from the Queen.

His Excellency and Major Colville walked over to Earnscliffe at 11 o'clock and conversed with Mr. Pope on the Premier's condition for some time. His Excellency informed the correspondent as he came up to the gate that he this morning received a cablegram from Her Majesty in these words "How is Sir John Macdonald to-day.' Signed V. R. I. "As a matter of fact," His Excellency added, "I send a message to Her Majesty every day."

The following bulletin was issued at 5.45 p.m.: "The Premier has dosed comfortably to-day, except during the intervals of changing his posture and administering nourishment. His change of temperature since yesterday has appeared agreeable to him and he has not been exhausted by such free action of the skin which undoubtedly tends to weaken him. Signed, R. W. POWELL, M.D.

A Bad Turn

At 7 o'clock the medical attendant noticed a change in his patient, and the 10 o'clock consultation resulted in the issue of the following alarming bulletin:

ERNSCLIFFE, 11.30 p.m.—The Premier passed a quiet day without notable change till 7 o'clock, since that time he has shown signs of great prostration, evidenced by perspiration and a labored respiration numbering 30 per minute; pulse 130; weak and irregular; he took the usual nourishment at 9 p.m. (Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT.
H. P. WRIGHT.

Immediately on receipt of this the House of Commons, which was still in session, adjourned. The low respiration and the excessively high pulse were most alarming symptoms and it was generally agreed that they indicated an early end.

Dr. Wright's Summary

Dr. Wright when seen at midnight after the final consultation for the day and the issue of the last bulletin, stated that the marvelous vital forces which have enabled the Premier to so long maintain his struggle for life are undergoing a process of slow but sure decay. He passed a far better day than yesterday, but there was no real indication of permanent improvement. His condition has from first to last confirmed the diagnosis taken on the day he was stricken with paralysis. The end may come at any time, but, unless he is subject to another of the heart depressions which were so characteristic of his condition yesterday, there is no reason to suppose that he will not last out the night. The condition of the patient at midnight was simply this: no hope.

There has been none from the beginning, and this evening the evidences of decreasing vitality are more pronounced than they have yet been.

Scene of His Last Words.

On Friday last Senator Sullivan went down to Ernscliffe and was admitted to see the Premier, who was then apparently recovering from the slight attack of paralysis of Wednesday and was feeling much better than on the preceding day. Sir John greeted his old friend cordially, and in the course of conversation referred to his illness, ridiculing the idea of paralysis, which the physicians had informed him was the nature of the attack. To show the Senator that there was at all events no paralysis now Sir John drew up his limbs and shot them out again, asking his visitor to note how he had full power over them. He complained of being asked to keep perfectly still and keep his eyes closed, saying: "If I have to do that it will drive me insane." This will explain to some extent the difficulty, even the impossibility, of anyone prevailing on the aged leader to remain quiet during the critical days between the election and last week. Dr. Sullivan congratulated him on feeling so much better and left him, shaking hands with him for what proved to be the last time.

Notes.

Sir Leonard Tilley and Lady Tilley arrived from St. John, N.B., to-day to see Sir John Macdonald, if possible.

The Liberals held a caucus yesterday afternoon and decided to continue what the party managers regard as an aggressive policy.

The rumor circulated in Ottawa to the effect that Sir John is insured in the Manufacturers' Life for $50,000 is entirely without foundation.

An interesting member of the sorrowing household is the Premier's little grandson "Jack," as he calls himself, who bears the most striking likeness to his grandfather, with whom he was an especial favorite. The little fellow, although but six years of age, fully realises the gloom that hangs over the household, and tells callers who question him that "grandpa is very ill."

The tracks which are stationed in front of Ernscliffe day and night ready to respond to a moment's call are in charge of the faithful Buckley, who has been Sir John's cabman for many years. Buckley is quite a personage in Ottawa, and became generally known throughout the country at the time of the murder of Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, when baseless rumors were started. Buckley is a general favorite of the master of Ernscliffe, and having known him intimately for over a quarter of a century has all along placed great confidence in his ultimate recovery.

New Brunswick papers favor Sir John Thompson for the premiership, while the Nova Scotians are largely for Sir Charles Tupper, also Sir John Thompson's name is mentioned prominently.

Reconstructing the Cabinet.

[Associated Press Report.]

OTTAWA, June 2.—A prominent French-Canadian politician, who is considered an authority, says the Cabinet will be reorganized by Sir John Thompson, with the following important changes: Premier and Minister of Justice, Sir John Thompson Minister of Railways, Hon. J. A. Chapleau Minister of Public Works, G. A. Kirkpatrick; President of the Council, W. B. Ives Leader of the Senate, Lieut.-Gov. Angers. The politician said: "The other portfolios will remain the same, except that some French-Canadian member will succeed Chapleau as Secretary of State, and that Hon. Mr. Carling will probably retire from the Cabinet to make room for Mr. Meredith. Sir Hector will be made Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec. Sir Charles Tupper will stay where he is.

What the Physicians Say.

Sir James Grant was seen this afternoon and asked: "Is the rumor true that Dr Powell is not entirely at one with his colleagues in consultation and entertains a more hopeful view of Sir John's condition than do yourself and Dr. Wright?"

"There is no difference of opinion whatever between us in the Premier's case."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, June 2.—Sir John Macdonald's illness called forth a graceful tribute in the House of Commons last night from Mr. W. H. Smith. "Sir John Macdonald," said the First Lord of the Treasury, "is a man who however his party conduct may be viewed, has earned the respect and admiration of all who know the services he has rendered to the Dominion and the empire. There can be but one feeling of deep sorrow that a life so valuable seems about to end."

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Stavely Hill and Joseph Chamberlain joined the tribute to Sir John Macdonald, whose death they all said would be an international loss. The House generally showed keen sympathy with Canada.

The Daily Chronicle devotes the first leader to Sir John Macdonald and speaks highly of his services to the Empire. It thinks that his program will suffice to keep the present Parliament at Ottawa active for some years and says that the choice of a leader lies between Sir Charles Tupper and Sir John Thompson.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A Further Debate on Sir Charles Tupper's Speech.

OTTAWA, June 2.—The House was occupied all day with the debate resumed by Cameron (Huron) on the resolution condemning Sir Charles Tupper for his action in the recent elections.

At midnight Mr. Charlton moved the adjournment of the debate.

Sir Hector Langevin having read the last bulletin from Ernscliffe said he was afraid that if the debate was continued it would be in progress when the event they feared would happen, and therefore consented to an adjournment.

Mr. Tarte said that he had been informed, and he believed correctly, that the same fraudulent transactions which were carried on at Quebec and elsewhere were also carried on in connection with the Kingston graving dock.

Off for England.

OTTAWA, June 1.—Mr. Courtney, Deputy Minister of Finance, accompanied by Mrs. Courtney, left Ottawa yesterday afternoon for Montreal en route to England. Mr. Courtney goes to London in connection with financial matters, his principal business being to arrange for the redemption of about $1,000,00 of the public debt, which falls due shortly.

THE BRITISH CARD CASE.

ANOTHER LEAF FROM THE LONDON SCANDAL.

Continuation of the Baccarat Trial—Sir William Gordon Cumming Concludes His Story—The Prince of Wales in the Witness Box—How the Game Was Played.

LONDON, June 2.—The second day of the baccarat trial commenced this morning at 11 o'clock. The rush for admittance to the court room was greater than on Monday. The Prince of Wales arrived soon after the opening of the proceedings. After Sir W. G. Cumming had finished his testimony the Prince of Wales was called and entered the witness box. He testified to his acquaintanceship with plaintiff. He himself saw nothing suspicious at Tranby Croft. Lord Coventry informed him of the cheating reports. The Prince told how he had left Tranby Croft after the developments. Before leaving witness gave his private secretary, Sir Francis Knollys, a statement in connection with the case signed by three of the men and two ladies, who had been playing in the game. Sir Francis did not know what the paper contained. Witness was not informed that two ladies whom he had not seen at the time alleged that they also had witnessed dishonest play by the plaintiff. The Prince declared that he had, out of regard to Sir William, desired to act as leniently as was possible under the circumstances.

Sir Charles Russell cross-examined the Prince with some show of airiness, addressing him as "You," instead of as "Your Royal Highness" and "Sir" as Sir Edward Clarke took care to do. But Sir Charles was manifestly tender in handling the royal witness. The general opinion was that there was a tacit agreement between the leading counsel that they were to fish for nothing from the Prince which any other witness could supply. Only once did the Prince display open impatience.

This was when Sir Charles asked, "What did Mrs. Wilson say to you about Sir William Gordon Cumming cheating?"

The Prince replied somewhat angrily: "She said very little."

There the subject was dropped, although the Prince had admitted Mrs. Wilson told him something about Sir William's cheating and Sir Charles wanted to find out what she had told.

Gen. Owen Williams was the next witness. His testimony regarding the games at Tranby Croft in the main concurred with that given by previous witnesses. On cross-examination by Sir Chas. Russell, Gen. Williams said the accusation against his friend Cumming came with a horrible shock on the second night of the baccarat playing at Tranby Croft. Witness heard the Prince of Wales tell plaintiff that he (Sir William) should keep his hands further back because the Prince could not see the stakes. Witness said he and the others present at Tranby Croft on Sept. 8, 9, and 10 last told plaintiff that signing the document agreeing never to play cards again was the only way out of the difficulty, and if he did not do so he would have to leave the house and would also be warned off every racecourse in England and elsewhere.

This last piece of testimony caused a sensation.

Sir Charles asked Gen. Williams why he continued to address plaintiff as "Dear Bill" after the baccarat disclosures. Witness explained that plaintiff was suffering from agony of mind and witness admitted that plaintiff had reproached Lord Coventry and himself for giving him what he termed "bad advice." Cumming had before asked whether witness believed the charge. Witness told him the evidence was so overwhelming that he could not doubt. Mr. Green and four others came to witness and Mr. Green told witness how Cumming was watched and was seen to increase and decreases takes after play had been declared. Witness could see no interest in the accusers making false charges. At the interview with the Prince of Wales Cumming replied: "I think I shall refer the matter to my commanding officer and the Duke of Cambridge." Nettled at the remark witness replied: "You are perfectly at liberty to refer to the Duke, but neither he nor your commanding officer will deal so leniently with you as Lord Coventry and myself."

The Game of Baccarat.

No lottery of chance was ever talked about as much as baccarat. It is fascinating to a degree beyond ordinary comprehension. Probably no game of cards so absolutely simple in its details and free from complications was ever so popular. In brief, one member of a party elects to be banker. He deals the cards to only two players from a box similar to a cigar box after they have been shuffled. The point is to get nine or eighteen spots in order to win. Two cards must be dealt to each player before the dealer serves himself. To get more than eighteen spots is fatal, and he who first counts nine or eighteen takes the money wagered. If, however, a player fails to get the desired number the banker draws a card alternately with the two players, and if nine or eighteen is not made before stopping and the banker ties the player the latter loses. The players stake their money separately. In fact, at one deal there are two games in progress and the spectators may wager their money on either, all of which must be accepted by the banker.

The great difficulty to an ordinarily prudent baccarat player is to know when to leave off, even the strongest-minded can scarcely trust their judgment in this respect, so it may be readily imagined what sort of chance any vacillating player has of being successful at the game.

There are certain matters in connection with the Tranby Croft baccarat affair that are worth considering, for although heaps of articles have been printed most of them may be put down as rubbish. Sir William is alleged to have resorted to a form of cheating known as the "pousette"—that is, adding to the stake when the banker has lost and decreasing it when he has won. Now, had the table been better conducted it would have been impossible for this to have occurred.

As every player at baccarat knows, prior to the banker making a start, he states the amount in the bank—let us put it, for example, at £50. Anyone sitting down at the table has the right to call the whole of the bank, selecting the left or the right on which to pick up the cards. If the bank is not called then the banker proceeds to deal to £25 a side, or as much of it as may be "marked" or called—the former meaning that the money is placed on the table; the latter, that the bank has accepted the bet without the money being staked, but this is quite the exception, the ready coin being invariably planked. Now, previous to the banker dealing the cards, it is the duty of two croupiers, one on the right and the other on the left, to count up the stakes deposited on either side and then make up the bank. Thus the banker knows to the smallest coin the exact amount of his liabilities. Had the game been properly played at Tranby Croft no one attempting the "pousette" would have stood an earthly chance of either increasing or decreasing his stake.

Grip Communicated After Death.

LONDON, June 1.—Sir Morell Mackenzie has made some startling statements with regard to influenza. Sir Morell believes the disease can be communicated by dead bodies. In support of this opinion he quotes a case from the American newspapers in which a gentleman of that nationality, having died with influenza in Paris, his body was embalmed and sent to Philadelphia, where it was exposed to the view of the family, all of whom were immediately attacked by the disease. Sir Morell does not doubt that the influenza was introduced into the House of Commons by the witnesses from Sheffield, where the disease was at its worst, who gave their evidence in one of the committee rooms.

INFLUENZA MAKES TROUBLE AT BAL MORAL CASTLE.

Horrible Double Murder and Suicide in Kentish Town—A Bloody Riot at Rheims—The Rioters Attempt to Rescue Two Prisoners Held by the Gendarmes.

LONDON, June 2.—Influenza of a severe form has broken out at Balmoral, the Queen's summer residence. A large number of the domestics attached to the Queen's household have been attacked by the disease, and many are confined to their beds. Her Majesty is afraid she may contract the disease, and is consequently taking the greatest precautions to avoid it.

ROME, June 2.—A riot broke out in Savona yesterday, and for a time it seemed as though it would be necessary for the authorities to call upon the military to put down the rioters. The trouble arose from an attempt of a mob to rescue two men who had fallen into the hands of the police. The rioters made a desperate attack upon the gendarmes. The gendarmes, however, detailed two of their number to guard the prisoners, and then, though greatly outnumbered by the infuriated rioters, who were pressing them on all sides, drew their swords and gallantly defended themselves. The rioters were armed with sticks, bludgeons and stones, and in the melee many of the gendarmes were seriously injured. Two rioters were killed.

LONDON, June 2.—The new title to be assumed by the Canadian peer is Lord Mount Stephen. The title is given to commemorate the great work with which he has been so honorably associated. Mount Stephen is the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and was called after the first president of the Canadian Pacific Railway by Major Rogers, the intrepid explorer and discoverer of the pass through the mountains.

Slaughtering Canadian Cattle.

LONDON, June 2.—General Canadian opinion here supports Mr. Chaplin's decision announced in the House of Commons last night to adhere to the plan of sending the lungs of suspected cattle to London instead of giving the local inspector full power to order the slaughter of a whole cargo forthwith. Canada's best safeguard against hasty judgment upon these often difficult matters is in the submission of the lungs to the highest experts in London.

KILLED HIS BROTHER.

A Wronged Husband Takes Summary Vengeance.

HALIFAX, June 2.—James Follett, aged 35, shot and killed his brother Edward on the public street at midday. The cause of the shooting was Edward's undue familiarity with his brother's wife. Before starting out to murder his brother, James locked his wife in a room, telling her he was going to settle the affair. He then left the house, taking with him a loaded gun. Meeting his brother he took deliberate aim and fired. His victim dropped dead. James then returned to the house and discovered that his wife had escaped through a window. His evident intention was to murder her, for after shooting his brother he reloaded the gun. He made no attempt to conceal himself and was arrested and placed in jail. He expressed no regret at having committed the deed. Both men have families. Judge Prowse has gone to investigate the case.

THE DEAD NOT FORGOTTEN.

The Memory of the Ridgeway Heroes Perpetuated.

TORONTO, June 3.—Twenty-five years since on the field of Ridgeway the sons of Canada met and repelled the Fenian invaders. The victory cost forty lives or more, forty heroes who, though dead these many years, still live in the memory of a people ready at all times to do them honor.

This was markedly seen by the demonstration of yesterday.

The veterans mustered in the Upper Canada College grounds to the number of 400, the Governor-General's Body Guards, the "C" School of Infantry to the number of about 100, the Queen's Own to the number of about 300, the Grenadiers to the number of about 250 and the senior corps of the public school children formed a procession and marched up University-street to the Park. There they found a large concourse of people awaiting their arrival. There they found speakers waiting to address them. There they saw the monument reared to the memory of their fallen comrades, adorned with flowers in profusion, contributed by friends and placed there by the careful hands of Mr. Chambers, the superintendent of parks and gardens.

The friends of each company applauded it as it passed, and particularly the old veterans, whose presence gave a touch of historical reality to the occasion, since they perhaps had seen some fall to whom honor was yesterday being done.

The monument in its floral robe looked beautiful indeed. The many wreaths blended into a pleasing harmony; among them Col. Gillmor's wreath, bearing the inscription: "In memory of my comrades;" a wreath from the Q. O. R., inscribed with "McEachern, No. 5;" a wreath from E Co., Q. O. R., with "Ridgeway" on it; one from the Council of Oxford bearing the name "Malcolm McKenzie," and wreath from the Body Guard, from Capt. G. Mercer Adam, from Mayor Clarke, from the City Council, from the 12th York Rangers, a heart from Wellesley school and cut flowers from Government House, Mr. Vandersmissen, Ald. Score and Mr. W. Goldie.

The speakers were: Ald. McDougall, Col. Gibson, Col. Denison, Col. Gillmor, Capt. Smith and Col. Millar.

Ald. McDougall spoke in place of Mayor Clarke, unavoidably absent, and thanked the people present for their kind interest which clearly showed that patriotism is not yet dead. Col. Gibson spoke of the patriotism that then existed and that now exists, referring to the veterans as the old buffers of '66.

Col. Denison made a short but stirring speech and condemned the wandering professors that in the last year have gone through our country depreciating the spirit of love for one's country, and concluded by saying that Canadians will be true to their country, to the past and to those who died to make her what she is.

BUFFALO, June 2.—Philip Rauch, a married man of Toronto, came to East Buffalo from Canada two years ago and a few months later married another woman. The Toronto wife was formerly Sarah Bouber and Rauch married her 10 years ago. Wife No. 2 is now prosecuting him for bigamy.

Murdered by Moonlighters.

DUBLIN, June 1.—A farmer named Crawley, living at Latterkenny, County Donegal was shot and fatally wounded last night by moonlighters. Crawley recently hired a farm from which the former tenant had been evicted for non-payment of rent and refused to give it up when requested to do so by the upholders of the Plan of Campaign.

ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Cash income for year ending 31st December, 1890	889,678 87

Surplus over all Liabilities and Capital Stock	232.175 69
Increase over 1889	75 649.05
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961.65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6 04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$64 824 07

3 PRACTICAL POINTS.

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. The Lamp of Life Flickering in the Sick Room at Ernscliffe All Day Yesterday, but When the Shades of Night Began to Fall the Premier Showed Signs of Heat Prostration, His Pulse Became Weak and Irregular and the Hopeful Feeling of the Early Morning Was Dispelled—A Graceful Tribute to Sir John in the British House of Commons.

OTTAWA, June 2.—This has been the quietest day at Ernscliffe since the crisis began. Miss MacPherson of Kingston, a distant relative, arrived this evening. Sir Leonard and Lady Tilley also came up from New Brunswick. Mr. and Mrs. Dewdney spend a great deal of their time at Ernscliffe. Mr. G. Johnson, Dominion Statistician, sat up with Sir John all night. He says the Premier passed a good night and partook of more nourishment than he had done since the attack last Friday. In a note written at 9 o'clock this morning to Senator Boyd, Mr. Pope said: "Sir John's condition is slightly improved. He passed a quiet night and had no more bad turns. He took quite a lot of nourishment for him and is now sleeping quietly. I do not want to cheer you unduly, but these are facts." At 6 a.m. the following bulletin was issued:

Sir John passed the night composedly and comfortably without any drawback. The several periods of serious depression that occurred throughout the day yesterday have not been repeated since 9 o'clock last night. As I write this bulletin he is sleeping.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.

About noon the following bulletin was issued:

ERNSCLIFFE, 11.45.—We find Sir John Macdonald resting quietly at the time of our visit, having recently partaken of light refreshment. The past night has been satisfactory, as expressed in the 6 a.m. bulletin. While we are gratified to find such an exhibition of vital strength as we see exemplified in him, yet we cannot alter our opinion as to the final result of his illness.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

Message from the Queen

His Excellency and Major Colville walked over to Earnscliffe at 11 o'clock and conversed with Mr. Pope on the Premier's condition for some time. His Excellency informed the correspondent as he came up to the gate that he this morning received a cablegram from Her Majesty in these words: "How is Sir John Macdonald to-day." Signed V. R. I. "As a matter of fact," His Excellency added, "I send a message to Her Majesty every day."

The following bulletin was issued at 5.45 p.m.: "The Premier has dosed comfortably to-day, except during the intervals of changing his posture and administering nourishment. His change of temperature since yesterday has appeared agreeable to him and he has not been exhausted by such free action of the skin which undoubtedly tends to weaken him. Signed, R. W. POWELL, M.D.

A Bad Turn

A 7 o'clock the medical attendant noticed a change in his patient, and the 10 o'clock consultation resulted in the issue of the following alarming bulletin:

ERNSCLIFFE, 11.30 p.m.—The Premier passed a quiet day without notable change till 7 o'clock, since that time he has shown signs of great prostration, evidenced by perspiration and a labored respiration numbering 30 per minute; pulse 130; weak and irregular; he took the usual nourishment at 9 p.m. (Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT.
H. P. WRIGHT.

Immediately on receipt of this the House of Commons, which was still in session, adjourned. The low respiration and the excessively high pulse were most alarming symptoms and it was generally agreed that they indicated an early end.

Dr. Wright's Summary.

Dr. Wright when seen at midnight after the final consultation for the day and the issue of the last bulletin, stated that the marvelous vital forces which have enabled the Premier to so long maintain his struggle for life are undergoing a process of slow but sure decay. He passed a far better day than yesterday, but there was no real indication of permanent improvement. His condition has from first to last confirmed the diagnosis taken on the day he was stricken with paralysis. The end may come at any time, but, unless he is subject to another of the heart depressions which were so characteristic of his condition yesterday, there is no reason to suppose that he will not last out the night. The condition of the patient at midnight was simply this: no hope.

There has been none from the beginning, and this evening the evidences of decreasing vitality are more pronounced than they have yet been.

Some of His Last Words

On Friday last Senator Sullivan went down to Ernscliffe and was admitted to see the Premier, who was then apparently recovering from the slight attack of paralysis of Wednesday and was feeling much better than on the preceding day. Sir John greeted his old friend cordially, and in the course of conversation referred to his illness, ridiculing the idea of paralysis, which the physicians had informed him was the nature of the attack. To show the Senator that there was at all events no paralysis now Sir John drew up his limbs and shot them out again, asking his visitor to note how he had full power over them. He complained of being asked to keep perfectly still and keep his eyes closed, saying: "If I have to do that it will drive me insane." This will explain to some extent the difficulty, even the impossibility, of anyone prevailing on the aged leader to remain quiet during the critical days between the election and last week. Dr. Sullivan congratulated him on feeling so much better and left him, shaking hands with him for what proved to be the last time.

Notes.

Sir Leonard Tilley and Lady Tilley arrived from St. John, N.B., to-day to see Sir John Macdonald, if possible.

The Liberals held a caucus yesterday afternoon and decided to continue what the party managers regard as an aggressive policy.

The rumor circulated in Ottawa to the effect that Sir John is insured in the Manufacturers' Life for $50,000 is entirely without foundation.

An interesting member of the sorrowing household is the Premier's little grandson "Jack," as he calls himself, who bears the most striking likeness to his grandfather, with whom he was an especial favorite. The little fellow, although but six years of age, fully realises the gloom that hangs over the household, and tells callers who question him that "grandpa is very ill."

The tracks which are stationed in front of Ernscliffe day and night ready to respond to a moment's call are in charge of the faithful Buckley, who has been Sir John's cabman for many years. Buckley is quite a personage in Ottawa, and became generally known throughout the country at the time of the murder of Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, when baseless rumors were started. Buckley is a general favorite of the master of Ernscliffe, and having known him intimately for over a quarter of a century has all along placed great confidence in his ultimate recovery.

New Brunswick papers favor Sir John Thompson for the premiership, while the Nova Scotians are largely for Sir Charles Tupper, also Sir John Thompson's name is mentioned prominently.

Reconstructing the Cabinet.

[Associated Press Report.]

OTTAWA, June 2.—A prominent French-Canadian politician, who is considered an authority, says the Cabinet will be reorganized by Sir John Thompson, with the following important changes: Premier and Minister of Justice, Sir John Thompson. Minister of Railways, Hon. J. A. Chapleau Minister of Public Works, G. A. Kirkpatrick. President of the Council, W. B. Ives. Leader of the Senate, Lieut.-Gov. Angers. The politician said: "The other portfolios will remain the same, except that some French-Canadian member will succeed Chapleau as Secretary of State, and that Hon. Mr. Carling will probably retire from the Cabinet to make room for Mr. Meredith. Sir Hector will be made Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec. Sir Charles Tupper will stay where he is.

What the Physicians Say.

Sir James Grant was seen this afternoon and asked: "Is the rumor true that Dr Powell is not entirely at one with his colleagues in consultation and entertains a more hopeful view of Sir John's condition than do yourself and Dr. Wright?"

"There is no difference of opinion whatever between us in the Premier's case."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, June 2.—Sir John Macdonald's illness called forth a graceful tribute in the House of Commons last night from Mr. W. H. Smith. "Sir John Macdonald," said the First Lord of the Treasury, "is a man who however his party conduct may be viewed, has earned the respect and admiration of all who know the services he has rendered to the Dominion and the empire. There can be but one feeling of deep sorrow that a life so valuable seems about to end."

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Stavely Hill and Joseph Chamberlain joined the tribute to Sir John Macdonald, whose death they all said would be an international loss. The House generally showed keen sympathy with Canada.

The Daily Chronicle devotes the first leader to Sir John Macdonald and speaks highly of his services to the Empire. It thinks that his program will suffice to keep the present Parliament at Ottawa active for some years and says that the choice of a leader lies between Sir Charles Tupper and Sir John Thompson.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A Further Debate on Sir Charles Tupper's Speech.

OTTAWA, June 2.—The House was occupied all day with the debate resumed by Cameron (Huron) on the resolution condemning Sir Charles Tupper for his action in the recent elections.

At midnight Mr. Charlton moved the adjournment of the debate.

Sir Hector Langevin having read the last bulletin from Ernscliffe said he was afraid that if the debate was continued it would be in progress when the event they feared would happen, and therefore consented to an adjournment.

Mr. Tarte said that he had been informed, and he believed correctly, that the same fraudulent transactions which were carried on at Quebec and elsewhere were also carried on in connection with the Kingston graving dock.

Off for England

OTTAWA, June 1.—Mr. Courtney, Deputy Minister of Finance, accompanied by Mrs. Courtney, left Ottawa yesterday afternoon for Montreal en route to England. Mr. Courtney goes to London in connection with financial matters, his principal business being to arrange for the redemption of about $1,000,00 of the public debt, which falls due shortly.

THE BRITISH CARD CASE.

ANOTHER LEAF FROM THE LONDON SCANDAL.

Continuation of the Baccarat Trial—Sir William Gordon Cumming Concludes His Story—The Prince of Wales in the Witness Box—How the Game Was Played.

LONDON, June 2.—The second day of the baccarat trial commenced this morning at 11 o'clock. The rush for admittance to the court room was greater than on Monday. The Prince of Wales arrived soon after the opening of the proceedings. After Sir W. G. Cumming had finished his testimony the Prince of Wales was called and entered the witness box. He testified to his acquaintanceship with plaintiff. He himself saw nothing suspicious at Tranby Croft. Lord Coventry informed him of the cheating reports. The Prince told how he had left Tranby Croft after the developments. Before leaving witness gave his private secretary, Sir Francis Knollys, a statement in connection with the case signed by three of the men and two ladies, who had been playing in the game. Sir Francis did not know what the paper contained. Witness was not informed that two ladies whom he had not seen at the time alleged that they also had witnessed dishonest play by the plaintiff. The Prince declared that he had, out of regard to Sir William, desired to act as leniently as was possible under the circumstances.

Sir Charles Russell cross-examined the Prince with some show of airiness, addressing him as "You," instead of as "Your Royal Highness" and "Sir" as Sir Edward Clarke took care to do. But Sir Charles was manifestly tender in handling the royal witness. The general opinion was that there was a tacit agreement between the leading counsel that they were to fish for nothing from the Prince which any other witness could supply. Only once did the Prince display open impatience.

This was when Sir Charles asked, "What did Mrs. Wilson say to you about Sir William Gordon Cumming cheating?"

The Prince replied somewhat angrily: "She said very little."

There the subject was dropped, although the Prince had admitted Mrs. Wilson told him something about Sir William's cheating and Sir Charles wanted to find out what she had told.

Gen. Owen Williams was the next witness. His testimony regarding the games at Tranby Croft in the main concurred with that given by previous witnesses. On cross-examination by Sir Chas. Russell, Gen. Williams said the accusation against his friend Cumming came with a horrible shock on the second night of the baccarat playing at Tranby Croft. Witness heard the Prince of Wales tell plaintiff that he (Sir William) should keep his hands further back because the Prince could not see the stakes. Witness said he and the others present at Tranby Croft on Sept. 8, 9, and 10 last told plaintiff that signing the document agreeing never to play cards again was the only way out of the difficulty, and if he did not do so he would have to leave the house and would also be warned off every racecourse in England and elsewhere.

This last piece of testimony caused a sensation.

Sir Charles asked Gen. Williams why he continued to address plaintiff as "Dear Bill" after the baccarat disclosures. Witness explained that plaintiff was suffering from agony of mind and witness admitted that plaintiff had reproached Lord Coventry and himself for giving him what he termed "bad advice." Cumming had before asked whether witness believed the charge. Witness told him the evidence was so overwhelming that he could not doubt. Mr. Green and four others came to witness and Mr. Green told witness how Cumming was watched and was seen to increase and decreases takes after play had been declared. Witness could see no interest in the accusers making false charges. At the interview with the Prince of Wales Cumming replied: "I think I shall refer the matter to my commanding officer and the Duke of Cambridge." Nettled at the remark witness replied: "You are perfectly at liberty to refer to the Duke, but neither he nor your commanding officer will deal so leniently with you as Lord Coventry and myself."

The Game of Baccarat.

No lottery of chance was ever talked about as much as baccarat. It is fascinating to a degree beyond ordinary comprehension. Probably no game of cards so absolutely simple in its details and free from complications was ever so popular. In brief, one member of a party elects to be banker. He deals the cards to only two players from a box similar to a cigar box after they have been shuffled. The point is to get nine or eighteen spots in order to win. Two cards must be dealt to each player before the dealer serves himself. To get more than eighteen spots is fatal, and he who first counts nine or eighteen takes the money wagered. If, however, a player fails to get the desired number the banker draws a card alternately with the two players, and if nine or eighteen is not made before stopping and the banker ties the player the latter loses. The players stake their money separately. In fact, at one deal there are two games in progress and the spectators may wager their money on either, all of which must be accepted by the banker.

The great difficulty to an ordinarily prudent baccarat player is to know when to leave off, even the strongest-minded can scarcely trust their judgment in this respect, so it may be readily imagined what sort of chances any vacillating player has of being successful at the game.

There are certain matters in connection with the Tranby Croft baccarat affair that are worth considering, for although heaps of articles have been printed most of them may be put down as rubbish. Sir William is alleged to have resorted to a form of cheating known as the "spousette"—that is, adding to the stake when the banker has lost and decreasing it when he has won. Now, had the table been better conducted it would have been impossible for this to have occurred.

As every player at baccarat knows, prior to the banker making a start, he states the amount in the bank—let us put it, for example, at £50. Anyone sitting down at the table has the right to call the whole of the bank, selecting the left or the right on which to pick up the cards. If the bank is not called then the banker proceeds to deal to £25 a side, or as much of it as may be "marked" or called—the former meaning that the money is placed on the table; the latter, that the bank has accepted the bet without the money being staked, but this is quite the exception, the ready coin being invariably planked. Now, previous to the banker dealing the cards, it is the duty of two croupiers, one on the right and the other on the left, to count up the stakes deposited on either side and then make up the bank. Thus the banker knows, to the smallest coin the exact amount of his liabilities. Had the game been properly played at Tranby Croft no one attempting the "spousette" would have stood an earthly chance of either increasing or decreasing his stake.

Grip Communicated After Death.

LONDON, June 1.—Sir Morell Mackenzie has made some startling statements with regard to influenza. Sir Morell believes the disease can be communicated by dead bodies. In support of this opinion he quotes a case from the American newspapers in which a gentleman of that nationality, having died with influenza in Paris, his body was embalmed and sent to Philadelphia, where it was exposed to the view of the family, all of whom were immediately attacked by the disease. Sir Morell does not doubt that the influenza was introduced into the House of Commons by the witnesses from Sheffield, where the disease was at its worst, who gave their evidence in one of the committee rooms.

INFLUENZA MAKES TROUBLE AT BAL MORAL CASTLE.

Horrible Double Murder and Suicide in Scotish Town—A Bloody Riot at Buenos—The Rioters Attempt to Rescue Two Prisoners Held by the Gendarmes.

LONDON, June 2.—Influenza of a severe form has broken out at Balmoral, the Queen's summer residence. A large number of the domestics attached to the Queen's household have been attacked by the disease, and many are confined to their beds. Her Majesty is afraid she may contract the disease, and is consequently taking the greatest precautions to avoid it.

ROME, June 2.—A riot broke out in Savona yesterday, and for a time it seemed as though it would be necessary for the authorities to call upon the military to put down the rioters. The trouble arose from an attempt of a mob to rescue two men who had fallen into the hands of the police. The rioters made a desperate attack upon the gendarmes. The gendarmes, however, detailed two of their number to guard the prisoners, and then, though greatly outnumbered by the infuriated rioters, who were pressing them on all sides, drew their swords and gallantly defended themselves. The rioters were armed with sticks, bludgeons and stones, and in the melee many of the gendarmes were seriously injured. Two rioters were killed.

LONDON, June 2.—The new title to be assumed by the Canadian peer is Lord Mount Stephen. The title is given to commemorate the great work with which he has been so honorably associated. Mount Stephen is the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and was called after the first president of the Canadian Pacific Railway by Major Rogers, the intrepid explorer and discoverer of the pass through the mountains.

Slaughtering Canadian Cattle.

LONDON, June 2.—General Canadian opinion here supports Mr. Chaplin's decision announced in the House of Commons last night to adhere to the plan of sending the lungs of suspected cattle to London instead of giving the local inspector full power to order the slaughter of a whole cargo forthwith. Canada's best safeguard against hasty judgment upon these often difficult matters is in the submission of the lungs to the highest experts in London.

KILLED HIS BROTHER.

A Wronged Husband Takes Summary Vengeance.

HALIFAX, June 2.—James Follett, aged 35, shot and killed his brother Edward on the public street at midday. The cause of the shooting was Edward's undue familiarity with his brother's wife. Before starting out to murder his brother, James locked his wife in a room, telling her he was going to settle the affair. He then left the house, taking with him a loaded gun. Meeting his brother he took deliberate aim and fired. His victim dropped dead. James then returned to the house and discovered that his wife had escaped through a window. His evident intention was to murder her, for after shooting his brother he reloaded the gun. He made no attempt to conceal himself and was arrested and placed in jail. He expressed no regret at having committed the deed. Both men have families. Judge Prowse has gone to investigate the case.

THE DEAD NOT FORGOTTEN.

The Memory of the Ridgeway Heroes Perpetuated.

TORONTO, June 3.—Twenty-five years since on the field of Ridgeway the sons of Canada met and repelled the Fenian invaders. The victory cost forty lives or more, forty heroes who, though dead these many years, still live in the memory of a people ready at all times to do them honor.

This was markedly seen by the demonstration of yesterday.

The veterans mustered in the Upper Canada College grounds to the number of 400, the Governor-General's Body Guards, the "C" School of Infantry to the number of about 100, the Queen's Own to the number of about 300, the Grenadiers to the number of about 250 and the senior corps of the public school children formed a procession and marched up University-street to the Park. There they found a large concourse of people awaiting their arrival. There they found speakers waiting to address them. There they saw the monument reared to the memory of their fallen comrades, adorned with flowers in profusion, contributed by friends and placed there by the careful hands of Mr. Chambers, the superintendent of parks and gardens.

The friends of each company applauded it as it passed, and particularly the old veterans, whose presence gave a touch of historical reality to the occasion, since they perhaps had seen some fall to whom honor was yesterday being done.

The monument in its floral robe looked beautiful indeed. The many wreaths blended into a pleasing harmony; among them Col. Gillmor's wreath, bearing the inscription: "In memory of my comrades;" a wreath from the Q. O. R., inscribed with "McEachern, No. 5;" a wreath from E Co., Q. O. R., with "Ridgeway" on it; one from the Council of Oxford bearing the name "Malcolm McKenzie," and wreath from the Body Guard, from Capt. G. Mercer Adam, from Mayor Clarke, from the City Council, from the 12th York Rangers, a heart from Wellesley school and cut flowers from Government House, Mr. Vandersmissen, Ald. Score and Mr. W. Goldie.

The speakers were: Ald. McDougall, Col. Gibson, Col. Denison, Col. Gillmor, Capt. Smith and Col. Millar.

Ald. McDougall spoke in place of Mayor Clarke, unavoidably absent, and thanked the people present for their kind interest which clearly showed that patriotism is not yet dead. Col. Gibson spoke of the patriotism that then existed and that now exists, referring to the veterans as the old buffers of '66.

Col. Denison made a short but stirring speech and condemned the wandering professors that in the last year have gone through our country depreciating the spirit of love for one's country, and concluded by saying that Canadians will be true to their country, to the past and to those who died to make her what she is.

SUN LIFE
ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Life Assurances in force, 1st January, 1891	$16,759,355 92
Increase over previous year	3,421,372 84
New Applications received in 1890	6 371,599 15
Increase over 1889	2 268,888.60
Cash income for year ending 31st December, 1890	889,678 87

Surplus over all Liabilities and Capital Stock	232,175 69
Increase over 1889	75 649.05
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961.65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6 04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS so accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)		$64 824 07

3 PRACTICAL POINTS.

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

B B B

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. During the past ten years over one million bottles have been sold in Canada, and, although we guarantee every bottle to do all we claim, we have not received a single complaint.

ST. ANDREW'S NEW PASTOR

Rev. A. McWilliams Inducted Into His Charge.

An Interesting Occasion in the Auld Kirk—The Principles of the Church Enumerated—And the Duties of Pastor and People Plainly Indicated—The New Pastor Warmly Received.

Rev. Andrew McWilliams was formally inducted into the pastorate of St. Andrew's church Tuesday afternoon, in the presence of a large number of the congregation. The ceremony was conducted by the Presbytery with all due solemnity, and at the close of the proceedings the new pastor stood at the door of the church and was introduced to the people as they passed out by Rev. Mr. Torrance. The hearty hand shaking and pleasant words all around augured well for the reception and ultimate popularity of Rev. Mr. McWilliams with his flock. The new pastor is a young man of strong, athletic build, and open, pleasing countenance and winning manner. Already he has won the good opinion of all who have met him, and on the several occasions he has occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's he has shown marked ability as a preacher. It is evident that a new era of prosperity is about to dawn upon St. Andrew's. With a handsome church free of debt, a growing congregation, and a minister whose place in the hearts of the people ought to be assured by the warmth of the invitation they extended to him, there is every prospect that the Auld Kirk will become one of the leading churches of the town in every respect.

The members of the Presbytery gathered in the Vestry of St. Andrew's at two o'clock. There were present, the Moderator, Rev. Wm. McEwan, of Lakefield; Rev. Messrs. Andrews, of Keene; Hay, of Cobourg; Scott, of Campbellford; Anderson, of Bobcaygeon; Carmichael, of Norwood; Hyde, of Warsaw; Bennett, of Springville; and White and Torrance, of Peterborough, ministers; and Mr. W. M. Graham, Lakefield, elder.

The Presbytery adjourned to the body of the church, where the induction proceedings were to take place. There was a large congregation present, and the choir was on hand to assist in the singing. The pulpit was decorated with flowers and plants.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE.

After the singing of a hymn and prayer, Rev. Mr. Anderson delivered an earnest gospel address from Romans, viii, the 31st and several following verses—those well known passages containing the very essence of Christian hope. The speaker dwelt upon the comfort and consolation there was in these passages for the child of God, who in his calling, his justification, his adoption and sanctification could look away back into the depths of God's eternal love. This passage tells him that it is to God he is indebted for this life and for all he ever shall be. But while this is true, the doctrine of election is a doctrine with which the sinner has no connection whatever. In his hands it is as dangerous as a sharp instrument in the hands of an inexperienced child. It is for the child of God alone. But who has told the sinner he is not among God's chosen people? Not God; not Christ, not the spirit, not the Bible. God says to the sinner: "Let the wicked man forsake his ways and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return again to the Lord and he will have mercy on him." Jesus Christ has his message for the sinner too. Let the sinner follow these commands, and he will find that he is among the number of God's chosen people, that his name is written in the Book of Life and he will find the blessings of the gospel are for him. But it is to the righteous only that Paul is speaking in this whole chapter. Ought they not therefore to be the happiest of mortals, and to feel thankful for all the blessings God has bestowed in the gospel, without money and without price? In conclusion the preacher then drew a number of irresistible inferences from the first portion of this chapter, embodied in a number of questions, indicating the Christian's safety, and that nothing can be withheld from him, and his assurance of salvation.

THE PRINCIPLES OF THE CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. McEwan then called upon Rev. Mr. Adrews to give a statement of the principles governing the church.

The church, said Rev. Mr. Andrews, is a society designed to glorify God and save the children of men. The question is, therefore, is this church governed according to the principles laid down in the Bible. Some men say there is no necessity for church government and there is no form laid down in the Bible. But it stands to reason that all great societies of men must be governed to rules, and God would not launch His great church without setting down a system of government for it. The speaker then dealt with the claims of other denominations that theirs was the true system—the Roman Catholic, Episcopalian and Congregational. We admire the Presbyterian church, he said, for what it claims as well as for what it does not claim. Among other things the parity of its ministry, the government by elders and presbyters, and the claim that its system of ruling by elders and deacons is in accord with the system laid down by Paul. The church does not claim a right to make any laws it likes, nor to establish any certain rights. We admire its system, he said, because it has always held to the Calvanistic doctrines of truth, or in other words the gospel of Christ. It grants liberty to the people and the ministry. It conserves to order. We admire it for its gradation of courts, for its being the patron and friend of education, and for its always standing up for liberty and truth. This being the case, he said, we ought to be proud of being Presbyterians. There is a Presbyterian to be placed over you, to succeed one who was a Presbyterian at heart and a good preacher. God has said to him, "Thou must turn aside." The rod of God is upon him. He has been taken aside, but may he be spared to take his place in the Presbyterian ranks, to glorify his Master. But now another has been sent to take his place. He comes at your invitation, and see you that you esteem him very high for his works, that you worry him not, that you live in peace for many years and strive to be one in all things. May God send His blessing upon you all, pastor and people.

THE INDUCTION.

After another hymn had been sung, Rev. Mr. McEwen took the pulpit, and after narrating the various steps which had led up to the present proceedings, called Rev. Mr. McWilliams forward, who answered in the affirmative a number of questions concerning his belief in the doctrines of the church and obedience to its rules. The members of the Presbytery then grouped themselves about the young minister, while Rev. Mr. McEwan uttered a prayer. Then he said: "In the name and by the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the authority of the Presbytery of Peterborough, I now extend to you the right hand of fellowship, and induct you into the charge of this congregation, praying that God may keep you and guide you, and cheer you in your work." He gave the new pastor a hearty grasp of the hand on concluding these words, and all the other ministers did likewise.

TO THE PASTOR.

Another hymn was then sung, after which Rev. Mr. Scott addressed the minister upon the duties and responsibilities of his position and urging him to be faithful and diligent in their discharge.

TO THE CONGREGATION.

Rev. Mr. Hay, of Cobourg, then addressed the congregation. He pointed out the necessity of the congregation supporting their minister in material as well as spiritual things. He dwelt particularly upon the importance of small things, such as regular and punctual attendance at church, taking a part in the service, to come in a spiritual frame of mind, not so much to listen to the preacher as to worship; to meet the rest of the congregation as brothers and sisters in Christ, for God was no respecter of persons; to remember to pray for their pastor; to be careful about dropping unkind or critical remarks about the service or the minister, particularly in the presence of children. In these and other small matters the minister might be given moral support. He urged the congregation to maintain in themselves a standard of christian life and to be sincere with their pastor; never to flatter but always to encourage whenever possible; not to tell the minister all the weaknesses of their neighbors, but let him find them out for himself. Remember that the minister's mission is not first and foremost to fill the pews, though great that may be the result, but to save souls for Christ—and blessed is the congregation which realizes that is the aim of the ministry. Lastly, he said, cooperate with him in every good work which aids congregational effort; stand by him, and may you be abundantly blessed.

PASTOR AND PEOPLE.

The proceedings were brought to a close by Rev. Mr. McEwan speaking a benediction.

Rev. Mr. McWilliams, with Rev. Mr. Torrance at his side to make the people known, then stationed himself at one of the doors of the church, and as the congregation passed slowly out he made the acquaintance of most of those present.

A very pleasant social congregational reunion was held in the evening to permit the new minister to become personally known to members of his congregation, and to meet his fellow ministers, many of whom were present. Refreshments were served, and the manner in which the ladies attended to this matter was worthy of all praise. The spread was really sumptuous and bettered all the former creditable efforts of the ladies. There was also music by the choir and five minute addresses by the members of the Presbytery and others, and altogether a most delightful evening was spent, the success of it being a very promising augury of the success of the Rev. Mr. McWilliams' pastorate in his new field. Great days of prosperity for St. Andrews' seem to be in store, which the EXAMINER fervently hopes may be fully realized.

MANY A LIFE

HAS been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Pills. Travelers by land or sea are liable to constipation or other derangements of the stomach and bowels which, if neglected, lead to serious and often fatal consequences. The most sure means of correcting these evils is the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. The prudent sailing-master would as soon go to sea without his chronometer as without a supply of these Pills. Though prompt and energetic in operation, Ayer's Pills leave no ill effects; they are purely vegetable and sugar-coated; the safest medicine for old and young, at home or abroad.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action so that now I am in health."—Mrs. C. E. Clark, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

"I regard Ayer's Pills as one of the most reliable general remedies of our times. They have been in use in my family for affections requiring a purgative, and have given unvarying satisfaction. We have found them an excellent remedy for colds and light fevers."—W. R. Woodson, Fort Worth, Texas.

"For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than upon anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."—Capt. Mueller, Steamship Felicia, New York City.

"I have found Ayer's Cathartic Pills to be a better family medicine for common use than any other pills within my knowledge. They are not only very effective, but safe and pleasant to take—qualities which must make them valued by the public."—Jules Hauel, Perfumer, Philadelphia, Pa.

GRACEFUL ORATORY.

Lord Dufferin Admires the Italian Method of Speaking.

There is no doubt that a graceful, commanding, and dignified attitude in the orator greatly enhances the effect of fervid eloquence, and in this respect I am afraid it is rather on the Continental than in the House of Commons that your best models will be found. According to our ideas, foreigners gesticulate a great deal too much; but I have been much struck when attending the debates in the Italian Parliament by the unstudied and easy manner in which its members enforce their meaning by graceful and spontaneous gestures. They neither put their hands beneath their coat tails, nor do they scratch the tops of their heads, nor do they toss about their pocket handkerchiefs, or wave one arm up and down like a pump handle, nor bend their bodies in two at every word.

So far from this being the case, it is quite a pleasure to watch them, even when you are not able either to hear or perhaps to comprehend what they are saying, and consequently you must not be surprised if I am disposed to insist on the advisability of paying some attention to the movement of your hands and body when you speak. What may be the best method to follow is another question. I remember getting a very useful hint from Wigan, the actor, when we were both attending a charity dinner in the city.

He had observed that when making my speech I kept turning my palms to the audience, as is a very common habit with many people, and he told me that on the stage they were specially warned against this practice, as it conveyed the notion of weakness; whereas if the back of the hand were displayed the very opposite effect would be produced. However, I am inclined to refer you on this delicate subject to your womankind. It is wonderful what an eye one's sister and cousins have for any awkwardness of manner or ungainly tricks and contortions; nor probably will you find them behindhand, especially your daughters, when you have them, in proffering their criticisms on the subject.—Pall Mall Budget.

Wonders in Miniature.

At a shop in London in 1745, says the St. Louis Republic, was exhibited a common Barcelona nut-shell holding a tea table, tea board, a dozen cups and saucers, with sugar dish, bottle, funnel, fifteen drinking glasses, five punch bowls, ten rummels, a pestle and mortar and two sets of ninepins—all of polished ivory, exquisitely fashioned and, according to the account of the time, "all to be plainly seen without the aid of optic glasses." This wonder was the work of a poor artist who had hit upon this plan to make a living. His little exhibition was soon outdone by Haverick, the watchmaker. For one shilling this last-named genius would show visitors the half of a common cherry stone, from which he would take a quadrille table, twelve chairs with skeleton backs, a looking-glass neatly framed, two dozen plates, six saucers, twelve spoons, a dozen knives and forks, two salt cups, and a lady and gentleman whom he seated at the table. This same Haverick also made an ivory camel that could be passed through the eye of a common needle; six pairs of steel scissors that could all be hidden under the wing of a common house fly, and a gold chain of 300 links, to which a miniature padlock and key were attached, all of which were of such minute dimensions as to be easily pulled across a pane of glass by a flea. Later on, he produced a small ivory coach to which he harnessed a flea, coach and steel weighing exactly as much as a barley grain; and a crane-necked carriage, with wheels turning properly on their axles, carrying four passengers, two footmen, a coachman sitting on the box with a dog between his legs, driving six ivory horses, one of the leaders bearing a postilion, the whole affair so light that this same pet flea could set it in motion, but was not equal to the task of dragging it across the show-case.

Why the Bookkeeper Stole.

He had a wife,
His salary was $2,500 per annum.
But she complained
She wanted a better house.
Better clothes.
Nothing fit to go out in.
No country cottage.
Nor carriage.
Nor front pews.
Nor society.
She coveted a place on the ragged edge of the select five hundred.
She kept it up
Night and day.
And moaned and Growled and Wept.
He lacked style, also.
As well as new clothes every six weeks and various other things.
He knew how his employer made scores hundred daily on the street.
A thousand or so would not be missed for a few hours.
So he took it, and went up the street, and won
She got her seal-skin.
He took more and lost.
More to get that back and lost.
More yet.
Defalcation discovered,
He wears the penitentiary check.
Others are going too.
Beware.
Better is a modest room up two pairs of back stairs than a cell in jail.
And a plain woolen jacket rather than a pair of prison uniform pants on poor Charlie's legs.

Decay of the Spanish Don.

In a general discussion of the times in California Mr. Buck alluded to the shiftlessness of the Spanish population. "It is interesting to note the progress in a retrograde direction of a Spanish grandee who became possessed of lands and cattle," he continued. "For instance, when I came to Salina County the great don who owned

A Long Life and a Merry One.

It is not merely length of life that is meant when the question of prolonging life is discussed. It is not merely length of days that is commonly, or that should be, aimed at when one uses means to prevent disease, early decay and premature death. Hygienic measures are recommended and practiced largely, if not chiefly, with the view of making the latter days;—the "old age," free from disease and suffering, and happy and useful, instead of, as is too often the case, even at sixty odd, decrepit and miserable, childish and troublesome to relatives and friends.

So many appear to have strangely erroneous views relative to the objects of public and individual hygienic efforts that it seems desirable to endeavor to set them right. We often hear persons say, "Give me a short life and a merry one;" or, "I do not want to live to be old and a trouble to my friends." It is quite possible, indeed natural enough and not difficult, to live a "long life and a merry one," (which surely is better than a short merry period), and on to the end of a hundred years, and not be any trouble to friends, but on the other hand, a comfort and help to the young and less experienced in life.

We need not think back to Parr or Cornaro, or to the hermit, St. Paul, or Cardinal De Falis, who lived long ago and were happy and useful long after the age of one hundred years; nor of Masionier, Montifloere, Chavrnel, Komuth, Newman, Whittier and Bancroft, recently dead; but of Tennyson, Gladstone, Von Moltke, De-Lesseps, Pope Leo, Dr. O. W. Holmes, Marshal McMahon, and, near home, of Father Dawson, and, last but by no means least, of Sir John A. Macdonald. True, the last named is not yet a very old man, but hundreds of deaths are every year in Ontario recorded as from "old age" of persons less than seventy years old. A man should be ashamed to have lived such a life as to die of old age before reaching at least his eightieth year, except it were under peculiar circumstances of heredity or environment. Or think, on the other hand, of the late Secretary Windom or Gen'ls. Sherman and Grant, or of some members of the late Canadian parliament, who sadly dropped out of the race just when they had become most useful to their fellow men.

If life is worth living at all, surely it is worth more after we have lived through seventy years of usefulness and experience, and have children with their children and grand children around us, and perhaps have them too acquired the means of living an easy life for a quarter of a century, doing good to others, and ending it with a happy euthanasia.

If a man of sixty years or over, perhaps with unsound heart or cerebral arteries, will indulge at a banquet and then make a long speech, or seek exciting pleasures or business as he might safely do at thirty or forty, he is about as unwise as the man who strikes a match in a powder magazine, and it need not surprise any one if he suddenly go over into eternity. Or, who even while young

"Riots with pleasure by night and by day
Must expect that, in time, there'll be something to pay."

But if with a very indiscreet life one chances to live to be forty or fifty or even more, one may even then by great care prolong life to one hundred years, but it will require much greater care than if one had begun at a much earlier period.—Canada Health Journal.

A Hundred Years to Come.

Wouldn't you like to live until the year A.D. 2000, just to see the people and the world generally? Who knows but you might, if you observe the laws of health, and keep the stomach, liver and bowels in full action. The best medicine known for this is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are small, sugar-coated granules, but powerful to cure; produce no nausea or griping; easy to take and a sure cure for biliousness, constipation, headache, and diseases produced by an inactive liver. A convenient vest-pocket remedy. o

A Spring Medicine.

There are few who do not at this season feel the need of a spring medicine, and to all such we recommend Lane's Family Medicine as the best. This is a pleasant herb drink made by pouring boiling water on the dried roots and herbs. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1. It is the best as well as the pleasantest cure for constipation and headache. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

From the Pacific Coast.

We quote from a letter recently received form Miss Eleanor Pope, Port Haney, B. C: "For sore throat, coughs, croup, bruises, &c., Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the best thing I have ever used." dw

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS.—My mother was attacked with a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS KENNEDY, Hamilton, Ont. 2w20d

Directly and Indirectly.

Kidney complaint, dropsy and similar troubles depend directly on wrong action of the kidneys and indirectly on bad blood. Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the action of the kidneys and cleanses the blood from all impurities, in this way curing kidney complaint, dropsy, etc. 2w20d

A Common Origin.

All skin diseases of whatever name or nature are caused by impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters is a natural foe to impure blood, removing all foul humors, from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore. 2w20d

HEAD OFFICE—168 Yonge St., Toronto

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliances. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Obituary.

The Late Charles J. Ridley.

The EXAMINER records with deep regret the death of Mr. Charles Ridley, who passed away at his residence, 505 Aylmer street, this morning at eleven o'clock. Mr. Ridley has been suffering from his last illness for some months, and up to the time of it, and about ten years previously, he was a valued and honoured employee of the EXAMINER printing establishment, in which he filled the position of foreman of the job department. In this capacity he was a model employee, filling the duties of the post with a skill, fidelity and trustworthiness which could not be excelled; in fact his assiduous application to his duties, precluding a proper amount of out-door exercise, to some extent impaired his health. He was quiet in demeanour of exemplary steadiness of habits, but, to the few who enjoyed intimacy with him, his sterling qualities of character greatly endeared him. In every relation of life he was an honoured and exemplary citizen and though he filled the duties of his station with the least of ostentation he leaves behind him a record that might be envied by many who occupy more prominent positions. He was a native of Peterborough, and a son of the late Robert Ridley, one of the leading pioneer merchants of Peterborough. He leaves behind him a wife and six children. He was a member of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters, under whose auspices the funeral takes place on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

University Education.

Trinity's Position Fourtrayed by Trinity's Provost—Distinctive Principles and Distinctive Privileges.

Last night a number of gentlemen assembled at the rectory of St. John's Church to meet the Provost of Trinity and the Rev. E. C. Cayley, who had come for the purpose of giving information about the university, its principles, and its progress. The meeting was of an informal character, the different features of the university being freely discussed. Among those present were Judge Weller, Col. H. C. Rogers, Messrs. Fessenden, Poussette, H. Rash, G. A. Smith, W. D. Parker, and a large detachment of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, who came in a body from their meeting.

After some conversation, the Provost addressed the meeting. The founder of Trinity University, he said, had organized it on the basis of three great distinctive principles. (1) The application to the peculiar needs of this country of the great system of education fashioned by centuries, and found in its highest form at Oxford and Cambridge; (2) the harmonious development, side by side, of man's religious, mental and physical faculties; (3) the regulated intercourse between students in a common home life, which was secured by residence in the college.

England's great men were the practical proof of the efficiency of this educational system. Clergy and laity there mingled freely in collegiate life, to the great advantage of each, and so Lord Salisbury and Mr. Gladstone had grown up in close intercourse with the greatest divines of the day, mutually influencing one another.

It was the aim of Trinity to make their men thorough to the backbone in every particular, loyal to the church, sound to the faith of Jesus Christ, and efficient and practical in their work.

The Provost then proceeded to sketch the rapid advances made during the last few years. In 1882 he had appealed for $100,000 to extend the staff of the University, and broaden the Curriculum. This money had all been raised, and was being expended with the best results. Through it Trinity had been able to inaugurate Fellowships, being the first University in Canada to do so, and its example was quickly followed. These enabled their best men to take a post-graduate course, and to give valuable assistance in teaching. The increase of the staff had resulted in a corresponding increase of students, which culminated last year, when the number of students was doubled, and the college was forced to secure more accommodation. This led to the erection of the larger building just opened. This was undoubtedly one of the finest buildings in Canada for collegiate purposes, equipped with every modern improvement. Encouraged by their success, the authorities were now contemplating further improvements. English societies had been appealed to and had promised grants conditionally on more money being supplied. Another $100,000 had therefore been asked for and of this sum $36,000 was now in hand.

The Provost said he had not come to Peterborough expecting financial assistance, for he had learned with pleasure of the great exertions which church people were making to reduce the debt on St. John's. They deserved the gratitude of the church throughout the diocese for the effort made with such striking success last Easter. In a young and advancing country like this, there was no greater need than to wipe off old encumbrances, and so be able, unhampered, to face new situations. He wished merely to place the cause and principle of the university before her friends in Peterborough, looking to them to help the College how and when they could. Trinity's cause had been and would be advanced by volunteers, and he believed one volunteer was worth 100 pressed men, even when the pressure came from the government of the country.

After the Provost had answered some questions addresses were delivered by Rev. E. C Cayley, Col. Rogers, H. T. Poussette and Cortes Fessenden the two latter being graduates of Trinity.

All were most enthusiastic in dwelling on the opportunities offered by the University and the success of the projects hitherto undertaken by the vigorous and onto prising authorities led by the Provost.

THE DEATH OF A MAN

Under Painfully Sad and Sudden Circumstances

Leads to a Coroner's Inquest—The Death of Mr. E. J. R. Hopkins Being Investigated—A Life that Flickered out in an Instant—A Sudden Death that Deepens a Popular Mystery—A Post-Mortem Examination Held.

The sad, solemn story of a man cut down in the prime of life without a moments' warning, his death so sudden and sure that those about him could not at first bring themselves to believe life had really departed, was detailed with gruesome minuteness before the Coroner and a jury of citizens in the police court room last night amidst profound silence and anxious expectancy on the part of all present. The circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. Edwin J. R. Hopkins, which were published in the EXAMINER yesterday, have given rise to numerous vague rumours, and public interest has been aroused to an unusual degree. This interest all the more keen on account of a certain air of mystery enveloping the deceased. He and his pretty young wife came to Peterborough nearly two years ago. They were apparently of independent means, and had travelled extensively all over the world. That a couple in these circumstances should locate in Peterborough, a small provincial town, amongst strangers, was inexplicable, and ever since there has been considerable talk about the Englishman, his manner of living and his identity. His tall spare figure, usually clad in old country garb, was familiar on our streets, though neither he nor his wife made many friends or went out into society. Their life of seclusion further enhanced the mystery that was conjured up in the imaginative public mind, which, in a democracy like ours, does not understand or appreciate the unostentatious ways characteristic of English domestic life. They lived in a small brick house at 57 Chamberlain street, quite out of keeping with their apparent wealth. It was known that Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins lived "high," to use common vernacular, and dressed well. On the evening of the 17th of March last, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins were joined by another young Englishman named Herbert Percival Mullens, cousin of Mrs. Hopkins, who has since resided with them. They were great friends of Mr. Rye, an English gentleman, living on the same street, but beyond him they had few if any intimate acquaintances. So when the news of Mr. Hopkins' sudden death became known, gossip's tongue began wagging freely, and the fact that the public knew nothing and could learn nothing concerning this retired family, who have in a few hours sprung into unsought-for publicity, was sufficient to start all sorts of senseless and unfounded stories. At the request of the attending physicians, Dr. Bell, coroner, decided to hold an inquest in order to investigate the case and either confirm or put an end to the rumors which were in circulation. The jury met last night at seven o'clock, inspected the remains, listened to considerable evidence, none of which afforded them any basis for arriving at a conclusion, and a postponement was therefore made until Monday evening next. In the meantime a post mortem examination will be made, which is expected to throw some light on the case.

Deceased was only 34 years of age, and was a native of Berkshire, Eng. His friends in England have been cabled, and it is probable the remains will be taken home for burial. Mrs. Hopkins is quite prostrated over the sad affair, and is under the care of Dr. Halliday, but is expected to give evidence next Monday night.

The coroner's jury was empannelled as follows:—

J. P. METHERAL, foreman.

Jas. Carey,	F. W. Bate,
Jno. Nugent,	F. Foot,
Wm. Cardwell,	A. E. Ostrom,
Jas. Fanning,	R. McWhinnie,
Mark Lockington,	W. C. Turner,
Geo. Davidson,	F. O. Allison,
H. Newton,	Geo. Schofield,
H. S. McDonald.

The first step was to view the remains, and the jury in a body proceeded to the little house on Chamberlain street. Deceased looked quite natural, though more blanched and thin than usual. The body lay on the bed, clothed in elegant Indian silk underwear, and beyond a discoloration between the shoulders, which the physicians attribute to the body lying so long in one position, there were no unusual appearances. During the jury's visit the house was surrounded by a morbidly curious crowd, and the whole neighbourhood was agog with excitement.

Upon returning to the police court room, the taking of evidence was begun.

A PHYSICIAN'S EVIDENCE.

DR. HALLIDAY, sworn, said: I saw Mr. Hopkins I think about half past eight o'clock last night for the first time during his illness, at his house on Chamberlain street. I found him in bed suffering from an apparently severe cold. His skin was hot and dry. I should judge his temperature would be about 102½, pulse quick and regular, a little over a hundred. He told me he felt very well in the morning and had walked about town a good deal. He went up to Mr. Rye's after lunch and sat on the verandah where he thought he got a chill. On his way home he felt very wretched and could hardly drag himself along. He complained of aching all over as if he had been pounded. He was slightly hoarse and nose stuffed as if he had a severe cold in the head and chest. In addition to the aching, he also complained of a stitch in the side or back, which he did not seem to be able to locate. I examined his chest and did not find anything decided, though over the base of the left lung I detected very slight crepitation. From the history he had given me, and from the symptoms I found him laboring under I anticipated an attack of pneumonia and prescribed as follows:

R. Ext. Jaborandi Fluid,	2 dr.
Spt. Ether Nit.,	2 dr.
Liq. Am. Acet.,	2 oz.
Elix. Simplex to	4 oz.

I gave the directions for using to Mrs. Hopkins—a tablespoonful in a little water every two hours until the fever subsided. I also directed that it could be given in smaller quantities or at longer intervals if necessary to keep up the effect, which was to produce perspiration and reduce fever. I also ordered beef tea, soup, tea, etc., and a linseed meal and mustard poultice to the side. I called this morning shortly after eight and found him with a temperature of 102, pulse about 90. It seemed fuller, yet softer than it was last night, and quite regular. The skin was moist and warm. He had not perspired freely. He said he had taken one or two doses of the medicine, but vomited it, so he did not take any more. He said as he was tired and sleepy last night he had not put on the poultice either. He expressed himself as feeling better, though he had had a pretty bad night. I prescribed three powders, containing about five grains of quinine each, one to be taken in a little whisky every four hours. I went over his side again this morning and did not discover the slight crepitation which I did last night. I repeated directions as to diet. He asked if he should apply the poultice this morning, but as I could not discover the pain I told him I did not think it necessary. I repeated the directions to Mrs Hopkins and left. That is all I know of the case. When I returned from the country this forenoon I heard he was dead. His death was quite unexpected on my part.

The foreman of the jury asked the witness if he had observed a mark on the side of the deceased and to what he attributed it?

Dr. HALLIDAY replied that he attributed it to the position of the body, a purple discoloration caused by lying on that side. He observed no outward unusual signs.

In reply to a question as to what he considered the cause of death, Dr. Halliday said he believed from what he had since heard that death was caused by syncope, or fainting. He did not think the vomiting was likely to cause any strain on the system.

MORE PROFESSIONAL EVIDENCE.

DR. PIDGEON, sworn, said: About ten o'clock this morning Mr. Hopkins' coloured boy came to my house and asked me to go down and see Mr. Hopkins at once, as he was very ill. I went at once and arrived there shortly after ten o'clock. Mr. Mullens met me at the gate, and made some remark about Mr. Hopkins being very ill, and ushered me upstairs at once. I found the deceased lying on a bed ghastly pale, eyes partially opened, his right hand thrown out and looking very pale and blue. I felt for his pulse. His hand and arm were deathly cold, and I could perceive no pulsation. I listened at his heart, which had ceased to beat. I then called for a looking glass, which was brought by Mr. Mullen. I held it in front of his mouth for a few minutes. There was no moisture on it, and I decided he was dead. Mrs. Hopkins was kneeling at the side of him. She said it was impossible that he could be dead, but at last she was convinced that he was. She gave me the history of his sickness similar to what Dr. Halliday has given you. She said that he had taken one of the powders which Dr. Halliday had left, and that shortly after he had fallen into a doze. When she saw him again he was in a similar condition to what he was when I saw him. I asked for the medicine and powders which Dr. Halliday had left and took them. When I got home I put them in an envelope which witness handed to the coroner.] I took the bottle of medicine off the table [also produced] Mr. Mullen stated that Mr. Hopkins had vomited several times. I saw the vomit but could make nothing of it, it was mixed with other refuse. There appeared to be no food amongst it. I casually examined the body and did not notice any marks or bruises, to indicate any fall. Mrs. Hopkins stated that Dr. Halliday had expressed the opinion that Mr. Hopkins had been suffering from congestion, and I went over the lungs, but did not find any dullness either anterior or exterior, they were resonant all over. I could not form any conclusion as to cause of death. From his appearance, he was so blanched, he might have bled to death, though there was no wound to account for it.

To the foreman.—I observed no marks on the body. He appeared to have died a natural death. He was lying on his back. With the exception of his arms, the body was quite warm.

A juror asked if it was usual to vomit medicine such as Dr. Halliday prescribed. Witness replied that it depended on the condition of the stomach. It would not be so on an ordinary stomach.

Coroner—Did you see anything that would lead you to suspect that his death was due to unnatural causes?

Witness—No, except that he was such a young man and had been out the evening before, and his death was so sudden the whole neighborhood was startled by it.

Coroner—Did you know anything of Mr. Hopkins previously—his habits of life?

Witness—No. I think he was a gentleman who lived pretty freely, that is, took a good many stimulants during the day. There was nothing I think connected with his habits of life which would lead to such a sudden death. He was a genial, nice man, I used to see him almost every day.

THE WIFE'S COUSIN.

HERBERT PERCIVAL MULLENS, sworn, said: I have been staying with Mr. Hopkins since March last. I was in the house this morning when Mr. Hopkins died. That was between a quarter and half past nine, I saw him last alive about 10:30 last night. He was in bed, very feverish, and I myself gave him his medicine. That was the first dose he took. I went to my room, about ten minutes afterwards Mrs. Hopkins came to my room and said he had vomited it and asked if I would give him another. I replied, no, not until the two hours are up. I heard nothing of him again till morning. I heard the doctor come and waited till he went away. I asked Mrs. Hopkins what the doctor said, and she replied "slightly better," I saw Mrs. Hopkins mix a powder in two teaspoonfuls of whiskey. I then went to my own room and she went to Mr. Hopkin's room. Shortly after that Mrs. Hopkins came and asked me to come and see Mr. Hopkins; he was fast asleep and had a peculiar appearance. I did not like the look of him, so I sent the black boy for Dr. Pigeon. When Dr. Pigeon arrived I was waiting for him and we went upstairs together. We found Mr. Hopkins in the way he has related. I went down stairs again with the doctor, and was with him until he left. Dr. Pigeon said then he could form no opinion as to the cause of death. None of us at the house anticipated death. There was nothing visible to alarm us at all. I knew Mr. Hopkins before he came to Canada. He was residing in London when I knew him. He came here simply as a pleasure trip, not for his health. He has been in Canada nearly two years. He suffered slightly from rheumatism when I knew him in London, but never had to leave England on that account. I never heard him complain of heart trouble, or anything at all until last night.

To a juror, witness said that it was about a quarter of an hour after Mrs. Hopkins gave him the powder until she called him (witness) into the room because he looked so strangely. I could not notice any breathing when I went to his bedside. As to taking stimulants, he never saw Mr. Hopkins the worse of liquor. He took stimulants freely, but if anything less freely of late than formerly. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins lived perfectly comfortably together. I am a cousin of Mrs. Hopkins. Mrs. Hopkins remarked that she was afraid that the powder was too much for him, his death occurred so soon after giving it to him, and she wished she had not given it to him. No other remark of a like nature was made by anyone else.

This was all the evidence procurable at present, and as nothing had been learned from which the jury could arrive at a conclusion, it was decided to have a post mortem examination held. An adjournment was made for this purpose until next Monday evening, when the surgeons appointed to perform the task, Doctors Clarke and Boucher, will report, and Mrs. Hopkins will give her evidence.

THE POST-MORTEM.

Doctors Boucher and Clarke performed a cadaveric autopsy this forenoon, in accordance with the instructions of the Jury. Their report will not of course be made public until it is read before the Coroner's Jury, but in an indirect way information has been received by the EXAMINER that the doctors found internal evidences of disease sufficient in themselves to cause death, but nothing of an unnatural character.

Golden Wedding Bells.

Resonant With the Echoes of Half a Century ago.

The golden wedding or fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. James Mann, took place at Hawthorn Cottage, Smith, on Tuesday, June 2nd, Both Mr. and Mrs. Mann have been residents of this township since childhood and now they are both beyond the royal Psalmist' limit of human life—Mr. Mann being seventy-three years of age and Mrs. Mann a few months his junior. They were married on June 2nd, 1841. Their marriage was blessed with seven children, and all of them are living and all were present at the golden wedding festivities on Tuesday last, though they had been widely separated. Mrs. James Elliott had to come from as far as Oregon, U.S., whither she removed about eight years ago. There was a very large party of immediate descendants present—seven children and forty-six grand-children, in all fifty-three, being more than one direct descendant or every year of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Mann. Mr. Geo. B. Sproule town, took a photographic picture of the group of fifty five persons that assembled on the occasion. It is seldom that two persons reach together the golden wedding stage of their matrimonal life and it is much more seldom that all the children that God has given them meet in an unbroken circle around the parental family hearth, Mr. and Mrs. Mann have always been very zealous workers in every good cause and the universal wish will be that they may long be spared to enjoy the reward of their labors.

Personal.

Mr. W. A. Sanderson, jeweler and optician, returned home last evening from Chicago, where he has been attending lectures at the Ophthalmic College. Mr. Sanderson completed his course with great satisfaction at the valuable nature of the instruction imparted and the valuable knowledge to be acquired. He passed very successful examinations in the practical subjects bearing on an optician's business.

Miracles of Modern Days.

Hamilton Produces one of the Most Remarkable Cures on Record—"Totally Disabled," Yet Cured.

Hamilton Times, May 27th, 1891.

One of the most remarkable cures in the history of medicine has just been effected in this city and the fame of it is fast spreading throughout the land. Over four years ago Mr. John Marshall, then employed as manager of Mr. J. C. Williams' coal oil refinery works here, sustained a fall, which at the time was not thought to be serious. He doctored, but his trouble grew worse and, contracting cold after cold upon his other trouble, he was compelled to give up work entirely. His troubles developed into ataxy, a nervous disorder, held by medical authorities to be incurable. For four years Mr. Marshall has been an intense sufferer. He lost the use of his legs entirely and could not raise himself from a chair except by the use of a crutch and a stick. Though there was power in his legs there was no feeling. They were like dead weights, cold as ice and not susceptible to feeling. He could take his heavy stick and hammer the flesh until the sound of blows filled the house. During the course of these years no less than fourteen leading physicians of this city treated him. Sometimes two or three of them were in attendance at once. All agreed that his disease was incurable. Mr. Marshall went to Toronto for electrical treatment, at a heavy expense, but received not the slightest benefit. He tried every patent medicine that was recommended to him, yet without getting any aid. The "suspension" treatment was resorted to, and he was suspended by means of appliances around his neck and under his arms from the ceiling of the barn, but got no relief. Electric belts and appliances of an endless variety were tried, and thoroughly tried, too, but all resulted the same way—they left Mr. Marshall just as they had found him. At one time twenty pins were run right into the flesh of his leg. He barely felt two of them; the others he did not feel at all. His flesh was cut into with a knife and he felt not the slightest pain; and so he went on until the 13th day of April last, every remedy suggested by any one being tried, and hundreds of dollars spent upon patent medicines, to say nothing of doctor's bills.

Mr. Marshall was a member of the Royal Templars of Temperance. He was passed by the physicians of the order as totally disabled for life. The chief medical examiner passed him, and he was paid the $1,000 paid by the Order in cases of total disability.

A day or two ago a Times representative called upon Mr. Marshall at his residence, No. 25 Little William street. The door was open, and upon knocking, a strong steady step was heard. Mr. Marshall opened the door and received the reporter cordially. He walked without either crutch or stick and looked the picture of a sturdy fine man. He conversed freely of his case, as did Mrs. Marshall who came in later. "Five weeks ago," he said, "I could not raise my foot or bend my leg. As for walking without a stick or crutch it was impossible. I had seen an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as they were especially recommended for nervous disorders, I resolved to try them. I had what the doctors called Locomotor Ataxy. I had not walked for almost four years. My wife said, "Oh, what's the use of trying another patent medicine?" but I tried the Pink Pills. I had not used one box before I began to feel the effects. The feeling came back to my right leg first. After using them two weeks I was able to walk up to Mr. C. J. Williams' place on McNab street, over a mile and a half from here, and back. I had got nearly home when my left leg gave out, and I nearly went down. I had to stand and rub the leg for several minutes. Then it felt as if a thousand pins were running in it. This was the blood beginning to circulate in the leg that has been dead almost four years. From that time it has steadily improved. Now you see how I am. (Here Mr. Marshall arose and walked briskly around the room without artificial assistance.) I have used nothing else but Pink Pills and taken cold baths as directed on the boxes. To-day I walked to the market and back—a three mile walk. I have lived in Hamilton for 30 years and am well known. Hundreds of people stopped me on the street. Some of them stopped me to see if it was really John Marshall. Hundreds of people have been here to see me. Among them came several physicians who attended me. One of them, and the one who did the most for me, said, 'Well, you are the first cure in 10,000 cases.' I can tell you of a bank messenger in this city who has not walked as straight in 25 years as he has this past week. He took Pink Pills on my recommendation. Scores more in the city are trying them and quite a number have been benefited."

Mr. Marshall is gaining strength rapidly and expects to be back to his work before long. He grows more enthusiastic in talking of Pink Pills and he has a good reason to, for his is a remarkable salvation. Since beginning to use the remedy he has regained lost flesh and now weighs more than he has for nine years. He has not an ache or pain, but is conscious of a delicious feeling of healthy life in his legs.

The remarkable case noted in the above article from the Hamilton Times, conclusively proves that the proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have in no way overstated the merits of their remedy. Pink Pills are a never failing blood builder and nerve tonic, and are equally valuable for men or women, young or old. They cure all forms of debility, female weaknesses, suppressions, chronic constipation, headache, St. Vitus dance, loss of memory, premature decay, etc., and by their marvellous action on the blood, build up the system anew and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow complexions. These pills are sold by all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of pribe (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medical Co., Brockville, Ont.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1885 I went to Ottawa to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEER, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores—Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little arms and hands in the same condition; a body, around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was one raw mass. To be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Ebert to me:—"I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been an afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said that he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES could cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe that she has entirely recovered." The above is but one of many particulars sent to us for to Mr C. W. Woolever, druggist.

HEART FAILURE IS FEARED.

Which May End His Sufferings Suddenly—The Doctors Hold Out No Hope Whatever—His Condition Grew Worse All Night Long—Kept Alive by Stimulants—Anxious Watchers Waiting for the End.

OTTAWA, June 3.—"He is sinking, sinking!" said Sir James Grant, as I met him leaving Ernscliffe to-night after the evening consultation. Sir John still lives, but his physicians are unanimous in believing him to be getting weaker every hour. The first bulletin issued to-day read:

ERNSCLIFFE, June 3, 5.45 a.m. The night has been uneventful. About midnight the perspiration lessened and Sir John rested fairly well since that time. Nourishment has been administered as usual, but he has shown a disinclination for it. Breathing is hardly as labored as at 11 o'clock last night; respiration, 28; pulse irritable, 120. The patient continues low.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.

This bulletin was issued at 11.15 this morning:

ERNSCLIFFE, 11.15 a.m.—Sir John Macdonald's condition is lower to-day than yesterday at this hour. The alterations in his strength are at shorter intervals than before. He takes nourishment less willingly than heretofore. Respiration, 30; pulse, 138; very irregular and compressible.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

After the House adjourned this bulletin was issued:

ERNSCLIFFE, 6.45 p.m.—Sir John has had a quiet and uneventful afternoon, and as I write has been sleeping one hour and a half. Pulse, 130; respiration, 30.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.

This evening Lord Stanley called as usual at Ernscliffe for the last bulletin. The physicians say that the Premier's pulse is more irregular than ever before, and that he is perceptibly weaker. Their bulletin issued at 11.25 p.m. says:

ERNSCLIFFE, 10.30 p.m. Sir John Macdonald's condition to-night shows no marked change since the morning, but on the whole he exhibits less strength. Respiration 28, pulse 100, flabby, compressible and very irregular. He has taken the usual nourishment during the day.

Silencing Carping Critics.

A number of medical men have written Dr. Powell within the past few days, complaining of the meagre character of the information furnished by the bulletins. This is stated by one of the consulting physicians to have inspired this document:

ERNSCLIFFE, 9 p.m. I desire to state in the strongest possible terms that the public are demanding of me more than I can give them. While I have no desire to delude I must respectfully decline to manufacture information. The serious responsibility is not with those who are clamoring for news, but it rests with me, who fully realizes it and whose judgment is in no way affected by undue pressure.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.

Notes.

Lord Stanley summoned Sir John Thompson this afternoon and they were closeted for an hour.

Since Sunday Her Majesty the Queen has cabled to the Governor-General for particulars of Sir John's health twice a day.

Dr. Powell has not been away from Ernscliffe for an instant since Friday last. He sleeps in the room next to Sir John.

An old man who declined to give his name but who stated he was an army veteran and herbalist called at Ernscliffe yesterday and announced that the doctors having given Sir John up he was prepared to cure him.

Lady Stanley and the Viceregal household have postponed their proposed departure this week for the New Brunswick fishing grounds owing to the illness of the Premier.

Rev. Father McWilliams arrived here to-day bearing with him a message of sympathy from Archbishop Cleary and the clergy of Kingston archdiocese to Lady Macdonald.

Sympathy with Lady Macdonald.

KINGSTON, June 3.—The synod of the diocese of Ontario to-day sent this telegram to Lady Macdonald:

To Lady Macdonald, Ernscliffe, Ottawa:

On behalf of the synod of the diocese of Ontario now in session, I desire to offer our united expression of deep sympathy with Lady Macdonald in this time of painful anxiety, while praying the God of all consolation may support her in this visitation of Providence. The synod would place on record its sense of the great loss, beyond words to express, to the country at large in the illness which deprives Canada of the services of her most eminent statesman.

(Signed) J. T. ONTARIO.

The Budget Speech.

OTTAWA, June 3.—The Budget Speech will be delivered Friday if Sir John's condition is not worse.

At the request of Sir John Thompson the debate on the prohibition question was suspended until the issue of the Premier's illness was seen.

Mr. Edgar moved for copies of all correspondence between the Imperial Government and the Government of Canada on the subject of copyright laws of Canada not already brought down.

Sir John Thompson said the Imperial Government had not yet consented to the Canadian Copyright Act of 1889. It was unfortunate that the interests of British authors were paramount in legislation there as well as in judicial decisions. The Canadian Government would insist that the time had arrived when the interests of our own people must be considered and that this country should no longer be kept as a close preserve for authors of other countries. If the Imperial Government did not soon take some action in the matter Sir John said he would cause an address of both Houses of Parliament to be presented to the Imperial Government to permit the issue of the proclamation bringing into force the act of 1890.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE TUPPER CORRESPONDENCE PRESENTED TO THE HOUSE.

The Visit of the High Commissioner and the Other Ministers to Washington—Full Text and What Resulted of the Correspondence Respecting Trade Negotiations.

OTTAWA, June 3.—Sir John Thompson presented to the House to-day part of the papers relating to Sir Charles Tupper's trade negotiations at Washington. The balance are held over waiting a letter of instructions from the Imperial Government.

On Oct. 21 Sir Charles wrote to Sir Robert Herbert, Under Colonial Secretary strongly protesting against any recognition of the arrangement by which Newfoundland was allowed to negotiate through Sir Julian Pauncefote with the United States for reciprocity. On Oct. 27 he wrote Lord Knutsford to the same purport. A copy of the draft treaty between Newfoundland and the United States was sent to Lord Stanley by Sir Julian Pauncefote Jan. 13, and in an order-in-council of Jan. 28 this Government again protested against the proposed discrimination against Canada modified in the treaty. On March 25 Sir Julian Pauncefote wrote, stating that in accordance with Lord Stanley's despatch of March 16 he had written to Mr. Blaine asking when the Canadian delegates could hold unofficial conferences on the subjects mentioned in the despatch. It was as a result of this that Sir Charles went to Washington. These letters contain Sir Charles' official account of his visit there:

The Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, April 21.

DEAR SIR JOHN: I arrived in Washington at 3.30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 1, and after taking rooms at the Arlington at once drove to the British Legation, where I was received in the kindest manner by Sir Julian and Lady Pauncefote, who insisted upon my staying with them during my visit to Washington, which invitation I accepted. Sir Julian told me he had pressed Mr. Blaine for an answer to his note of enquiry as to when he would receive delegates from Canada to discuss the proposed question of reciprocity and that he had been informed by Mr. Blaine that morning that he (Sir Julian) would receive a letter that day. Sir Julian informed Mr. Blaine that he had been advised by Lord Stanley of my departure for Washington. To this Mr. Blaine replied that upon my arrival he would be very happy to see me, but that in the meantime he would send a written answer to Sir Julian's note.

Mr. Blaine's letter reached Sir Julian shortly after my arrival. It contained a formal acknowledgment of Sir Julian's note and intimated that he said that exception had been taken by the President and himself to the proposed basis of negotiations at the time the memo on this subject was submitted to him by Sir Julian. In this view Sir Julian told me he could not concur, as according to his recollection no reference had been made at the time to the President or that which were his views. Mr. Blaine also said that he did not agree with the references which had been made by Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper during the elections as to what had taken place concerning the initiation of the proposed informal discussion between the Dominion and the United States representatives. The invitation, Mr. Blaine contended, had come from Sir Julian. He added, however, that he would be pleased to receive the delegates from Canada and to confer with them informally upon the subject of reciprocal trade relations on the following morning, April 2. Sir Julian wrote Mr. Blaine, saying that I had arrived and asking when it would be convenient for Mr. Blaine to receive us. Mr. Blaine replied immediately that he would be most happy to meet us at the State Department at 11 the same morning, that he would have preferred to see us at his residence, but it was diplomatic reception day at the State Department and that we would be admitted to his office immediately after those who were before us. Sir Julian and I reached the State Department precisely at 11 o'clock, where we found the German minister waiting and learned the Mexican and Danish ministers were already with Mr. Blaine. We were soon joined by the French and Spanish ministers. As soon as the German minister had had his interview, we were sent for by Mr. Blaine. He received me very cordially and proceeded to remind me of our having met on the occasion of the opening of the I.C.R. connecting Maine and New Brunswick. I told him I had always had a vivid and agreeable recollection of the incident, and that I was very glad to have an opportunity of renewing the pleasant acquaintance I had at that time formed. I told Mr. Blaine that I wished at the outset to recognize the accuracy of the statement contained in his letter to Sir Julian Pauncefote which I had seen in reference to the initiation of negotiations regarding reciprocal trade arrangements between the two countries, that I believed it arose from negotiations which had recently taken place between the United States and Canada and the desire expressed by Canada to be included in any arrangements such as had been understood to have been contemplated by United States and Newfoundland, and that upon that being communicated to him by Sir Julian Pauncefote he had expressed his willingness to open negotiations for reciprocal trade arrangements between Canada and the United States, assisted by delegates from the Dominion, the negotiations to be informal and to a certain extent of a confidential nature until they could assume a more formal character if any results were arrived at. Mr. Blaine said he had understood that Canada had taken some exception to the proposed arrangement with the United States by Newfoundland. I admitted that such was the case and that I had explained to Her Majesty's Government that in connection with the question of the Atlantic fisheries the interests of Canada and Newfoundland had always been regarded as inseparable; that the treaties of '54 and '71 provided for the participation of Newfoundland by the action of its legislature; that the ratification of the treaty of '54 depended upon the approval of Newfoundland, and that there appeared to be great objections on many accounts to the interests involved being dealt with separately. Mr. Blaine asked me what was the reason that Newfoundland had not become part of the Canadian Confederation. I replied that in addition to its being somewhat more remote the difficulty was that what had been experienced, notably in the United States and the British North American provinces, of the reluctance of a small autonomous government of giving up its affairs to a larger body where it might possibly be overruled. I instanced the strong feeling which was exhibited by the Province of Nova Scotia in opposition to becoming part of our Confederation but which happily had been removed by experience. I added that but for the abrogation of the treaty of '54 I did not believe that it would have been possible to have carried the Confederation in Nova Scotia.

I then told Mr. Blaine that I wished to remove the idea, if he entertained it, which had been promulgated in Canada and the United States, that the present Government of the Dominion was not warmly in favor of the most friendly relations with the United States. In an article which I had recently sent over my own signature to The North American Review I had undertaken to give conclusive evidence upon that point, and that I need only refer him to the fact that when Sir John Macdonald, who was one of Her Majesty's joint high commissioners, submitted to Parliament for approval the Alabama treaty, which settled also all the pending questions between Canada and the United States, he was fiercely denounced by the leaders and press of the Liberal party for having basely sacrificed the interests of Canada in his endeavors to promote the friendly relations between Canada and the United States. I added that I had experienced the same treatment from the same party when I submitted for the approval of Parliament the treaty of Washington of 1871. I was then charged by the leaders and press of that party with having conceded everything to the United States and obtained nothing in return, so great was my anxiety to remove all causes of dissension between the two countries. Continuing, I said that of course that in 1866 and subsequently in 1885, when treaties which gave to United States fishermen common rights with our own fishermen were abrogated, in consequence of the action of the United States we were thrown back upon the treaty of 1818, but I said that the statement that Canada had been resorted to a harsh construction of the treaty of 1818 with the object of promoting freer trade relations with the United States was erroneous, that we were compelled in justice to the rights of our own fishermen who were met with high duties in the United States markets, to protect our fishermen as effectually as we could we and were attacked by the press of the opposition for not maintaining our rights more thoroughly.

No Interest in the Elections.

Mr. Blaine desired to assure me that outside of individual expressions of opinion there was no interest taken by the administration or Congress of the United States in the recent Canadian elections and that they had taken no action of any kind calculated to influence the result of the elections. I then went on to say that, in the article which I had written for The North American Review, he would find that I had said that greatly to the honor of Congress it refused to pass a resolution which was urged upon it by Mr. Wiman for the avowed purpose of influencing our elections, and although I myself had formed the opinion that both the great parties in the United States would be glad to have Canada in the Union I regarded the feeling if it existed as more of a compliment to Canada than otherwise. Continuing, I said Canada was most anxious to have the freest and most friendly intercourse with the United States consistent with the interests of both countries, and that I should regret very much if Canada and the large number of Canadians in the United States were driven to the conclusion that they could only look to one party in the United States for freer commercial intercourse between the two countries as I said it was difficult to say why the treaty of 1854 should have been abrogated, as the statistics of both countries proved that, although there was great expansion of trade between the United States and Canada, more advantage had accrued to the United States than to Canada under the treaty, the balance of trade being over $30,000,000 in favor of the United States. Mr. Blaine said that he was free to admit that that treaty was not abrogated on commercial grounds but in consequence of the feeling which had grown up that Canada had sympathized with the Southern States in their conflict.

I replied that it was difficult to see upon what basis that opinion could be entertained as it was admitted that no less than 40,000 Canadians had fought in the Northern army to maintain the union of the Northern States, while I did not suppose 40 had been found on the other side.

Mr. Blaine admitted that he supposed that the very large bounty had had a good deal of influence in the matter.

I then said that the unhappy conflict had taken place previous to the confederation of Canada, but I could speak with some accuracy of the province of Nova Scotia, with which I was then connected, that the Legislature of Nova Scotia had passed a resolution deploring the war and that one of the sharpest of intercolonial questions arose, as he would remember, in connection with the Chesapeake incident in the harbor of Halifax, and that it was my duty as Premier of the province to advise the Lieutenant-Governor, who was also the commander-in-chief, as to what course the Government of Nova Scotia should pursue and that the President of the United States had sent an autograph letter thanking him for the action of the Government of Nova Scotia on that occasion. I had only to repeat, I went on to say, that the Government of Sir John Macdonald and the party which sustained him had the strongest desire to promote reciprocal trade between the two countries, and their hopes in that direction were greatly strengthened by the decided measures which Mr. Blaine had taken to promote reciprocal trade with other countries and that I could not see why he could not with great advantage to the United States as well as to Canada extend to the north the same policy he had pursued with other countries to the south whose trade was much smaller than that between the Dominion and the United States. I said that the fact that he had expressed his readiness to receive the representations that Canada wished to make would show that he was quite open to consider that question. I was further strengthened in these views, I added, by the disposition that he had shown to make reciprocal arrangements with the colony of Newfoundland. Under the modus vivendi an arrangement was made by which the licenses given in Canada or Newfoundland covered the waters of both. The fact that a large number of licenses were taken out in Canada led to the conclusion that Canada was the best base of supplies for the fishermen of the United States, who in going to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland from Gloucester naturally passed near the coasts of Nova Scotia, where they were entitled to obtain not only all the bait and other commercial privileges they required, but in addition were entitled to ship crews and to tranship by rail their fish in bond through Canada to the markets of the United States.

Some question then arose between Sir Julian Pauncefote and Mr. Blaine as to Mr. Bond's negotiations. Sir Julian explained that Mr. Bond had not authority to negotiate in any other way than through him and that Mr. Bond's last negotiation was entirely irregular and without authority.

Mr. Blaine said that it did not appear necessary to negotiate any treaty with Newfoundland, as that colony had expressed its readiness to give the United States the privileges they enjoyed by their own action, and that they proposed not only to give bait to United States fishermen but to refuse to give the same privilege to Canada. He told Mr. Blaine that the Bait Act in Newfoundland had received the assent of Her Majesty upon the distinct pledge of Sir Ambrose Shea and the then premier of Newfoundland that Canadian vessels would not be affected by it, that I understood the courts of Newfoundland had declared that the action taken under that act was not legal. I added that Her Majesty had the power to disallow any bill that might be passed upon the subject by the colony.

The Reason of the Delay.

I told Mr. Blaine that Sir John Macdonald had understood that Mr. Blaine had not been well and that Sir John had suggested that it might be more convenient to Mr. Blaine to take up the consideration of these questions at a later period. The Dominion Parliament would be asked to continue the modus vivendi to avoid friction in the meantime. Mr. Blaine replied that as he was better he was quite prepared to go on now, or if he preferred to take up the subject later.

I then said I would ask the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Finance, who had been deputed by Sir John Macdonald to join, me as soon as Mr. Blaine could receive us. He named Monday next, 6th inst., and he promised to give the fullest and fairest consideration to the whole subject. He referred incidentally to the Behring Sea question. I merely said in reply that I understood that it was in a fair way of an early, and I hoped satisfactory, adjustment.

He mentioned also casually that he had proposed to my son, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, during his conference at Washington after his letter to Sir Charles Tupper, of which I telegraphed the contents to you early on Friday morning. He says that the President, owing to pressure of other questions, desires to postpone the conference until October. Sir Charles Tupper has telegraphed that he and his colleagues will arrive here to-night."

Sir Julian Pauncefote called upon Mr. Blaine at his house and informed him of our arrival when he expressed a wish to see us as soon as convenient and we waited upon him immediately. He expressed great regret at our not having received his message of April 5 in time to avoid the necessity of our journey. He said the President, who was practically the Prime Minister under their system, was extremely anxious to be in Washington during the negotiations and had requested that they might be deferred to a later date, as he had made arrangements which could not be changed for an immediate visit to the west. Mr. Blaine also mentioned that the President said that as there would be no meeting of the Senate before December no serious inconvenience, he trusted, would arise from the postponement. He was conferring further with the President as to the time when they would like to open negotiations. You have, of course, since learned that the time of the proposed meeting at Washington has been fixed for Oct. 11 next. This at first sight would seem to involve long delay, but as the session of the Parliament would preclude any meeting before July 1, and as the hot weather at Washington obliges those who can do so to go to the seaside during the summer months, October is really as early a period as it was practicable to arrange.

Sir John Thompson Mr. Foster and myself left immediately for New York and they returned to Ottawa and I sailed for England on Wednesday, the 8th instant. I may add that after carefully thinking over all that has occurred I consider there is good reason to hope that a fair arrangement may be made with the Government of the United States in relation to the important questions contained in Lord Stanley's despatch to Lord Knutsford of Dec. 13, 1890.

I remain, yours faithfully,

(Signed) CHARLES TUPPER.

Charged with a Horrible Crime.

TORONTO, June 4.—One of the most fiendish acts ever recorded is alleged to have been perpetrated by a French Canadian named Joseph Woodgreen, alias Bouvers, on a little girl of four years. He is a laborer at the new municipal buildings, and is said to have enticed Alice and Emma Major, 4 and 5 years old respectively, into his rooms. Then he sent the eldest out for a penny's worth of candy and committed a most villainous outrage on the other. When the child went home she reported the occurrence to her mother and the man was arrested. Yesterday in court he refused to plead, professing ignorance of English. After a consultation with Dr. Pickering, the case was adjourned for a week.

James Bailey, aged 19, of 59 Blair-avenue and William Thompson, aged 15, of 11 Blair-avenue were arrested last night by Detective Watson, charged with having ravished two little 7-year-old girls named Maud and Minnie Tyrill. The crime is more than usually heinous. The children, who are twins, live at 71 Regent-street, and like their parents are deaf and dumb. Yesterday afternoon Bailey and Thompson enticed the two girls into the former's home, his mother being absent in Niagara. Bailey, it is said, took the girl Maud into one of the bedrooms and Thompson the other into a closet, where they accomplished their devilish designs.

Pastor Banished to Siberia.

BERLIN, June 1.—The Kreuz Zeitung publishes an account of a Protestant pastor in Lithuania named E. J. Schmidt, who has been condemned to banishment to Siberia on the charge of proselytizing a member of the orthodox Greek Church. Pastor Lorchalmaun of Esthonia was sentenced to 14 months' imprisonment for a similar offence.

Beer As a Fire Extinguisher.

BERLIN, June 1.—Auerbach & Glabschen's oil works at Breslau were destroyed by fire yesterday. The brewery of Hopf & Gosrck, situated near the refinery, was in danger of destruction and was saved in a novel manner. The water supply proving insufficient the firemen were invited to make use of the beer stored in the place. A large number of casks of the precious fluid were brought out and their contents poured upon the flames, with the result of putting a stop to the spread of the conflagration.

TWEED, Ont., June 3.—The 12-year-old son of James Young of Boggart was drowned while bathing in Black Creek.

The Count Coming Home.

MONTREAL, June 3.—It is stated on good authority that the Hon. Mr. Mercier sails from Europe to-day on his return voyage.

What it Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

TURNBULL'S

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of dress goods that were formerly from 25 to 50c. a yard. They are odd lines, and are now being cleared out at 15c. a yard. They can only last a short time, call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from, in men's, women's and children's. 3 pairs for 25c.

For a week past we have been showing a window of Prints at 10c a yard. Handsome as it is possible to have them, and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½c. Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of white embroidered shirtings and all over embroidered muslins.

We have a great many patterns of figured Wool Delaines, so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a wholesale agent's samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them, as they please everybody as to quality and price.

SUN LIFE
ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Life Assurances in force, 1st January, 1891	$16,759,355 92
Increase over previous year	3,421,372 84
New Applications received in 1890	6,371,599 15
Increase over 1889	2,268,888.60
Cash income for year ending 31st December, 1890	889,078 87
Increase over 1889	325,938.35
Assets at 31st December, 1890	2,473,514.19
Increase over 1889	687,691.47
Reserve for Security for Policy Holders	2,109 232.68
Increase over 1889	567,732.71
Surplus over all Liabilities and Capital Stock	232,175.69
Increase over 1889	75,649 05
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961 65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6.04 per cent. The over-due interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$64 824 07
" " " " 1886, "	80 452 07
" " " " 1890, (four years)	222,175 69

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1891.

The Interests of Ontario.

The Globe.

For the first time since Confederation Ontario is about to occupy a position of secondary importance in Dominion affairs. Sir John never encouraged the younger politicians from this Province; he seemed to avoid the possibility of having a rival. Latterly our representatives have been a very moderate lot in point of ability; and now that he himself is going the sceptre will pass to the minor Provinces, who, as Tupper advised them at Amherst, are certain to turn the opportunity to their own advantage. One can scarcely imagine England being snuffed out in the Imperial Cabinet, or the members from little Wales swinging the empire. Philosophers would view such a shifting of the centre of political gravity with justifiable alarm.

No one in Ontario desires to claim for her more than her fair share of influence in the government of the country, but that fair share she is not likely to enjoy whilst Tory rule survives. In the first Ministry after Confederation Ontario was represented at different times by Sir John, Sir Francis Hincks, Sir W. P. Howland, Mr. McDougall, Sir Alexander Campbell, Mr. John O'Connor, Mr. Gibbs, Mr. Alexander Morris and Mr. Aikens. In the Mackenzie Administration we had Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. Blake, Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Mills, Mr. D. A. Macdonald, Mr. R. W. Scott and Mr. Christie. In 1878, when he formed his second Administration Sir John selected Sir Alexander Campbell, Mr. Bowell, Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Aikens from Ontario and subsequently Mr. Carling, Mr. Frank Smith, Sir David Macpherson, and Mr. Haggart were taken in. At present the Ministers from Ontario are Mr. Bowell, Mr. Carling, Mr. Smith and Mr. Haggart—rather a poor quartette to represent a community containing one-half the population of the Dominion and a good deal more than one-half of its commerce and wealth. The new Cabinet to be formed will be essentially a lesser-province Cabinet, ruled by lesser-province men and supported by a lesser-province majority. The danger of this state of things lies in the fact that we are maintaining a war against nature in those Provinces for which they demand a thumping indemnity. We will not let them buy in their markets, and they cannot sell without paying an exorbitant fee for the privilege. Their resources lie idle whilst population rushes across the line in endless procession. A foreign invader could not do much worse than carry their young men and young women into captivity, and lock up their national wealth against development. It is no wonder that they ask to be recouped, or that politics with them has become a game in which the man who can get most from the Federal treasury is almost sure to win. Moreover, all these Provinces are running behind in their local finances and preparing to demand better terms, that is, to throw their burdens upon the Federal taxpayer. As their Provincial Governments discharge functions which in Ontario are undertaken by the ratepayers themselves through our municipal system, the result of the periodical unloading is to mulct the people here for the cost of local works elsewhere—an injustice which this easy tempered milch cow is beginning to resent. Altogether, it may be confidently asserted that the Federal debt and taxation will be largely increased under the rule of the minor Provinces, and that no small portion of the outlay will be devoted to works and enterprises in no sense national in their ends. Considering that the Federal debt alone is already three times greater per capita than the Federal and State debts of the American Union, with which we have to compete for foreign labor and capital, the prospect is not an inviting one. Sir John trained his party to half believe that these and other grave questions could be got rid of by simply shutting the eyes and refusing to see them. A word of warning or remonstrance brought upon the head of the critic the charge of disloyalty—he was held to be running down the country when he merely begged it to face the facts. It is to be hoped that the policy of concealment will now disappear. "Things are what they are, and the consequences of them will be what they will be; why then should we desire to be deceived?"

In the present crisis the responsibility attaching to the Tory members from Ontario is great. If they choose to assert themselves the interests of the Province can be to some extent protected. If they sacrifice these interests in order to prolong the reign of their moribund party, the people will hold them to account. The magician whose arts saved them many a time can interfere no more with the just apportionment of rewards and punishments. His vast personal influence and popularity will shield them no longer; they will be judged strictly according to their works. Ontario has acted more than loyally to Confederation. Some doubt whether it has been of any benefit to her. There is a limit, however, to her good nature and it is for her representatives on the Government side to see that under the new regime she is not relegated to a back-seat or left a prey to combinations bent solely on plunder.

THE Gladstonians have surpassed their standard in Paisley. They have not merely done as well as in 1885 but a great deal better. Upon an increased vote they have just piled up a majority over thirteen hundred. In 1885 the united Liberals won by less than nine hundred; in 1886, when divided, the Gladstonian was elected by less than six hundred.

Sympathy for the Premier.

Although personally unknown to many of our members, yet their feelings bear witness to the high esteem and affection he holds in their hearts. Should the great "I Am," in His heavenly wisdom decree that he part from us, we pray that he may join the Grand Lodge Above."

A Word to Canadian Women

With advancing civilization, women in some respects become more susceptible to certain ailments and troubles than formerly. Diseases of the nervous system have increased to an alarming extent, as all physicians know well. Thousands of women are extremely sensitive, and have very delicate nervous organisms, and consequently are more predisposed to disease than those of robust and rugged constitutions.

We meet too often the pale, weak, languid and morose woman, suffering from headache, tired brain, nervousness and dyspepsia. For this class it is now generally admitted that that Paine's Celery Compound is the great agent for imparting fresh strength to the nerves, and great vigor to the body, a glow of health to the cheeks, and brightness to the eyes.

Paine's Celery Compound in Canada is a favorite remedy with thousands of women, and physicians speak kindly of it great results.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and herbs, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick headache, and is the best spring medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package. dw

Do You Cough?

Don't delay. Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. It will cure coughs and colds. It will cure sore throat, or a tickling in the throat. It will cure pains in the chest. It will cure influenza and bronchitis and all diseases pertaining to the lungs, because it is a pure balsam. Hold it to the light and see how clear and thick it is. You see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Large bottles 50c and $1. dw

Nature provides a remedy for all ills, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is nature's remedy for the ills peculiar to the female system. Suppressions, weakness, nervousness and all diseases resulting from impoverished blood, speedily yielded to their treatment. Sold by dealers, or sent on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—addressing The Dr. Williams Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

"Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, TEXAS.

A DAKOTA CYCLONE.

Several People Killed and Much Damage Occasioned.

WATERTOWN, Dak., June 2.—This afternoon a small dark funnel-shaped cloud suddenly appeared in the south and soon developed into a cyclone. It moved close to the ground with a whirling motion and a noise like a huge fire snapping and cracking. Fortunately it struck the city on the extreme eastern limit where the buildings were scattered. Six barns were demolished. The path of the storm was 100 feet wide, but not a single house within the limits was in its way. Horses were hurled into the air and sent sprawling to the earth. Wagons were taken up bodily and dashed to pieces. Five miles northeast of here two houses and three barns were carried away. The debris from the storm as it left this city spread along for nearly a mile. O. H. Chandler and his son were in one of the barns when the storm struck it and were pinned under the boards. Three people were killed at Hazel, 16 miles southwest of here, and the storm is said to have been very severe in that vicinity. A heavy rain and hail followed the storm but did no damage. This was Watertown's first cyclone.

A FRIGHTFUL DEATH.

A Fever-Crazed Man Leaps From a Liverpool Hotel Window.

LIVERPOOL, June 2.—A horrible accident occurred at the Northwestern Hotel in this city yesterday morning, by which William H. Gilchrist, 45, who is believed to be an American, met a terrible death. The deceased arrived from the west coast of Africa on Thursday last, and was given a room on the third floor of the hotel. He was suffering from malarial fever, which he had contracted in Africa, and at an early hour yesterday morning he was seized with delirium. His condition became known and a doctor was sent for. Gilchrist all of a sudden jumped up and made a clean spring through the window, which is of plate glass. Gilchrist fell to the pavement below, which was a great distance from the window. He was impaled on the iron railings which surround the hotel, the spikes of which entered his body just below the stomach and the force of the fall caused him to be ripped partially open, so that he died very shortly afterward.

Canadians to be Protected.

OTTAWA, June 2.—In the Senate Senator Macdonald of British Columbia asked whether the Dominion Government was in consultation with the Imperial authorities regarding Canada's interest in the present Behring Sea negotiations. Mr. Abbott, leader of the Government replied: "It is a fact that all along and up to the present moment the Imperial Government is in active consultation with the Government of the Dominion as regards the settlement of the Behring Sea question.

"The Canadian Government have taken the greatest possible pains to lay before the Imperial Government fully their views on the subject, including their views with regard to the stoppage of the trade of those sealers who have already left the Pacific coast and some of them from the Atlantic coast, for the fishing grounds. It would not be proper for me at this stage, without the papers, to discuss the details of the arrangements which are not absolutely completed, although approximately near completion, but I may say there is no point on which any precaution to preserve the interests of Canadian fishermen has been neglected in our communications with the Imperial Government."

Their Love Forbidden They Die Together.

GALENA, Ill., June 3.—For some time a strong attachment had existed between Miss Ada F. Townsend, a handsome young girl of wealthy parents, and Elmer Foster, a farm hand, both of whom reside in Rush township. Like the course of all true love, this one did not run smooth, but had in it many rocks and bowlders, the largest of which was the objection of the girl's parents to their marriage. Clandestine meetings were the only consolation left the young lovers.

At the usual hour this morning the girl's mother went to her room door to call her to breakfast, and not receiving an answer the door was broken in.

A horrible spectacle met her gaze. Lying stretched upon the bed was the corpse of young Foster, while on the floor, where she had fallen in her agony, was that of her young daughter. Their death had been caused by strychnine, which they had procured for that purpose.

Blew Out His Brains.

WINNIPEG, June 2.—Walter Armstrong of Gilbert Plains, disappointed in a love affair, blew out his brains with a pistol last night. He came to the Plains from Caroserry.

London Startled by a Shocking Tragedy

LONDON, June 2.—The neighbors of a family occupying apartments in a house in Kentish Town, a suburb of London, noticed that none of the family had been seen for some time, and upon opening the rooms the head of the family, his wife and child were found dead in the room. It was evident the man had killed his wife and child and then killed himself by cutting his throat.

SOMETHING NEW IN NAVIGATION.

How the Russians Send the Mail up the Yenisei River.

There are some curious modes of navigation to be found in out-of-the-way parts of the world, and such a one is described by a traveller who was recently in Siberia. It seems, from what this traveller says, that the Yenisei River, which for a long distance is navigable by small steamboats, becomes impassable after the town of Turuchansk is reached and thence on to Yeniseisk, a distance of more than 330 miles, the mail bags of the Russian Government have to depend on dog power.

In winter, when the river is ice-bound, the good old game of sledging with dogs is indulged in by the postman, but when, as some one with ample time at his or her command has put it, "Sweet nature, with her heart all in a glow, has broken the icy fetters of the stream," then the sledging process is for the time being shelved until the heart of nature gets over its annual glow and the icy fetters are clapped once more upon the Yenisei.

It is during the glow period of the year that the dogs are utilized, as shown in the picture, and while the going must be very fatiguing, owing to the effort of running in the shallow water, a good outfit of these hardy carriers will drag a boat, two men and the mail from 65 to 75 miles a day, and that, too, against the stream, which, however, has not much power on its shallow margin. The relief dogs are harnessed up when those pulling the boat show signs of giving out.

Then they are released and run along the rocky shore as a novel method of resting until their next turn of duty comes. The traveller who tells of this and who drew the picture had two English dogs with him—a bulldog and a fox terrier—and he says that the native dogs regarded the strangers with undisguised curiosity and no little wonder.

The native animals are of a very quarrelsome nature, and were disposed to be impolite in their reception of their English cousins, until the bulldog gave them a point or two on the noble art of self-defence, after which they let him and his small friend severely alone.

This odd method of postal navigation is so difficult that the mail only goes once a month.

May Have Been Murdered.

OTTAWA, June 2.—The Ottawa police will to-morrow exhume the body of the unknown man found floating in the river here last week. Foul play is now suspected. A shantyman named Girouard answers to the description.

A Cavendish Succeeds a Cavendish.

LONDON, June 2.—Lord Victor Cavendish (Liberal Unionist) was to-day elected member of the House of Commons for West Derbyshire without opposition to succeed Lord Edward Cavendish, deceased.

The Good Old Times.

"Then times were good,
Merchants cared not a rush
For any other fare
Than Johnny cake and mush."

But now times have changed, and the plain and simple fare of the forefathers is done away with. Patent flour, and high seasoned food, and strong drinks, have taken its place, and, as a result, dyspepsia, impure blood, and diseases of the stomach, liver and lungs are numerous. This great change has led one of the most skillful physicians of the age to study out a remedy for these modern diseases, which he has named his "Golden Medical Discovery." Dr. Pierce in this remedy has found a cure for dyspepsia, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, in its early stages, and "liver complaints." a

A Spring Medicine.

There are few who do not at this season feel the need of a spring medicine, and to all such we recommend Lane's Family Medicine as the best. It is the best as well as the pleasantest cure for constipation and headache. dw

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS.—My mother was attacked with a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS. KENNEDY, Hamilton, Ont. 2w20d

Self Application of Electricity

BY THE

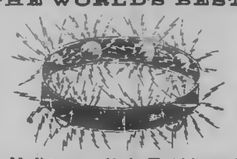
DORENWEND

ELECTRIC BELT

And Attachments

HEAD OFFICE—168 Yonge St., Toronto

THE WORLD'S BEST.



ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

The horses kept on their way, but were stopped by Mr Fred Stenson, of Monaghan. Dr. King was soon on hand, and had the injured man, whose skull seemed to be fractured, removed to the Nicholls Hospital. A telephone from the hospital states that the injuries are not severe, and the doctor says that he may be taken home.

Wedding Bells on Water Street.

Yesterday afternoon the residence of Mr. Geo. A. Mitchell, 420 Water street, was the scene of another bridal festivity. The occasion was the marriage of his third eldest daughter, Clara Mabel, to Mr. Wm. Allison. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph Locke, in the presence of a large number of guests including several from Port Hope, Lakefield and Omemee. The bridesmaid was Miss E. I. Mitchell, sister of the bride, and the groom was supported by Mr. R. T. Hounsell. At the conclusion of the ceremony the company sat down to an elegant wedding supper which was followed by an hour or two of social enjoyment and felicitation of the happy couple. The respect and esteem enjoyed by the bride was shown by the large number of beautiful as well as useful presents received by the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Allison drove to their future home on Smithtown hill, where in their cosy cottage their numerous friends wish them many years of wedded happiness.

Wall Paper Way Down.

As we have leased the adjoining premises about to be vacated by Mr. Jas. Stenson, boot and shoe merchant, which will be occupied by our fancy goods and wall paper department, as soon as the necessary alterations are made, our present immense stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore must be greatly reduced in order to facilitate removal. This great clearing sale of wall paper will continue for the next 30 days, regardless of prices. Cost marks won't count in this sale. The stock must be cleared out, or at all events reduced so that it can be handled easily. It comprises full lines of all kinds of wall paper of the very latest styles and designs, which we got in this spring from the best makers on the continent. A particularly fine lot of gold papers will be sold at a sacrifice. A great variety of job ends will be cleared out at almost any price. This is the chance of a life time. Remember this sale will last 30 days, when we expect to remove the wall paper department down stairs into the new store. The stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore is by far the largest and most complete in town, and those who come early will get the benefit of a choice selection. This is a genuine slaughter sale of wall paper. We ask you to call and be convinced of the big bargains that are being offered the public at the Peterborough Bookstore.

The People of Peterborough will Talk French in September.

The inhabitants of our town will have this summer a chance they never had before and will never have again of learning to talk good French. Everybody has heard about the large educational establishments owned by Messrs. Contellier & Ingres. This business, which has its headquarters in St. John (N.B.), has branches all over the Dominion, from Charlottetown to Winnipeg. The different branches are teaching now more than two thousands pupils, and the Toronto school has more than three hundred scholars, all ladies and gentlemen, the most prominent in the city. Having been asked by some people of Peterborough to open a branch here for summer, Messrs. Ingres & Contellier decided to send one their best teachers to establish a branch here. The way of teaching is the natural method, and the lessons are always given in the shape of conversation. All pupils are taught to talk, as well as to read and to write, and the lessons are more a variation than a work. The progress is very rapid and the pupils succeed in talking quite efficiently after a relatively short time. No English word is allowed during the lessons, which are given always using the studied language. Prof Contellier, one of the proprietors of the school, is staying at the Oriental and will be pleased to give any information and trial lessons in order to show the way of teaching. The classes begin at once.

The Peterborough Book Store.

An Enlarging Business and Deference to Public Convenience Demand Larger and More Readily Accessible Premises

For some time past the marked increase of the business of the Peterborough Bookstore has pressed the matter of securing an enlargement of premises. It is also been found that, the wall paper rooms being on the second floor, ladies were subjected to unnecessary exertion in mounting stairs. Therefore to serve a double purpose—to get the desired increase of room, and to make the wall paper department as easily accessible as possible—the shop next south of that now occupied by the Peterborough Bookstore, and recently vacated by Mr. Stenson has been secured. The ground floor of this shop will be exclusively devoted to the fancy goods and wall paper department of the business, while the premises now occupied will be given over to the book and stationery business. The picture framing department will be removed from its present position and will occupy the rear portion of the second floor of the late Stenson shop.

The acquisition of the new premises will involve a re-arrangement of the establishment, which will not only conduce to the convenience of those charged with the duty of conducting the business, but will also enable the Peterborough Bookstore and EXAMINER printing and newspaper establishment, to meet, in a more full, satisfactory and prompt manner, the demands of the constantly increasing number of patrons, who have made additions to our premises necessary. We take this occasion to once more acknowledge most gratefully the obligations we are under to the public, whose highly esteemed patronage has forced a rapidity of growth and expansion in the business which is sufficiently striking to be regarded as phenomenal.

The changes adverted to, are indicated in order to show the public that we are anxious to spare no pains to contribute to the public convenience and to meet the public wants. In working these changes, as complete a reduction as possible is being made in the Peterborough Book Store's magnificent stock of wall paper, paper hangings, sheetings, etc. It is the aim to remove none of the present stock to the new premises. A sweeping clearing sale of wall paper, paper hangings and window shades has been begun, and will continue for the next 30 days. An immense stock of beautiful wall papers, etc., all this season's goods, styles and shades and patterns, offered at sacrifice prices to clear, constitutes one of the greatest clearing sales of wall paper ever seen in this district—a sale and chance to secure great bargains, which will probably never be repeated. Think of this when you want anything in the line of wall papers, paper hangings, window shades, etc., at prices which represent only a small part of their real value.

What is Home Without Wall Paper.

Some Facts that Should Interest all who Require Wall Paper—A Time to Buy.

Occasionally the opportunity turns up whereby one can get in the neighborhood of one dollar's worth for about fifty cents. It is not of so much consequence if the article on sale is something not in general use, but if it should be such as there is timely use for then the chance is worth taking advantage of. Our reporter noticing that H. Thompson & Co., were sending out large parcels of wall paper looked into the shop to enquire who were the buyers and if house-renting boom now on had increased the demand for paper.

"I should say it has," said Mr. Thompson. "The new tenant always insists that things shall be freshened up for him. We don't complain—it's trade for us."

"Figure patterns seem to be out of date," said the reporter.

"If you mean geometrical patterns, they are," was the reply. "The styles seem to run into scrolls and floral designs, and the pattern is larger than a few years ago. We have hundreds in gold, silver and tints, all on suitable grounds. Of course we have to keep borders to match, and the taste of customers in the way of paper is so varied, and in the main so good, that we have to be extremely careful in selections. Of course the stock is so big that the variety is practically unlimited."

"Where are they made?" Well, no one maker has the preference. Each has his specialty. Our papers come to us from New York, Boston, Buffalo and the dealers in England. We have to order ahead to get them here in time.

Going up the staircase to the paper room on the second flat, our reporter found the walls lined with convenient racks filled with papers of hundreds of styles. The show room proper, neatly carpeted and well lighted, afforded an excellent opportunity to inspect the beautiful papers laid out on stands of convenient height. One wall of the paper room was hung with samples of papers and borders very handsome and attractive

After attending to a number of customers who came up to the show room, Mr. Thompson said: "The stock, as you see, is large, and we are anxious to run it down. To do this, we are making a special cut in prices. Every line on roll will be sold out of stock. We have no remnants or odd lots. Regular lines pay better than a few rolls of this and that. These papers you see here are capital, light colors for bedrooms, and with this border they make a pleasing thing to look at. These other borders are all suitable. The same thing can be said of every pattern you see. Some are beautifully adapted for parlours, others for halls and dining rooms, and so on. Combinations can be made for shops. These are specially for ceilings, and are complete. The reduction we are making covers every line, as I have said.

What's the difference? Well, largely in favor of the customer. The customer sees the inducement to buy and buys. Prices are reduced so as to make it a matter of gain to the buyer and enable us to reduce stock which is the object we have in view. "How long will the low prices last?" Only for the next 30 days. The buyer that needs paper will come in at once. They are doing so now though we have'nt advertised the sale only one day. I tell you there's no better value and if I was to talk for an hour I could not describe only a tithe of the stock so varied and good it is. If your friends need paper tell them to come to Thompson & Co's and get a share of the bargains going.

LUSUS NATURAE.

A freak which nature is guilty of doing very often about this time of the year is reported to us in the shape of a chicken of peculiar formation, which was hatched by a hen belonging to Mr. Fogg, a few days ago. It had two heads, both completely formed, four legs, three eyes and two beaks, and protruding from the throat of the strange production was a growth resembling a beak. It was intended to preserve the bird in alcohol, but pussy discovered it and quickly stowed it away out of reach.

LUMBERING ON THE TRENT.

The first drive of logs of the season commenced running the Trent river last week, and the "tail" end passed through here on Tuesday. It consists of 80,000 pieces, and is made up of some of the finest logs that have moved through these waters for some years. A large portion of the drive has been boomed in the north for about a year. The whole lot is the property of Gilmour & Co.

A GOLD MEDAL.

Among the list of prize winners of gold, silver and bronze medals for exhibits of Canadian manufactures at the Jamacia exhibition, is the Trent Valley Woolen Company, whose woolen mills are in Campbellford. For tweeds and flannels they have been awarded a gold medal. Mr. Adam Brown, honorary commissioner for Canada at the exhibition, a few days ago furnished the Toronto Empire with the list for publication.

PETERBOROUGH ASSOCIATION MEETING.—The eighty-eighth annual meeting of the Peterborough Association of Baptist churches will be held in Campbellford on Wednesday and Thursday, June 17th and 18th, when it is expected that twenty ministers and about forty delegates will be present. As the Baptist membership here is small, and some difficulty will be experienced in entertaining the visitors, any friends who will open their house to receive a delegate or two will do a kindness by informing the pastor, Mr. Williams.

Personal.

Capt. Nicholson, of the steamer "North King," is in town to-day.

The Toronto papers stated yesterday that Mr. Geo. A. Cox had been invited to lay the corner stone of the new Victoria College building in that city. This is a mistake. It is Mrs. Cox who will perform the ceremony.

Miss Edna Reilly, of Campbellford, formerly assistant teacher in the short hand department of the Peterborough Business College, has accepted a situation in the law office of Messrs. McIntyre & Stuart, Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. John McKee (druggist), left town yesterday for Walkerton. Mr. McKee will remain till Monday, but Mrs. McKee will spend part of the summer in Bruce county visiting relatives and friends and securing change of scene.

The Watford Guide-Advocate says:—"Miss Fawcett, of Peterborough, sang a solo in Trinity Church Sunday evening. She has a fine, clear soprano voice with a rich, sympathetic tone, and her singing was attentively listend to by the large congregation present. On Sunday evening next Miss Fawcett will sing "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," by Sullivan."

Rev. J. W. McCleary, of St. Luke's, leaves to-morrow morning for Detroit for a two weeks "holiday." Rev. J. W. Thrush, of Christ church, Detroit, will arrive this evening, and conduct the services for the next three Sundays. It is not, strictly speaking, a holiday for either clergyman, simply an exchange of work, and the accompanying change of scene and associations.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Directors was held on Tuesday evening. The attendance was fair. Mr. G. J. Early, president, presiding. Interesting and encouraging reports were received from the committees and the general secretary, of the work for the past month, which showed the work to be progressing still, spiritually and financially. We are still feeling our lack of room to accommodate our growing work among the young men and steps must be taken to provide for this growth before the fall work begins or we shall lose ground in this fruitful field which the Lord has opened so wonderfully for us. We know that we shall see this great need supplied and our work go forward and continue to be a source of power and blessing to the young men and homes of our citizens. Mr. G. M Rogers, chairman of the Building Committee, presented a lengthy report on the steps thus far taken to have the building we need so much, completed. After a full discussion, the report was referred back for further consideration and to be taken up and dealt with at a special meeting of the Board next week. We feel the importance of this matter, and desire to go slowly and surely, so that the work we have so much at heart will receive that consideration which will bring the best results for all concerned.

The social reception to be tendered the Edison Co, will take place on Friday evening, June 12th. An informal programme of vocal and instrumental music will be given. The Ladies' Auxiliary will serve refreshments. A pleasant and profitable evening is expected. We desire to make our Edison friends feel at home amongst us.

Open air services for this summer will be resumed next Sabbath afternoon at 4:15 in the Central Park. Short Gospel address will be given. The Y.M.C.A. band will lead the singing. We are looking for much blessing on the services, and ask the earnest prayers of God's people on their success.

Mrs H. S Griffin presided at the meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary yesterday afternoon. After discussing matters an adjournment was made until Monday afternoon at 3 30 in the parlor, when very important business will be transacted. All ladies interested and every member urged to be present.

We highly appreciate the self-denying efforts of our ladies in our work, knowing that much good has been accomplished and believing greater thing for the future.

Cold Springs, Otonabee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

May 31 was the third anniversary of the Cold Springs Union Sabbath School. Rev. S. J. Shorey was present and gave a very interesting and practical address to the large number of those present. Mr. Shorey certainly deserves our hearty thanks for the interest he has shown in our school.

On Monday evening the anniversary was further celebrated by a very successful social and entertainment at its conclusion. There was a very large attendance, but the ladies proved themselves equal to the occasion by having a bountiful supply of good things. Adjournment was made to the school room, where the following programme was presented:

Bringing in the Sheaves ....
Prayer ....
Instrumental music—violin and organ ..... Miss and Messrs. Wilson
Address ..... Mr. H. S. Griffin
Quartette (vocal) ..... Miss Wrighton, Miss Heuback, Mr. Ketchum, Mr. Ross

A Hundred Years to Come.

Wouldn't you like to live until the year A.D. 2000, just to see the people and the world generally? Who knows but you might, if you observe the laws of health, and keep the stomach, liver and bowels in full action. The best medicine known for this is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are small, sugar-coated granules, but powerful to cure; produce no nausea or griping; easy to take and a sure cure for biliousness, constipation, headache, and diseases produced by an inactive liver. A convenient vest-pocket remedy.

Worthy of Confidence.

Those who have used it praise it! Mrs. George Ward writes from Josephine, Ont., concerning Hagyard's Yellow Oil: "As a sure cure for chapped hands, swellings, sore throat, etc., I recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil to all." 2w20d

Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is prepared by a new process and will keep in any climate. Be sure and ask your druggist for Miller's Emulsion and take no other. dw

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

STORY OF THE DAY.

As Told by the Physician's Bulletins.

SIR JOHN HOURLY GREW WEAKER

And Manifested a Lesser Degree of Strength.

The Premier's Grim Struggling With His Last Opponent - Another Physician Summoned in Deference to the Wishes of the Family and the House of Commons—Interviews With the Doctors.

OTTAWA, June 4.—It is a week since the Premier was laid low. His condition to-day is actually better than yesterday, but his physicians adhere to their first statement that his illness must terminate fatally. Sir James Grant is known to take a gloomy view generally, but his view was once more endorsed to-night by Dr. Wright, who always entertains the most hopeful views of a case. They stated to the little knot of correspondents gathered at Ernscliffe to learn the result of their evening consultation that notwithstanding the brightened intelligence this afternoon the Old Man was weaker than ever. The paralysis seems to have relaxed somewhat. The trouble most feared is failure of the heart. To-night, "in deference to the Commons and the family," as Sir James Grant expressed it, a despatch was sent to Montreal summoning again Dr. George Ross, professor in Therapeutics at McGill.

Sir James Grant said there was no change in the Premier's condition. People had taken a very encouraging and hopeful view from the nature of the bulletins issued to-day, but in this they are mistaken. The Premier's condition is not improved. His pulse is very feeble and we both think he is weaker to-night than at any time since his illness.

Sir John's condition during the day, the physicians stated, is exactly expressed by the bulletin issued:

ERNSCLIFFE, 6 a.m.—Sir John passed the night without any change to record. He took his nourishment at the usual intervals and slept a good deal between times. His strength remains as yesterday. Respiration 30, pulse 108 and having the same character as during the past two days. R. W. POWELL, M.D.

ERNSCLIFFE, 11.15 a.m. Sir John Macdonald passed a fairly comfortable night and partook of nourishment at intervals. His cerebral symptoms are slightly improved at the time of our consultation, owing doubtless to the fact that having lived days since his seizure partial absorption has had time to take place. His heart's action, however, is extremely feeble and irregular, and its failure is at present the chief danger.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.

ERNSCLIFFE, 9.15 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald's condition throughout the day has been simply one of continuous weakness from a deficient heart action. This afternoon he exhibited decidedly an increase of consciousness lasting over two hours.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.

ERNSCLIFFE, 11 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald's condition throughout to-day was unchanged until towards 4 p.m., when he became slightly more conscious of his surroundings. This evening his general condition is much as it was yesterday evening, excepting that his heart's action is weaker and still more irregular. Respiration, 30; pulse, 100.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
HENRY P. WRIGHT, M.D.

His Actual Condition.

This is the dying Premier's condition—He is apparently conscious. The paralysis of the right side continues just as it was. The left side which was first attacked is not paralysed. He can open his eyes, their appearance have not been affected by his illness. The greatest amount of discussion and doubt concerning the case has arisen over the hemorrhage of the brain. Paralysis, it should be remembered, is only a symptom. In this case the cause was attributed to the rupture of a blood vessel in the brain and a consequent effusion of blood. Paralysis can be produced by several other causes, and one, a stoppage of blood flowing to the brain, produces exactly the same symptoms. Some people, particularly physicians have questioned whether there were any evidences of hemorrhage in this case. Nothing but a post mortem examination can determine some cases, but in this case there is undoubtedly an effusion of blood on the brain. A clot of blood might form from a diseased or weak heart and produce all the symptoms present in the Premier's case. As the bulletins give the pulse and respiration it may be stated that respiration is usually between 15 and 20 a minute, or about as one to four beats of the pulse. Nothing characterizes this case so much as the absolute certainty of death.

A FATHER'S FIND.

A Father's find in Muskoka Township.

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., June 4.—The two sons of Hiram Wiser, aged respectively 4 and 6 years, went out of the house after dinner and their mother concluded they had gone to the shingle mill at Fawn Lake, where their father was working. On the father returning at 6 o'clock without the boys a general search was made. When they were both found drowned at the foot of the falls in the creek between Doe Lake of Muskoka township and Fawn Lake of Draper township.

Drowned in a Well.

BRACEBRIDGE, June 4.—This afternoon a daughter of Mr. Benjamin McDonald of this place, about five years old, fell into an unused well while playing and was accidentally drowned.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES BROUGHT DOWN.

They Ask for an Appropriation of $2,601,397—A Division on Mr. Edgar's Bill to Amend the Franchise Act—The Lord's Observance Act.

OTTAWA, June 4.—Mr. McMullen called the attention of the Government to-day to recent regulations of the United States providing that sheep and lambs exported from Canada to the United States must be quarantined for 15 days.

Mr. Haggart said as soon as the Government received from the United States official notice of those regulations they would take all possible steps to protect that trade.

Lord's Day Observance.

Mr. Charlton moved the second reading of the bill to secure better observance of the Lord's Day. It does not attempt to provide for any religious observance of the Sabbath, but that it be observed as a day of rest. It forbids, under severe penalties, work, buying and selling, races and games, tippling and brawling, hunting, shooting and fishing, publication of newspapers, railway traffic, etc., on Sunday.

Sir John Thompson said there would be no difference of opinion as to the proposition that the law of the land should enforce the observance of a day of rest, but it must be remembered that acts to that end have been passed within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislatures in almost all parts of the Dominion. He therefore suggested that the bill be read a second time and then referred to a special committee to consider (1) the provisions of the bill in regard to Sunday observance, and (2) to enquire how far they had been already met by provincial legislation. The publication of newspapers on Sunday, Sir John added, could be regulated by provincial enactments.

The suggestion was adopted and the bill referred to a special committee.

One Man, One Vote.

Mr. Edgar moved the second reading of the bill to amend the Dominion Franchise Act by embodying the principle of one man, one vote, the basis of the Ontario Franchise Act.

Sir John Thompson argued that the bill was at variance with the underlying principle of the Franchise Act, which was property qualification, and moved the six months' holst.

Sir John Thompson's motion was carried on a party division of 109 yeas to 77 nays, giving the Government a majority of 32.

Messrs. Vailancourt, Savard and Monett voted with the Government.

The Budget.

Mr. Foster stated to-day that the Budget Speech would not be made to-morrow, Friday.

Mr. Bowell has introduced a bill to amend the Railway Act by placing the Intercolonial and all its branches and connecting ferries under one control in order to economize in management.

Mr. Mulock has given notice that he will move for a statement showing the amount of Dominion notes in circulation May 31, 1891, and amount of gold and guaranteed debentures held on security for redemption of those notes, and also a statement showing the proportion of the gold reserve held by the Minister of Finance and Receiver-General and the proportion thereof held by any chartered bank for such redemption, and also a statement showing the arrangements made with such banks under which they hold such gold reserves.

Supplementary Estimates.

Supplementary estimates for $2,960,000 were brought down to-day. They include $10,000 to promote the dairying interests of Canada and $50,000 for the census.

The Senate.

OTTAWA, June 4.—In the Senate to-day divorce bills were introduced for the relief of Thomas Bristow and Isabel Carpenter. In the latter instance the petitioner, who lives in Hamilton, Ont., seeks a decree on the ground that her husband, W. H. Tapley, deserted her to live with Mary Gourly in Montreal.

Senator Abbott introduced a bill to incorporate the Incorporated Construction Company of Canada, capital stock $1,000,000, to engage in mining and shipbuilding. The head office will be at Montreal or St. John, N.B. The incorporators include Messrs. J. T. Kirk, C. D. Jones and J. F. Zebley.

PROBABLY A MURDER.

Horrible Butchery of an Italian at Cornwall By a Compatriot.

CORNWALL, June 4.—A row which will result in the death of a young Italian named Peter Gara, aged 17, occurred in a house in York-street about 2 o'clock to-day. A number of Italians were fooling in front of the house when one of their number, John Faro, became annoyed and left the crowd. Returning with a large knife, he called Garro out. When Garro approached Faro immediately rushed at him, driving the knife full length into his bowels, directly under the liver. The victim fell to the ground and his assailant made off and escaped. Doctors in attendance say Garro will die.

The Quarrel Preyed on Her Mind.

GALT, June 4.—A domestic named Gray in the employ of Mr. Augus McBain, quarrelled with one of the farm hands named Mitchell, and the affair preyed upon her mind to such an extent that she took a heavy dose of arsenic. The arsenic had been procured for the purpose of killing rats about a year ago, this the girl got hold of and took a very heavy dose. She is in a very critical condition for a day or two.

The Etata Delivered Up.

IQUIQUE, Chili, June 4.—The steamer Etata arrived here this morning from Tocopilla and has been delivered over to the American warship now here. The Charleston is expected to arrive here to-day.

FOURTH DAY OF TRIAL.

INTENSE INTEREST IN THE BACCARAT TRIAL.

Positive Testimony That the Baronet Who Traces His Ancestry Back to the Line of the Conquerors Cheated at Cards—No Diminution in the Interest.

LONDON, June 4.—The interest taken in the Tranby Croft baccarat scandal trial is as great as ever. The Prince of Wales, who had stayed until late in the morning at a state ball, was among the early arrivals to-day. He was greeted by the audience rising, and he bowed pleasantly right and left ashe moved to the red velvet arm chair on the left of the Chief Justice. Shortly afterwards Sir William Gordon Cumming, dignified and apparently confident in spite of the general belief that the case was going against him, entered the court with his head erect and his grey eyes flashing scorn in the direction of his enemies.

Replying to the questions of Sir Edward Clarke, the leading counsel for the plaintiff, Mr. Wilson said: "When I gave the orders to change the tables after the disclosures of the first night's play I was ready to stake my life that Sir William Gordon Cumming cheated. I and my mother sat down to play on the second night, Sept. 9, believing that the chalk line which we had marked on the table would prevent any attempt to cheat."

"And not a word was said to the plaintiff about it?" asked Sir Edward Clarke in apparent surprise.

"Certainly not," replied Wilson sharply; "what was my word against that of Sir William Gordon Cumming?"

"Plaintiff did not put his hands over the line until he knew his own side won, and then he put over a £10 counter, making his stake £15 instead of £5." "Then," asked Sir Edward Clarke, "why did you not say to Sir William Gordon Cumming, 'You only staked £5'?"

Wilson replied: "Because there were ladies present and it would have been an ungentlemanly thing to have had a row before them."

"And," continued the Solicitor-General, "you went on staking your money after seeing the plaintiff cheat?"

"Yes," replied Wilson coolly.

Did Not Share in the Winnings.

The young gentleman had hardly reached his seat when he was recalled to the witness box at the instance of the Lord Chief Justice, who asked him if he (Lord Coleridge) had rightly understood him to say that he had shared in the winnings of the plaintiff.

"Certainly not, my Lord," replied Mr. Wilson sharply and almost indignantly, as a red flush crossed his face.

Berkeley J. T. Levett, a lieutenant in the Scots Guards, the regiment of which Cumming was Major and Lieut.-Colonel, was the next witness. He evidently dreaded the ordeal. He in substance confirmed Mr. Wilson's testimony in regard to what took place at Tranby Croft.

The witness declared there had been no agreement to watch Sir William playing on the second night, witness on the contrary had purposely avoided watching on that occasion. Witness then testified that he was present at the interview in which Mr. Lycett Green made the statement to the Prince of Wales of what had been discovered. On that occasion the Prince, turning to witness, said: "I believe you, too, saw it." To this remark witness had replied: "Well, I am in an awkward position: we are in the same regiment and he (Sir William) is my captain." Witness had faithfully kept the compact of secrecy. When the plaintiff had asked witness "Could you not say you were mistaken?" the latter replied, "I would for your sake and for the sake of the regiment, but Lycett Green won't. I saw you adding counters."

As the witness made this most damaging statement he appeared to be profoundly agitated, while the now oppressive silence was broken by no other sounds than that of Lieut Levett's voice, as in subdued and faltering tones he thus damned the reputation of his fellow-soldier and late companion and friend.

At no time during the progress of the trial has the attention of the bench, bar and auditors been so plainly and impressively concentrated on a witness as when he slowly pronounced the words:

"I Saw You Adding Counters."

Recovering himself the witness said that at the request of the plaintiff he had consented to see their hostess, Mrs. Wilson, and ascertain what if anything could be done to save Sir William from a shameful exposure. Plaintiff again urged witness in the most pleading manner to do all that was possible to avoid the catastrophe which was impending. Not content with this, the plaintiff had subsequently written witness reminding him of his promise to do all he could in his behalf. After receiving a letter from the plaintiff's lawyer threatening to bring the present action, witness met Sir William, who said that the affair was a desperate conspiracy against him.

The cross-examination of Lieut. Levett developed nothing new of material importance, and entirely failed to shake his direct testimony. The story of the proceedings at Tranby Croft as related by Levett were in startling contrast to the version given by Sir William Gordon Cumming.

Mr. Lycett Green, son-in-law of Mrs. Wilson, was sworn. Witness confirmed the testimony given by Mr. Wilson, so far as it referred to his part in the matter at issue.

While this witness was giving his testimony the foreman of the special jury handed up to Lord Chief Justice Coleridge a letter which had been sent to a juryman and which was couched in threatening and abusive language.

Mr. Lycett Green then turned toward the Chief Justice and said: "Your Lordship, I have also received a letter of the same description as that which has just been handed up to you by the jury."

Resuming his testimony the witness graphically described the events of the second night's play at Tranby Croft, when he had distinctly seen the plaintiff push counters over the line, when he (plaintiff) saw that the card had been favorably declared.

It had been the first impulse of the witness to there and then expose the foul play of Sir William. He had only desisted from so doing because of the presence of the Prince of Wales and the ladies.

He however rose from the table and left the room. After withdrawing from the party witness had sent a note into Mrs. Arthur Wilson reading:

I have seen Sir William Gordon Cumming cheating and cannot remain in the room longer. Something ought to be done to stop the game.

Later witness had asked to be confronted with plaintiff if the latter denied his guilt. Mrs. Lycett Green, daughter of Mrs. Wilson and wife of the last witness, was called to the box. She answered firmly the questions asked her, telling the same story as her companions. She asserted that Gordon Cumming himself taught her the game.

Do You Think I Was Drunk?

Mr. Green was cross-examined by Mr. Gill, who questioned witness as to his duties on the day of the races. Witness said they consisted in entertaining a race party. Mr. Gill remarked that luncheon was going on all the afternoon, perhaps.

"Witness angrily replied: "Do you think I was drunk?" This was followed by loud laughter in court and by "No, no," from Mr. Gill.

Continuing witness said he had not told the Prince of Wales that the plaintiff had made withdrawals of counters when the cards are against him. Mr. Green also repeated his denial that an agreement had been entered into to watch Cumming. He added, however: "But after having been informed that Sir William Cumming was cheating instantly looked at his play on the second night."

Later the witness continued: "I was horrified at the plaintiff's acts at the card table. After this I avoided watching him."

Largeettes Leveled at This Witness.

Mrs. Lycette Green, wife of the previous witness and daughter of Arthur Wilson, sr., was the next witness. Mrs. Green said that in 1890 Cumming dined at her house and there taught her to play baccarat. Mrs. Green explained that she had previously met plaintiff at the house of her mother and she had intimately known a relation of Cumming, for which relation she still had a great regard. Mrs. Green then described the position of the baccarat players during the games played at Tranby Croft in September last and said she heard the Prince of Wales tell plaintiff to put his stakes where they could be seen. Upon one of these occasions Cumming replied: "It is on the paper in front of me." Mrs. Green said she noticed plaintiff on the night in question was "in luck and nothing more."

Witness then gave an account of the event during the second night of the baccarat playing after she had been informed Cumming had been cheating. Mrs. Green's testimony in this respect agreed in every essential detail with that given by the previous witnesses on behalf of the defendant.

Mrs. Green positively declared that she had not mentioned the unpleasant baccarat incident to anybody but her husband until legal action was taken against herself and the other defendants by Cumming.

Sir Edward Clarke had just commenced his cross-examination of Mrs. Green, from which nothing of material interest had transpired, when the court adjourned until to-morrow.

Mrs. Green is a quiet-looking young lady. She answered Sir Charles Russell's questions in a firm, clear voice and showed no nervousness, though she was exposed to the fire of nearly every opera glass and lorgnette in court.

They Belonged to the Prince.

During Mr. Wilson's cross-examination the fact was elicited that the counters used at the baccarat games at Tranby Croft were the property of the Prince of Wales and were a set carried about by him when visiting country houses for the indispensable baccarat.

It is said that Lord Middleton, brother-in-law of Sir William Gordon Cumming, is supplying the ready money needed for the baccarat suit. A despatch from Inverness says that the interest in the trial in the north of Scotland, where the Cummings and the Middletons have seats, is intense. Cumming is said to be a direct descendant of the person of that name who was killed by Robert Bruce, and the family is one of the most ancient in Scotland.

Hundreds of Peasants Perishing from Starvation.

LONDON, June 4.—The Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent gives a pitiable account of the destitution he witnessed in the districts of Kasan, Simbersk, Samara, Nizinh-Novorgood and Penan. Hundreds of persons have died of starvation in the past five weeks.

The peasants in the Simbersk and St. Mara districts have revolted and attacked the corn magazines. A number of conflicts have occurred between the peasants and the troops, and several persons have been killed and many injured. Gloomy harvest prospects increase the horror of the situation. The Minister of the Interior has forbidden any reference to the matter by the newspapers.

To Hunt Down the Brigands.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 4.—The capture by brigands yesterday of a number of passengers on the eastern express, near Tcheresakoi, has aroused the Turkish Government, and decisive measures will be taken to prevent a repetition of the crime. The Governor of the province in which the outrage was perpetrated is organizing a force to pursue the brigands. Herr Israd, the Berlin banker of the captives, to-day started for Kirk-Kilissia, a town 32 miles from Adrianople, having in his possession the $40,000 asked for by the outlaws.

PEANUTS KILLED HIM.

A Remarkable Case Resulting from a Fall.

READING, Pa., June 4.—A post-mortem examination on the body of William Gable, who died suddenly while returning from a game of baseball in West Reading on Saturday afternoon last, has disclosed a case that is as remarkable as it is unusual. It appears that shortly before his death while witnessing the game he had eaten a large quantity of peanuts. As he was passing along the sidewalk on his return he tripped over some obstruction and fell on his face.

The concussion of the fall was at first believed to have caused his death, which occurred within three minutes, but the examination proved that the contents of his stomach were forced up into his throat, and before he could expel them the indigestible peanuts entered his windpipe, causing strangulation.

Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1891.

THE Dominion Government seems not to be able or willing to learn from experience. Even the lesson of the Northwest Rising of 1885, which was brought on by incompetence and maladministration, is lost upon them, and now the ministerial incompetent, Hon. Mr. Dewdney, is administering his department with the same disregard of consequences of the right of the settlers, and of the interests of the country. Even the Speaker of the House seems inclined to constitute himself a partizan in order to prevent an exposure of the misdeeds of the Minister. The Ottawa Free Press says that the present Speaker of the House of Commons seems to regard himself as a sort of protector for the ministerial side of the House. He strained a point to prevent Mr. Davin from exposing the nature of Mr. Dewdney's speculations in settlers' improvements. The conduct of the minister of the interior towards individual settlers was quite pertinent to a motion attacking the management of the department. There was nothing disorderly or even irregular in Mr. Davin's attempt to read letters proving his statements. Certainly Mr. Davin's statement with respect to the minister's tyranny and avarice were more pertinent than Mr. Dewdney's assault upon Mr. Davin, in reference to matters with which neither Parliament nor the public has any concern. But yet Mr. Dewdney was not called to order. The Speaker evidently does not believe in one law for all. He showed his anxiety to serve his party in another way. The ministerialists were anxious to avoid a vote on the motion to adjourn the debate on Mr. Davin's motion, but the Liberals called for a division. In former parliaments it has been usual to have the members called in when the opposition leader demanded the yeas and nays. Mr. Laurier asked for the yeas and nays when the motion to adjourn was put, but the Speaker paid no attention to his request, only giving the order to call in the members after a dozen members had risen in their places and insisted upon a vote being taken.

The Constitutional Aspect

Should the Premier pass away the Government would be ipso facto dissolved, says Canada's constitutional authority, Dr. Bourinot, C. M. G., because the existence of the Government depends on the Premier. Under such circumstances it would be for the Governor-General to call upon some person to serve as Premier. That is a matter entirely within his discretion. He could, for example, call upon a member of the present Cabinet to form a new Administration, or he might call upon an outsider. That person could ask the present members to continue in office. I assume that the present heads of departments, the Ministers of the Crown, would continue until successors has been properly appointed. The Cabinet could not meet except in their capacity as individuals. There must, however, be a Government, and some one would have to be named by His Excellency to form a Cabinet."

Being asked how the session of Parliament would be affected by the Premier's death, Dr. Bourinot replied: "I assume there would be an adjournment, but of course Parliament would need to make provisions for carrying on the public service. This could be done by voting money on account, as is so often done in England and elsewhere. But it may be said that, pending the organization of a new Government, legislation will be at a standstill."

Dr. Bourinot's work on constitutional procedure says: It is the First Minister alone who can advise changes in the administration and recommend the sovereign to fill vacancies therein. If he himself should vacate his office by death or resignation, or dismissal, the Ministry is ipso facto dissolved. Individual Ministers might retain their offices, if permitted by the Sovereign, and might form part of a fresh combination with a fresh head, but there would be a new Ministry, and, as colleagues of the incoming premier, they must make a fresh agreement with him, as when in 1834 Lord Melbourne succeeded Lord Grey as Premier of substantially the same Administration, and in 1868, when Mr. Disraeli became Premier upon the retirement of Earl Derby through ill-health. In the event of the formation of a new Ministry only such as were new members of the Cabinet would have to appeal to the people.

Characteristic Tory Rule.

The surveyed area of Manitoba and the North-West Territories now amounts to 72,144,047. Of this, 55,479,000 acres were surveyed during the five years from 1880 to 1884, in which the boom occurred. There is now no doubt that the surveying of a large part of this immense area, far in advance of settlement, was foolish and useless and involved a great waste of public money. Mr. Blake said that on one surveyed block, 148 miles long and 48 miles wide, there were only 138 homesteads. The Edmonton Bulletin now says that a new survey of many of the already surveyed townships is necessary, and that land guides with surveyor's appliances should accompany homesteaders who are looking for their farms. "There is a general complaint from land seekers in nearly all sections of the district that the survey stakes cannot be found. The surveys were made in 1882, 1883 and 1884, since which time the lines cut through woods have grown up so that they are very difficult to follow, corner stakes have rotted or burned down and mounds have disappeared—if they ever existed, which is doubtful in many cases. As a rule the surveys were roughly done and many inaccuracies and incomplete lines exist which further confuse the intending homesteader." How some of the stakes have been disposed of may be learned from a story related by Mr. Blake. A gentleman who was travelling across the plains overtook an Indian or halfbreed driving in a Red River cart. The contents of the cart attracted his notice and upon examining them he found that they were surveyors' stakes, which the driver had picked up as he went along to make his camp fire. This state of things in characteristic of Tory rule in the Northwest. Lands were surveyed at great expense far in advance of the needs of settlers, the costly stakes were burned for firewood and now, when they are wanted, they cannot be found; the work must be done all over again.—Globe.

Sir A. A. Dorion and Sir John.

An incident, the details of which became public property, caused a great deal of comment in French circles, especially at the burial of Sir A. A. Dorion a day or two ago. It is perhaps not generally known that when Hon. Mr. Dorion accepted the portfolio of justice in the Mackenzie Administration, and when going back to his constituents in Napierville, the then leader of the opposition, Sir John, was opposed to the idea of offering the French leader any opposition. Soon after this Hon. Mr. Dorion retired from the Cabinet and became chief justice of the province of Quebec. The two statesmen met one day before the chief justice left Ottawa, and Sir John, after he had congratulated him with the utmost warmth, said: "Poor Mr. Dorion, we are no longer young, and it may be that neither will last long. Who knows, my friend, but we may undertake the long journey together?" These words, which have turned out to be prophetic, were repeated more than once the day of the funeral as the remains of the greatest of the Dorions were being carried to the Cotes des Neiges; while Sir John lay dying a hundred miles away.

Wall Paper Way Down.

As we have leased the adjacent premises about to be vacated by Mr. Jas. Stenson, boot and shoe merchant, which will be occupied by our fancy goods and wall paper department, as soon as the necessary alterations are made, our present immense stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore must be greatly reduced in order to facilitate removal. This great clearing sale of wall paper will continue for the next 30 days, regardless of prices. Cost marks won't count in this sale. The stock must be cleared out, or at all events reduced so that it can be handled easily. It comprises full lines of all kinds of wall paper of the very latest styles and designs, which we got in this spring from the best makers on the continent. A particularly fine lot of gold papers will be sold at a sacrifice. A great variety of job ends will be cleared out at almost any price. This is the chance of a life time. Remember this sale will last 30 days, when we expect to remove the wall paper department down stairs into the new store. The stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore is by far the largest and most complete in town, and those who come early will get the benefit of a choice selection. This is a genuine slaughter sale of wall paper. We ask you to call and be convinced of the big bargains that are being offered the public at the Peterborough Bookstore.

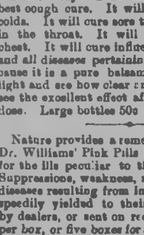
A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.



Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

"Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

SUN LIFE

ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Life Assurances in force, 1st January, 1891	$16,759,255.92
Increase over previous year	2,421,373 84
New Applications received in 1890	6,371,599 15
Increase over 1889	2,268,858.60
Cash income for year ending 31st December, 1890	889,078 87
Increase over 1889	295,938 35
Assets at 31st December, 1890	2,473,514.19
Increase over 1889	697,691.47
Reserve for Security for Policy-Holders	2,109,922.68
Increase over 1889	547,732.71
Surplus over all Liabilities and Capital Stock	238,175.69
Increase over 1889	75,649.95
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961.65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6.04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)		$64,824 07
" " " " 1886, "		80,452 97
" " " " 1890, (four years)		222,175 69

THE BACARRET SCANDAL.

OPENING OF THE CASE FOR THE DEFENCE.

A Witness Swears Positively That He Observed the Plaintiff Repeatedly Cheating—Has the Guardsman Staked His Honor On a Losing Case?

LONDON, June 3.—The baccarat trial was continued to-day before the Queen's Bench Division of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice. There was the usual large attendance of fashionable people.

General opinion seemed to be that the heir apparent, disgusted with his experience of yesterday, would find some excuse which would enable him to escape any further attendance in court, but the Prince of Wales, accompanied by his private secretary, Sir Francis Knollys, entered the court in better condition, it would seem, than upon the occasions of his two previous visits, bowing and smiling to the audience assembled, who respectfully rose to their feet as the jovial heir apparent appeared. As he drew near the bench the Prince bowed to the Lord Chief Justice and to the ladies on the latter's right, and then after a quick glance around the court, in which he seemed to take in everything, he settled himself down comfortably in the red velvet arm chair on the Chief Justice's left, wiped his bald spot tenderly with a white handkerchief, settled the creases of his clothes with a gentle hand, adjusted his necktie carefully and was prepared for the business of the day.

The Defence.

Arthur Stanley Wilson, son of the millionaire owner of Tranby Croft and the leading stockholder in the Wilson line of steamers, entered the witness box as the first witness for the defence. Mr. Wilson testified to the fact that on the first night of the baccarat playing at Tranby Croft, Sept. 8, he saw a red counter representing £5 croupier of paper in front of Cumming.

When the latter's tableau won Sir William had his hand in front of him and he also had another £5 counter in the palm of his right hand. The baronet, according to witness, then looked at Sir Edward Somerset's hand, and seeing that he held a natural and a court card he (Sir William) at once dropped the £5 counter from his right hand, and was paid on both of the counters he had thus placed on the table.

This evidence caused a great sensation. Wilson said he saw the same thing repeated by Cumming the same evening, and he then told Levett that the baronet was cheating. When Wilson informed Levett of what he had observed Levett said it was "impossible," that the witness must be mistaken. Wilson told Levett to watch Sir William. Levett followed his advice, and he also saw the baronet cheat in the manner described. Levett upon being convinced by personal observation that what Wilson said was true, exclaimed, "This is too hot."

An Indignant Novice.

Witness was indignant when asked if he was not a novice in the game of baccarat. Wilson replied that he had played the game often before the notorious games at Tranby Croft, and claimed to thoroughly understand the game in all its details.

Continuing, Wilson said he saw Cumming cheat again. The baronet had a £5 counter on the table and directly he discovered that the card turned up was favorable to him he pushed a £2 counter forward with a pencil, which he held in his hand, and was paid £7. The witness then detailed the subsequent conversation he had with Levett in the latter's bedroom, saying that when he told the latter of what he had seen Levett exclaimed: "My God! to think of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Gordon Cumming being caught cheating at cards!" Witness said, "I asked what on earth are we to do?" To this Levett replied, "For goodness sake, don't ask me. He is in my own regiment and was my own captain. What am I to do?" Wilson said: "I then told my mother of what I had seen and mother said, 'For goodness sake don't have a scandal here.' I then told her I would have a proper table prepared for baccarat playing so that a repetition of the conduct we had observed would be impossible. Referring to a question on the subject young Wilson said there was absolutely no agreement to watch Cumming play on the second night. The table used for baccarat on that occasion was a long pantry table covered with green baize. As upon the previous night the Prince of Wales occupied the position of banker and Gen. Williams acted as croupier. The witness believed the plaintiff again had a paper and some of his counters on the table. He had other counters in the breast pocket of his dress coat.

The plaintiff added the witness had a long thick carpenter's pencil in his hand. On this pencil the words "Tranby Croft" were stamped. Cumming staked a £5 counter and the Prince of Wales gave cards to Lady Coventry, who took a seven, which was considered a good card from the pack. The plaintiff looked over Lady Coventry's hand and the witness then saw Sir William's hand go out and gradually advance the white line marked on the baccarat table. It then came round to the Prince of Wales' turn to take a card and he took one and said, "I am baccarat," the card being bad. Immediately upon hearing this Cumming pushed over the line a £10 counter. The plaintiffs' tableau won and the Prince of Wales paid him a fiver (£5 note), overlooking the other counter, which the plaintiff had pushed over the line. Thereupon Cumming exclaimed, "Beg pardon, sir, there is another tenner here which you have forgotten." The Prince of Wales saying, "I wish you would put your stakes forward more conspicuously," paid the additional £10. "Later in the game," said she witness, "Cumming flicked another counter over the line with his pencil. When the disclosure was made, the Prince of Wales questioned Cumming. Levett and Lycett Green in regard to what they had seen of a wrong nature during the baccarat playing, and Green asked to be confronted with the plaintiff."

During his cross-examination Wilson said baccarat was played at Tranby Croft in 1889, "but father objected to it and it was not played there again until upon the occasion of the Prince of Wales' visit in September, 1890.

May Seal Under Other Flags.

LONDON, June 3.—A despatch from Vancouver says that parties interested in the Behring Sea fisheries are known to be getting ready to sail under the German or Italian flags in the event of a close time arr ange ment between Great Britain and the United States. The sealers had made ready for a grand harvest this season, and do not feel like being balked, whatever the two nations may agree upon.

HON. ELIJAH LEONARD.

Sketch of the Career of the London Senator Who Died on the 14th.

At the time of his death Hon. Senator Leonard was in his 77th year. He has resided in London for the last 53 years—over half a century, and the business which he established on a very small scale has grown and multiplied until it is now one of the largest and most profitable manufacturing enterprises in the Province. He was born in Syracuse, N. Y., in September, 1814. The subject of this sketch was the second son, and residing at home until fifteen years of age, he worked in his father's foundry, the family having carried on the business of ironmongers for 200 years. In 1830 the father was offered inducements to take charge of the Long Point furnace in Western Ontario, and moved here with his family. Elijah was given his liberty at 19 years of age, and in company with the late W. C. Vanbrocklin, established the fifth foundry in the Province at St. Thomas in 1834. He remained there four years and removed to London. In 1857 he was a candidate for Parliament for this city, but was defeated by Hon. John Carling. He served as a member of the City Council, and was elected Mayor of the city in 1857. Five years later he contested the Malahide division for a seat in the Legislative Council and won the seat in the Reform interest. He continued as representative of this division until 1867, when he was appointed a Senator under the British North America Act. He was an influential member of the Reform party, and attended to his legislative duties up till the session of 1890, when failing health prevented his attendance at Ottawa. The management of the business of late years has devolved upon his sons, Frank E. and Charles W. Mr. Leonard married Miss Emeline Woodman, of Buxton, Maine, in 1847, and besides the two sons mentioned, their family includes two daughters, Ella A. being married to Mr. W. C. Barron, of this city, and Mary A. to Mr. J. C. McCorkhill, of Cowansville, Quebec. The late Senator was a thorough mechanic, and possessed a rare head for mechanism, and business, too. His energy and ability made him one of the wealthiest men in this city. He was one of the original stockholders of the Huron & Erie Loan and Savings Company, and served several years as Director; he was succeeded on the Board by his son Frank. He was also one of the chief promoters of the L. & P. S. RR. The family residence on Talbot street was long considered one of the finest residences here. His widow survives him.—London Free Press.

THE LATE SENATOR LEONARD.

How a Beautiful Flower was Named.

An old legend tells of two lovers walking by the river Rhine. The lady begged her suitor to pluck a little pale-blue flower growing on the bank. In doing so, he fell into the water and was drowned; but, while sinking, he threw the flower to her, and cried:—"Forget me not!" Thousands of women will never forget what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for them. It is prepared especially to cure those diseases from which they alone suffer, and often in silence, rather than consult a physician—as periodical pains, weak back, prolapsus, and all uterine troubles. Purely vegetable, and guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. b

A Spring Medicine.

There are few who do not at this season feel the need of a spring medicine, and to all such we recommend Lane's Family Medicine as the best. This is a pleasant herb drink made by pouring boiling water on the dried roots and herbs. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1. It is the best as well as the pleasantest cure for constipation and headache. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Eden street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

HEAD OFFICE—103 Yonge St., Toronto.

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the great desideratum. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not cross this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Abusing the Bonus Business.

Peterborough seems to be bound to be a manufacturing centre, and the latest development of civic energy will be watched with interest. At the council meeting last night, it was agreed to give a bonus to the Doherty organ factory under certain conditions, but a bonus is given with every pound of hawley bros.' peerless teas, in the shape of extra value for the finest goods in the world.

Excursion to Toronto.

Fare for the round trip, tickets good to return on the following day, only $1 75. Leave by regular trains, and go by either the Lake Shore or Lindsay route. Tickets to be had of the committee, Messrs. O C. Rowse, W. Hamilton, G. W. Morrow, and T. Barrie or at G.T.R station. 1d

Opening of the Chemong Line.

On Monday next, June 8th, the summer trians on the Chemong line will be put in operation. The time-table is follows. First train will leave Peterboro' at 8:30 a.m., arriving at Chemong at 8.55; returning will depart at 9:10 and reach Peterborough at 9:35. The second train leaves town at 5:20 p.m., reaches Chemong at 5:45, leaves again at 6 o'clock and returns to Peterborough at 6:25. It is expected the Chemong line will do a good business this summer conveying tourist and campers to Chemong lake, which is springing into prominence as a summer resort.

A Soldiers Pic-nic.

This morning the steamer Daisy with scow attached left Peterborough for Jubilee Point with a party of about sixty people aboard, who were joined at different points on the river by other excursionists until the number swelled to over two hundred or over. The occasion was the first annual pic-nic of Capt. Johnston's company of the 46th Battalion, all Cavan men who drove from their homes to the nearest points on the river. They were dressed in uniform, and were accompanied by their wives, children and sweethearts, as well as a number of volunteers from Peterborough. Capt. Johnston intends giving his men a similar outing every year, and no better spot could be found for a day's recreation than Jubilee Point, in Rice Lake. The soldier's pic-nic was favoured with fine weather, and doubtless a pleasant day was spent by all.

Cricket at Campbellford.

An instalment of a cricket eleven, consisting of four or five men, went to Campbellford this morning for a match with the club in that town. Sam Rey, owing to sudden illness in his family, was kept home at the last moment, and several other prominent players failed to turn up. It seems that sport—especially cricket—is practically dead in town this year. At least it is in a state of suspended animation. It is no less than a disgrace that a town with the abundance of first class cricketting material that Peterborough possesses, should allow allow the great game to languish and die of sheer neglect. If some other club had knocked the local club out on the green, it would be some justification for the supine attitude of local cricketers; but for them to stand still in their tracks and die like a rush light going out is—disgusting.

A Dominion Day Delight.

The Library Committee of the Charlotte street Methodist church announce a delightful excursion to Stony Lake on July 1st, by G.T.R. and steamer "Golden City." The steamer will pass through the several beautiful lakes en route to the "A.C.A." camp site, Juniper Island. She will continue her voyage to Julian's, Bonshaw, etc. Hot water and tea for dinner will be provided by the committee. Persons desirous of spending a day of rare enjoyment will find that this trip will fill the bill exactly. Do not neglect to arrange your Dominion Day enjoyment with reference to "taking in" this delightful excursion. Tickets for round trip, 80 cents only; children under twelve years of age, half price. Tickets procurable at G.T. R. station on morning of excursion, or of members of the Committee— T. Barrie, Secretary, and W. Hamilton, Chairman.

Out on the Warpath.

The Street and Bridge Committee, accompanied by the Street Inspector, are making their annual tour to see what street improvements are required in the different wards of the town—what must be done and what can be deferred—especially the latter—so persons will say who live on streets that will get the go-by. It is to be hoped that the committee will decide to begin the putting down of block sidewalks, similar to the excellent crossings that are being put in. Both the Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee and the Inspector say that the block walks are, foot for foot, as cheap as plank sidewalks, and as they will last about from five to ten times as long, the odds are largely in favour of block sidewalks. With a porous soil like Peterborough, there could be no possible better foundation for block pavements than this town. In the matter of permanent improvements, what is best, is in the end, also the cheapest.

Bay of Quinte Conference.

The ministerial side of the Methodist conference now in session at Napanee has done some work already.

New districts have been added to the conference—Bowmanville and Uxbridge, and there are now 158 circuits and missions to be supplied.

An enthusiastic temperance meeting was held Tuesday evening. The addresses were delivered by Revs. C. W. Watch, J. W. Totten and J. C. Wilson. A gloom is cast over the opening of the conference in the death of the Rev. Dr. Bredin, one of the oldest ministers of the church, an ex-president, and for many years chairman of district and secretary of conference. Dr. Bredin died at his home in Colborne after a brief illness, and he was buried at Baltimore. It is reported that six old ministers have died during the year.

Norwood "Registrations."

Through the instrumentality of Court Asphodel, Independent Order of Foresters, Norwood residents will be given an opportunity of hearing the celebrated Cosgrove Family Concert Company, Friday and Saturday evening in the town hall.

The Rev. W. Peer, pastor of the Baptist church here, last week returned from a very successful fishing expedition in North East ings. He succeeded in capturing over 500 trout, some of them measuring sixteen inches in length. Our local celebrities in this line will require to look well to their laurels.

Mr. H. G. Buck, of the roller mills here, has been appointed miller for the Patrons of Industry of this section of the riding. Twenty lodges have contracted to be their business with Mr. Buck, and as these lodges have an average membership of twenty, it means, virtually, that Mr. Buck, apart from his large shipping and other trade, is assured of the trade of 400 farmers. This means considerable to Norwood, as well as to Mr. Buck.

At the annual meeting of the Norwood Mechanics' Institute held on May 28th the following officers were elected:—

PRESIDENT.—J. G. Fitz-Gibbon.
1st VICE-PRESIDENT.—Dr. Pettigrew.
2nd VICE PRESIDENT.—W. Rutherford.
SEC.-TREAS.—W. A Richardson.
DIRECTORS.—Messrs. W. H. Stephenson, W. E Roxburg, J. W. Clark, T. H. Pearce, J. A. Harper, John Finlay, John Thompson, Geo. Duffield and C. N. Callendar.

The Provincial Executive of the Ontario Mission met in the Bible society's room, Toronto, on Monday last. The following being present: President R. J. Colville, Peterborough; Vice. President Rev. J. A. R, Dickson, B D., Galt; Mr. E A. Hardy, B A., Lindsay; Secy.-Treas. Miss Casson, London; and Mr. Thos. Morris, Hamilton, Assistant Secretary. The business transacted was with reference to the International Convention at Minneapolis, July 9 12. As far as known some 43 delegates will go from Ontario. All societies were urged to send a delegate, for the reflex influence on the work would be of great benefit to the societies. It was gratifying to know that the town of Napanee was sending two, Kingston Ottawa, Perth, St. Catharines, Aylmer, London, Galt, Guelph and other smaller towns are sending delegates. Toronto is sending twenty-five. Very low fare has been secured on the railways — one fare for return trip. Montreal and Quebec are sending a large delegation, and a united effort is being made to secure the International Convention for Canada for 1892. Provision is being made for 15,000 delegates, and this will be the biggest Christian convention ever held.

The executive appointed a committee to draft a new constitution, to be submitted at the convention to be held here in October, for adoption.

The draft programme for the convention was carefully revised, and we can promise our citizens a great spiritual feast in October. The very best is being secured from the neighbouring Republic and our own Dominion. It is very gratifying to see the rapid progress the work is making in this Province. We have now enrolled 455 societies in Ontario, besides the junior organizations.

The Executive Committee will act with the local union here in making all arrangements for the convention and with the hearty co-operation of the Christian people we shall give our visitors a pleasant and profitable time.

The New Montreal High School Building.

The following description of the new high school building now in course of erection at Montreal, P. Q, will be read with interest, in view of the fact that a new high school building for Peterborough is being thought of:

The building forms the four sides of a hollow square, the one-half of which is devoted to the boys, while their sisters occupy the opposite sections. In the centre is a spacious courtyard, which affords the double purpose of giving light and air to the inner rooms and affording recreation grounds for the scholars. The basement floor contains covered play rooms, fuel rooms and lavateries, the latter being fitted with Smead's dry air closets, constructed on a principle which conforms to the most stringent sanitary requirements. On the ground floor are sixteen class rooms, averaging 35 x 25 feet, eight on either side, the centre of the front elevation of this room being occupied by the board room and and offices of the department, while the corresponding portion of the rear section gives space to a lofty gymnasium fully equipped with all modern athletic appliances. The upper flat also contains sixteen class rooms of similar dimensions to those beneath, while a spacious lecture theatre, 90x84 feet, is arranged between the two wings over the "gymmy," and four smaller halls occupy the front over the offices. All these many apartments are connected with lofty corridors some twelve feet wide and broad stairways in each corner.

The ventilation and heating of such a building as this was a matter of no small importance, particularly in view of the fact that thousands upon thousands of Canada's future men and women were to spend the most sensitive years of their lives within its walls. A deputation of the board visited Boston and New York and other eastern cities, carefully inspecting and inquiring into the methods adopted in their large educational centres. On returning their report was considered by the full board and at length Smead's dry air system was unanimously adopted as combining all the advantages with the minimum disadvantages of the rival systems.

What is Home Without Wall Paper.

Some Facts that Should Interest all who Require Wall Paper—A—Time to Buy.

Occasionally the opportunity turns up whereby one can get in the neighborhood of one dollar's worth for about fifty cents. It is not of so much consequence if the article on sale is something not in general use, but if it should be such as there is timely use for then the chance is worth taking advantage of. Our reporter noticing that H. Thompson & Co., were sending out large parcels of wall paper looked into the shop to enquire who were the buyers and if house-renting boom now on had increased the demand for paper.

"I should say it has," said Mr. Thompson. "The new tenant always insists that things shall be freshened up for him. We don't complain—it's trade for us."

"Figure patterns seem to be out of date," said the reporter.

"If you mean geometrical patterns, they are," was the reply. "The styles seem to run into scrolls and floral designs, and the pattern is larger than a few years ago. We have hundreds in gold, silver and tints, all on suitable grounds. Of course we have to keep borders to match, and the taste of customers in the way of paper is so varied, and in the main so good, that we have to be extremely careful in selections. Of course the stock is so big that the variety is practically unlimited."

"Where are they made?" Well, no one maker has the preference. Each has his speciality. Our papers come to us from New York, Boston, Buffalo and the dealers in England. We have to order ahead to get them here in time.

Going up the staircase to the paper room on the second flat, our reporter found the walls lined with convenient racks filled with papers of hundreds of styles. The show room proper, neatly carpeted and well lighted, afforded an excellent opportunity to inspect the beautiful papers laid out on stands of convenient height. One wall of the paper room was hung with samples of papers and borders very handsome and attractive.

After attending to a number of customers who came up to the show room, Mr. Thompson said: "The stock, as you see, is large, and we are anxious to run it down. To do this, we are making a special cut in prices. Every line on roll will be sold out of stock. We have no remnants or odd lots. Regular lines pay better than a few rolls of this and that. These papers you see here are capital, light colors for bedrooms, and with this border they make a pleasing thing to look at. These other borders are all suitable. The same thing can be said of every pattern you see. Some are beautifully adapted for parlours, others for halls and dining rooms, and so on. Combinations can be made for shops. These are specially for ceilings, and are complete. The reduction we are making covers every line, as I have said.

What's the difference? Well, largely in favor of the customer. The customer sees the inducement to buy and buys. Prices are reduced so as to make it a matter of gain to the buyer and enable us to reduce stock which is the object we have in view. "How long will the low prices last?" Only for the next 30 days. The buyer that needs paper will come in at once. They are doing so now though we have'nt advertised the sale only one day. I tell you there's no better value and if I was to talk for an hour I could not describe only a tithe of the stock so varied and good it is. If your friends need paper tell them to come to Thompson & Co's and get a share of the bargains going. 3d

A Magnificent Appropriation.

The Dominion Supplementary Estimates Contain the Enormous Sum of $5,000 Appropriated for the Completion of the Trent Valley Canal.

The supplementary estimates made public show that the Dominion Government will ask Parliament to vote the enormous sum of $5,000, for completing the Trent Valley Canal—about enough to purchase the spades and picks. The promise has been kept—"a sum has been placed in the estimates." Our local representatives are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts to promote this important work. $5,000 will build a few lock gates, and perhaps keep the old scow at Hastings afloat, unless another election comes on, in which case it won't go very far.

A Year of Anniversary Celebrations.

It has been pointed out that few persons are aware of the fact that next year is one of very significant celebrations. It is the twenty-fifth anniversary of Canadian Confederation, the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of responsible government in the country, the one hundredth anniversary of the convocation of the first Parliament of Upper and Lower Canada, the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Montreal, and the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, and the universal anniversary of the birth of the late John Smith.

Canada at the Jamacia Exhibition.

Canada carried off the largest number of awards at the Jamacia exhibition outside of Jamacia herself. So far as received the awards for Canada are 209. Among the leading countries are: England, 141; United States, 77; Barbadoes, 77; Germany, 37; St. Vincent, 46; Scotland, 33. Canada gets 91 gold medals and 16 diplomas of honor, the two highest classes of awards. England gets 94 gold medals and 19 diplomas of honor; United States, 44 gold medals and 5 diplomas of honor. There are still more awards to come in for Canada, which will increase the total number of gold medals and diplomas of honor.

A FIERCE SEA FIGHT.

One of the Bloodiest Naval Battles Ever Recorded Takes Place in the Harbor of Valparaiso.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—News of the fiercest sea fight that has taken place during the whole of the Chilian war has just been received here. It took place in the harbor of Valparaiso on April 26 between the insurgent cruiser Magillanes and the Government torpedo boats Alden, Condell and Lynch, four days after the encounter between the same vessels at Channel Bay. After the latter battle the Magillanes decided to attack the Government ships and if possible destroy them before they could again be fitted for sea. Favored by darkness the Magillanes crept into the harbor of Valparaiso and began the attack by ranging close alongside the already crippled Alden and firing a broadside into her that did terrible execution. Nearly half of the torpedo boat's crew were either killed or wounded and the vessel was completely riddled. Getting clear of the Alden the Magillanes at once attacked the Lynch but her fire was returned with interest. The smokestack of the Lynch was blown away and a boat containing ten men, who was been sent to try to attack the rebel vessel with a torpedo boat, was blown out of the water. The Condell had steamed to the outside of the Magillanes and was shot through and through. Over forty of her crew were lying dead or dying on her decks but her guns were untouched. Suddenly the rebel vessel began to move astern and ceased firing. The night being dark the Government steamers were unknowingly firing into each other and the Condell began to fill rapidly. The trick was not discovered until the Magillanes had turned and steaming across the stern of the Cordelia poured in a broadside that nearly demolished the latter, dismounting her guns and killing fourteen and wounding six more of the crew. The rebel steamer then steamed out of the harbor at full speed and was only hit once. Over 100 men were killed in the encounter.

THE M'GREEVY SCANDAL.

He Will Not Willingly Allow the Privileges and Elections Committee to Examine His Books.

OTTAWA, June 4.—The Privileges and Elections Committee resumed its inquiry into the alleged McGreevy-Langevin scandal this morning. Another desultory debate took place on the exact position in which the books of Michael Connolly (produced yesterday) were now in, whether in the possession of the committee or in the custody of Michael Connolly. Yesterday Connolly refused to give them up, but the committee decided that he had a right to do so, and agreed to represent the matter to the House. Finally it was agreed yesterday that the books be marked for identification. This was done, but afterwards Mr. Connolly took them in his possession, locking them in a trunk in a room off the committee room and putting the key in his pocket.

Mr. Ferguson, counsel for Connolly, was asked if the books were now to be given to the committee, and in reply said that they were not, but Michael Connolly was willing to be examined on any item that was in them.

Mr. Tarte pointed out that Michael Connolly was already partially examined in regard to these books, and distinctly said that he never examined them—never kept them, as his time was wholly employed on the works and he knew nothing at all about them.

Mr. Ives made a bad break when he said "those on this side" were satisfied with the books in the position they were in.

Mr. Mills: Which side? (Laughter.)

Mr. Ives: Oh, I mean on this side of the room. (Laughter.)

Mr. Choquette: I want to know if I can go and look over the expense account for the Lewis graving dock between 1883 and 1885, to see if the entry is there of the $30,000 paid to Thomas McGreevy.

Mr. Girouard: Certainly, I think you would have a right to do so.

Mr. Connolly: I refuse to let Mr. Choquette examine them.

Sir John Thompson showed that the enquiry was very different and not analagous to to that before a court of justice, but even before such a court a judge or juror was entitled to examine the books, so as to ascertain if the witness was telling the truth. (Hear, hear). He moved that a sub-committee, comprising the Chairman, Mills, Langelier, Sir John Thompson and Chapleau be appointed to prepare a report, to be presented to the House in regard to this matter of the books.

In answer to a question Connolly replied that he objected to anyone seeing the books because there were many unsettled claims in them.

Mr. Daly: You object to certain contractors getting information from them?

Connolly: Yes.

Mr. Mills: Contractors for the committee?

Mr. Daly: No; but there may be friends of contractors on the committee.

It was decided to postpone further examination of witness until the sub-committee reported.

J. Northey was instructed to build a bridge for cattle to cross between lots 7 in the 13th and 14th concessions. A new road beat was formed across the west end of east half of lot 21, concession 12, known as the Richmond road. Morgan Adams was appointed pathmaster instead of James Murdock who left the limits. HIS LAST DAY

The Closing Hours of Sir John's Life.

IN THE THROES OF DEATH ALL DAY

A Glimmer of Consciousness to the Close.

His Remarkable Vitality a Marvel to the Doctors, Who Said It Would Be a Miracle if He Lived Throughout the Night, Yet Live He Did—The Stoppage of the Issuance of Bulletins Told the Public that the End Was at Hand.

OTTAWA, June 6, 2.15 a.m. The doctor expects the thread of the Premier's existence to part within the hour. He is too far gone for the giving of symptoms. That he is in life is all that can be said.

The sun was rising clear and strong Friday morning when the carriages containing the newspaper correspondents arrived at Earnscliffe. Mr. Hall met them with the intelligence that the Premier on being moved had gasped for breath. His feeble heart fluttered, and the attendants felt that they already stood in the shadow now brooding over the First Minister's bed. The attending physician at 7 o'clock posted the following bulletin:

ERNSCLIFFE, 7 a.m.

There is no change to report in Sir John Macdonald's condition this morning, and no new facts to record. He has been very somnolent all night and exhibited no restlessness whatever. R. W. POWELL, M.D.

All day there was a feverish anxiety to learn the result of the consultation, at which Dr. Ross of Montreal was present. Many have maintained all along and up to this afternoon believed that Sir John would pull through. Rev. Father McWilliams of Railton, an old friend of the Premier's, said to your correspondent at 4 o'clock, in reply to an assurance that death was inevitable: "I yet cling to the belief that he will not die; perhaps a wish is father to the thought, but still I think he will recover."

A Startling Deliverance.

Just as the hour arrived for the meeting of the House the last hopes of those members who, like Dr. Sproule, have thought that the case was not hopeless, were dashed by the following bulletin:

ERNSCLIFFE, June 5, 2 p.m.—At our consultation to-day we find Sir John Macdonald altogether in a somewhat alarming state. His strength, which has gradually failed him during the past week, shows a marked decline since yesterday. He shows still a slight flickering of consciousness. Respiration 33, pulse 120, more feeble and irregular than heretofore. His hours of life are steadily waning.

R. W. POWELL, M.D.
H. P. WRIGHT, M.D.
J. A. GRANT, M.D.
G. ROSS, M.D.

Dr. Ross, agreeing with his colleagues that no human help could avail, took the 5 o'clock train for Montreal. The other consulting physicians departed and Dr. Powell was again left alone with the dying man.

As Sir James Grant said, the bulletin puts things very plainly. They had said all in it that it was necessary to say. Sir John was weaker than he has been yet.

Dr. H. P. Wright said: "The Premier is visibly weaker. When the end will come we cannot say precisely. It may not be to-day or even to-morrow, but it might be at any time, and is certain and cannot be long."

The End Fast Approaching

Everyone was prepared for the following bulletin:

ERNSCLIFFE, 7.05 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald became unconscious about 4 p.m.; his end is fast approaching. R. W. POWELL, M.D.

Before posting this bulletin on the gate post at Earnscliffe all the old bulletins were taken down and this one put up, held by small, flat sticks, which made it look in the dim light of the lantern like a frame of mourning. Immediately the operator in the tent on the adjoining common flashed the intelligence over the city and country: "The end is near." In a short time cabs rolled up with correspondents from the press gallery, who found a little crowd of the general public at the street corner, where a second copy of the bulletin was posted. Passing down into the Earnscliffe crescent, a little knot of men were standing at the turn—Hon. John Hall, Col. Macpherson, George Johnson, Lawrence Fortescul and Inspector O'Leary. With grave faces and low tones they were discussing the despairing news just sent from inside the gray walls. Most of them had been watchers outside or in, and now gathered together feeling that their labors were over. Just one week ago the occasion for their help had arisen. Col. Macpherson, who is a cousin of Sir John Macdonald, went inside the house and joined Messrs. Pope, Beard and Sparks, who have been in constant attendance from the first. Hon. Edgar Dewdney, Minister of the Interior, and Mrs. Dewdney, old and close friends of Sir John and Lady Macdonald, were also there. In the sick room sat Lady Macdonald and Mrs. Dewdney and Dr. Powell. On the couch lay the Prime Minister in the throes of dissolution. Death stood by. Twice did the icy fingers grasp at the feebly beating heart, and twice were they unlocked by the intervention of the physician with stimulants. The great general had beaten many foes, and not without an effort was he now to surrender. For seven days and nights he had struggled hard against the conqueror of mankind, and even in these last moments nature came to the aid of one of her favored sons and took the place of that indomitable will which was now in mortal subjection. Outside the groups waited in suspense, turning their eyes towards the gate whenever any one came out, in expectation that they brought the final news. The cable correspondents had the operator open the wire to Cameo in readiness to send the expected intelligence to the London press.

Hon. John Carling came down and stood a few minutes talking with Mr. Hall. A fresh arrival from the city inquired if the report of death was true. Rev. Father McWilliams, an old and intimate friend of the Premier, who has all along refused to believe the worst, came up to learn if there was no hope. On being told there was not he was visibly affected and turned and went away. He might be taken as a type of the thousands throughout the Dominion who regard the Premier's departure as a deep and personal loss. Indeed one of the features of the scenes about Earnscliffe during the past week was the number of old Parliamentarians and citizens who have inquired daily at the gate for the very latest intelligence of the leader whose death breaks the last link between to-day and long ago. They recalled one of his favorite expressions, "Too long the veteran lags superfluous on the stage," and told how he used to utter it deprecatingly in private and public 30 years ago.

The Verdict of the Doctors.

At 10.30 Drs. Sir James Grant and H. P. Wright arrived and went inside. In about half an hour they came out and were immediately surrounded by eager, anxious eyes. Sir James Grant said: "He is going fast, this is the last flicker in the socket, his condition may be described as one of general prostration and debility. There is a little consciousness even in his extreme state. I believe there will be a little consciousness to the end. He can swallow a little champagne. There is every indication of impending dissolution within a few hours."

Dr. Wright said that a couple of hours ago the end had apparently arrived, but the patient was revived by stimulants. It was now only a question of a few hours, though he may last through the night. The trouble was partly with the heart, combined with other causes. They would not issue a bulletin, as it was of no use.

At midnight everything was settled for the night. More lights were burning in the windows of the house, but the profound quiet was unbroken. During the evening death had been hourly expected, and at midnight the doctor believed the patient would live for several hours. Rev. Mr. Bogert, who had been in the house since between 8 and 9 o'clock, was told by Dr. Powell he might go home for two or three hours; that the Premier's life would likely go out at daybreak. At 10 o'clock his respiration was 45 and at 11 o'clock, an hour later, his weakness had increased and the breathing became so labored that the respiration had arisen to 54. At midnight when the correspondent called he saw Col. Macpherson. He said the watches for the night would be kept by Mr. Sparks and himself and Mr. Hugh John Macdonald and Mr. White. No bulletin were issued. The few visitors who came to the gate lifted the lantern of the watchman to read the 6 o'clock report tacked on the post. The Governor-General, with one of his aide-de-camps, walked over to make what will be his last nightly visit. He was told that Sir John was lying unconscious, but that at 11 o'clock he took a very small quantity of nourishment. In the city there was the same intense interest as on last Friday night, and the reports brought by inquirers at Earnscliffe were eagerly passed about.

DIDN'T LOVE HIS NEIGHBOR.

And Undertook to Shoot His Dog, But Got Peppered Himself.

WIARTON, June 5.—At Oliphant, a settlement, six miles west of here, yesterday, a man named Abercrombie, who had just returned from Wiarton, where he loaded up with whisky, loaded his gun and proceeded to the house of a neighbor named Cook, with whom he had a dispute, and fired at Cook's dog but missed. Cook immediately returned the fire, shooting Abercrombie through the leg. The bullet entered high up in the thigh, and taking a course downward emerged just about the knee. The victim laid on the ground while his little son went home for the horse and rig. Cook has been arrested.

She Left a Note Behind.

WATFORD, June 5.—Early on Monday morning last, Maggie E. Johnston, the 17-year-old niece of Jesse Neff, lot 21, 4th con., N. E. R. Warwick, left the home of her uncle, where she has resided for the past three years, and since that time no trace of her whereabouts can be learned by her anxious relatives. The girl left a note stating that they would not see her again. No cause can be assigned for her mysterious departure, as she always appeared contented and was treated as one of the family.

The Behring Sea bill passed the first reading in the House of Lords yesterday.

M. Robiedmostzeff, chief of the Russian Hold synod, has issued regulations, which provides that students of all religious denominations must attend lessons in the orthodox catachism, and all industrial establishments must have an orthodox church within a distance of 20 kilometres.

John Conway, the steamship fireman charged with the murder of the 15-year-old boy Martin, whose body was found floating in a sailor's bag in the harder dock, was committed for trial at Liverpool yesterday. When arraigned Conway at first declared he was "regularly guilty," and instantly afterwards protested he was innocent.

A Day's Drowning Accidents.

SARNIA, June 5.—Gordon, the 7-year-old son of Dr. McLean, registrar of Lambton, was drowned in the river here this afternoon by falling off a raft under a dock. The body has been recovered.

WINDSOR, June 5.—Daniel Crawford, deck hand on the schooner Rob Roy, was knocked overboard by the swinging of a boom when opposite Fighting Island yesterday and drowned. He was aged 19, and is said to belong to Highgate, Ont.

PLAYED WITH A CHEAT.

THE HOSTESS OF TRANBY CROFT EXAMINED.

Another Day of the Baccarat Scandal Trial—Sir Charles Russell's Scathing Denunciation of the Plaintiff—A Bad Outlook For Baronet Cummings.

LONDON, June 5.—The baccarat case was resumed this morning. The baccarat counters were passed over to the jury for inspection. Mrs. Lycett Green was again called to the witness box and the cross-examination of the lady, which was yesterday interrupted by adjournment, was resumed by Sir Edward Clarke. The witness, who was fully as self-possessed as she had shown herself to be during the ordeal of yesterday, was in cross-examination taken over the old ground of the arrangement of the day, the disposition about it of the guests and discovery of the cheating by Sir William Gordon Cumming.

In the midst of this work of repetition, Sir Edward abruptly turned upon the witness with the question, "Are you acquainted with or do you know of a man named Bowles?" Witness replied very positively in the negative, and was then allowed to step out of the box.

The Hostess Testifies.

The defence then called Mrs. Arthur Wilson, the Tranby Croft hostess and a party defendant to the suit. Witness testified that she distinctly recollected having observed her son looking at her with a puzzled expression from time to time during the progress of the game of baccarat on Sept 8. Later her son informed her that he had seen the plaintiff, Sir William Gordon Cumming, cheat at play. Then there came a tedious threshing over of the testimony of previous witnesses. Mrs. Wilson agreed on all material points with the circumstances and details of the play as before related. When her son informed her of the detection by him of Sir William's dishonest play, witness said to him, "You must not mention it. We must not have a scandal in our house." Passing on to the events of the second evening of play, Sept. 9, witness swore that she had on that occasion noticed nothing strange until she had received a note from Mr. Lycett Green, who left the room. The note declared the writer had seen plaintiff cheat, and that he could not remain in the room, and that something should be done to stop the game. Witness recollected hearing plaintiff asking the banker, the Prince of Wales, to pay him £10 for a counter which he claimed had been overlooked. Witness also remembered hearing the Prince say on that occasion that he wished people would place their stakes where they could be seen. The Prince had spoken in the tone of a man who was seriously annoyed. Once, subsequently, witness had seen the plaintiff push a £10 counter over the chalk line so openly that she wondered that none of the others appeared to have observed the action.

Witness was then turned over to the prosecution for cross-examination, representatives of which supplied the curiosity of Sir Charles in their manner of receiving the lady. Replying to the first question of counsel in cross-examination, she declared that she did not sign a paper pledging secrecy as to the baccarat discovery. She however admitted that the Prince of Wales had appealed to her to say nothing of the matter.

In reply to a question by Sir Edward Clarke witness said that her husband had objected to baccarat being played in his house only because he feared that play might become too high. When asked why she had not told the Prince that her husband objected to baccarat being played there she replied: "I did not do so because we were such a staid, non-gambling party that I did not think much harm could come from the little play indulged in."

She kept her self-possession fairly well throughout this part of the examination, but was visibly annoyed at the loud titter that greeted her quaint reason for disobeying her husband's injunction.

Played With a Cheat.

In response to questions by plaintiff's counsel witness was forced to admit that she had sat at play on the second night, Sept. 9, with a guest whom she had heard solemnly denounced as a cheat.

Here counsel plied her with question after question, a course that somewhat confused her. At last she was asked point blank, "Why did you in your own house, where it was your duty to protect your guests, sit at play with a man whom you had heard called a common cheat?"

To the utter amazement of everyone present witness replied: "I had put it out of my mind. I had a lot of other matters to think about."

To say that this episode created a sensation is putting it mildly indeed. Asked whether she had seen Sir William cheat, witness replied, "Yes, unfortunately, without doubt." This concluded the cross-examination of Mrs. Wilson.

Lord Coventry's Evidence.

After the cross-examination of Mrs. Wilson had been finished the defence called Lord Coventry, who with Gen. Williams drew up the incriminating document which was signed by the plaintiff. Witness stated that when on the evening of Sept. 10 Mr. Lycett Green made the communication to him which was afterwards repeated in the presence of Gen. Williams and Mr. A. Stanley Wilson he had felt, as those gentlemen subsequently felt, that the Prince of Wales, having long honored the plaintiff with his friendship, they could not allow the Prince to continue that friendship without putting him in possession of what they knew of Sir William's conduct during the games of Sept. 8 and 9.

Continuing, witness related the circumstances of the notorious interview with Sir William. When witness told plaintiff of the nature of the accusation against him the latter denounced it as "false," and asserted that it was merely the statement of a parcel of inexperienced boys who were unentitled to belief. Subsequently the plaintiff had seen the Prince in company with the witness and General Williams, and had declared his innocence. To the declaration of Sir William the Prince simply responded, "There are five against you." Witness had himself told Sir William that Mr. Lycett Green wished to confront him, yet plaintiff had failed to express a desire to meet this accuser.

The Hint to Go.

Witness then said that when further stipulated to depart from the Tranby Croft residence early on the morning of the following day, the document was signed by Sir William under the circumstances related and was later forwarded to the Prince of Wales.

The notebook of the witness was then produced, and Sir Charles proceeded to read therefrom. It was found that Lord Coventry's diary of events at Tranby Croft agreed in every material respect with his testimony as given in court. General Williams and himself submitted the paper for the plaintiff to sign. The latter had said, "That is tantamount to an admission of guilt; I won't sign." To this witness and General Williams replied, "That's so."

There was nothing in the actions of Sir William on the occasion in question to suggest that he had lost his head. After the brief conversation related above witness and Gen. Williams, as friends of the plaintiff, advised him to sign the document which they had submitted to him. Plaintiff thereupon signed it, and a memorandum set forth that the writer had been induced to follow the course he had by a desire to avoid a scandal and keep the Prince of Wales out of a disagreeable affair.

Here the defence rested its case. Sir Charles Russell rose to address the court. He referred satirically to the altered tone of the prosecution since it had become familiar with the damning evidence presented by the defence. It was quite plain that the plaintiff had all along hoped that the defendants would admit that they had been mistaken as to the infamous charge here brought against Sir William.

THE MAJORITY IS 21.

ON THE MOTION TO CENSURE SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

A Division Taken in the House on the Resolution Condemning the High Commissioner for His Speeches in the Recent Election Contest.

OTTAWA, June 5.—The House decided without discussion to-day upon motion of Sir John Thompson to summon Michael Connolly to appear at the bar of the House Monday at 4 for contempt in refusing to produce the books of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. for investigation by the Committee on Privileges and Elections regarding the Tarte charges. The time for receiving petitions for private bills, which was to have expired June 10, has been extended until Tuesday, June 16.

The Majority Reduced to 21.

The debate on the resolution of Mr. Cameron (Huron) condemning Sir Charles Tupper for his conduct in the recent elections was continued in the afternoon. The division was taken at 1 a.m. The vote was 79 yeas, 100 nays, giving the Government a majority of 21.

Mr. Foster said if by any possibility the news from Ernscliffe was no worse the budget speech would be delivered Tuesday.

CANADA GAVE HER CONSENT.

The Dominion Acquiesced in the Passage of the Behring Sea Bill Providing for a Close Season.

LONDON, June 5.—The bill providing for the issue of an order-in-council prohibiting the taking of seals in Behring Sea by British subjects, though a Government measure, met with the opposition of Alex. Staveley Hill, who sits for the King's Winford division of Staffordshire. His opposition was particularly directed against the clause of the bill agreeing that the United States will catch 7500 seals for the benefit of the islanders during the close season. He made a violent speech against this section and moved as an amendment that the words "if Canada consents," be added thereto. During the course of his speech, Mr. Hill stated that he had received a communication from Canada in relation to this question.

William Henry Smith, the Government leader, argued against the amendment, basing his opposition to it on the fact that the Government had already obtained the assent of Canada to the bill. In view of this statement by Mr. Smith, Mr. Hill withdrew his amendment, and the bill was passed.

HAIRS OF GOLD.

Clinging to the Blood-Stained Stone Used by a Would-be Murderer.

LONDON, June 5.—Richard C. Duncan of Washington, D.C., charged with attempting to murder his wife on May 12 in North Wales, was examined again yesterday. Dr. Jones swore that Duncan told him he committed the crime himself. "God forgive me," said the prisoner, "I did not know what I was doing. Three months ago I was worth $50,000. Now I have lost all. I saw nothing before me but poverty for myself and wife. Indeed, I went to Llandudno and hired a boat with the intention of taking both our lives by drowning, but I failed to do so."

Duncan pleaded not guilty and was formally committed for trial. The stone found near the prisoner, with which the crime is supposed to have been committed, was produced in court. It is a huge wedge of slate and was stained with blood and hair. A few golden hairs clinging to it. Mrs. Duncan's condition is still very critical. It is said that if she survives it is doutful if her proper mental condition will ever be restored.

A Satisfactory Settlement.

LONDON, June 5.—The Newfoundland delegates have arrived at a satisfactory agreement with the Government for a permanent act to replace the three years' measure passed by the Local Legislature.

BUSINESS DECLINING.

Collections Are, However, Improving and Failures Show a Decrease.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show quite conclusively that general business now is, on the whole, declining rather than expanding in volume. May bank clearings totals point unmistakably to a widespread subsidence of activity in general trade and speculation throughout the country.

Telegrams from Montreal and Toronto report general trade throughout regions tributary to those cities as dull or of a moderate sorting-up variety. Rains have favored the crops and collections are a little more satisfactory. Exports of wheat and flour from Montreal have grown quite noticeably within a few weeks. The Dominion reports 11 business failures this week against 26 last week and 27 this week last year. The total number Jan. 1 to date is 889 against 807 last year.

Methodist Conference.

WINDSOR, June 5.—Rev. W. W. Edwards was elected secretary of the Methodist conference yesterday afternoon. At this morning's session Rev. J. Gray of Toronto, treasurer of general conference and superannuation funds, presented his report and addressed the conference. Rev. Dr. Dewart of Toronto also addressed the meeting. The nomination committee presented its report at noon and conference adopted it. The candidates for ordination underwent the usual examination this afternoon and this evening the public reception took place.

A Study in Dandelions.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 5.—Constable McMicking ran across a dandelion that was a monster. The plant was found to contain 445 leaves, 186 blossoms and 770 seeds. A mathematical calculation has discovered the fact that this one dandelion is capable of producing 143,229 similar plants.

English Guarantee for Canadian Footballers—Final Dates.

BERLIN, June 5.—The committee of the Western Football Association met here this evening at 8.30 o'clock. Representatives from Seaforth, Galt, Toronto, Woodstock and Berlin were present.

The arranging of finals between Toronto and Western champions was fixed as follows: June 27 at Toronto, July 1 at Seaforth or July 4 at Detroit.

The committee discussed the Old Country trip. Secretary Forsyth read letters and statements from across the ocean stating that a guarantee of £1000 had already been agreed upon. This matter was not decided upon this evening, but adjourned till June 13 in Toronto.

The Athletics of St. Catharines Defeat Niagara Falls in a Close Contest.

ST. CATHARINES, June 8.—The lacrosse enthusiasts had a glorious day of it here to-day when the old-time opponents from the Falls were arraigned in battle array against the home team. The game was one of the finest and most keenly contested ever witnessed in the city. Some 900 spectators were on the ground. The following is the score: Athletics won the first, second, sixth and seventh games in ¼ min., 12 mins., 8 mins. and 1 minute respectively. The Niagaras won the third, fourth and fifth in 7¼, 5 and 9 minutes respectively.

3 PRACTICAL POINTS.

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

B B B

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. During the past ten years over one million bottles have been sold in Canada, and, although we guarantee every bottle to do all we claim, we have not received a single complaint.

Daily Examiner.

SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1891.

Of course speculation is rife as to the political consequences of Sir John Macdonald's apparently certain death. The Montreal Star, a strong Conservative journal, in discussing the demoralization and disruption of the Conservative party after Sir John's cohesive influence is no longer available, says: "It remains to be seen whether the instinct of self-preservation and the sense of a common danger will be sufficient to unite the party. One thing is very certain, if the Ministerialists are not united a good many of them will soon be looking out for situations in which the salaries are not too light and work is no object. The man who turns up his nose at a Lieut.-Governorship to-day may be glad to get a collectorship a few weeks hence, and the man who would not accept a seat on the bench a fortnight ago may envy the court crier next month. The best advice to give a large proportion of them would be the same that the poacher gave to the bishop of Oxford, 'You have a good berth; mind you don't lose it.' We do not pretend that it makes absolutely no difference to the country whether it is governed by Conservatives or Liberals, but the change is likely to make a good deal more difference to those who are in the enjoyment of the sweets of office than to anybody else." Such a warning, coming from a paper so much attached to Conservative interests, is not without its significance.

Sir John's Favorite Poem.

The following poem by Rev. Father Ryar, the poet of the Confederate States, who is now dead, was the favorite poem of Sir John Macdonald. Mr. Blake loves Tennyson, but there is perhaps little so tender, so touching, so sympathetic, in the poet laureate's works as this simple poem, which breathes the spirit of perfect rest:

REST.

My feet are wearied, and my hands are tired,
My soul oppressed—
And I desire, what I have long desired—
Rest—only rest.

'Tis hard to toil—when toil is almost vain,
In barren ways;
'Tis hard to sow—and never garner grain,
In harvest days.

The burden of my days is hard to bear,
But God knows best;
And I have prayed—but vain has been my prayer
For rest—sweet rest.

'Tis hard to plant in spring and never reap
The autumn yield;
'Tis hard to till, and when 'tis tilled to weep
O'er fruitless field.

And so I cry, a weak and human cry,
So heart oppressed;
And so I sigh a weak and human sigh,
For rest—for rest.

My way has wound across the desert years,
And cares infest
My path, and through the flowing of hot tears,
I pine—for rest.

'Tis always so: when but a child I laid
On mother's breast
My wearied little head; e'en then I prayed
As now—for rest.

And I am restless still; 'twill soon be o'er;
For, down the west
Life's sun is setting, and I see the shore
Where I shall rest.

Davin after Dewdney.

Mr. "Smith," of the Independent, thus characteristically deals with the little deal in the House the other day between Mr. Davin and Hon. Mr. Dewdney, Minister of the Interior:—

Mr. Davin, the gifted member of the West, got after Dewdney's scalp, in the Commons the other day, in a particularly lively style. Davin combines the wit of the Irishman, with the polished finesse of the English parliamentarian, the cosmopolitan Bohemianism of the London litterateur with the rollicking freedom of the wild west. When Nicholas gets after a man's scalp, he may as well send in his measure for a wig. The Hon. Mr. Dewdney, now Minister of the Interior, was once time Lieut.-Governor of the North West. Naturally, his ability might possibly qualify him to pound sand in some country township, but he happens to be the political pet of Lady Macdonald, having married that lady's intimate friend. The North West difficulties which cost this country some eight millions of money, would never have arisen but for Dewdney's utter incompetency as Lieut-Governor. These lady pets come high, but it seems the country must have them.

Mr. Davin wanted to right some injustice that had been done to certain settlers in the North West, through a change in the regulations, and took the opportunity of scoring Mr. Dewdney, and after characterizing his policy regarding the North West as petty grog-grocery statesmanship, and charging him with using the department as a donkey engine to his avarice, he said the Minister of the Interior was a child of fortune. Lord Bacon had said, "some men are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them. To which class Mr. Dewdney belonged the House could easily infer. (Laughter.)

Later on in the discussion Mr. Davin tumbled over the Speaker, and the following passage occurred:—He went on to say, "the same malice had been exhibited on a former occasion—the same small-minded malice, the same petty malice—had exuded from the Minister of the Interior.

The Speaker—Order!

Mr. Davin—Can it be out of order to use the word "exude?"

The Speaker—The honorable gentleman should not make the accusation of a charge of malice.

Mr. Davin—Then I say he is actuated by Christian charity—(laughter)—that he has palpably shown himself to be a gentleman, a truthful gentleman, so truthful as to cause everybody in the House to open their eyes with astonishment. If he wants any more soft soap he can take it. (Laughter.)

He concluded by stating that he was pledged to divide the House on his motion, and urged both sides of the House to support him.

Sir Hector Langevin moved to adjourn the debate, and it was carried on a division of 87 to 73.

We May Change Our Characters and Lives.

The man of violent temper, of uncontrolled passions, of tumultuous feelings, whose life is one continual excitement will rarely, if ever, live to a great age. Such characters are oftener found among the nervous, irritable, dyspeptic, bilious and morose, than in the ranks of the strong-nerved, healthy, robust and those of buoyant spirits and cheerful disposition. Such characters are a curse, a misfortune, and a barrier to the well-being of the world and humanity. The question has been asked: "Can such men be changed in character for the better?" We answer, "Yes." To accomplish this the great nerve system must be strengthened and toned; dyspepsia must be banished; excitement destroyed, and sound refreshing sleep found, as well as perfect and vigorous digestion. To achieve these very desirable objects it is imperatively necessary that Paine's Celery Compound be used. By its use undesirable characters may change their lives, and become useful to the world. Let them bear in mind that their present condition is due almost wholly to nervous derangements, all of which will easily yield to the wonderful effects of Paine's Celery Compound.

What is Home Without Wall Paper.

Some Facts that Should Interest all who Require Wall Paper—A—Time to Buy.

Occasionally the opportunity turns up whereby one can get in the neighborhood of one dollar's worth for about fifty cents. It is not of so much consequence if the article on sale is something not in general use, but if it should be such as there is timely use for then the chance is worth taking advantage of. Our reporter noticing that H. Thompson & Co., were sending out large parcels of wall paper looked into the shop to enquire who were the buyers and if house-renting boom now on had increased the demand for paper.

"I should say it has," said Mr. Thompson. "The new tenant always insists that things shall be freshened up for him. We don't complain—it's trade for us."

"Figure patterns seem to be out of date," said the reporter.

"If you mean geometrical patterns, they are," was the reply. "The styles seem to run into scrolls and floral designs, and the pattern is larger than a few years ago. We have hundreds in gold, silver and tints, all on suitable grounds. Of course we have to keep borders to match, and the taste of customers in the way of paper is so varied, and in the main so good, that we have to be extremely careful in selections. Of course the stock is so big that the variety is practically unlimited."

"Where are they made?" Well, no one maker has the preference. Each has his specialty. Our papers come to us from New York, Boston, Buffalo and the dealers in England. We have to order ahead to get them here in time.

Going up the staircase to the paper room on the second flat, our reporter found the walls lined with convenient racks filled with papers of hundreds of styles. The show room proper, neatly carpeted and well lighted, afforded an excellent opportunity to inspect the beautiful papers laid out on stands of convenient height. One wall of the paper room was hung with samples of papers and borders very handsome and attractive.

After attending to a number of customers who came up to the show room, Mr. Thompson said: "The stock, as you see, is large, and we are anxious to run it down. To do this, we are making a special cut in prices. Every line on roll will be sold out of stock. We have no remnants or odd lots. Regular lines pay better than a few rolls of this and that. These papers you see here are capital, light colors for bedrooms, and with this border they make a pleasing thing to look at. These other borders are all suitable. The same thing can be said of every pattern you see. Some are beautifully adapted for parlours, others for halls and dining rooms, and so on. Combinations can be made for slopes. These are specially for ceilings, and are complete. The reduction we are making covers every line, as I have said.

What's the difference? Well, largely in favor of the customer. The customer sees the inducement to buy and buys. Prices are reduced so as to make it a matter of gain to the buyer and enable us to reduce stock which is the object we have in view. "How long will the low prices last?" Only for the next 30 days. The buyer that needs paper will come in at once. They are doing so now though we have'nt advertised the sale only one day. I tell you there's no better value and it I was to talk for an hour I could not describe only a tithe of the stock so varied and good it is. If your friends need paper tell them to come to Thompson & Co's and get a share of the bargains going. 3i

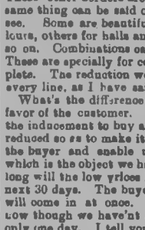
WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.



Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

Harvey.

From the Bobcaygeon Independent.

The farmers of Verulam and Harvey, under the auspices of the Agricultural Society, are to have a big day's outing on Friday, the 19th. They are going down to Crowley's Island, and the programme of sports that is announced, is what, in sporting parlance, is called a regular jim-dandy. The tug-of-war between north and south, the lakes from Sturgeon Point to Bell Lake being the line of separation, promises to be a struggle of the giants. The winners will each get a fork and the losers a rake, as a memento of the contest. It is difficult at this time to say much of the chances, as the teams are not definitely settled upon, but the northern men are well spoken of. The Paleons will start from Sturgeon Point and call at various points on the lake, the fare from all places being 25 cents.

Quite a large party drove into the village on Monday from the north-east corner of Harvey, and did a day's shopping. The Harvey road across to the Buckhorn road is now in good condition, and has opened a large tract of land to settlement, which means increase of trade with this village. Bobcaygeon did well when it took the initiative in opening this road, and contributed towards its cost. There is a good settlement in the west of Cavendish that should be tributary to this village, and efforts could be well directed in obtaining a road through Harvey and along the boundary of Galway and Cavendish. Our stores are well supplied and prices should be equal with the neighboring towns. We have a first class grist mill, having all the new improved machinery, and can offer a fair market for all produce. It is to the northeast that we have to look for an increase of trade, and it is in that direction that our efforts for development should be turned.

Elsewhere in this issue we republish an article from the Hamilton Herald relating to the wonderful cure of a gentleman in that city, who had been pronounced by the physicians incurable, and who had been paid the $1,000 total disability insurance granted members of the Royal Templars. The well known standard of the Herald is a guarantee as to the entire reliability of the statements contained in the article.

A CANADIAN TUNNEL.

PROJECT TO UNITE PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND WITH NOVA SCOTIA.

A Vast Engineering Project The Cost Figures Submitted to Parliament—Reasons Why the Scheme is Urged Upon the Dominion Government.

In Parliament the other day, Hon. Mr. Foster stated the estimated cost of the Prince Edward Island tunnel, which is to connect that portion of Canada with the Nova Scotia mainland. He said the full figures of Sir Douglas Fox would be for a tunnel of 11 feet internal diameter from shaft to shaft, £967,700; for the same diameter, including land tunnel and contingencies, £1,075,200; for 16 feet diameter from shaft to shaft, £1,652,500, and with land tunnel and contingencies, £1,971,900; for 18 feet diameter from shaft to shaft, £1,850,000, and with land tunnel and contingencies £2,252,500.

This project is vaster and more sensational in its proportions than the tunnel under the St. Clair river, recently completed. A glance at the map, necessarily reduced in size for a newspaper's columns, will show the Northumberland Straits as a mere thread, but in actuality it is a goodly stretch of salt waves, which has engulfed many a "strong swimmer in his agony." At the narrowest portion, where Cape Traverse on the one hand and Cape Tormentine on the other stretch eagerly out, as if in memory of a day when, before some preadamite convulsion, they were united, the channel is six or seven miles wide. It is at this point that the proposed re-uniting of the lands would be effected.

The length of the St. Clair tunnel under water is but 2,310 feet, although the whole length, including the approaches, is 11,705 feet. The length of the proposed subway beneath the Straits of Northumberland under water alone would be at least 32,000 feet. If the construction of the international subfluvial way at Sarnia was an undertaking betokening splendid courage and engineering audacity what shall be said of this greater project that is emerging into light?

The potential raison d'etre is to afford the population of the isle unimpeded egress from their sea encircled home. Let us examine and appreciate the extent and inexorableness of this natural decree of hibernation to which its people are annually doomed. During the open season a moderately satisfactory communication is kept up between the island and the mainland by a government steamer, carrying mails and passengers. But with the advent of winter the season of temporary isolation sets in. The Straits of Northumberland do not freeze over, but the frost proves just as great a barrier to intercourse as if they did. Feeling the daily influence of the ocean tides the waters rise and fall every six hours, and there is an almost constant current running one way or the other at the rate of from four to six miles an hour. The shore water for a mile or more out, which is protected from this current by the headlands, does freeze over, and the rising and falling of its level soon works this shore ice into the most fantastic shapes on both sides of the channel. When this attains a certain thickness and consistency no ordinary vessel can break through it and steam or sail communication ceases.

Mails and passengers have then to be conveyed to and from the island in open boats, which have to be dragged sixteen times over the mile or more of ice that guards each shore. The boats are peculiarly constructed, being half boat and half sledge, and are stout and heavy to withstand the rude seas that are encountered in navigating the open waters which lie between the fields of ice. The journey is at all times hazardous; at time it is perilous in the extreme. If the area of ice over which the two boats have to be dragged was that usually produced by the action of frost on still water the journey would be robbed to a large extent of its terrors, but it is not that. It is a miniature Alps of ice hummocks, with valleys of drift between, and here and there open water, cunningly carpeted with comminuted ice into which the men and their burdens are apt at any moment to be immersed. The irresistable force of the tide water acted on by the hyperborean cold piles and jams and distorts the thick ribbed ice into shapes and barriers that seem to be the work or the genius of winter in his maddest mood. Over this heart breaking road the hardy mail carriers have daily to make a journey. On stormy days, when nothing human could live exposed to the elements on that barren shore, no attempt is made but it takes something out of the common to deter them from fulfilling their task, and, as may be supposed, men have been crippled for life or perished entirely, sacrificed for the comfort or convenience of their fellowmen. This has usually occurred when a severe snow storm has suddenly swooped down on the crew on their way across. On one occasion, a few years ago, when a drift lasted for three days, the men and two or three passengers lost their bearings and wandered on the ice for three days, unable to get back to the land. One man died and was left in the snow. The others satisfied the rage of hunger by devouring a dog that had accompanied them. When rescued they had given up hope. Not a man among them but had experienced the rigor of the cold, and amputation of fingers, toes, hands or feet was necessary in almost every case.

Now that the figures of the Government's engineer have been submitted the Islanders will spare no argument to induce the Government to take the project up, and they will endeavor, no doubt, to make Sir George E. Cartier's lordly sentence. "Gentlemen, I can assure you nothing is impossible to the Privy Council of Canada," do magnificent duty.

A Curious Herald.

The royal family of Hawaii have a curious herald—a shoal of red fish, or alulua, in the harbor of Honolulu. When this shoal comes into the harbor natives know one of the royal family has to go. The fatal fish appeared in immense numbers in January last, the nets were full to breaking and the natives said: "Our king is doomed." And so he was. Twenty days later King Kalaka a crossed the Great Divide.—Home Journal.

A Horse Battle.

The herds of horses on a Western ranch, running over so large a space, rarely encounter one another. When they do, the mares evince only the smallest possible amount of curiosity, but join and graze. Different is it with the stallions. With but a moment's preparation, they rush wildly at one another like mad bulls, neighing in what seems the mockery of a neigh, and with head in air and tail curving proudly, they rush and plunge and rear, kicking and biting, stamping one on the other until the ground and horses are covered with blood, and exhaustion of one forces a surrender and retreat. As I have said, the fickle mares march off with the conqueror at their head, while the defeated lags wearily behind. One of the most terrible battles that probably ever took place between ranch stallions occurred near the home ranch of the Little Missouri Horse Farm in the spring of 1886, at the time when the several bunches or droves of horses were being driven in from the ranges for an enrolment of stock and for the branding of the young colts. It happened by the merest chance that three droves came in together with the stallions leading. Naturally the three joined, and at once arose the question of leadership. This could only be settled by a battle, and before the herders could begin to form any plan for separating them, the three stallions were engaged in fiercest battle. As described by those who saw it, this battle was so savage and so bloody that it seemed certain that at least one of the combatants must be killed. It lasted a little more than twenty minutes, and when the "smoke of battle" drifted away and the fight was done, a big gray Percheron called Napoleon was seen to be the victor, and he it was that, with uplifted head and proudly curved tail, led the company of mares and colts to the pastures, while the two defeated ones marched together like whipped curs, dejectedly in the rear. In this instance, although the fight was an unusually desperate one, and all three horses were badly cut and torn, none of the three suffered more than temporary discomfort.—Harper's Weekly.

For Aristocratic People.

I have a tip for those aristocratic people whose purse permits them the luxury of a butler. Always remember that it isn't good form to call a butler James, and no butler with any professional pride will stand it for a moment. In the first place, "Jeems" has passed into a nickname for footman. In the second place, there are these well-established rules: The butler is called by his surname, all the other men servants by their Christian names; the housekeeper is called by her surname, with the prefix of Mrs.; the ladies' maid by her surname, without the prefix; all the other women servants by their Christian names; the head coachman is called by his surname, and all his aides by their Christian names; the cook is always "cook" or "chef."—Daily Continent.

Father and Child Killed by Lightning.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Despatches from many parts of Wisconsin, Indiana and Central Illinois tell of damage done by the severe storm of yesterday. A Greenville, Ill., lightning killed George B. Hochderfer and his child, which he was holding on his lap. At Bloomington, Ill., lightning struck Dr. Mammion's house doing considerable damage and painfully injuring a domestic. The Holy Trinity Catholic Church was damaged. Several other Illinois points report much damage to crops and a number of casualties by lightning. At Racine, Wis., two houses were almost demolished and one woman was badly injured.

A Hundred Years to Come.

Wouldn't you like to live until the year A.D. 2000, just to see the people and the world generally? Who knows but you might, if you observe the laws of health, and keep the stomach, liver and bowels in full action. The best medicine known for this is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are small, sugar-coated granules, but powerful to cure; produce no nausea or griping; easy to take and a sure cure for biliousness, constipation, headache, and diseases produced by an inactive liver. A convenient vest-pocket remedy. o

A Spring Medicine.

There are few who do not at this season feel the need of a spring medicine, and to all such we recommend Lane's Family Medicine as the best. This is a pleasant herb drink made by pouring boiling water on the dried roots and herbs. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1. It is the best as well as the pleasantest cure for constipation and headache. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

Self Application of Electricity

FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES BY THE

DORENWEND ELECTRIC BELT

And Attachments.

HEAD OFFICE—103 Yonge St., Toronto.

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy them, but if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

PETERBOROUGH, June 6.—When in conversation yesterday I find that there was white frost in several localities, injuring garden stuff, although slight here, and the thermometer stood at 38°. Fire at Havelock.

Friday night about ten o'clock Messrs. Paul & Wiseman's sawmill at Havelock was totally destroyed by fire. There is no clue as to the cause of the blaze, which started in a pile of slabs. The proprietors of the mill estimate their loss at over $2,000, which is only partly covered by a policy for $1,000 in the Lancashire Fire Insurance Company. Messrs. Paul and Wiseman are industrious, pushing young men, who will be deeply sympathised with in their loss. It is their intention to rebuild immediately, and they expect to be running again in the course of a couple of weeks.

A Place for Scavengers.

There have been many complaints regarding the scavenging nuisance in town, and it seems those engaged in the business have been in the habit of dumping the refuse wherever they got a chance, to the great annoyance of the public. There need now be no further complaint on that score. Chief Rossel has secured a dumping ground in a place conveniently close to the town, and yet not in a troublesome proximity to any residences. It is situated just below the locks on the Otonabee side of the river. Those engaged in the scavenging can receive directions by applying to Chief Rossel.

A Sudden Illness.

Mr. Henry Calcutt, the well-known brewer and steamboat proprietor, was taken suddenly ill last night. He had spent the afternoon at Chemong Park, and returned home in the evening, and while sitting in his own home attempted to rise from his chair, but found he was unable to do so. This was the first intimation he had of his approaching sickness. The physician in attendance states that Mr. Calcutt is suffering from the effects of a cold. His entire left side is helpless, though his head is not affected. Mr. Calcutt's condition is reported to be improved to-day. He has many friends in town and throughout the whole district who will wish him speedy recovery to health.

"The Maple Leaf Forever."

That motto in its spirit represents the celebration of July 1st in an appropriate manner, and that manner is the best which makes the most the happiest. Look out for and take in the library excursion of the Charlotte Street Church Sunday School on that day. A swift and pleasant riverside run by rail to Lakefield, and then a magnificent sail on Clear Lake and the island dotted area of Stony Lake to Junipor Island for dinner. Now a delightful al fresco repast under the shady trees of the old canoe camp island, and then aboard the "Golden City" again for a steam up to the head of the lake—Bobcaygeon, Julian's, etc. O, it will be simply delightful! Tickets for round trip, 80 cents only; children under twelve years of age, half price. Tickets procurable at G.T.R. station on morning of excursion, or of members of the Committee—T. Barrie, Secretary, and W. Hamilton, Chairman. 21132

Æsthetic West Ward.

The West Ward School teachers and pupils—from the principal on the one part to the tiniest pupil on the other; and also including the janitor—are to be highly commended for the success of their efforts in beautifying the school grounds lawn. Along the front of the building, on each side the main entrance, borders have been filled with annuals, and on the lawn in front there are placed two large circular flower plots filled with almost every ordinary variety of blooming plants. The best of it is, all the cost of the flowers—these being the only expense, the janitor doing his share of the work gratis—was borne by the children who contributed the amount necessary to purchase them in sums ranging from one cent to five cents, the latter being the limit placed by the principal. It is very instructive to see the interest taken by the children in the beautification of the grounds, and the lessons of neatness, method and early-impressed sense of responsibility, will, in many instances, have far-reaching effects. There is a practical side after all to our devotion to the culture of the beautiful.

Laid at Rest.

The funeral of the late Chas. J. Ridley was conducted on Friday under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters, Court Peterborough, of which deceased was a member. The hearse was followed by a large number of Foresters, followed by a procession of the employes of the EXAMINER, Review and Times printing establishment to the number of about fifty, the procession being closed with a long line of carriages. At the cemetery the religious service was conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector, of Peterborough, and at the conclusion of it, the reverend gentlemen made a few remarks in which he warmly referred to the kindly interest taken in deceased by the members of the honourable society under whose charge the funeral was conducted, and praised the kindly spirit which animated his fellow-workmen in turning out in such strong force to pay the last tribute of respect. This feeling was extremely creditable, not only to the printers, but to their employers in giving them opportunity to express in so practical and feeling a manner their respect for a deceased comrade. Then followed the impressive funeral ritual of the Foresters, the sprigs of evergreen dropped into the grave, showing, beyond their accepted meaning, that the memory of "Charley" Ridley will long remain green in the hearts of those who knew him best.

The Last Strand of the "Silver Cord."

Sir John Oscillating Between Life and Death.

Last Saturday morning the town was startled and shocked by the report of the death of the Premier, and from that time to this Saturday, the veteran Chieftain has made a gallant fight with death but still it seems a losing battle, for the tenour of to-day's bulletins is to the effect that but very little life is left—not enough to tide him over another night. The last bulletin issued states that Sir John "is gradually sinking." It is not probable that another day will see Sir John Macdonald alive.

County Court.

The half-yearly sittings of the General Sessions and County Court for Peterborough County takes place on Tuesday next, Judge Weller presiding. There is a very light docket, only three cases being entered for trial, two jury and one non jury.

The first jury case is an interpleader issue in which R. A. Morrow of this town affirms, and H. Ellis denies, that certain goods seized in execution under a writ of fi. fa. in an action at the suit of H. Ellis against Kate Muncaster, were at the time of said seizure the property of R. A. Morrow. Hatton & Wood appear for the plaintiffs, and Hall & Kilmer for Defendants.

Goldsmith S. English against Wm. Forsyth, is brought to recover $121.79 and interest from 18th June, 1889, as balance of wages and commission due to him whilst engaged as salesman and agent for the defendant, who was a pump manufacturer. E. B. Edwards for plaintiff; John Burnham, Q.C., for defendant.

John Kincaid of Peterborough brings an action against Campbell W. Sawers to recover $145.60, the defendant's share of costs paid by the plaintiff in interpleader proceedings in three actions, Bellour vs Kincaid, Thornton and Dunford, Dumble & Leonard, for plaintiff; John Burnham, Q.C., for defendant.

There are only two criminal charges to go the grand jury.

Cricket at Campbellford.

The Colts Keep up the Reputation of the Club.

The cricket team taken to Campbellford on Friday by Mr. Walter Stocker, the irrepressible cricket enthusiast, was able to give a good account of itself, although the struggle was an up hill one and the odds very great—five to eleven. Peterborough's quintette went first to the bat and every man of the team scored double figures except two—and the record will show—Stocker, 20, the top score; Jellett, 11, and Goldsmith, 14. The six subs—boys—who helped eke out an eleven, made only five out of the total score of 54 compiled by the five Peterborough lads. Campbellford took its innings and was retired for the small score, under the circumstances, of 74. The crease was hard and bumpy and largely neutralized good bowling and made batting risky. This is the score:

PETERBOROUGH.

A friendly scratch match match was played between mixed elevens, after the conclusion of the above innings, but no record of the result was kept.

The five young men who went to Campbellford yesterday to maintain the reputation of the Peterborough Cricket Club deserve great credit for their courage in facing what, under the circumstances seemed inevitable defeat, for the sake of the game itself and to save the local club from the disgrace (except under the most urgent circumstances) of breaking an engagement. Cricket is a game for gentlemen, and players have the reward of the sport, if not of a victory, which, to the true cricketer, is a secondary consideration. To illustrate the necessity of keeping faith, a club should send a team for a fixture, if it can only send a pair of pads and a scorer. Cricket is at a low ebb here, but it will die outright if some of the best players, who should be looked up to as examples, funk a game because they are not sure of winning. It is a dull day for cricket in Peterborough when veterans leave the honour and reputation of the club to a handful of the colts, who, however, yesterday showed more pluck, more true cricketing spirit, and more honest desire for the honour of the club than the veterans who may have stayed at home and sulked, like an athletic Achilles, in their tents over the decay of cricket.

Practical "Pleasantries" in Galway.

The Awkward Experiences of a Newly Married Couple—A Masquerade That Apparently Meant Mischief—Two of the Forty Arrested and Committed for Trial.

Police Magistrate Edmison held court Friday afternoon, at which the two young men from Galway, Thos. Humphries and Wm. Colter, charged with burglary were given a preliminary trial. It will be remembered that at the time of their arrest, the officers of the law had a lively chase before they captured their men. Humphries and Coulter took to their heels, but after an exciting run they were caught by County Constable Cochrane, assisted by special Constable Archie Moore and a Bobcaygeon official.

At the preliminary trial Friday they pleaded not guilty to the charge, that they, "on Wednesday, the 27th day of May, 1891, feloniously and burglariously did enter the dwelling house of the said George Booth in the night time, and one pair of boots, one pair of shoes, one briar pipe, and a quantity of pork then in the said dwelling house, feloniously did steal, take and carry away." The prisoners were defended by Mr. R. R. Hall, of Stratton & Hall.

GEORGE BOOTH, the plaintiff, was the first to give evidence. He said he had been married only a little over a year ago at Fenelon Falls, and lived alone with his wife on lot 10, in concession "A" of Galway township, on a farm owned by Richard Stewart. On Wednesday, May 27, he said the two prisoners came to the house with a gang of between twenty-five and thirty fellows about ten o'clock at night. The men had their faces blacked, and Colter and Humphries were the only two he recognized. He and his wife had just gone to bed, and he had lit his pipe to have a smoke before going to sleep, when he heard a stone strike the casement of the window, and another one came through. A perfect storm of stones followed, which smashed all the windows and doors, and in order to escape injury he and his wife turned out of bed and went upstairs. Several of the stones struck them, but not to hurt. The gang then invaded the house. Eight or nine went upstairs and dragged the frightened couple down and out doors. Booth had on his pants, but his wife was in her night robe. When they got outside the men who were holding them called to the others to "fetch on the rails," but the rails were not brought. As one of the men swung him around by his right arm he recognised him as Thos. Humphries, and called him by name. Humphries then began striking him with his fist and told him no names were to be mentioned. Witness saw Colter at the same time. Colter had hold of him also. Finally witness got away from his persecutors, who relaxed their grasp when they found they were being recognised. He then ran away a few rods to get some stones. He had no shooting-iron at home that night, or there is no knowing what might have happened. At this time the men left his wife go. She went into the house to get their clothes, which they put on, while the crowd drew off to a short distance. The couple then started off to a neighbor's house, Mr. Wilson's, and while they were on their way they saw some of the gang returning towards their home. The crowd carried off the articles mentioned in the information, a pair of boots, a pair of shoes, about twenty pounds of pork and briar pipe. Witness did not know who took these things, but as he saw the crowd going towards the house as he was on his way to Wilson's, felt sure it was them. At any rate, next morning about five o'clock he returned to his home and found the windows riddled, the door broken open, stove smashed, dishes, pails, etc., in pieces, and the above mentioned things stolen. He added he picked up a wagon load of stones off the floor, some of them being as large as a man's head. The witness said the only reason he knew for this conduct on the part of the crowd, was the fact that on the Sunday evening previously Wm. Colter, Walter Colter, Hiram Coulter, John Lambert and another young man he did not know came into his house, began cursing and swearing and wanted to hold a dance that night, but witness would not let them do it. They began quarelling among themselves, and witness threatened to put them out, but they told him he was not big enough. When Wm. Coulter caught hold of him upstairs on the night of the 27th of May, Coulter said: "I guess by ——, we can dance now."

In cross examination the defence sought to show the plaintiff and his wife were neither honest nor virtuous, but the witness' evidence was not shaken.

Some further evidence was taken and at its conclusion, the magistrate decided that the case was of such a nature as warranted him in sending it to be dealt with by a jury. He therefore committed the accused Wm. Colter and Thos. Humphries for trial at the next competent court—the county court, which sits on Tuesday next.

Back From the Grave.

A Well-Known Hamiltonian Snatched From Death's Jaws—Had Been Given up by the Doctors and his Case was Considered Hopeless.—But he Recovered in a Miraculous Manner, and is now as well and strong as ever.

Hamilton Herald, May 27th, 1891.

Although the age of miracles is generally supposed to be past, the case of John Marshall, of 25 Little William street, is about as nearly miraculous as anything that can be imagined. For three years and a half Mr. Marshall has been a victim of a disease known as locomotor ataxy, a spinal affection which deprived him of all feeling from the waist downwards, and left him a helpless cripple, given up by his physicians as incurable. To-day he is restored to health, and apart from the weakness natural to a man who has wrestled so long with a terrible disease, he may be said to be as well as ever. The story of his wonderful recovery has been heard with amazement by his many friends, for Mr. Marshall is well known in Hamilton, having lived here for nearly thirty years, and for twenty years before his illness having been manager for the Canadian Oil Company here.

One of the Herald's young men heard of the case and hunted up Mr. Marshall to get his story, which he was not unwilling to tell, in the hope that his experience might be of benefit to others who are affected similarly.

"I was taken ill in August, 1887," said Mr. Marshall, "and for three years and a half I was scarcely able to leave my room. My illness, I believe, was the result of a fall I had a year before and it left me helpless. I had absolutely no sensation in my body below the waist, could not feel pins stuck in me, and was deprived of the use of my limbs. For more than three years I was not able to leave the house, any more than on very fine days I might go as far as the corner, and during all that time I was never down town. I had the best medical assistance but the doctors all agreed I could not recover. I tried all kinds of patent medicines, but none of them did me any good. I also tried electricity, having as many as three batteries on me at once, but it was all of no avail.

"How did you come to recover?"

"In February last some one threw in a circular about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I laid it aside, thinking it was like all the others I had tried—no good. But on April 14 I decided to give them a trial, and got a box of the Pills. Within three days I noticed an improvement, and it has continued ever since, until I am as well as you see me. I considered it nothing short of a miracle, and my friends who know me can scarcely credit it. Why, last week, I got up one morning, took my bath, dressed myself, went to the station, took the train for Toronto and walked to my brother-in-law's, and he would not believe it was myself."

"You say you were given up by the doctors?"

"Yes, I spent hundreds of dollars in medical advice and in the purchase of all sorts of quack remedies. My physicians said my disease was incurable and that I would never be able to use my limbs again. I am a member of the Royal Templars, and I have been passed by the society's doctors as past recovery, resulting from it the total disability benefit of $1,000. That is the best possible proof to me that my case was considered hopeless."

"How many boxes of the Pills have you taken?"

"I am now on my seventh box, but, as I told you, I got relief from the start. I consider my recovery to be wonderful, and I am recommending the remedy to every one who is afflicted as I was."

The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have accomplished such a miracle in Mr. Marshall's case, say the remedy is compounded from the formula of a well-known physician, and is unsurpassed for the treatment of all diseases arising from impoverished blood or loss of vital force.

The remarkable case noted in the above article from the Hamilton Herald, conclusively proves that the proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have in no way overstated the merits of their remedy. Pink Pills are a never failing blood builder and nerve tonic, and are equally valuable for men or women young or old. They cure all forms of debility, female weaknesses, suppressions, chronic constipation, headache, St. Vitus dance, loss of memory, premature decay, etc., and by their marvellous action on the blood, build up the system anew and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow complexions. These pills are sold by all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medical Co., Brockville, Ont.

EDWARDS—DUNSFORD—At Lindsay, on Wednesday, June 3, 1891, in St. Paul's church, by Rev. Mr. Marsh, Jas. G. Edwards, Esq., to Miss Winnifred, daughter of the late James Dunsford, Esq., ex-M.P.

ELCOMBE—GREER—On Wednesday, June 3rd, 1891, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. W. G. Greer, Proton township, county Grey, by the Rev. Mr. Hudson, Mr. E. W. Elcombe, of Peterborough, to Miss Josephine Greer.

Purity of the blood in importance of keeping a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores—Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little arms and hands in the same condition; a body, around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was as raw as to be absolutely unbearable to the sight. Said Mrs. N. A. Smart to me: "I have tried everything suggested to cure on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and the mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said that he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe that she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr C. W. Woolever, druggist.

SIR JOHN AT REST.

The Veteran Premier Died on Saturday Night

WITHOUT REGAINING CONSCIOUSNESS.

The Remains to Be Interred at Kingston Thursday.

The Dead Premier's Body to Lie in State at Ottawa Until Wednesday Morning Eulogies of the Chieftain in Almost Every City of the Civilized Globe—Feeling References in the Churches of Ottawa, Toronto, Kingston and Elsewhere—Will Mr. Meredith's Future Field Be in Dominion Politics.

OTTAWA, June 7.—Toll, toll, toll, went the huge bell at the City Hall last night at 10.30. All Ottawa knew at once that the unparalleled struggle at Ernscliffe was ended—Sir John Macdonald was dead. People knew all day that death was nigh, but the solemn tones of the ponderous bell were startling.

What a world of solemn thought their monody compels.
In the silence of the night, how we shiver with affright,
In the melancholy menace of their tone!

To say that citizens were shocked, expresses but the simple truth. In clubs, hotels and on the street men stopped with bated breath to listen to the sad tolling. Women, too, stood upon their doorsteps until the bell had ceased. Sir John, to most in Ottawa, was more than the leader of the Government, the Premier of a great confederation. His figure and his features were so well known in Ottawa, that he was regarded as a friend. His death was a loss to Ottawaites less than to the country. No personality so well known in political life, he was in another aspect, a subject of familiar conversation throughout the city. Then there was one he had left behind. The party leadership has had in the caucus in Parliament a master. And at Ernscliffe a mistress of consumate skill, and therefore of far-reaching and supreme influence, Lady Macdonald's personality was as marked and was as well known to the citizens of Ottawa as that of the Premier. During the long struggle with death she had universal sympathy. Last night many a wife mourned with her.

The Old Man died literally in harness. He had won his last fight and now death was the conqueror.

These lines in Punch on the occasion of the death of Lord Palmerston are singularly appropriate:

He is down and forever the good fight is ended,
In deep dented harness our champion has died,
But tears should be few in a sunset so splendid,
And grief hath her wail at the bidding of pride.

He falls, but unvanquished he falls in his glory,
A noble old king on the last of his fields,
And with death song we come like the northmen of story,
And haughtily bear him away on our shields.

"Gentlemen, Sir John Macdonald is dead. He died at a quarter past ten. He passed away peacefully and quietly!" was the announcement made by Mr. Joseph Pope, the private secretary of the Premier, at 10.20 jointly to a knot of correspondents at the gates of Ernscliffe. Mr. Pope's voice was choked with emotion For the past seven years Mr. Pope has been secretary to the Premier and brought into the most intimate relations with him. The faithful, able and diplomatic manner in which he discharged his arduous duties caused the Premier to regard him more as a personal friend. The feeling was reciprocated, and Mr. Pope could say no more at the time than announce the death in these brief words. The sad news was flashed across the Dominion and farther under the ocean to England from the little tent the C.P.R. had pitched a few yards from the grounds at Ernscliffe. Messages were also sent at once to the Governor-General at Rideau Hall and to Sir Hector Langevin to inform them of the Premier's death.

A few minutes later this bulletin, the last that ever would be issued, was fastened to the gate:

ERNSCLIFFE, 10.30 p.m.—Sir John Macdonald died at 10.15 this evening.

(Signed) R. W. POWELL, M.D.

Dr. Powell remained for half an hour longer and then left for his own residence. It was the first time the doctor had left Ernscliffe since the Premier was stricken on the Friday of the week previous. It was a week of tremendous strain. The doctor watched his patient with the utmost faithfulness and fidelity, but human skill could do little against the deadly paralysis. He said the death of the Premier was the most quiet and peaceful he ever witnessed. Respiration had been at 56 all afternoon.

His Last Day of Life.

OTTAWA, June 7.—The soft light of earliest daybreak yesterday found the Premier still alive. The light of a new day brought with it nothing to relieve the anxious suspense. There was no change in the patient's condition. A little more frail, a little more slender had grown the thread that bound the spirit to its earthly tabernacle. That was all. The Premier was unconscious. His limbs were numb and there was nothing to indicate that life was not extinct save the feeble fluttering of the pulse and the almost imperceptible breathing. The family had been gathered about the bedside all night. Lady Macdonald, almost worn out by her long vigil, was there and the Premier's son, Hugh John Macdonald, had kept his place at his father's side.

The Physicians Again Mistaken.

The scenes of the morning and afternoon were but counterparts of Friday. The same hushed stillness, the same anxiety, the same suspense. At 2 o'clock the physicians concurred in the opinion that the Premier could not live until 4 o'clock, and again did they err. Nurse Stewart, who has had long experience in English hospitals, never saw such a case. The dying Premier had been perfectly unconscious for nearly 30 hours, and still the spark of life lingered on.

The action of the patient's heart at times during the afternoon and evening was so feeble that Sir John was believed to be dead. Once the family gathered at the bedside under the impression that the end had come, but it proved to be another of the dreaded sinking spells which in succession had left the aged statesman with less and less vitality.

Not since 5 o'clock Friday afternoon had any substantial liquid nourishment passed his lips. Such an unequal struggle could not much longer be sustained. Eventide found the members of the family gathered about the bedside of the dying statesman, waiting patiently for dissolution. Outside in the dusk were gathered the correspondents and small groups of anxious friends. The patient lay unconscious. Nature no longer asserted itself; life's fires were burning low, flickered and smouldered as though the soul would leave its tenement at each successive breath. No one would recognize in the dying man one vestige of resemblance to the great political leader who had guided the destinies of Canada for nearly half a century.

Azrael's Summons.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Dr. Powell noticed that the change had come which he knew preceded dissolution. The patient's breathing became more regular, but the respirations were at longer intervals, the pulsations were feebler and it was evident that the gallant heart would soon be stilled in death. Dr. Powell, upon remarking the change, told Lady Macdonald that the end was at hand. The members of the family and those with whom the Premier's inner life had been most intimately connected were summoned to see the chieftain die. Around the bedside were Lady Macdonald, the Premier's son and Mrs. Macdonald, Mrs. Fitzgibbon, niece of Lady Macdonald, Miss Marjorie Stewart, Hon. E. Dewdney and Mrs. Dewdney, Mr. Joseph Pope, the Prime Minister's secretary, Mr. Fred White, ex-private secretary to Sir John and now comptroller of the mounted police; Mr. George Sparkes, a relation of Sir John; Dr. Powell, the faithful physician, and Ben Chilton, the Premier's trusted messenger for many years.

Lady Macdonald stood by the side of her noble husband, and around her gathered the members of the family. Her face showed traces of the weary watching and, the long suspense. She bore up bravely.

No flicker of reviving consciousness marred the utter painlessness, the perfect peace, of the Premier's end. He lay in utter oblivion, breathing slowly and gently, while his loved ones stood about him and gazed silently upon him. He was unconscious to the last. The pulse fluttered, the breath came shorter and then—all was still. So peaceful was his going that it was not until they had been informed of the fact by Dr. Powell at 10.15 exactly that the family knew Sir John was dead.

THE BATTLE WITH DEATH.

The Progress of Sir John's Case Since His Attack.

FRIDAY, May 30.—At 4.15 to-day while Dr. Powell his medical attendant, was conversing with the Premier he was stricken with paralysis. At 10.30 Dr. Powell issued a bulletin pronouncing his case quite hopeless.

SATURDAY, May 31.—Twenty-four hours had made no change in the Premier's condition. He was still alive and that was about all that could be said.

SUNDAY, June 1.—With the dawning of the loveliest month in all the year there was a manifest weakening of the vital powers. He passed a quiet day, however, and although there was no marked alteration in his general symptoms he appeared to relish his nourishment and swallowed more easily at midnight.

MONDAY, June 1.—The doctors' bulletins were less hopeful to-day, and few there were who believed that he would live until dawn.

TUESDAY, June 2.—The fact that Sir John passed the night composedly and comfortably served to dispel the gloom which had hovered over the capital the preceding four days, and the amazing vitality manifested by the Premier led to the belief being entertained that he might yet conquer death, but the physicians' bulletins issued later in the day which told of periods of great prostration and extreme heart weakness.

WEDNESDAY, June 3.—"He is sinking sinking," said the physicians, "and not likely to live another day. Not one man in a thousand of his age would have lived so long. His vitality is marvellous."

THURSDAY, June 4.—The Premier's condition to-day was actually better than yesterday, and the paralysis seemed to have relaxed somewhat. People took a more encouraging view of the case from the nature of the bulletin issued, but in this they were unwarranted, the physicians at midnight pronouncing him weaker than at any time since his illness.

FRIDAY, June 5.—The increased heart weakness showed the physicians early in the day that the end was only a question of a few hours at the most, and at sundown the issuing of bulletins was discontinued. Nothing remained but to wait calmly for the end, which could not long be delayed now.

SATURDAY, June 6.—At 1 o'clock this morning the attending physicians announced that it would be a miracle if Sir John lived until dawn. Daylight found him still alive with death liable to occur at any moment. So the dying man passed the hours until sunset.

Sir John's Resisting Power.

Sir John must have had a phenomenal amount of reserve or resisting power stored in his system when the stroke came on Friday nine days ago, or the doctors grievously mis-diagnosed his case and condition. They gave him up on Friday—he could not live a day, and every day since it has been the same.

This last Friday they gave him up for hours, and all Saturday it was but a care of minutes. Yet he lasted out the day. We believe he was possessed of a wonderful amount of reserve force and this is what kept him alive so long. With the average man the stroke comes and it is then a matter of resistance—with most of minutes or of hours. Sir John has held out for days. And this all the more remarkable when it is remarked that he took little but milk for the two weeks previous to the stroke.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The Remains to Lie in State Tuesday and to Be Interred at Kingston Thursday.

OTTAWA, June 7.—The Cabinet minister did not meet until 4 o'clock, when Sir John Thompson arrived from Montreal, whither he had gone to visit his little daughter, who is seriously ill. It was decided to give the Premier a state funeral. Lady Macdonald on being communicated with gave her consent to this arrangement.

The following is the official program:

1. The body will be privately moved from Ernscliffe to the Parliament Buildings and will lie in state there from 10 o'clock Tuesday morning till the hour of the funeral.

2. The state funeral will leave the Parliament Buildings at 1 p.m. on Wednesday for St. Alban's Church, where a service will be held, thence to the C.P.R. station, whence the body will be conveyed to Kingston.

3. The body will lie in state at City Hall, Kingston, on Thursday until noon, when the interment will take place.

The only absentees from the Cabinet meeting were Mr. Abbott and Mr. Haggart, who were in Montreal. The members had intended to call at Ernscliffe to-day to express their sympathy and condolence, but owing to the fact that the body of the Premier was not ready for viewing they decided to postpone their visit until to-morrow. They will meet in the council chamber at 11 a.m. and proceed to Ernscliffe in a body.

All the details in connection with the state funeral have been left in the hands of Hon. Edgar Dewdney, Lieut.-Col. Smith, Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, and Major Sherwood, Superintendent of Dominion Police. The military will be invited to assist at the funeral.

The House of Commons chamber and Sir John's seat will be draped in mourning to-morrow.

The Regalia of Death.

Mr. M. Rogers, undertaker, embalmed the remains this morning. He says Sir John is less emaciated than was generally supposed. The casket was made in West Meriden, Conn. It is of rolled steel and is painted a beautiful rosewood color. The massive handles consist of a solid bar of oxydized silver, and extend along both sides of the coffin. On the lid are three large silver figures, emblematic of the flight of time. The inside is lined with heavy white satin. The outside casket is made of solid oak and also displays heavy silver handles. The casket is an exact facsimile of that of the late President Garfield. The inscription on the silver plate has not yet been engraved.

Her Majesty's Sympathy.

Hundreds of telegrams and cables reached Lady Macdonald. They all extended sympathy and condolences. Her Majesty cabled from Balmoral to the Governor-General that she was deeply pained to learn of Sir John's death, which she regarded as a great loss to Canada and the sovereign. Her Majesty extended her heartfelt sympathy to Lady Macdonald in the hour of her sad bereavement.

Lord Salisbury sent a message of sympathy. Sir Charles Tupper cabled his condolence from Vienna. All the Lieutenant-Governors of the Dominion sent messages of sympathy. Lieut.-Governor Angers of Quebec and Lieut.-Governor Campbell of Ontario added that they would attend the funeral. Hon. Oliver Mowat wired his sorrow at the death of an old personal friend and promising to attend the funeral.

Mourning Ministers.

The Cabinet Ministers are reluctant to be interviewed on the subject of the Premier's death. They are all grief-stricken at the loss of their loved chieftain. Nowhere is this grief more real than among the members of the Opposition. The noble qualities of the man with whom they have been struggling for years for the mastery, and the loss which the country has sustained, are fully appreciated. Not one has anything but the kindest of words for the dead statesman, the greatest admiration for his abilities, and the greatest regret at his death.

To Adjourn for a Week.

When the House meets to-morrow the Ministers will ask an adjournment until Tuesday of next week. In view of the fact that the state funeral will take up the greater part of the week, it will be impossible to conduct public business. The Ministers therefore decided to-day to ask for a week's adjournment.

Tokens of Respect.

With dawn to-day flags could be seen floating at half-mast throughout the city. The flag on centre tower of the House of Parliament and on the lofty poles at each side of the imposing structure hung idly, scarcely stirred by the breeze.

The United States Consul, Col. Lay on international courtesy lowered half way the Stars and Stripes which floated above his residence directly opposite Parliament-square. Many private residences showed their sorrow similarly. The massive stone French Roman Catholic Church across the river in Hull, but in easy view of the House, displayed a tricolor at high-mast immediately over the cross.

Notes.

Hamilton MacCarthy, the sculptor, took an excellent plaster cast of Sir John's head to-day in order to make from it a statue.

Lieut.-Governor Angers of Quebec, has wired for a suite of rooms at the Russell. All the Lieut.-Governors in Canada are expected for the funeral.

The news of Sir John's death was received in London, England, five minutes after the said event had taken place.

Despatches from all sections of the province state that reference was made in all the churches to the Premier's death, in every city, town and village, and flags were half-masted.

At this writing the Governor-General has not sent for any of Sir John's colleagues to form a ministry.

Arrangements have been made to fire minute guns at Ottawa and in every city in Canada during the progress of the funeral.

There is a strong feeling that an autopsy ought to be made on the body of Sir John by independent medical men in order that the public may know what was really the cause of death.

Hundreds of potted plants were removed to Ernscliffe to-day. Sir John now lies in his casket. He is attired in the uniform of the Imperial Privy Council.

Mayor Birkett has called special attention of the City Council for to-morrow morning to draw up resolutions of sympathy and condolence, issue a proclamation calling upon citizens to cease from business on the day of the funeral and drape their stores and residences with mourning and make necessary arrangements for the funeral.

WHO WILL BE CALLED?

Gossip at the Capital as to Sir John's Successor.

The program for Monday in the House will probably be a short session with tributes to the memory of Sir John and then an adjournment of a week or ten days, in which time the reconstruction will be effected.

All sorts of rumors have been flying around to-day as to whom the Governor-General would call upon to form a new Government. Two Ministers, one from the Maritime Provinces, the other from Quebec, said to-night that no one had yet been summoned by the Governor and that it was not probable that anyone would be summoned until after the funeral. This delay of at least five days is almost without precedent. It gives point to a curious story afloat to-night to the effect that the Governor-General left the meeting of the Royal Society at Montreal rather hurriedly last Wednesday and called upon Sir John Macdonald at Ernscliffe next day. It is said that Sir John then indicated whom he thought should be called upon to form a new Ministry in case his illness terminated fatally.

The meeting of the ministers to-day took place at Sir Hector Langevin's house, but this one of the ministers was owing simply to the fact that the council chamber was closed, it being Sunday and that it was a courtesy extended Sir Hector, the senior minister. Sir Hector, however, was quite unwell this morning.

The Thompson stock seems to be in the ascendancy to-night. His name is freely mentioned in connection with the Premiership. A meeting was held at the residence of the Minister of Justice to-night at which Mr. Chapleau, Mr. Bowell, Mr. Clarke Wallace and others were present. Sir Hector Langevin and Sir Adolphe Caron were not there.

The New Brunswick members had a caucus in the Russel House to-night. They are said to favor Sir Charles Tupper as leader.

The News in Toronto.

TORONTO, June 8.—The people had been waiting with apprehension for eight days for the dread news that came about 10.30 on Saturday night, but when it actually came the blow seemed none the less hard. It is wonderful how people keep hoping against hope. They incline to believe that a miracle will happen rather than prepare for some unwelcome occurrence. That has been the state of feeling all along, and when at last the intelligence that cut off all hope came to hand there was a pang of unavailing regret. Shortly after the receipt of the despatch announcing his death, the city bells began to toll. At the first peal the words "Sir John is dead!" escaped from a hundred thousand lips, and it is no exaggeration to say that thousands of people who had never seen him, but who with the rest of the world had been watching his grim struggle with the destroyer, laid down to their night's rest with a prevailing emotion of sorrow and regret.

Sympathy From 80,000 Masons.

On Saturday night on receipt of the news of the Premier's death, this message of sympathy was transmitted to Ottawa:

Lady Macdonald, Ottawa:

On behalf of twenty thousand of Sir John's brother Masons, permit me to respectfully tender a sincere assurance of heartfelt sympathy in this supreme hour of grief to his loved ones and the nation.

J. ROSS ROBERTSON,
Grand Master Grand Lodge
A. F. & A. M., of Canada.

On Sunday afternoon this acknowledgment was received:

J. Ross Robertson, Grand Master Grand Lodge A. F. & A. M., Toronto, Canada:

ERNSCLIFFE, June 7th.

Lady Macdonald desires me to ask you to be good enough to accept for yourself and convey to the Masonic body in Canada her grateful thanks for the kind sympathy in her great affliction. JOSEPH POPE.

Mr. Meredith for Leader.

A Toronto gentleman of prominence said last night Mr. Meredith should be the Conservative leader in the Federal House if he had been in the House a session before Sir John's death nothing could have kept him out of the succession. As it is he may yet get in. Mr. Meredith possesses every qualification for leadership, experience, character, ability, fidelity to the party and zeal for its interests. He has ungrudgingly fought an uphill fight in this province, handicapped in a measure through his loyalty to the party and its leader. He has fought the fight almost alone. He has borne in all these years an Atlantean burden and has borne it with an ability and strength that show him to be worthy of better things. He is eloquent, suave, polite, well-informed, winning in manner and has great capacity for leadership. Ontario Conservatives will throw their caps up at the mention of his name."

"Would not his sudden ascension cause some heart-burnings among leading Conservatives in Federal politics?"

"It might for a time, but these would soon die out, especially when the party recognized that they had got the right man in the right place."

AT KINGSTON.

References to the Event in Sir John's Constituency.

KINGSTON, June 7.—Before Father Kelly commenced his sermon to St. Mary's congregation to-day he alluded to the death of Sir John A. Macdonald in the following words: "The Catholics of Kingston unite with their fellow-countrymen of all creeds all over Canada in the common sorrow which has befallen this country by the death of Sir John A. Macdonald. We participate in the universal regrets of the country for the loss of her first statesman. We have our own part in this affliction with which Divine Providence has visited our beloved land. A man has passed away who, by word and example, sought to enkindle in the breasts of Canadians the spirit of fire and patriotism. For a long term of years—longer than is usually allotted to men—has he held with benefit to the country, with distinguished honor to himself and with a devotion unselfish and loyal the great public trust confided to him by the suffrages of his compatriots. It is just that we withhold not from him a generous tribute of gratitude for his great public services, even as we wish also to record our applause of the great career which death has just closed and our affectionate remembrance of our honored fellow-citizen, the first in the counsels of his country. We are one, therefore, with the universal spirit of national sorrow; we share in the great public loss which Sir John's death brings to Canada, and we send our meed of sympathy to the bereaved family, whose grief is beyond ours; but yet, even to his nearest and dearest, we do not yield in the honor we would give to the illustrious dead."

In Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 6.—The death of Sir John was referred to in all the city churches to-day. The flags on the shipping in the harbor are at half-mast.

To-morrow's Gazette will say: "It is impossible to maintain in presence of a calamity so great, of loss so irreparable, the coolness of those who write of historic events and men dead long ago whom we have not seen. Macdonald was so widely known no man was ignorant of him in this country. He had visited every part of the Dominion, he had spoken to hundreds of thousands, had personal acquaintance of more men than probably any other public man on this continent—perhaps in the world. He had touched hands in friendship with an extraordinary number of people, and his memory enabled him to greet them all. His correspondence, written with his own hand, was surprising, and those of us who have had in the nature of things many letters from him know how kind, how pressing, how graceful how friendly his letters could be. The fascination of his presence was so great, the kindness of his conversation was so constant, the glamour of his genius was so enthralling, the event of his power was so keen that human composure, easily maintained at ordinary times, fails when shadows of death encompass him and he parts forever from the dear ones he has loved so well, from the friends who so worshipped him, from the people who, in spite of all the differences of party, yet looked upon him as the great glory of Canada, the man of whom we could all be proud.

All England Mourns.

LONDON, June 6.—Much has been said in the House of Commons and elsewhere about Sir John Macdonald. There is a general feeling among Englishmen of all parties that his death may prove a disaster for Canada, and a disaster from the English point of view. They recognize, at any rate, his great services. The leaders of both parties have spoken of him in a tone of the utmost respect about a man whose importance is felt to be imperial. He is regarded as the creator of the Dominion of Canada, and the man who has done more than all others to keep that great colony loyal to the Crown. Be the merits or demerits of his domestic policy what they may, English gratitude to him is profound, and the Queen's message of enquiry and regret express, as they so often do, the sentiments of her people.

LONDON, June 7.—All the newspapers speak in eulogistic terms of the late Sir John Macdonald and they express the deepest regret at his death. The Daily News says: His death is a loss to the whole Empire. If he was not exactly a great man he did great things. He contrived to postpone some of the most searching questions of colonial policy. Therefore his death is likely to produce far-reaching changes.

THE CHURCHES OF OTTAWA.

Affecting References Made from the Various Pulpits.

OTTAWA, June 7.—At nearly every church in the city to-day affecting references were made from the pulpits to the death of the veteran statesman.

SUN LIFE
ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Increase over 1889	75 649 05
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961 35

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6 04 per cent. The over due interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS as computed during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail these to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec.,	1881, (five years)	$64 824 07

DEAD!

The flags despondently drooping half-mast yesterday morning gave the intelligence that, for the past week has been feared. Sir John Macdonald's great career is closed, and death claimed the prey that so strongly had resisted to the last. A great man has gone. Whatever the political differences of opinion may be that influence the several estimates of Sir John Macdonald's character and course that certainly exist, there are no two opinions of the phenomenal ability of Canada's late Premier. No public man has ever presented a personality that appealed so strongly to popular appreciation—had so strong a hold upon the popular heart. For half a century, with comparatively brief intermissions, Sir John Macdonald's influence and methods have been paramount in moulding the destinies of Canada. His name has been intimately associated with the confederation of the scattered Provinces, and his hand has been busy in a pre-eminent degree in directing the development of its resources and the consolidation of its institutions; but the presence of death is no fitting time to deal with the methods and principles which have played their part in the great achievements that are placed to the credit of his great name. Only the dispassionate judgment of posterity, unaffected by the personal influence of the dead Premier, can give a verdict that will do justice either to the acts or the actor. As a leader of men, Sir John Macdonald may have had a peer, but it is a matter of doubt that he has ever had a superior. This magnetic attractiveness largely accounts for the great success of his political career, which, while it has engendered bitter political strifes, it is safe to say that even amongst the ranks of his most active and energetic political opponents, it has failed to find a man who held personal enmity against the old Chieftain, or who will now permit one embittered memory to mingle with the personal sorrow he feels so deeply in the presence of death. While Sir John stands conspicuously superior in ability to all the political associates which his political career has made necessary to his work, he also stands superior to the vast majority of them in the cleanness of his personal record. In the sense of self-seeking, Sir John's most bitter political enemy will not accuse him of any sordid greed for the sake of his personal enrichment. He sought power and he gained it for the sake of power and for the means it presented for the advancement of the interests of his adopted country in whose service the longest and best years of his life were passed. The Canadian Pacific Railway which while it has not yet passed entirely beyond the realm of experiment will stand as a monument of Sir John Macdonald's audacious prescience and unconquerable energy. When time shall have softened the asperities of political feeling and permit juster estimates of the deeds of half a century of Canadian history, Sir John Macdonald will stand as one of the most prominent figures in her annals; as one who has devoted his life and unsurpassed abilities in the promotion of the national good and justify the feeling, begotten of admiration and affection for the personality of the dead chieftain, which now causes a young nation to bow in sorrow around his bier.

British Free Trade.

According to the latest report of the Trade and Treaties Committee in England the new French tariff bill will, if adopted in its present form, affect to some extent British exports of woollen tissues, machinery, cotton and woollen yarn, iron and steel and other staple articles. The committee adds, however:—

"We attach more importance to the indirect effects of the new tariff. The import duties as now increased by the Customs Committee will press with great severity upon the working class population of France and their manufacturing capacity. Specific rates of duty, however carefully and elaborately devised, are usually found to tax most highly the cheap articles of universal consumption and when, as in this case, there are protective duties upon so many raw materials and instruments of production, in addition to those on all imported goods, cheap manufacture for home consumption and for export becomes a matter of great difficulty. The purchasing power of the French people will accordingly be injured in all directions, and, although they will be the greatest sufferers, their neighbors will also be injured. The development of a spirit of retaliation in neighboring countries, especially in Germany, Switzerland and Belgium—Italy being already in a state of commercial warfare with France—seems also to be assured."

We in Canada, says the Globe, can vouch from our own experience for the truth of some of these observations. A free trade country like Britain readily adapts itself to and even sometimes profits by the vagaries of protectionist nations. The more they "protect" themselves the less formidable do they become in neutral markets, and the more she sells there. Her free trade gives her a favoured nation foot in everywhere, and, above all, tends to the comfort of her people, who get their food and clothing at the lowest figure going, whilst wages are higher by a good deal than in any of the protectionist countries in Europe. If Sir John Macdonald could look back upon the past and speak his secret mind he would probably say that it was a grevious blunder when we in Canada departed from the sound economic policy of the mother country and went after the strange gods whose cult across the line is now falling into disrepute. If we had begun direct taxation when our burdens were light, so as to keep down the cost of living and of producing to the lowest notch, two things would have resulted—first, we should have attracted labour and capital to the development of the most remunerative industries and to none other; secondly, having to pay our taxes in cash, we would have watched the expenditure with a sharp eye and made short work of the thieves and boodlers who flourish and almost bid defiance to us under the existing system. There is not much satisfaction, however, in dwelling upon what might have been. The question now is how to extricate ourselves from crushing protectionist taxes and from a debt which threatens to overwhelm us. We are in that vicious dilemma where the expenditure necessitates high customs duties, because it is too large to be met by any form of direct taxation which the mass of the people would tolerate. Chevalier, the French economist, called this the "devil's hole." It is certainly a bad hole, and if Tupper should come to the throne and begin flinging millions to the winds and waves, there is no telling what the outcome will be.

The Less Drink Entails.

Jules Rochard, a noted student of hygiene, estimates in this way the lots involved in the consumption of alcohol in France. Value of alcohol consumed (exclusive of duty paid), 128 273 384 francs; loss of labor, 1,340,174,500; medical treatment and stoppage of work, 70,842,000 francs; cost of maintenance of insane, 2,952,912 francs; suicides and deaths from accidents, 1,926,000 francs; cost of repression of crime due to alcohol, 9 894,500 francs; total expressed in dollars $311,151,459. The corresponding loss in England is estimated at $564,425,015. In his prohibition days Mr. Foster made a similar calculation for Canada, in which he estimates that we spent annually $40,000,000 on liquor, and that its manufacture involved the loss of the labor of 1,200 men.

Wall Paper Way Down.

As we have leased the adjacent premises about to be vacated by Mr. Jas. Stenson, boot and shoe merchant, which will be occupied by our fancy goods and wall paper department, as soon as the necessary alterations are made, our present immense stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore must be greatly reduced in order to facilitate removal. This great clearing sale of wall paper will continue for the next 30 days, regardless of prices. Cost marks won't count in this sale. The stock must be cleared out, or at all events reduced so that it can be handled easily. It comprises fall lines of all kinds of wall paper of the very latest styles and designs, which we got in this spring from the best makers on the continent. A particularly fine lot of gold papers will be sold at a sacrifice. A great variety of job ends will be cleared out at almost any price. This is the chance of a life time. Remember this sale will last 30 days, when we expect to remove the wall paper department down stairs into the new store. The stock of wall paper at the Peterborough Bookstore is by far the largest and most complete in town, and those who come early will get the benefit of a choice selection. This is a genuine slaughter sale of wall paper. We ask you to call and be convinced of the big bargains that are being offered the public at the Peterborough Bookstore.

From the Old Scott Limits.

The Bobcaygeon Independent says: "The Haslitt "drive" of logs, which were out last winter on the old Scott's limits in Aoskuther and Cavendish, are making their way down Mississauga creek. The head camp is now at Scott's mills, and the creek may be said to be filled with logs all the way back to the depot, a distance of nine miles. More than 140, logs or pieces are in the creek. Five foremen are engaged in the work, and about eighty men. The work of damming the waters for the purpose of running the logs was a heavy undertaking, one dam in Cavendish being over forty feet in height, and is a fine piece of work, and was constructed by Mr. Dan McIntosh, one of the most experienced and best woodsman in the district. The "drive" is reported to be of a quality that has not been seen for many years, as the limits are new, untouched by the destroying hand of man, still in all their native glory. The best of the logs will be cut at Harwood, the remainder at Peterborough."

A box of Ayer's Pills have save many a fit of sickness. When a remedy does not happen to be within reach, people are liable to neglect slight ailments, and, of course, if serious illness follows they have to suffer the consequences. "A stitch in time saves nine."

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and herbs, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick headache, and is the best spring medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package. dw

The Key Stone.

Regular action of the bowels is the keystone to health. The use of B.B.B. insures it and cures constipation, dyspepsia, etc. Miss F. Williams, 445 Bloor Street, Toronto, writes: "Have used your Burdock Blood Bitters for constipation and pain in the head with great success. I improved from the second dose." 2w241

Winter Sports.

The gay winter season exposes many to attacks of colds, coughs, hoarseness, tightness of the chest, asthma, bronchitis, etc., which requires a reliable remedy like Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for their relief and cure. Known as reliable for over thirty years. The best cough cure. 2w241

THERE is no one article in the line of medicine that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Plasters. dw

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

"Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

LANGEVIN—McGREEVY.

Longed For Letters That Are Not Forthcoming—A Missing Witness at Length Puts in an Appearance.

OTTAWA, June 5.—The Tarte investigation into the Langevin-McGreevy scandal was resumed again to-day at the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The Government contractors generally take a great interest in the proceedings, many of them being in attendance each day. Mr. Gobeil, Deputy Minister of Public Works, was the first witness. He was asked to examine and identify another batch of documents put in as exhibits in regard to the Esquimalt graving dock. Following this, O. E. Murphy, one of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., was called as a witness. A statement was placed in his hands by Mr. Geoffrion, counsel for Tarte, to which he swore, showing that Robert McGreevy was taken into the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. with the knowledge of Thomas McGreevy and paid 30 per cent. on the contract the other 70 per cent. being equally divided between himself (Murphy), Nicholas Connolly, Michael Connolly and P. Larkin. A letter from Nicholas Connolly in regard to this matter and addressed to witness was handed him to identify, which he did. The reason for taking in Robert was to get the influence of Thomas McGreevy with the Department of Public Works. On being asked to read it, a squabble took place with counsel over the matter, and the chairman decided that it would be best to get the writer, Nicholas Connolly, to prove that he had written it. Coming to the question of the alleged payment of the $25,000 to Thomas McGreevy, he read a statement given him by the bookkeeper of the firm and taken from the books showing how this sum was paid to Thomas McGreevy and included in the expense account. It was the first item but no name was opposite the sum, still he was certain that Mr. T. McGreevy received it. The statement showed that Valin, a member of the Harbor Commission, was the recipient of a certain sum placed to expenses. The audit statement was presented to witness, duly signed by the auditors and accepted by the different members of the firm, which he also swore to. Asked in what part of it the sum of $25,000 which he said was paid to Thomas McGreevy was included, he pointed to the expense account, which in all amounted to over $20,000. The committee then met in secret session to receive the report of the sub-committee appointed to prepare a report to the House on the refusal of Michael Connolly to produce his books to the Committee.

Martin Connolly, the missing bookkeeper of Larkin, Connolly & Co., turned up to-day. It is probable that Michael Connolly will be ordered to appear at the bar of the House for contempt, in refusing to obey order of committee. He said he had been away fishing. The facts of his case will be reported in the House to-day.

Charged with a Horrible Crime.

TORONTO, June 4.—One of the most fiendish acts ever recorded is alleged to have been perpetrated by a French Canadian named Joseph Woodgreen, alias Bouvers, on a little girl of four years. He is a laborer at the new municipal buildings, and is said to have enticed Alice and Emma Major, 4 and 5 years old respectively, into his rooms. Then he sent the eldest out for a penny's worth of candy and committed a most villainous outrage on the other. When the child went home she reported the occurrence to her mother and the man was arrested. Yesterday in court he refused to plead, professing ignorance of English. After a consultation with Dr. Pickering, the case was adjourned for a week.

James Bailey, aged 19, of 59 Blair-avenue and William Thompson, aged 15, of 11 Blair-avenue were arrested last night by Detective Watson, charged with having ravished two little 7-year-old girls named Maud and Minnie Tyrrill. The crime is more than usually heinous. The children, who are twins, live at 71 Regent-street, and like their parents are deaf and dumb. Yesterday afternoon Bailey and Thompson enticed the two girls into the former's home, his mother being absent in Niagara. Bailey, it is said, took the girl Maud into one of the bedrooms and Thompson the other into a closet, where they accomplished their devilish designs.

The Buffalo Races

BUFFALO, June 5.—The talent fell down in several of the events, but were occasionally lucky in picking up favorites and winning on them. The worst breaks were in the first race, where Pelham was put in as assure winner and was played recklessly by the crowd. He was unplaced at the finish. Then in the mile and half a furlong handicap the talent thought they were safe with Myrtellow and they backed him at 3 to 2 to win, the Canadian contingent piling on him, but they met with a disappointment. The crowd generally attributed the result to poor judgment by the jockey and with Flynn or Anderson up the general verdict was that the result would have been different.

First race, 6 furlongs—Lagrippe (6 to 1) won, Pelham 2, Theora 3. Time 1.16¾.

Second race, 5 furlongs—Lady Lyon colt (4 to 5) won, Katurah 2, Valkyr 3. Time 1.03.

Third race, six furlongs—John A. Tweed (4 to 5) 1, Costa Rica (6 to 1) 2, Carnott 3. Time 1.15¾.

Fourth race, 1-16 miles—Rambler (5 to 1) 1, Now-or-Never 2, Pontchester 3. Time 1.47¾.

Fifth race, six furlongs—King Alta (1 to 2) 1, St. Patrick 2, Krikuid 3. Time 1.15. Ely (8 to 1) also ran.

Sixth race, 1¼ miles—Troy (1 to 2) 1, Lijero 2, J. J. O'B. 3. Time 2.12.

Some interesting figures are given in a recent report made by Mr. J. Stanley Mitcalfe of Newcastle-on-Tyne, a well-known authority in shipping statistics. From his tables it appears that in 1880 the total steamship tonnage of the world was 6,745,196, and the sailing ship tonnage 13,872,881. But as he assumes that a steamer does the work of three-fifth sailing vessels of the same size, the steamship tonnage gives above is multiplied by three-fifths to obtain the carrying capacity, which is found to be 28,608,193; and this added to the sailing ship tonnage gives 36,481,074 tons as the total carrying capacity of the world in 1880.

In 1890, these figures had increased to a steamship tonnage of 10,540,051, giving, by the same process of conversion as before, 53,430,082 tons as the total carrying capacity of the world. The increase from 1880 to 1890 is 47.86 per cent. It further appears that Great Britain has steadily advanced in her relative share of the world's trade, the British carrying capacity being 50.30 per cent. of the whole in 1872, increasing to 54.47 per cent. in 1880, and reaching 57.46 per cent. in 1890. Another striking fact is the extensive substitution of steam for sailing.—Mechanical News.

Willyum Was Clever.

In almost every seaside town there is some thriftless no'er-do-well, who, although he never has any regular occupation, is generally a good skipper and is always at the service of the summer resident for any job which does not bear the aspect of regular labor and includes an occasional drink. "Uncle Jack," of Ryemouth, was one of these characters, and he was engaged one day for a fishing trip by a Boston gentleman who was a native of the seaside town.

"Willyum," said Uncle Jack, who, with a pipe between his teeth, was keeping a lazy watch over the tiller, "my gals subscribed for the Home Garland awhile ago and them Bawston fellers sent me a bill the other day for $10, four years' subscription. Know, I hain't got no $10, Willyum. Don't you think you could fix this for me when you go up to town?"

The Bostonian promised to do what he could, and Uncle Jack handed him the bill from a greasy piece of leather which he called a pocketbook.

Shortly after, being out on another trip, the old man asked:

"Willyum, did ye fix them ere newspaper fellers?" and Mr. R. answered, "Yes, I did, Uncle Jack."

With a pleased grin toe other inquired: "An' haow did ye manage it?"

Looking at his inquirer with a sober face, Mr. R. responded:

"Well, I went in there and told them that you were a miserable, drunken old loafer, without a cent to your name, and they settled for $3."

The old man's jaw dropped a little, and after a pause of full fifteen minutes, he said:

"That was clever of you, Willyum, but don't you think you kinder raised —— with my reputation in Bawston?"—Boston Bulletin.

How to Work.

Do not lay out for yourself for any day, or week, or month, more than you can accomplish. Do what you purpose, or ascertain that it cannot be done, and dismiss it, and turn to the next best thing, finishing as you go. Take first in hand the things which should be done, and let those which may be done come after.

There are two opposite precepts in the philosophy of common life which dispute for precedence. One is, "Don't put off till to-morrow what can be done to-day," and the other, "Don't do to-day what can be delayed till to-morrow." To these contradictories the same direction may be applied. Having decided on your day's work, if it is a part of a continuous occupation, fix as definitely as possible on a good place to stop, and, having ceased work, cease worry.

Leave no loose ends, and your day's work will furnish you with a composing draught better than poppy or mandragora. Complete whatever can be completed, and mentally post your books.

The Money Was Burned.

OTTAWA, June 5.—In the accident to the Winnipeg express on the C.P.R. at Straight Lake the sum of $30,000, which had been mailed from two banks here to Winnipeg, was destroyed. One package of $10,000 has been entirely destroyed, but there are sufficient portions of some of the second bundle to enable the bank to recover several thousand dollars. Who the actual losers will be is not known, but it is likely to fall on the banks shipping the amount.

"Here's health to all that we love,
Here's health to all that love us,
Here's health to all those that love them,
That love those that love them
That love us."

Do you notice what a large circle this wish for health includes? and will you notice the reference is not to the wine-cup, but to a standard medicine, the "Golden Medical Discovery," that can bring health to the large number of friends we each love. True, it is not a "beverage," and does not inebriate, but is a health-giving medicine, a blood purifier, liver invigorator and general tonic—a remedy for biliousness, indigestion, and stomach troubles. It cures consumption, in its early stages, scrofula, bronchitis, and throat diseases. s

It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not cass this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Regimental Notes.

To-morrow evening the Battalion will have a march out with the band in drill order.

A deputation of officers will go to Ottawa this week to make arrangements for the trip on the 1st July.

Only three weeks are left in which to prepare for the visit to the capitol. The Guards and the Royal Scots of Montreal are drilling hard for the occasion. Every man of the 57th should turn out regulary to assist in keeping up the good name of the regiment.

Stony Lake Notes.

It is estimated that there are about 200 cottages on Clear and Stoney lakes. These cottages are occupied by campers and their families during the summer months. There is a steady increase in the popularity of this summer resort of ours every season, large numbers coming from the States and different parts of Canada, to camp for the summer. Don't fail to join the excursion of the Charlotte street Library committee on July 1st. Fare for the round trip only 80 cents, children under 12, half fare. 1d

Complaints From North Monaghan.

County Police Magistrate Edmison held court at the Court House this morning. David Doig of North Monaghan, charged Geo. Stevens with transmitting night soil within the limits of the township without proper covering, and John Bell with permitting the deposit of night soil in such a manner to render it a nuisance. Mr. Stone appeared for the defendant Stevens, and Mr. Barnham, Q.C., for defendant Bell. After hearing considerable evidence an arrangement was agreed to, to withdraw the charges on the defendants paying the costs incurred.

The Band Wants More Room

Everybody is delighted with the splendid music furnished ad libitum by the band in Court House Park. The public enjoys this great treat free of charge and it is to the public, represented by the council, that the band looks for the crescendo movement in the matter of pavilion accommodation, which the growing numbers of the band call for. The pavilion is altogether too small to give the band the accommodation it requires for effective playing. It is proposed, as the easiest solution of the difficulty, to extend the circumference of the pavilion floor about three feet all round, supporting it on brackets. This will give ample accommodation. Will the gentlemen of the council look after this matter?

"The Maple Leaf Forever."

That motto in its spirit represents the celebration of July 1st in an appropriate manner, and that manner is the best which makes the most the happiest. Look out for and take in the library excursion of the Charlotte Street Church Sunday School on that day. A swift and pleasant riverside run by rail to Lakefield, and then a magnificent sail on Clear Lake and the inland dotted area of Stony Lake to Juniper Island for dinner. Now a delightful al fresco repast under the shady trees of the old canoe camp island, and then aboard the "Golden City" again for a steam up to the head of the lake—Bonnieneck, Julian's, etc. O, it will be simply delightful! Tickets for round trip, 80 cents only; children under twelve years of age, half price. Tickets procurable at G.T.R. station on morning of excursion, or of members of the Committee—T. Barrie, Secretary, and W. Hamilton, Chairman. 24132

St. Andrew's New Pastor.

Sunday was a red-letter day in St. Andrew's, the first Sunday of the pastorate of Rev. Mr. McWilliams. There were very large congregations at both morning and evening services. In the morning Mr. McWilliams dealt with the relations of a pastor to his people, and defined the vocation of a minister as a call from God, and, therefore, involving a weighty responsibility. He expressed his determination to deliver the whole counsel of God and to preach the Gospel fearlessly. If he had accepted the position of pastor except in response to a Divine call, the fact would soon become apparent. As a citizen Mr. McWilliams claimed, and would exercise, the right to perform all the duties of citizenship. While he would exercise the franchise, he felt that the pulpit was no place for politics. Rev. Mr. McWilliams has created an excellent impression, and St. Andrew's seems to be entering on a career of prosperity unexampled in its history, such as a united, energetic congregation, under an energetic and earnest pastor, has reason, with the Divine blessing, to expect.

Drowning Accident.

Frankie Gilman, a five-year-old son of Mr. John Gilman, Ashburnham, was drowned about nine o'clock this forenoon in the Otonabee river at the foot of the Dickson dam on the east side. He and another little fellow named George Ferguson were playing on top of the cribwork close to the dam, and young Gilman while in the act of throwing a large stone into the water became overbalanced and fell in. The water at this place eddies and surges with the force of the stream pouring over the dam, and though not over three feet deep where he fell in, the poor little fellow was at once swept away by the current into deeper water. Young Ferguson immediately ran home and told his mother, and as soon as possible Mr. Gilman, who works at Malhern's mill, was summoned, and with the assistance of several others, got into a boat and began searching with grappling hooks for the body, which up to the time of our going to press had not been recovered. Mr. Gilman will be heartily sympathized with in the painfully sudden shock he has been called upon to bear. The body may not be recoved for some time, for the water moves so rapidly at this point the search is conducted with the greatest difficulty, and if the body has been carried into the main current and down the river, the search will likely be all the more prolonged.

Burglars at Ida

(By Telegraph to the Examiner.)

OMEMEE, June 7.—Burglars broke into Wm. Lough's store at Ida postoffice last night and blew open the safe and took $250 in cash besides a lot of goods and destroyed a lot of notes and other valuable papers. This is the third time this store has been burglarized. The neighbors across the street heard the report and notified Mr. Lough but the burglars escaped. No clue yet.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Mr. Arthur Jolly gave a very impressive and throughtful address at the Young Men's Rally Saturday evening, the large number present enjoyed the service and the hearty manner in which they took part in the exercises showed how much interested they were in this helpful and joyful meeting, the after meeting was a time of refreshing and heart searching.

Mr. Albert Hamilton led the Consecration Service Sabbath morning, the attendance was good and much interest was manifested in the study of God's word.

Mr. W. D. Smart gave a short earnest gospel talk at the open air service in Central Park yesterday afternoon. The large number assembled listened attentively and with reference to the message and sang heartily the hymns which were led acceptably by the Y. M. C. A. band.

Mr. M. Cumming addressed the gospel and song service last evening, the attendance was good and the thoughtful and helpful address found a response in all hearts present and is sure to bring forth fruit to God's glory.

Young Men's Bible Class Tuesday evening from 8 to 9 p.m.

Christian Alliance Convention

It Commences in Peterborough to-morrow

The Convention of the Canadian Auxiliary Branch of the Christian Alliance will open at the Opera House to-morrow at 9 o'clock. The order of each day's exercises will be as follows:—

9 a.m., prayer meeting; 10 to 12, two Bible readings; 2 to 3, questions; 3 to 5, Bible reading; 7.30 p.m., Addresses by Rev A.B Simpson, Dr. Wilson, F. W. Farr, Mrs. Wolfenmore, Rev. C. D. Ryder, Providence, R.I., Rev. John Salmon, Toronto, Miss Liedenberger and others.

The singing will be led by Miss Shepherd, a talented vocalist of New York. Special hymns will be sung and hymn books will be distributed to the congregation.

Careful Bible readings will be given, especially on such subjects as true Christians are most likely to be seriously exercised about, on account of honest diversity of judgment, when there is at the same time a sincere desire to know and obey the truth, as God has revealed it in His word.

Several of the speakers are already in town and Dr. Simpson and others will arrive on the noon train to-morrow.

Police Court Paragraphs.

The Small Boy Has His Innings—Juvenile Justice Meted Out.

At the police court this morning seven small lads were arraigned charged with disorderly conduct in the South Ward, in the vicinity of the school building. The charge was proven and the boys received a lecture from the magistrate, and a fine of one dollar each or ten days in gaol, with ten days to raise the money.

Another lad was up for breaking windows in the school building. Too case was enlarged for a week. The South Ward building is perhaps the best ventilated school building in town. There are about 30 panes smashed.

An assault case, enlarged from last week, is further enlarged till next Friday.

Three boys were taught a pretty expensive lesson as to proper behaviour in Court House Park. On Friday night they made themselves conspicuous by running up and down the terrace and otherwise injuring the lawns during the band concert. The charge was proven and the magistrate imposed a fine of $5 on each, in all $15, with the intimation that the next offenders of a similar character will be at once sent to jail for a month without the choice of a fine. It is a great privilege for the public to enjoy the park on concert nights, and the authorities are determined not to allow hoodlum conduct to compel the closing of the park to the general public. Those who come for enjoyment of the music are welcome, and those who come to create disturbance and injure the lawns or terraces are also welcome—to a month in jail. A word to the wise is sufficient.

—For bracing up the nerves, purifying the blood and curing sick headache and dyspepsia, there is nothing equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

PAIN from indigestion, dyspepsia and too hearty eating, is relieved at once by taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this. dw

A Boundary Hit.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—If you will allow me a little space in your columns I think that I can explain satisfactorily the sudden collapse of cricket in Peterborough, to which you have made several allusions. These strictures upon the team are not warranted by the facts of the case. Let me say that the ladies of this town, were and always have been deeply indebted both for their attendance at matches and their indispensable assistance in entertaining visiting teams. To these the good name of the town is due—a name that has been a source of pride to us. To the ladies much of the healthy tone of the game is also due and many a boy who has developed into a fine manly athletic chap remembers with gratitude their kindness and approval as an inspiring note.

But it is quite another thing when you come to the great majority of the men of this town. Of course we know that things have changed and that the old regime has been succeeded by another. I have heard the remark frequently "why do you not ask so and so? I should think he would gladly help you?" Yes, you would think so but he does not care twopence about the thing in reality, and he proceeds to make excuses with his wonted facility, always reserving the right to say, however, that he would have been glad to help the noble game if etc., etc. The newspapers, like ourselves, have laboured hard to rouse the people to some sort of practical interest in the game. In no other country except the United States is there such a want of interest in the games of young men, and I am free to say results show what is lost. Young men will have their games and if legitimate sport is not provided, people may expect that their sons will gamble and haunt places of amusements that seek the shadows of the night and the unhealthy, unmanly and un-British seclusion of an ignoble pastime. Yet these very men are the first to revel in self congratulations when we win, or perchance, in misfortune, are just as richly sarcastic in dispraise. There are a few gentlemen, as Mr. Dumble, Mr. Dunlop, the Rev. Mr. Shorey and three doctors, who are always generous even without being implored. They realize the good influence of a sport free from the taint of professionalism and of such good effect upon the moral and physical well-being of a community. Lacrosse once flourished here and, though the local club was not quite in the front rank, as the cricket club was, still they starved to death in the same way. And this row is all about $200 per annum. With that help we could have one professional coach and bowler to keep the men up to form. At present we have no teacher and our cricket club must go down. We cannot do well without a coach when other clubs have them. We decline to play second and third rate clubs when we once ran in good company. We are cancelling our matches with Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Hamilton for very good and sufficient reasons. The colts tried their hand the other day at Campbellford, but poor boys they are dishearted and therefore we are all, after a sacrifice of pocket far larger than our share, content to exercise the glorious privilege of retiring.

Yours,
ONE OF THE TEAM.

Cultivation of Sugar Beets.

Directions that will be of Interest to Experimenters.

As to the matter of sowing this may be done as soon as the soil is in a fit condition to receive the seed, and the average temperature at noon is 53° to 55°. There is less danger to be apprehended from early frost than there is from drought when seeding is late. It is generally held that the longer the season between sowing and maturity of crop, the better. Eight pounds of seed an acre is an ample allowance. The seed may be sown by hand or by drills. Where the soil is sufficiently deep to permit the roots to grow down to the depth required, the seed should be sown on the flat; but where there is any doubt as to depth, it may be sown in ridges. Where farmers propose to raise beets extensively, they may, for the purpose of dividing the labor, sow part of the crop early and the other part two or three weeks later.

CLOSE CULTIVATION.

Beets of modern size, weighing from one to two pounds each, are always much richer in sugar than larger beets. The aim in beet cultivation should be to produce the largest quantity of sugar per acre. The manufacturer of sugar would prefer very small roots, rich in sugar; the farmer would like to raise, with the least labor and expense possible, a large crop per acre, irrespective of quality, at a given price per ton. The desirable medium between these two interests is established by fixing a standard of quality, for every degree above or below which higher or lower prices will be paid. Close cultivation of the plants has been found to give beets which are richer, of better quality and of a larger yield in weight, than when grown at greater distances, and small beets are less exhausting of the soil. On good rich land, well manured, the space between the rows of plants should not exceed 18 inches, and the distance between the plants in the rows should not exceed 9 inches. If there were no misses this would give nearly 39,000 plants per acre. If the distance between the rows were 30 inches, and between the plants 12 inches, as is often the case with mangolds, there would only be about 17,500 plants per acre. Sugar Beets grown in the latter way might yield as many tons as in the former. But it is almost certain that the smaller sized beets would be worth fully 50 cents and probably $1.00 per ton at the factory more than the larger sized beets. With a yield of 15 to 20 tons, and in many cases over 20 tons, the additional price per ton obtained will richly remunerate the farmer for the extra labor expended in close cultivation. Where the soil is not very rich, the distance between the rows may be increased up to 24 inches.

THINNING OUT.

As soon as the young plants have grown 4 or 5 leaves, or when the roots are from one-eighth to one-quarter inch in diameter, they should be thinned out to the distance of 8 or 9 inches apart. Where possible, the most vigorous of the plants should be left and the soil pressed firmly around them. Thinning is done best after a light rain.

WEEDING, HOEING, SCUFFLING.

The Sugar Beet crop must be kept free of weeds. As soon as the young beet plants show above the ground, a light hoeing between the rows is beneficial. After thinning out the ground should be hoed or scuffled two or three times, and oftener if it is possible, until the leaves become so large as to be liable to injury. The looser and more open the soil can be kept the better. Hoeing and scuffling should be done when the ground is dry, and care should be taken not to disturb the soil close to the young roots.

KEEP THE ROOTS WHOLLY UNDER GROUND.

Especial care must be taken to keep the whole of the roots covered with earth, because any part of the root which is allowed to protrude above the ground is so deficient in sugar as to be of no value to the factory. It is only good for cattle food.

HARVESTING.

The roots should be thoroughly matured before they are taken up, because they gain greatly in sugar during the last days of ripening. Owing to the length of the roots, considerable difficulty is often experienced in extracting them from the ground. For this purpose, harvesters of different styles are used in Europe, and similar implements will be required here when a sufficient quantity of roots demands their use. When the beets are taken up as much as possible of the dirt is shaken off; the leaves and necks are cut down to the fleshy part of the root. They may then be hauled direct to the factory or near-by railway station, or preserved in pits in the field, in much the same manner as potatoes, from which they are taken for delivery at the times and in the manner arranged with at factory. The pits should be so situated that all water will be carried off. The beets when taken up should not be exposed to the sun for any length of time, but should be covered with leaves until delivered or pitted.

Personal.

Mr. Henry Calcutt's condition is reported to be improved to-day.

Dr. Davies is absent in Kingston, where he gives an organ recital on the Sydenham Street Methodist organ, which he opened a short time since.

Mr. John Rowatt, of New York city, is in town on a visit, the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. D. D. Dawe, Gilmour street. Mr. Rowatt has retired from business and is seeking a home. He is greatly pleased with Peterborough, and will probably become a valued citizen.

Sir John at Rest.

touching reference was made to the departed statesman. Rev. J. J. Bagart, the rector, was visibly affected during the course of his remarks. The sermon was an exhortation to good works, which the preacher said was a reasonable thought in view of the recent event which had shaken the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and roused grief from one end of the British Empire to the other, from the Queen down to the lowest subject. All who were interested in the welfare of the Empire admired the true greatness of him who had recently passed away. From lip to lip throughout the length and breadth of the land the question asked was, How can he be spared? Why was he taken away at this critical time? The answer to this was that God had given him work to do—a good work—how great a work those who knew this country 37 years ago would realize. Yes, God gave him a work to do. The time had been set and that work had been done.

Yes, God gave him a work to do and may it not be added he did it well. How well he did his work as a statesman would be proven by the future, and there were others better able to speak of it. While he would not speak of the departed as a politician, nor as a citizen, it might not be out of place to speak of him as a churchman. His regularity in attendance at God's house, notwithstanding the cares of state and his many onerous duties, his earnest devotion and reverent demeanor when engaged in worship of God, more especially in celebration of the holy eucharist, his humble attention to the message delivered by God's ambassador, all show the love he entertained for God's service, which he also exhibited by receiving thankfully that which small minds cavail at, viz., the gentle pressure he gave the hand of the priest when placed in his and his fervent declaration of trust in the One Great High Priest spoke of his hopes for the life to come. This was a time when we should banish unworthy anxieties for the future welfare of this Dominion, for the sams God who raised up Moses for his work and Joshua for his work had His hand as free as ever to help this people. If his voice could reach four corners of this great Dominion he would say, "God grant that he who may be called upon to preside over the councils of the Dominion may faithfully do it to the glory of God and the welfare of the nation."

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

There were large congregations both morning and evening at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where pulpit references were made to the Premier's death by Rev. W. T. Herridge, one of the most eloquent and popular preachers in the city. There was a communion service in the morning, and it was in the prayers only that the pastor referred to the event. In the evening he preached on the themes death and the resurrection, and at the close of an eloquent discourse he said: "These reflections have an especial appropriateness when our thoughts are turning, as I know they must be, towards that home by the river, where a form long familiar amongst us lies cold and still. Ever since he was stricken down the people of this Dominion and thousands far beyond its borders have been eagerly watching the last struggle of one who for many years has been the most prominent figure in the public life of our country. Now that all is over a whole nation weeps with the bereaved widow and the fatherless children at the bedside of the beloved and honored chieftain. In the presence of death all rivalries are forgotten, and those who in his lifetime conscientiously opposed him vie with his most ardent followers in their sorrow over a common loss. Let us be glad of this. Let us be glad that ever so melancholly an event helps us to see the wide distinction between political divergences, and personal enmity gives pause for a time to the rancour of public life and hushes its wild tumults into peace. This is not the place for elaborate eulogy, and he whose loss we mourn to-day would not have wished it. Yet, assembled as we are in the house of God, we may at least give him his due. Those who knew him best will agree in saying that nowhere did his kindly nature show itself more beautifully than amid the intimate companionships of home. In the stress of the most exacting public duties he found time to cultivate the graces of private life, and much as he will be missed elsewhere he will be missed most of all by the faithful wife who gave to him the untiring ministry of love, and the children who solaced the flickering consciousness of his last hours on earth. It was to be expected that during the course of his long career he should make some enemies. He was not infallible. Few will wish to say that he alone of all men never committed a mistake. But whatever difference of opinion exists in regard to his policy as a statesman, and in this particular his political opponents must be credited with the same integrity of purpose which his friends would demand for him, no one will deny that as far from using his high place as a vantage ground for his own enrichment he threw every energy of heart and mind into the service of his beloved country, and endeavored to the best of his judgment to work for his country's good. Gifted by nature with a wonderful power of personal magnetism, a keen knowledge of men, a fertility of varied resources, a firm grasp of public issues and the commanding intellect of genius this country has never possessed a man who stamped his individuality more strongly upon it, or held a higher place in the affections of all classes among its people. He has gone from us, but not until there had been given him a long opportunity to work for the land he loved so well, not until our scattered provinces had been united into one harmonious confederation, not until the wish of his life had been realized in the strengthening of the bonds of national unity and the growing renown of this our great Dominion. He has gone from us but his works follow him, and when in the calm light of after years the historian of Canada looks back upon what in the providence of God he was enabled to accomplish his name will be handed down to the fragrant remembrance of future generations as that of a man who devoted his splendid powers to the task of building up the resources of his country and giving it a place of honor in the eyes of the world. In this crisis of public affairs there is a loud call to Christian patriotism, and I have faith enough to prophesy that the call will not be heard in vain. Never before has there been greater need of putting aside all selfish ambition, all political and religious prejudice and joining hearts and hands together for the sake of the common weal. It is inevitable that different opinions should exist in regard to the future of Canada and the best means of securing its prosperity. But if we are true to the deepest instincts of our nature, true to the stirring memories of our early days of chivalry, true to the magnificent opportunities which Canadian citizenship brings to us we need not fear but He, the living God, who has guided our land through many an hour of peril, will still lead us onward towards the Canaan of abundant reward. Valuable as has been the life just closed and absolutely unique in its influence upon the councils of the state the loss we have sustained so far from plunging us into despair or forming a pretext for pessimistic dirges ought rather to inspire us everyone to a fuller trust in God and a more ardent effort to serve our generation according to His will.

West Riding Farmers' Institute.

Annual Meeting—Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the West Riding Farmers' Institute was held in the Council Chamber Saturday afternoon. There was not a very large attendance. Mr. Dawson Kennedy, president, occupied the chair, and, during the course of his introductory remarks, he referred in feeling terms to the loss sustained during the year two prominent farmers and active members of the Institute, the late Hugh Davidson and the late Robert Jackson. He paid a high tribute to their high standing as farmers and citizens.

The secretary, Mr. J. A. Davidson, presented his report, showing a synopsis of the work done by the Institute the past year, and also showing a small credit balance of cash in the treasurer's hands.

Bay of Quinte Conference.

NAPANEE, June 5.—The regular session of the Bay of Quinte Conference opened this afternoon at two o'clock in the Eastern Methodist church. There were 228 members, clerical and lay, responded to their names at roll call. The first hour was spent in a prayer meeting, Rev. W. Bews, presiding. After a short address by the President, the actual business of the session began by electing the officers for the coming year. They were elected by ballot without nominations, and as there did not appear to have been much canvassing the ballot was very scattering. Three ballots were taken before an actual majority was obtained. At the first ballot Rev. O Lambley led off and continued to lead until the end. Rev. F. F. Burston stood next, and Fred. Rayner and Rev. W. Johnston followed with about an equal number of votes. At the second ballot all had dropped off but the four first named, and they stood still in the same relative position to each other. On the third ballot Mr. Lambley was elected by a large majority. He has been a good many years in the work of the church, and has grown grey in the service, though yet a man of energy.

There were two ballots for secretary, the first quite scattered, though Rev. J. W. Watch, F. B. Stratton and D. O. Crossley stood highest on the list. Mr. Watch was elected by a large majority at the second ballot. Rev. E. N. Baker was appointed assistant secretary, and Rev. Mr. Duke, journal secretary. These elections and appointments took the entire time of the afternoon session.

Among the lay delegates present are a number of prominent and well-known business men, including Judge Dean, Lindsay; Dr. Ford, Keene; J. M. Farrie, ex M.P.P., Campbellford; Ed. Robin, Amelianburg; A. L. Morden, Q.C., Clerk of the Peace for Lennox and Addington; W.R. Dempsey, ex-Warden of Prince Edward; George Wilson, editor of the Port Hope "Guide," and others. Rev. Dr. Potts is present to address the conference and a public meeting in regard to the educational work, and Dr. Briggs of Toronto is expected for the Sunday.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 20 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores—Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little arms and hands in the same condition; a body, around the waist of which was a brown band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was as raw as can be imagined and as sensitive as a boil. Such was the sight that met the eyes of Rev. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but the result is to be going worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and the mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said that he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe that she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Webster, Druggist.

THE DEAD PREMIER.

Eloquent Tribute to Sir John's Memory

IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

The Hon. Wilfred Laurier's Graceful Words.

Parliament Adjourns for a Week After a Short Debate All Arrangements Completed for the State Funeral. Program of the Procession—One of the Most Gorgeous Pageants of Modern Times.

OTTAWA, June 8.—The chamber of the Commons was appropriately draped. Sir John's vacant chair was covered with black and on his desk was a wreath of white flowers with the words "Our Chief" when the House assembled this afternoon. The galleries were packed, five of the tiers being occupied by ladies, most of them in dark colors. The members were all in their places, many of them wearing black coats and hats. All the pages wore crape on their arms and nearly everybody in Ottawa is wearing a funeral badge with a small photo of the dead leader attached.

Sir Hector Langevin, as Sir John's oldest colleague, was the first to rise. He spoke from manuscript in a voice that frequently gave way in his emotion.

Mr. Laurier's tribute was quietly eloquent, full of the kindest expressions toward Sir John and eulogistic of him in the highest terms as a statesman.

Nicholas Flood Davin followed and aptly described Sir John when he spoke of his exquisite urbanity.

Eloquent Tributes to the Dead.

The Speaker took the chair at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Speaker: I desire to inform the House that in view of the fact that the Right Hon. leader of this Hon's died so late on Saturday night and it was impossible to communicate with hon. members earlier than the present, I thought it was only a fitting tribute to a gentleman who had occupied so prominent a position both in parliament and in the councils of the country for so long a time that we should exhibit some sign of mourning in this House to-day, and I took the responsibility of ordering that the symbols of mourning which are shown here today should be put up this morning, and I venture to express the hope that the honorable members on both sides of the House, irrespective altogether of politics, will sustain me in the action I have taken. [Hear, hear.]

Sir Hector Langevin: Mr. Speaker, having to announce to the House the sad event that has been known for two days, I was afraid I could not trust to my memory, and I therefore thought it desirable to place in writing what I wish to say. Accordingly, I will now read the observations I desire to offer.

Mr. Speaker, as the oldest Privy Councillor, it falls to my lot to announce to the House that our dear old chief, the First Minister of Canada, is no more. After a painful illness of two weeks death put an end to his earthly career on Saturday last. To tell you, Mr. Speaker, my feelings under the circumstances is more than I can do. I feel that by the death of Sir John Macdonald Canada has lost its greatest statesman, a great patriot, a man of whom any country in the world would be justly proud. Her Majesty our gracious Queen never had a more devoted and loyal subject than the grand old man whose loss we all deplore and regret from the bottom of our hearts. For nearly fifty years he has directed the public affairs of this country. He was, among the fathers of Confederation, the most prominent and distinguished. He put his whole soul into that great undertaking, knowing full well that the confederation of all the British North American provinces would give to our people a country and institutions to be proud of and to the Empire not only a right arm but a great and safe highway to her Indian and other possessions. He told me more than once how grateful he was to the people of Canada to have allowed him to have consummated that great work. The fact is his love for Canada was equal to that he had for his own Mother Country. Mr. Speaker, when the historians of Canada write the history of the last 30 years they will have to write the life of Sir John Macdonald, and in writing his life they may not agree with all his public acts, but they cannot fail to say that he was a great man, a most distinguished statesman and that his whole life was spent in the service of his country, dying in the midst of his official duties, not having a day's rest before he passed to a better world. I need not express, Mr. Speaker, my own personal feelings. Having spent half of my life with him as his follower and his friend his departure is the same as if I lost half of my existence. I remember how devoted he was not only to the old province of Canada, but how chivalrous he showed himself to the Province of Quebec and especially to my French-Canadian countrymen. He had only a word to say, and instead of being at the head of a small band of the Upper Canada members, he would have all the representatives of his province behind him, but as he told me several times he preferred to be just to his French compatriots and allies, and the result was that when Confederation came the Province of Quebec had confidence in him, and on his death-bed our great chief could see that his just policy has secured peace and happiness to all.

Mr. Speaker, I would have wished to continue to speak of our dear departed friend and have spoken to you about his goodness of heart, the witness of which I have been so often, but I feel that I must stop. My heart is full of tears. I cannot proceed further. I move that in the opinion of the House the mortal remains of the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, G.C.B., should be publicly interred, and that this House will concur in giving to the ceremony a fitting degree of solemnity and importance.

Mr. Laurier's Noble Tribute.

Mr. Speaker: I fully appreciate the motion which the honorable gentleman has just proposed to the House, and we all concur that his silence, under the circumstances, is far more eloquent than any human language can be. I fully appreciate the intensity of the grief which fills the soul of all those who were the friends and followers of Sir John A. Macdonald at the loss of the great leader, whose whole life has been so closely identified with their party—a party upon which he has thrown such brilliancy and lustre. We, on this side of the House who were his opponents, who did not believe in his policy, nor in his methods of government—we take our full share of their grief, for the loss which they deplore to-day is far and away beyond and above the ordinary compass of party strife. It is in every respect a great national loss, for he is no more who was in many respects Canada's most illustrious son, and who was in every sense Canada's foremost citizen and statesman. At the period of life to which Sir John A. Macdonald had arrived, death whenever it comes cannot come unexpected. Some few months ago, during the turmoil of the late election, when the country was made aware that on a certain day the physical strength of the veteran premier had not been equal to his courage and that his intense labor for the time being had prostrated his singularly wiry frame, everybody with the exception perhaps of his buoyant self was painfully anxious lest perhaps the Angel of Death had touched him with his wings. When a few days ago in the midst of an angry discussion in this parliament the news spread in this House that of a sudden his condition had become alarming the surging wave of angry discussion was at once hushed and everyone, friend and foe, realized that this time for a certainty the Angel of Death had appeared and had crossed the threshold of his home. Thus we were not taken by surprise, and although we were prepared for the sad event, yet it is almost impossible to convince the unwilling mind that it is true that Sir John Macdonald is no more—that the chair which we now see vacant shall remain forever vacant, that the face so familiar in this Parliament for the last forty years shall be seen no more, and that the voice so well known shall be heard no more, whether in solemn debate or in pleasant and mirthful jest.

His Loss Overwhelming

In fact, the place of Sir John A. Macdonald in this country was so large and so absorbing that it is almost impossible to conceive that the politics of this country, the fate of this country will continue without him. His loss overwhelms us. For my part I say with all truth his loss overwhelms me and also overwhelms this Parliament, as if indeed one of the institutions of the land had given away. Sir John A. Macdonald now belongs to the ages, and it can be said with certainty that the career which has just been closed is one of the most remarkable careers of the century. It would be premature at this time to attempt to divine or anticipate what will be the final judgment of history upon him, but there were in his career and in his life features so prominent and so conspicuous that already they shine with a glory which time cannot alter. These characteristics appear, before the House at the present time such as they will appear to the end in history. I think it can be asserted that for the supreme art of governing men Sir John Macdonald was gifted as few men in any land or in any age were gifted—gifted with the most high of all qualities, qualities which would have shone in any theatre and which have shone all the more conspicuously the larger the theatre. The fact that he could congregate together elements the most heterogeneous and blend them into one compact party and to the end of his life keep them steadily under his hand is perhaps altogether unprecedented. The fact that during all these years he maintained unimpaired not only the confidence but the devotion and the ardent devotion and affection of his party is evidence that besides those higher qualities of statesmanship to which we were the daily witnesses, he was also endowed with this inner, subtle, indefinable characteristic of soul which wins and keeps the hearts of men. As to his statesmanship it is written in the history of Canada. It may be said without any exaggeration, whatever that the life of Sir John Macdonald from the date he entered Parliament is the history of Canada, for he was connected and associated with all the events, all the facts, with all the developments which brought Canada from the position Canada then occupied—the position of two small provinces, having nothing in common but the common allegiance and united by a bond of paper, and united by nothing else—to the present state of development which Canada has reached. Although my political views compel me to say that in my judgment his actions were not always the best that could have been taken in the interest of Canada, although my conscience compels me to say that of late he has imputed to his opponents motives which I must say in my heart he has misconceived, yet I am only too glad here to sink these differences and to remember only the great services he has performed for his country, to remember that his actions displayed unbounded fertility of resource, a high level of intellectual conception, and, above all a far-reaching vision beyond the event of the day and still higher permeating the whole a broad patriotism to Canada's welfare, Canada's advancement and Canada's glory. The life of a statesman is always an arduous one and very often it is an ungrateful one. More often than otherwise his actions do not mature until he is in his grave. Not so, however, in the case of Sir John Macdonald. His career has been a singularly fortunate one. His reverses were few and of short duration. He was fond of power, and, in my judgment, if I may say so, that was the turning point of his history. He was fond of power and he never made any secret of it. Many times we have heard him avow it on the floor of this Parliament, and his ambition in this respect was gratified as perhaps no other man's ambition ever was. In my judgment even the career of William Pitt can hardly compare with that of Sir John Macdonald in this respect, for although William Pitt, moving in a higher sphere, had to deal with problems greater than ours, yet I doubt if in the management of a party William Pitt had to contend with difficulties equal to those that Sir John Macdonald had to contend with. In his death, too, he seems to have been singularly happy. Twenty years ago I was told by one, who at that time was a close personal and political friend of Sir John Macdonald, that in the intimacy of his domestic circle he was fond of repeating that his end would be as the end of Lord Chatham, that he would be carried away from the floor of Parliament to die. How true his vision into the future was we now know, for we saw him at the last with enfeebled health and declining strength struggling on the floor of Parliament until, the hand of fate upon him, he was carried to his home to die, and thus to die with his armor on was proably his ambition.

Death and Separation.

Sir, death is the supreme law, although we see it every day in every form, although session after session we have seen it in this Parliament, striking right and left without any discrimination as to age or station, yet the ever recurring spectacle does not in any way remove the bitterness of the sting. Death always carries with it an incredible sea of pain, but the one thing sad in death is that which is involved in the word separation—separation from all we love in life. This is what makes death so poignant when it strikes a man of intellect in middle age. But when death is the natural termination of a full life in which he who has disappeared has given the full measure of his capacity, has performed everything required from him and more the sadness of death is not for him who goes but for those who love him and remain. In the cases I am sure the Canadian people will extend unbounded sympathy to the friends of Sir John Macdonald, to his sorrowing children and above all to the brave and noble woman, his companion in life, his chief helpmeet. Thus, Mr. Speaker, one after another we see those who have been instrumental in bringing Canada to its present state of development removed from amongst us. To-day we deplore the loss of him whom we all unite in saying was the foremost Canadian of his time and who filled the largest place in Canadian history. Only last week was buried in the city of Montreal another son of Canada, one who at one time had been a tower of strength to the Liberal party, one who will ever be remembered as one of the noblest, purest and greatest characters that Canada has ever produced—Sir Antoine Aime Dorion. Sir Antoine Aime Dorion had not been in favor of Confederation. Not that he was opposed to the principle, but he believed that the union of these provinces at that day was premature. When, however, Confederation had become a fact, he gave the best of his mind and heart to make it a success. It may indeed happen, sir, when the Canadian people see the ranks thus gradually reduced and thinned of those upon whom they have been in the habit of relying for guidance that a feeling of apprehension will creep into the heart lest perhaps the institutions of Canada may be imperilled. Before the grave of him who above all was the father of Confederation let not grief be barren grief, but let grief be coupled with the resolution, the determination, that the work in which Liberals and Conservatives, in which Brown and Macdonald united, shall not perish, but that though united Canada may be deprived of the services of her greatest men, yet still Canada shall and will live. I agree to the motion.

The Member for West Assiniboia.

Mr. Davin: I think, sir, it would be unbecoming, if I may venture to say so, that I should remain silent on this occasion and that no expression should be given of the way the North-west feels at this supreme hour. For myself it would be hard not to express a sense of grief at such a time as this, because it so happens that for some years I was brought closely into contact with him whom we mourn at this time, and I was able to see into those features of his character which were probably of more value to the world than the great abilities which struck the superficial observer.

Mr. Speaker, the man whom we mourn here to-day was emphatically a great man. When I came to Canada first his friends, misdoubting that they might have formed a provincial conception of Sir John Macdonald, used to come to me and ask how he would compare with the great men in England. I said he could stand up to the greatest of them, and when I knew him intimately and was brought closely in contact with him I became more and more convinced that far from doubting whether he could stand up to the greatest of them, few of them had the varied qualities, the extraordinarily varied and complex qualities that are necessary to make a political leader such as was Sir John Macdonald. Ranging over the field of history and recalling the names of the men who have reached those heights which it takes a lifetime to climb, it is hardly possible to find one who has possessed the varied qualities of the great man who the other day was leading in this House. You may find great power of intellect, great power of statesmanship, far-reaching views, great powers of oratory, but where will you find conjoined with all these that politeness that never fails, that delicate consideration for the feelings of others, that exquisite urbanity that distinguished Sir John Macdonald—that even anon played like light and shade in "le bon tons ironique et la grace qui rit?"

Sir, the measure of his great abilities is the difficulties that he overcame. I remember when I first visited these buildings some 20 years ago a gentleman then occupying one of the highest positions in the Government said to my surprise when I admitted the buildings were grand. "But what an expense, what a waste of money?" Now we find they are hardly equal to their needs, and the fact is these very buildings emphasize the Imperial cast of mind of the great mind who is gone. I remember on the first time I had a conversation with him some seventeen or eighteen years ago, he drew a sketch of the British possessions confederated together, and then in his own emphatic way he said that is the time when I should like to lead.

In truth he was not only a Canadian statesman but an Imperial statesman, the brightest gem in the British crown was polished and set by his hand. I have read somewhere of a child who planted a tree which ultimately shaded his old age and with dews of evening watered his grave. Sir John Macdonald was in that position because he found Canada a pretty province and he leaves it something like an Empire. At this moment a nation of more importance than the nation over which Elizabeth ruled weeps the loss of a statesman who helped to build it up. As I have said it does seem to me that the qualities which were most extraordinary in this remarkable man were the kindness of heart, that alchemistical power which transmuted all that came near him into gold, which made of every foe that came within its influence a friend and a devotee, and when we think of his loss we mourn not merely the statesman who directed the affairs of the country. Not as a friend, Sir, do we who knew him thus mourn, but he had that power, which only belongs to highest genius, of making men who never saw feel the extraordinary charm of his personality. We may build statues to him in these grounds, monuments will arise to him in Kingston, but the grandest monument to Sir John Macdonald will be the love that Canada feels it new privilege to cherish for so great a personality, but even should we never erect a statue to his memory humanity will keep his memory green, for he belonged to that rare group of men who enchain the memory of mankind.

Sir, language was applied to a great countryman of his, a great Scotchman, not a statesman, but belonging to another order of activity, which might well be applied to the great statesman we mourn:

"Dead heroes in marble from memory fade,
But white hearts shall weep where your sabes are laid
And Earth's prouder priesthood like phantoms pass by,
But thou art of the priesthood that never can die."

The motion was agreed to.

The Motion For Adjournment.

The debate on the adjournment of the House was short.

Sir Hector Langevin: As hon. gentlemen may have learned by the papers to-day the funeral of our departed friend will take place in this city on Wednesday and in Kingston on Thursday. It will be Friday therefore before we can get back, and under the circumstances I would move that when this House adjourns it stands adjourned until Tuesday week, the 16th inst., at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Laurier said: I would have expected that before this motion was made some gentleman on the Treasury benches would have been able to inform the House as to whether anybody had been summoned by His Excellency to carry on the government of the day. I assume that he has done so, if British precedent is, as it ought to be, followed. Under such circumstances I think the motion to adjourn should have been coupled with such a statement. If the hon. gentleman is ready to show that His Excellency has summoned some one to form a Cabinet I am ready at once to agree to an adjournment. I can well conceive that the new Cabinet would require some days to prepare for the hard labor they will have to do this session, and there would be no hesitation in granting an adjournment for a short time; but so long as no Cabinet has been formed it seems to me that the proper way of conducting business is to have the House adjourn from day to day, except of course the day set apart for the funeral, in order that we may receive at once what communications may be made by His Excellency with regard to the formation of a Cabinet. The honorable gentleman is aware that this has invariably been the practice followed in England.

Sir Hector's Reply.

Sir Hector Langevin: When I mentioned to the honorable gentleman before the House met that I would make his motion I knew that the honorable gentleman would make the remarks he has, and I do not find fault with him for doing so. I may say that we are not aware of any party having been sent for by the Governor-General to form a new Administration, and as I have just said as this week will be taken up altogether with the funeral ceremonies nothing can be done before next week. The honorable gentleman is aware that in this country the English precedents have not always been followed in matters of this kind, and in any case if His Excellency thinks proper to send for some one after the funeral to form an Administration the party next for would have but Saturday and Monday to carry out his instructions and would not be able to communicate with the one before Tuesday, as that no time will be lost by consenting to the adjournment.

Mr. Mills Thinks the Course an Unusual One.

Mr. Mills (Bothwell): I think that the course suggested by the Honorable Minister of Public Works is a very unusual one. The hon. member says that English precedent has not always been followed heretofore in this country. So far as I am aware it has been very closely followed since the organization of this Confederation and before, and if it was not followed that has arisen from oversight or inadvertence rather than from any intention to depart from the precedents established in the Mother Country. At this moment His Excellency is without a Cabinet. The death of the Prime Minister has dissolved the Administration as advisers of His Excellency on matters of general policy. They retain, of course, their constitutional right to advise His Excellency individually as privy councillors. Under these circumstances it seems to me that His Excellency, if he follows the English constitutional rule, will without delay, notwithstanding the death of the Prime Minister, which the House deplores, send for someone to whom he will entrust the duty of forming an administration. I do not think that His Excellency can delay that until Saturday. No one can tell at what moment some emergency may arise when it will be necessary that His Excellency should have constitutional advisers enjoying the confidence of parliament, and there would be as much propriety in his sending for someone to assume the responsibility of forming an Administration now as on Friday or on Saturday. When Mr. Perceval, who was Prime Minister of England, fell by the hand of an assassin in the House of Commons steps were at once taken to form an Administration, and the House adjourned from day to day, only remaining in session so as to be in a position to advise the Crown if it were necessary in reference to its proceeding in constituting a Government, and it did actually intervene and carried through the House a resolution in which advice was tendered to the Crown upon that subject, and so we find that on the fall of the Aberdeen Government Her Majesty first sent for Lord Derby, who failed to form an Administration, then she sent for Lord John Russell, who also failed, and after a fortnight had elapsed Lord Palmerston succeeded in forming an Administration. During all that period after the defeat of the Government nothing took place from Jan. 13 until Feb. 16, but during that time there was only one day's adjournment. The House met every day for the purpose of watching the proceedings and intervening as the great council of the nation if it thought fit to do so. Looking at the precedents which we have before us and at those which occurred in England under circumstances somewhat similar to those which now exist here I think the course advised by the Minister might very well have been taken by him if he could at the same time have informed the House that His Excellency had sent for some one to form an Administration, but that information has not been given to the House, and while we owe it to ourselves and to the late Prime Minister to pay all proper respect to his memory we also owe it to the country that we shall not be derelict in discharging those duties, which the law and the constitution and our public responsibility impose upon us.

Sir John Thompson's Address.

Sir John Thompson: I think it would be a mistake for the House to exercise its judgment on the motion to adjourn for a week on the supposition that it is put forward on the ground of inconvenience to His Excellency or with a view of desiring the reformation of the Government being deferred until the expiration of that time, or until the funeral arrangements have taken place. The motion is made with no such view, with no view that the re-formation of the Cabinet should be deferred. We are not, as the Minister of Public Works has announced, in a position to state that His Excellency has yet sought the advice of anyone in regard to the formation of his Government, but we cannot assume that His Excellency will not do so at the convenient and proper time, at a time to suit the convenience of this Parliament, nor by acceding to the motion to adjourn will the House be acceding to the idea that the re-formation of the Government should be deferred. I think the motion made by the Minister of Public Works on the ground on which I support it, that in view of the funeral observances this House should adjourn out of respect to the memory of him who was so recently its leader until the funeral ceremony is over, should be adopted. The arrangements already made will take the rest of this week. The re-assemblage of the House on Monday would be awkward and we thought it would suit the convenience of the honorable members to meet again on Tuesday at 3 o'clock. In the case of the death of distinguished members of Parliament it is not unusual for the House to adjourn in respect to their memory, and we cannot foresee any emergency, any crisis, any danger to the state which would interfere with the adoption of the motion proposed by the Minister of Public Works. I think the House will refrain from tendering advice to His Excellency as to the formation of a Cabinet, because it has full confidence that His Excellency will follow the precedents laid down and will do the best in the interests of the country in forming his Cabinet. I hope, therefore, that the House will accept the motion to adjourn simply on the ground that it is proper, that it is expedient and that it is respectful to the memory of the late leader of the House that we should adjourn until after his burial has taken place.

The motion was agreed to.

Quebec Harbor Contracts.

Sir John Thompson: There is an item on the order paper which requires to be disposed of in order that the business of the House may be kept in proper shape. I therefore move that the order of the House in regard to the attendance of Michael Connolly at the bar of the House this day be discharged and that the said Michael Connolly be summoned to appear at the bar of this House on Tuesday, June 16, at 4 p.m.

The motion was agreed to.

The House adjourned at 4.15 p.m.

In the Senate.

In the Senate to-day Mr. Abbott announced briefly but feelingly the death of Sir John Macdonald. Mr. Scott, leader of the Opposition, in the course of his remarks said that it was owing to the late Premier that the Catholic minority of this province enjoyed many of the privileges they now have.

Mr. Tasse also referred to the death of Sir John Macdonald.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefitted by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

TURNBULL'S

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of dress goods that were formerly from 25 to 50c. a yard. They are odd lines, and are now being cleared out at 15c. a yard. They can only last a short time, call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from, in men's, women's and children's. 3 pairs for 25c.

For a week past we have been showing a window of Prints at 10c a yard. Handsome as it is possible to have them, and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½c. Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of white embroidered shirtings and all over embroidered muslins.

We have a great many patterns of figured Wool Delaines, so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a wholesale agent's samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them, as they please everybody as to quality and price.

The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fall these to be highly satisfactory. ANNUAL MEETING
—OF THE—
DOMINION BUILDING & LOAN ASSOCIATION.

The first annual meeting of the shareholders of the Dominion Building & Loan Association was held on Wednesday, May 27th, 1891, at the office of the association in Toronto, commencing at two o'clock in the afternoon. On motion by Mr. Stratton, Dr. Burns, president of the association, was called to the chair and presided. About 150 shareholders were present. On motion by Mr. Miller, seconded by Mr. Selwyn, that Messrs. W. A. Stratton, W. C. Perkins and W. Barclay Stephens were appointed scrutineers, who reported after examination that 22,093 shares of stock and 3,909 shareholders were represented at the meeting. The president then read the following address:—

GENTLEMEN,—I am pleased to see such a large representation of the association present at this our first annual meeting, and glad to see the interest manifested in the success of the company. It is now a year old, but in reality scarcely ten months have been spent in placing our stock. As with all new companies, especially with those somewhat new in their nature, the first months, indeed the first few years, are usually a continued struggle. It takes time to understand new principles fully, and some are too impatient to give the time necessary for such an investigation, and there are always some who consider it their special duty to attack anything out of the ordinary line, hostility may be expected. Had the criticisms been marked by fairness or shown any experience in the working of such organizations as ours, we might have been discouraged. But since they have displayed little else than gross misrepresentations and ignorance of the principles of our association, we have thus far allowed them to pass. The certainty of our success is simply a matter of calculation and business promptness. To those unable to make the calculation: it should be a satisfactory assurance that companies established on the same principle as ours have done all that we have promised, and are in a healthy state likely to attain to a good old age.

We have been much gratified with the promptness and heartiness of the local board. To their fidelity we owe it that lapses have been so few. The loan Committee has met weekly to examine applications. No loan has been made until recommended by the local board, and a few time recommended have been refused, several have been cut down somewhat, but all we think have been amply secured. I would suggest to all our visiting members a thorough examination of the practical workings of our association.

At least one member for each district represented here to-day should pay a visit to the Trust Company in which our funds and securities are deposited.

I believe that every officer who handles the funds of the company has furnished a reasonable guarantee bond. You know that no money can be drawn from the Trust company without depositing securities corresponding to the draft. Nor can any of our funds be touched unless on the signature of the president, managing director and secretary-treasurer. I cannot close these remarks without saying that we have been very fortunate in our agents. Their success in placing our stock has been almost phenomenal. Before another year we shall have passed the amount of stock permitted in our charter, thus necessitating the increasing of our capital to ten millions at least.

The financial report will now be submitted. Should anything appear obscure or unsatisfactory we are here to explain to the satisfaction of all.

A. BURNS,
President.

W. BARCLAY STEPHENS,
General Manager

The Dominion Building & Loan Association, Toronto:

GENTLEMEN,—We have examined the general ledger postings up to 30th April carefully, and find that it agrees with the trial balance you have taken out. The statement of the Trusts Corporation of Ontario shows a balance in their hands in favor of the company of $15,354.58. We have also examined the mortgages held by the Trusts Corporation as security for loans up to 30th April, and they amounts to $101,000, and we understand that further mortgages to the amount of $3 200 are in transit through the post, making a total of securities held against loans of $104,200.

Yours truly,
TOWNSEND & STEPHENS.

Mr. Stratton, in seconding the adoption of the report, said it must be very gratifying to the shareholders of this association to find that within ten months this new association should have such rapid progress, something unprecedented in the history of financial institutions in the Dominion. The working of the association has been very satisfactory, and we can, we believe, look forward to the future with every degree of satisfaction. Some little unfriendly criticisms have been bestowed upon us, but we have no reason to doubt but that we will be able to carry out all that we have undertaken and that the shareholders of this association will reap all the great advantages we offer them.

Several other shareholders expressed their entire satisfaction in the association and predicted a bright future for the company.

On motion, the thanks of the meeting were tendered to the president, directors and officers for services rendered since the organization of the association. The motion was unanimously adopted.

Hon. G. W. Ross replied to the vote of thanks on behalf of the directors and officers.

The meeting then adjourned.

Some of Canada's Merchant Princes.

There are in Canada many merchant princes who would willingly give a handsome percentage of their wealth if they were guaranteed a lease of health, and a few years more of life on earth. In their present condition they are aware that they have not much hope held out to them of long years. In their desire for riches, fame and position, they have become almost physically wrecked. We pity some of them, as we gaze on their sallow, thin faces, their sunken eyes, their nervous twitchings, their trembling hands and unsteady, faltering steps. They are also suffering mentally. The brain has become weak and clouded, memory is failing, and they are tortured by headaches; and fear that something dreadful is about to happen. This state of suffering has been brought on by overtaxing the mental and physical powers; and mark well, sufferers, unless you find relief from the true remedy, look out for paresis, paralysis, and dread insanity! No necessity to give away a large slice of your wealth for relief. Paine's Celery Compound is able to accomplish what you so greatly desire. It has restored to new life more desperate cases than yours,

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

HELP! HELP! THE LADY FAINTS.

"'Tis the twink of an eye,
'Tis the draught of a breath,
From the blossom of health,'
To the paleness of death."

When sudden fainting spells come upon a lady, you may always suspect some uterine disturbances or trouble, or some great disorder in the circulation and nerve centers. A remedy that has always proved successful in warding off and removing the tendency to a recurrence of fainting spells—that removes the cause of them, corrects the circulation of blood, and gives to the system that even running nervous energy so essential, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to ferment in the stomach and derange digestion, is a legitimate medicine, not a beverage.

The "Prescription" is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. Nothing else does as much. You only pay for the good you get. Can you ask more?

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at the critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The change of Life."

Brimful of confidence in it—the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's a faith that means business, too—it's backed up by money. This is what they offer: $500 reward for a case of Catarrh which they cannot cure. They mean it. They're willing to take the risk—they know their medicine. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it produces perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases of chronic Catarrh in the Head. It's doing it every day, where everything else has failed. No matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, you can be cured. You're sure of that—or of $500. You can't have both, but you'll have one or the other.

A box of Ayer's Pills have save many a fit of sickness. When a remedy does not happen to be within reach, people are liable to neglect slight ailments, and, of course, if serious illness follows they have to suffer the consequences. "A stitch in time saves nine."

Winter Sports.

The gay winter season exposes many to attacks of colds, coughs, hoarseness, tightness of the chest, asthma, bronchitis, etc., which requires a reliable remedy like Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for their relief and cure. Known as reliable for over thirty years. The best cough cure. 2w24d

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. B. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

TALK OF THE DAY.

PICTURES OF LIFE AS IT IS IN BLACK AND WHITE.

The Idiosyncrasies of All Sorts of People Under the Brushes and the Pens of the Artists and Humorists—The Latest Paragraphs of the Newspaper Wits.

Anticipation.—From all accounts this year's watermelon crop will be by far the largest ever shipped.—Market Report.

"What's that Frenchman saying! He's yelling, 'La Guerre, La Guerre!' " "What's that? Lager?"

First Farmer—I vunt Peffer wears a biled shirt. Second Farmer—Yes. And wust of allt, it's a hard-biled un.

Simkins—Do you and your wife get along well together? Hen Peck—She gets along well enough, but I don't.

Bragg (pompously)—Sir, I am a self-made man! Flagg—I dareway; you look like the kind of a man you'd be apt to make.

Cholly (energetically)—I want to do something for the world, Mabel. Mabel (innocently)—Why don't you commit suicide?

Jawkins:—How did you happen to adopt such a perilous profession as submarine diving? Recker—In order to keep my head above water.

"You mustn't associate with the chickens," said Mother Duck to her ducklings. "Why, not, mamma?" "Because they are not in the swim."

"Gwacious," cried Cholly, suddenly at dinner, "there are thirteen people at table." "Oh, no, Mr. Budd," whispered his fair companion, "only twelve people—and you."

Clara—My physician has advised me to go to Germany for my complexion, and I don't want to go a bit. I was there only last year, Maude—" Why don't you have it sent over?"

Excited Lady—Why don't you interfere to stop that dog fight? Bystander—I was just a going to, Mum, but you kin calm yer fears now. My dog is on top at last, mum.

Miss Caustique—I hear you won the 440 yards run. De Boaster—Oh, easily. The other fellows weren't in it. Miss Caustique—Ah, you were the only one entered, I presume.

Mrs. Brook—My husband keeps account of every drink he takes. Mrs. Banks—Are you sure? Mrs. Brook—Oh, yes; the dear fellow says he never gets one that he doesn't put it down!

"Bread is the staff of life," observed Mrs. Hashem. "Yes," remarked the new boarder as he wrestled with a homemade slice, "and I think this might be used effectively for a club."

"Didn't it hurt you to be thrown from that second story window?" asked a bystander of the expelled book-agent. "Not at all, sir. I experienced no pain whatever until I reached the sidewalk."

37 if a Day.—Boston Maiden—My father gives me a dollar for every year I am old on my birthdays. Friend—Isn't that nice! Boston Maiden—Yes; but then one can't do much with twenty dollars.

Howard—I didn't get home till late last night. Richard—What sort of a hand did you hold? Howard—Just the nicest little hand you ever saw. It belonged to old man Goldrock's only daughter.

"Them chops were good, mum," said the tramp. "But I allus like to finish a meal with sweets. You ain't got any cakes, have yer?" "I have cakes of soap." "Thank yer hearty mum. But I never touch 'em."

Rowne de Bout—I had an awful dream last night. I thought I had stolen your best suit of clothes, and was wearing it down street. Upson Downes—And I met you! Rowne de Bout—Worse than that. It was your tailor.

Penelope—Oh, mamma, Jack didn't come home until 2 o'clock this morning, and I am sure he was flirting with some woman. Her Mamma—What makes you think so, dear? Penelope—Because he kept saying in his sleep, "You are shy."

Customer—Where is that mindreader you had here as clerk? Druggist—Bitters you mean; why do you call him a mindreader? Customer—He knew how much money a man had in his pocket before he could get ten feet into the store.

"Is this a cool neighborhood in Summer?" "Is it? Well, I should say it was! There isn't a man in the neighborhood, who doesn't help himself to my chickens, flowers and lawn-mower without so much as by your leave."—Harper's Bazar.

Moved to Desperation.—Excited Individual—"Is this where they swear people?" Notary Public—"Yes, sir; what can I do for you?" Excited Individual—"Gimme the book, quick—I want to take an oath never to put down another carpet!"

Uncle Tom (teasingly)—It seems to me I noticed a tell-tale blush on your cheek last night when Jack came up for his waltz. Grace (a girl of the period, delightedly)—Did you really? I tried awfully hard to blush, but I was afraid it wasn't noticeable.

The Retort Discourteous.

Irate Father—"I never gave my father impudence when I was a boy."

Son—"Maybe your father didn't need it."

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Origin of Foolscap.

Every body know what "foolscap" paper is, but every body does not know how it came to bear that name, says the Chicago Herald.

In order to increase his revenues Charles I. granted certain privileges, amounting to monopolies, and among these was the manufacture of paper, the exclusive right of which was sold to certain parties, who grew rich and enriched the Government at the expense of those who were obliged to use paper.

At that time all English paper bore the royal arms in water mark. The Parliament of Cromwell made sport of this law in every possible manner, and among other indignities to the memory of Charles I. it was ordered that the royal arms be removed from the paper and that the fool's cap and bells should be used as a substitute.

When the Rump Parliament was prorogued these were removed; but paper of the size of the parliamentary journal, which is usually about 17 by 14 inches, still bears the name of "foolscap."

A Grave Invention.

A recent event in Canada, the stealing of the body of the late Patrick Purcell, ex-M.P., recalls to mind a curious model deposited in the U. S. patent office. It is intended to furnish the tenant of a grave who has been buried prematurely with a means of escape or arousing the neighborhood. This invention is a simple affair, being merely an open tube provided with a rope ladder and a bell and cord. Should the occupant of the coffin awake from the trance he could climb the ladder and make his way back to the world, or pull the bell and alarm the township.

For those whose only fear is that they may not be allowed to rest undisturbed a considerate inventor has provided a "torpedo grave," which if disturbed explodes at once and scatters the vandals to the winds.

Letting Him Down.

Husband—I won enough money last night at poker to get you a new dress.

Wife (sobbing) I think you might stop playing those horrid cards, John. You know what it might lead to in the end, and to think that I should ever be the wife of a gambler. This is t-t-too much. What kind of a dress shall I get?

Of Course It's a Woman.

"The hand that rocks the cradle
Is the hand that rocks the world."

The mother, sitting beside and rocking the cradle, often singing her sad lullaby, may be thus shaping, as it were, the destinies of nations. But if diseases, consequent on motherhood, have borne her down, and sapped her life, how mournful will be her song. To cheer the mother, brighten her song, Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, has, after long experience, compounded a remedy which he has called his "Favorite Prescription," because ladies preferred it to all others. He guarantees it to cure nervousness, neuralgic pains, bearing-down pains, irregularities, weakness, or prolapsus, headache, backache, or any of the ailments of the female organs. What he asks is, that the ladies shall give it a fair trial, and satisfaction is assured. Money refunded, if it doesn't give satisfaction. b

A Welcome Announcement.

Those who have tested it say that for the grippe, and especially for the cough that hangs on after the disease itself seems cured, there is nothing equal to Kemp's Balsam, the specific for all throat and lung diseases, and the best cure for coughs and colds. The first dose will convince you of its excellent effect. All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a bottle. dw

Ahead of Koch's Lymph.

Charles Campion, Kingston, Ont., says:—Gained 7 lbs. with one bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. Cured bad Bronchial Cough with a few doses and made me feel like a new man, I strongly recommend it. All druggists keep it, dw

Two Years Ago.

Two years ago I was troubled with an ulcer on my ankle, having used B. B. B. for bad blood I procured a bottle and a box of Burdock Healing Ointment. After using 3 bottles and 3 boxes I was completely cured. Mrs. Wm. V. Boyd, Brantford, Ont. 2w244

The Picnic of the Season.

On Dominion Day there will be held, in keeping with former years, the annual picnic of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral in aid of the St. Joseph's Hospital, on the grounds adjoining that institution. It is not necessary to say much regarding this "annual day of pleasurable rest." Everybody knows, and everybody says—and what everybody says must be true—that the pleasure to be had by attending the picnic is of a more enjoyable nature than that of all the picnics of the season put together. The posters will be out in colours of brilliant red in a few days, and just glance over the list of events and the list of prizes offered to the successful competitors in running, jumping, dancing, in baseball, handball, football and—no, not snowball. Watch and wait for it. Make no calculation towards spending the day out of town until you see what is in store for all those who go over to the St. Joseph Hospital on Dominion Day, Wednesday, July 1st, just exactly three weeks from to-morrow. Rev. Father Rudkins will be present to take the oversights of affairs, and as usual see that nothing is left undone to promote the pleasure of those who attend this great picnic.

County Court and General Sessions.

The Semi-Annual Sittings at the Court House.

The semi-annual sittings of the County Court and General Sessions of the Peace began at the Court House at one o'clock on Tuesday, His Honour Judge Weller presiding.

The following gentlemen composed

THE GRAND JURY:

WM. COLLINS, foreman.

J. H. Ames,	Geo. Belasis,
S. Brown,	M. Breckenridge,
P. Comstock,	Herbert Calrduff,
W. Davidson,	John Elmhirst,
Geo. E Elliott,	Wm. Fother,

J. H. Mann,	Jos. McKee,
M. Perdue,	Geo. Retherford,
Robt. Tully,	Robt. Tudhope,
John Weir.	Thos. Hall,

His Honor in addressing the Grand Jury remarked that the calendar showed no person in gaol awaiting trial. He referred to the large number of vagrants in gaol, and said there were also two insane persons confined there, who would be shortly removed to a proper asylum. He referred to the cases which would likely come before the Grand Jury, and he pointed out their duty in these premises. He also referred to the duty of visiting and reporting upon the state of the gaol, and the right of visiting any public institutions in receipt of public funds. His Honor referred feelingly to the death of Sir John Macdonald, and passed a high eulogy upon him and his great abilities as a statesman, and his great devotion to the promotion of the interests of Canada. Particular reference was made to Sir John's connection with the administration of justice and to his judicious and impartial appointments to the bench. He said he did not know exactly what arrangements had been made for the funeral but he thought the court might adjourn for a short time either to-morrow or Thursday.

DIED FROM HEART FAILURE.

The Hopkins' Inquest Concluded.

A Verdict of Death From Natural Causes—The Result of the Autopsy—Some Ugly Rumors Silenced.

The last act of the tragedy in which the cold, still body of Mr. Edmund Hopkin's was the central figure, took place in the police court room last night, when the coroner's inquest was concluded and a verdict rendered by the jury, that death was due to natural causes. The mild sensation caused by this affair has already subsided, for it appears that the excitement originated altogether in the nasty rumors and exaggerated statements put in circulation by meddlesome persons who had nothing else to talk about.

Mrs. Hopkins, the young widow whose sad bereavement calls for the sympathy of every feeling heart, sat down stairs on the sofa in the police court room dressed in deep mourning, and a picture of woe. She was attended by Mrs. Rye, a friend and neighbor. Mrs. Hopkins was spared the painful ordeal of giving evidence, the jury not deeming it necessary to go any farther into the matter.

Considerable curiosity exists as to what Mrs. Hopkins intends doing. It has been learned that she will remain in Peterborough for some time at least, though eventually she will probably return to England. A lady friend has made her home with Mrs. Hopkins for the present.

It was first thought that the body of the late Mr. Hopkins would be taken home to England for burial, but after the doctors performed the autopsy the remains were interred quietly in Little Lake cemetery, and it is not likely they will be disturbed.

CONCLUSION OF THE EVIDENCE.

Below is a report of the evidence taken Monday night, in a condensed form. Mr. R. R. Wood, County Crown Attorney, represented the Queen.

Mr. Lewis Rye said he knew the deceased the past twelve or thirteen years in England, New Zealand and Canada. Mr. Hopkins lived in his (witness') house for three or four years in New Zealand. They were not related. He saw him frequently during his residence in Canada, and on the evening previous to his death he spent a couple of hours at his (Mr. Rye's) house. He then appeared to be suffering from a cold, though he was in good spirits and complained of no ailment. He was dead when he next saw him, at eleven o'clock next day. Deceased always lived freely, though he was not intemperate, but he did not drink any more in Peterborough than previously. Witness doubted much if the liquor he got here was as good as he was accustomed to. Deceased's domestic relations, as far he knew, were quite happy and comfortable.

Thomas Harmer, bricklayer, who lived across the road from deceased, said he saw deceased often and alway found him jolly. Harmer's evidence was of no importance, except his reply to the question of the County Crown Attorney, who asked witness if it was true that Mr. Hopkins had told him that he was not living happily at home. Witness replied that he never said any such thing. The C. C. A. remarked that this rumour had come to their ears, and it was well to have it cleared up.

RESULT OF THE AUTOPSY.

Doctors Boucher and Clarke, who performed the autopsy were then called, Dr. Boucher read their written report of the post-mortem examination, as follows:—

Report of an autopsy upon the body of the late E. J. R. Hopkins, made by the undersigned on Wednesday, June 3rd, 1891:

The body was that of a man about 5 ft. 10 or 11 inches in height. To all appearances the body was well nourished; there was considerable pallor of countenance, and rigor mortis was perfect. There were no external marks of violence. Post mortem discoloration over the whole back and also on the side and lower part of the neck.

Upon opening the chest we found the lungs filling the whole cavity, and on removing its contents we found the right lung very much engorged, the left being engorged except a small portion of the upper lobe, the lung structure being feeble throughout.

The heart was enlarged and the muscular walls thickened, very flabby and somewhat fatty. All the valves appeared to be healthy and the right side of the heart contained considerable liquid blood.

The contents of the abdominal cavity was next carefully examined. The right lobe of the liver was very much enlarged, soft and friable, the left lobe being slightly enlarged, the whole structure weighing five pounds. The gall bladder was healthy.

The stomach was almost empty and very much congested. The kidneys were very much enlarged, particularly the left, and the renal capsules adherent. The spleen was congested and somewhat hardened. The pancreas was in a healthy state. The bladder was empty.

The brain itself presented no evidence of disease, but its membranes were thickened and adherent to the skull.

We are of opinion that death was caused by heart failure, suddenly brought on by the great amount of lung engorgement, the recovery from which was rendered more difficult by the obstruction of the circulation in the other organs.

R. P. BOUCHER, M.D.,
J. CLARKE, M.D.

In response to a question, Dr. Boucher said that the large quantity of blood in the lungs was due to the weak action of the heart, which was not able to force the blood through the system. They had not examined the stomach, but had preserved it for analysis if necessary. The internal organs were so congested that it appeared death was due to natural causes.

The County Crown Attorney asked if poison would act so quickly as to cause death as suddenly as Mr. Hopkins' had been.

Dr. BOUCHER replied, none, except prussic acid, and they had observed no evidence of that having been taken. Dr. Boucher further stated that the internal organs were in a condition which might be said to be characteristic of a man who drank freely, as Mr. Hopkins was reported to have done.

Dr. CLARKE corroborated the evidence given by the preceding witness, and said a man in the condition of deceased was liable to sudden death from very slight causes.

Dr. PIGEON, being recalled, said he had noticed no odor or appearance of prussic acid about the deceased, or about the house, when he was called on Tuesday morning, and he would have detected this poison without doubt had there been any.

This was all the evidence taken, the Jury not deeming it necessary to call Mrs. Hopkins.

SUMMING UP.

Dr. Bell in addressing the jury said that the inquest had been held because representations had been made to him that the circumstances were such as to lead to the suspicion that deceased had not come to his death by natural means. The evidence was before the jury and they would have to decide the question. In this case death was very sudden, and very nasty rumors had been started. It was a fact that when a sudden death occurred people were liable to talk too much about it and put rumors in circulation which had no foundation. In this instance there was even an imputation against a medical man, and it had been asked if Dr. Halliday's powders might not have caused death. Dr. Bell said he had himself tested the powders and found they contained only quinine in harmless quantities, so that rumor was set at rest. It was also suggested that perhaps poison had been administered, but there was the evidence of several physicians on that score. Of course the stomach had not been analyzed, and the doctors could not swear point blank that there was no poison in it, but Dr. Pigeon has stated only one known poison could cause death so suddenly, viz., prussic acid, and he would certainly have detected the presence of such a poison when he was called in. If the jury was not satisfied, however, they might place the matter before the Attorney-General and asked to have the stomach analyzed by a competent analyist, which would cost at least $50.

The court room was then cleared and the jury left alone. After only a few minutes' deliberation, they presented their verdict as follows:

That the said Edmund John Robert Hopkins came to his death at his residence in the town of Peterborough, on Tuesday, June 2nd, 1891, and that death resulted from natural causes, consequent upon heart failure, produced by extreme congestion of his internal organs. (Sgd).

THE COUNCIL'S TRIBUTE

To the Memory and Worth of Sir John Macdonald.

An Eulogistic Resolution Unanimously Adopted—Individual Expressions of Sorrow and Esteem—The Council to be Represented at the Funeral.

The Mayor stated that he had been spoken to by a number of the councillors who had thought that it would be becoming to have the council meet to have an opportunity of expressing their feelings upon the occasion of the death of Sir John Macdonald.

Mr. MOORE said that he had prepared and would move the following resolution, which he thought would express the feelings of the council upon the sad event of the death of the Right Honorable Sir John Macdonald:—

Moved by Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that this council assembled do place on record an expression of our profound sorrow and of our appreciation of the calamity Canada has suffered upon the death of the Right Honorable Sir John Macdonald, premier of Canada.

That in his demise, we recognize that the Dominion has lost a legislator untiring in devotion to duty, who, with his whole strength, has given a long lifetime in patriotic service, a man of vast experience and pre-eminent ability, a statesman who stands without a peer in the history of the British Colonial Empire, and who, revered, beloved and admired by the great body of the people for his generous and genial disposition and fascination of manner, and for his genius in the administration of public affairs, leaves not merely the memory of illustrious achievements, but also the tender tradition of personal affection and social charm.

That this council tender to Lady Macdonald, for many years the devoted partner of the joys and sorrows of this great statesman, and to his beloved children, our most tender sympathy in this the hour of their grevious sorrow and irreparable loss.

That this expression of our feelings be engrossed and forwarded by the Mayor and Clerk to Lady Macdonald.

In moving this resolution Mr. Moore felt himself incapable of doing justice to the subject for we could not at this moment appreciate the loss the country has sustained. History only would do him justice and enroll him as the most illustrious statesman of this era. He felt that regardless of politics the people of Canada would recognize his eminence as a statesmen of great administrative genius. To all intents and purposes he was a Canadian, in sympathy and earnest endeavor for the country's welfare.

Mr. CAHILL said in seconding the resolution he could only endorse the remarks of Mr. Moore, and he felt that he expressed the feelings of the council, though it was composed of both Liberals and Conservatives. It was fortunate for this town that its council had no thought of politics.

Mr. HALL said that though a political opponent of Sir John Macdonald, he could in the main agree with the resolution, and he felt that the death of Sir John Macdonald was a national loss.

Mr. MELDRUM was glad that the council had been called for the purpose. Though opposed to Sir John politically, he felt that his death was a calamity. His death was a loss that could not be repaired. He was the peer not only of any Canadian statesman, but of any public man on the continent, as was admitted by the press of the United States.

Mr. KENDRY said no resolution could convey the feelings of the council in this matter. As a statesman he thought Sir John had no equal on this continent.

Mr. DENNISTOUN endorsed what had been said. There was not a man in the council now who knew a time when Sir John Macdonald had not been a leader of public affairs. His was the only case on record where a statesman had swayed power for half a century, and continually grown in the affections of the people, and died lamented by a whole people. It is admitted that his life was sacrificed for Canada, and that he never used his position for personal advancement. All that we could do as a council was to be present in some representative form at the funeral.

Mr. KELLY said that with the exception of the Mayor he had longest known Sir John Macdonald. His first experience of Sir John Macdonald was in 1861, when he ran in Kingston again Hon. Oliver Mowat. He knew personally of Sir John's generosity. His death would be a great loss to the country. The man was still unborn who would be equal to Sir John as a leader of men.

Before putting the resolution the Mayor said he would go to-morrow to Ottawa to attend the funeral. He had known Sir John since 1844. He recollected the late Judge Hall extolling Sir John and predicting a brilliant career. The Mayor felt that he had lost his best friend, who had always treated him with a great deal of kindness and consideration. He had never asked a favour that had been refused. Almost any favour he asked had been granted. The last conversation he had with Sir John was on the day Sir John left the house—in reply to a letter Mr. Stevenson had received from a constituent in reference to the Trent Valley Canal and Sir John had promised that a sufficient sum should be placed in the supplementary estimates, sufficient to at least cover the expenses of the location survey. Sir John was not only popular in Ottawa, but in the House of Commons among whose members he (Mr. Stevenson) had never heard one unkind word said of him. They all regarded Sir John as the most unselfish of men, else with the opportunities he had had he would have died a wealthy man.

At the conclusion of his remarks the Mayor put the resolution, which was passed by a unanimous standing vote.

THE CIVIC REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Dawson moved, seconded by Mr. Bradburn,—That the Mayor and Council attend the funeral of Sir John Macdonald in their official capacity.

Bay of Quinte Conference.

Election of President and Secretary—Educational Meeting.

NAPANEE, June 5.—The eighth session of the Bay of Quinte Conference opened in the Eastern Methodist church here yesterday. There was a very large attendance of members and visitors. The ministerial session, according to the new rule, had been held the day before. The retiring president, Rev. W. Burns, occupied the chair, and conducted the opening exercises, Rev. Dr. Beaghy leading in prayer. The roll call showed 151 ministers and 85 laymen in attendance. Three ministers were transferred into the conference and five had been taken out. Seven had died during the year.

The first business after the conference prayer meeting was the election of officers. On the third ballot Rev. C. B. Lambly was elected president, and C. W. Walsh secretary on the second ballot. These brethren suitably acknowledged the honor conference had conferred, and took their places. The secretary named as his assistants Rev. E. N. Baker, and Mr. R. W. Clarke, and as journal secretary Rev. R. Duke. Dr. Crowle and Rev. Geo. H. Raley were appointed letter writers, and Rev. W. J. Sanders railway secretary.

The educational meeting was held in the evening and was largely attended. Eloquent addresses were delivered by Revs. James Anderson, Dr. Badgley and Dr. Potts.

The Conference opened at 9 this morning, Rev. C. B. Lambley in the chair. The report of the Educational Society was read by the treasurer Rev. Dr. Williams, and Rev. Dr. Potts, general secretary of education, addressed the conference. The report of Albert College was presented by Rev. Principal Dyer, and the institution was reported in a prosperous condition. Complimentary resolutions respecting Revs. Dr. Williams and A. B. Chambers, who go by transfer to Guelph and Toronto conferences, were passed amid many expressions of regret on the part of members of conference. Mr. Chambers, in whose church the conference is being held, was made a corresponding member during the sessions.

On motion the travelling expenses of young men attending the annual examinations were ordered to be paid in the future.

The usual votes of thanks to the returning officers were passed and a committee on nominations appointed, consisting of one minister and one layman from each district. The reports of the ministerial session and of the Conference Special Committee were read and ordered to be inserted in the journal. Rev. C. B. Lambley was elected chairman of Picton District and J. J. Rice of Napanee District, to fill vacancies caused by removals.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

In the afternoon, after the preliminary exercises, the Rev. Prof. Wallace introduced Dr. Dobayashi, of Japan, who delivered a very interesting address. Rev. T. M. Campbell, H. M. Manning and W. J. Jolliffe were introduced and took their places as members of conference. Rev. E. Roberts was elected representative to the Central Missionary Board.

A committee was appointed to prepare a resolution of condolence with Lady Macdonald, and a telegram to that effect was sent to Ottawa.

The remainder of the session was taken up with routine business, and conference adjourned at 5:30 p.m.

The reception service is being held to-night and is attended by one of the largest crowds that could be assembled in the Eastern church. The conference itself, owing to the addition of the Bowmanville and Uxbridge districts, is larger than usual this year, while the galleries of the church are filled at every session by an attentive audience.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, caroling in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1888 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 37 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEER, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

THE DEAD PREMIER.

Tens of Thousands View His Remains.

LYING IN STATE AT OTTAWA.

Memorial Service in Westminster Abbey.

All Preparations for the Funeral Completed—Kingston a City of Mourning—World-Wide Sympathy Goes Out to the Afflicted Family of Sir John—Mountains of Floral Tributes on the Dead Statesman's Bier.

OTTAWA, June 9.—The body of the late Sir John Macdonald lay in state all day in the Senate chamber. The chamber wore an air of mourning. The brass rods and railing at each end were draped in mourning. The seats had been removed and the scarlet carpet covered over with linen. In accordance with the wishes of the family simplicity was the characteristic of these signs of sorrow. The casket was placed in the centre of the room on a rest wrapped in black cloth with black silk fringe and silk cords. At the side was a shield entwined with ensigns and bearing a portrait of the Queen. A barrier draped in black ran the whole length of the chamber a the opposite side of the casket. Along the barrier and along the opposite side of the chamber were arranged the scores of floral tributes received. Around the bier were the Conservative members who will remain in turns four at a time to guard the remains of the Chieftain during the time the body lies in state. Stationed at intervals in the chamber and through the corridors were guards from the Governor-General's Foot Guards, the Ottawa Field Battery, the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards and the 43rd Battalion.

The remains were removed privately from Ernscliffe this morning at 5. The evening before Rev. J. J. Bogart of St. Alban's Church read the funeral service of the Church of England, all the members of the family being present. This morning the casket was carried from the house by six stalwart Dominion policemen to the hearse, drawn by four black horses, and taken to the Senate.

Those accompanying the remains were Messrs. Hugh J. Macdonald, M.P., Fred White, Joseph Pope and George Sparks in one carriage, and Lieut.-Col. Smith, Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, and Major Sherwood. The remains of the old Chieftain were met at the door by the first batch of Conservative members, Messrs. McKay, Daly, Taylor and Mills (Annapolis), and escorted to the Chamber. The Chamber was thrown open at 10 o'clock. A few minutes previously Lord Stanley arrived, accompanied by Major Colville, military secretary, Viscount Kilcoursie, Captain Walsh, Lieutenant-Colonel Smith and Lieutenant-Colonel Macpherson, aide-de camps; Major-General Herbert and Captain Streatfeild, aide-de-camp. The party proceeded to the Speaker's apartments, where the members of the late Ministry were waiting. Joining them Lord Stanley proceeded to the chamber where the dead statesman lay, bearing in his hand a magnificent wreath, which he laid on the bier. It bore a card with the words: "In Loving Memory, from Stanley of Preston, and Constance Stanley."

The body was dressed in the full uniform of an Imperial Privy Councillor. On a stand near the head were the insignia of the office. The face of the Old Man showed signs of the long struggle through which he had passed. It was worn and thin and bore a marked contrast to the well-known features of a fortnight since.

Thousands View the Body.

The general public was then admitted. All day long the corridors were thronged with people anxious to have a last look at the Conservative Chieftain. At night the crush was even greater and the doors were kept open until near midnight. It was estimated that 15,000 people viewed the remains.

A cablegram was received to-day from Mr. Loring, secretary of the Imperial Federation League, London, England, asking if a subscription to a monument to the memory of Sir John Macdonald would be accepted. Mr. R. C. Dickson replied that it would, although no scheme had yet been formulated for perpetuating his memory.

The Governor-General, by command of Her Majesty the Queen, has requested Sir Casimir Gzowski, A.D.C. to the Queen, to represent Her Majesty at Sir John Macdonald's funeral both here and at Kingston.

Judge Ross, in opening the June term of the County Court, referred to the death of the Premier as an occasion of real sadness and possibly a critical period in the history of the country and expressed sympathy with the family in their bereavement.

Six marshals have been appointed to take charge of the funeral procession. They are Lieut.-Col. Todd, Governor-General's Foot Guards; Lieut.-Col. Anderson, 43rd Battalion; Capt. Gourdeau, Princess Louise Dragoon Guards; Capt. Bliss; Ottawa Field Battery; Chief McVeritty, city police, and Inspector O'Leary, Dominion Police.

The work of draping the houses, stores, etc., on the line of route was begun early yesterday and was still going on at a late hour this afternoon. In many cases arrangements were most elaborate, and the universality of the mourning both in stores and private houses showed in a marked manner the respect in which the citizens of Ottawa of all shades of politics held the deceased statesman.

AT KINGSTON.

Preparations Completed For the Services on Thursday.

KINGSTON, June 9.—The city has now begun to assume an aspect of mourning. On all public buildings, and on every business house where there is a flagstaff, the national colors float at half mast. At Fort Henry alone is the flag mast head, which is in pursuance of a military regulation requiring the same except in the case of a royal death. Down Princess-street the principal places of business are draped in festoons of black bunting, giving that usually gay thoroughfare an air of solemnity which reminds pedestrians of the national sorrow and causes the merry laugh of the school children to die away on their lips and the older citizens to assume a more thoughtful aspect as they think of it. Many windows contain portraits of the late Premier draped in black. These are constantly surrounded by a throng of spectators anxious for one more glimpse of the features so well known to all, and now and again an old acquaintance perchance of Kingston's representative wipes away a tear as he turns away from the scene.

Last evening Mr. McIntyre, Q.C., President of the Conservative Association, and Miss Macpherson, cousin of the late Sir John Macdonald, drove out to Cataraqui Cemetery and selected the site in the Macdonald plot for the late Premier's body. The coffin will be built in with solid masonry by G. Newlands. This is being done to prevent the body being stolen.

Major-General Herbert has issued the following military orders in connection with the funeral on Thursday: "A" and Kingston batteries, "A" and "C" troops of 4th Cavalry and 14th Battalion will line the streets and the cadets of the Royal Military College will furnish the body guard while lying in state. These orders were sent to the officers in command.

Montreal's Representation.

MONTREAL, June 9.—The city of Montreal will be represented at the funeral of Sir John by the Mayor and members of the City Council, the council of the Board of Trade and Corn Exchange Association, the Harbor Commissioners, members of the consular corps stationed here, delegation from the Junior Conservative Club and the Sir John A. Macdonald Club, representatives of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways and a large number of private citizens. Nearly every public body in the city has passed resolutions of regret at the lamented statesman's death and of condolence with his family. The bar of Montreal, the Harbor Commissioners and the consular corps met this afternoon and after passing appropriate resolutions resolved to attend the funeral.

The Canadian Pacific are draping their engines and stations out of respect to the departed Premier, whose policy and administration really called into existence this great corporation. All the principal stations between Montreal and Ottawa will be draped in black.

SPECIALLY HONORED.

A Memorial Service to Be Held in Westminster Abbey in Honor of Sir John Macdonald.

LONDON, June 9.—The death of Sir John Macdonald and the political results to Canada likely to arise from the sad event are still the general topic of conversation here in political, colonial and city circles. Nothing more remarkable has ever been witnessed in London than the universal respect shown for the memory of the deceased statesman. From every corner of the empire come tributes of respect to his memory. This culminated today in the decision to hold a memorial service in Westminster Abbey, which is considered to be one of the highest honors an Englishman can ever hope to attain. A requisition was presented to the dean of Westminster signed by all the leading Ministers of State, the leaders of both political parties in the Imperial Parliament, the Marquis of Lorne, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Alexander Galt, Hon. Charles Colby and others. The memorialists pointed out that they desired to pay a last tribute of respect to one who has rendered so many services to the Dominion of Canada and the Empire in general and asked that their petition be granted. The dean promptly assented, and it was decided that the service should be held on Friday morning next, when all the Imperial Cabinet Ministers and members of Parliament who are able to attend will be present, together with all the Canadians and other colonists at present in London. It is expected that the service will be very grand and impressive, and that the Dean himself will officiate.

In the House of Lords.

Lord Salisbury paid a most graceful tribute to Sir John in the House of Lords last evening, which has much gratified Canadians at present in the city, and cannot fail to be appreciated all over the Dominion. In the course of his remarks Lord Salisbury said that Sir John Macdonald was as great a constitutional statesman as any nation had ever seen. Other members of the House of Lords followed in eulogies of the dead Canadian Premier.

Sir Charles Tupper is still at Vienna and it is not expected he will be able to return in time for the memorial service at Westminster Abbey, though he telegraphed to have his name affixed to the memorial presented to the dean. The High Commissioner has still many important matters to present to the Postal Congress, and it is very unlikely he will leave Vienna until he has completed his work.

Fatal Voyage of Two Men in Search of Employment.

OTTAWA, June 9.—Nearly three weeks ago two young men named Cluff and Coulter, residents of Leslie Township, county of Pontiac, started in a boat to cross Chats Lake from Bristol to Sandpoint for the purpose of obtaining employment with McLaughlin Bros. Nothing more was heard of them until Friday, when the body of Cluff was found floating opposite Bristol's wharf. Coulter's body has not been found.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL.

THE VERDICT ADVERSE TO THE PLAINTIFF.

Sir William Gordon Cumming Loses His Suit Against the Individuals Who Accused Him of Cheating—The Judge's Partial Charge to the Jury.

LONDON, June 9.—There was no diminution in the attendance at the baccarat trial to-day, though much disappointment was felt at the absence of the Prince of Wales, who had gone to the Ascot races.

The Lord Chief Justice began his summing up of the evidence. It was noticed throughout that his charge was favorable to the defendants. The audience listened with breathless attention to the words of the address, upon the tenor of which so much depended. The court explained at length the differences between an action for slander such as this one, and an action for libel.

The Lord Chief Justice emphatically protested against the observation which had been made by counsel, that there was more in the case than was allowed to appear upon the surface. The jury must not allow themselves to be influenced by such remarks made in the heat of argument by counsel whose zeal led them to hint at more than could be made evidence. As a matter of fact there was never any more in a case than appeared in evidence. They must confine themselves to the single question at issue and base their verdict upon what they had heard proved by evidence.

Lord Chief Justice Coleridge defined the law of libel and that of slander and gave special instructions as to the damages to be assessed in the event of a finding for plaintiff. The tone of his address seemed decidedly in the plaintiff's favor. But when he proceeded to an analysis of the evidence given by Gen. Williams, Earl Coventry and the Prince of Wales, the effect was in the nature of an endorsement of their testimony. He dwelt at length upon Sir William Gordon Cumming's high position and brave career and described his visit to Tranby Croft as an honored guest. Referring to the insinuations against the Prince of Wales, the Lord Chief Justice sarcastically observed that, while people indulged in criticisms as a cheap way of gaining notoriety, it was noticeable that they were all very much pleased to have the Prince, Earl Coventry and Lord This and That at their houses. (Laughter.)

The court then touched upon the position of the Prince in this affair, and the desire for secrecy in regard to the scandal. Was it not natural, said he, that with our monarchical institution such a wish should have existed? It must be remembered that such incidents, with the exaggerations that might arise, were nowadays brought before a hard judging world, and not before the loyal and subservient world of the Tudors, whose sense and judgment had to be consulted. Surely it was not a thing to be said against a man under these circumstances that he was anxious to keep a scandal quiet.

While admitting the prima facie improbability of one in Sir William Gordon Cumming's position and of his wealth cheating at cards, yet the Lord Chief Justice made it a strong point against Sir William that he had failed to confront his accusers.

Lord Coleridge said the Prince of Wales was, he presumed, a gentleman, and the instinct of an honorable man was to range himself on the side of his friends. If the Prince did not believe the story, he would have made a point to show the world that he did not believe it. But he (the Prince) has not met the plaintiff since. Lord Coleridge then turned his attention to Sir William Gordon Cumming, though his eyes were kept continually upon the jurymen and not upon the plaintiff. During this branch of his discourse Lord Coleridge severely criticized the baronet's conduct after leaving Tranby Croft, referring to the events subsequent to Sept. 10, the day when the Tranby Croft party may be said to have been broken up. His conduct then, according to the Chief Justice, was not of a nature tending to indicate that the plaintiff was innocent of the charge brought against him. At another portion of his charge Lord Coleridge, referring to the criticism heaped upon the Prince of Wales since the affair first became public for the share the heir-apparent had taken in the Tranby Croft episode, said that England was not only a free country but a censorious one. The life of the Prince of Wales, like every other person of rank, was continually made a subject of public comment.

Why Didn't He Read His Bible?

"The Prince of Wales," Lord Coleridge added, somewhat pathetically, "goes through many boring ceremonies," and if he did introduce baccarat into that great house in the absence of any portion of the scandal being directly connected with the Prince of Wales Lord Coleridge could not imagine how any harm could be done to the monarchy, to the Prince or to anybody else, adding significantly, "though some people might have asked when they heard of the trouble at Tranby Croft, 'Why did he not read his Bible?' But," said the Lord Chief Justice, "nobody was any the worse by the hardworking man taking his pleasures among his friends." Did the jury believe that the plaintiff signed the dishonoring document in which he stated that he had cheated at cards? And did this save the Prince of Wales? Were not the consequences far too great for the cause?

Lord Coleridge said he could not understand how a man could give away all for which life was valued and all which made life worth living. The Hon. Chief Justice wound up his charge to the jury with the following emphatic not to be easily misunderstood remark, after what he had already said: "I send you, gentlemen of the jury, to do your duty, and adapting the noble words of a great man to this occasion, 'When you pass your judgment upon Sir William Gordon Cumming's honor, I pray you recollect your own.'"

The Jury Retire.

At the conclusion of the charge the jury retired, and the occupants of the court room busied themselves in commenting upon what they had heard and in conjecture as to the probable effect of the charge upon the jury. Only 15 minutes had elapsed when the jury sent word to the court that they had agreed upon their verdict. The suspense was great as the jurors returned to their seats and replied to the usual question.

When the verdict of "Not Guilty" was announced there was a tremendous stir, the court rapping vainly for order. Both applause and hisses were heard, but the former predominated. In a few minutes the room was vacated by the gaily dressed throng, and the sensational trial was over.

Defendants present were warmly congratulated by numerous friends, and seemed supremely happy. The verdict was in accordance with the general expectations. Betting during the morning was strongly in favor of such a result.

While the jury were out Sir Wm. Gordon Cumming showed no signs of nervousness and sat quietly reading some letters. His friends, however, plainly betrayed their apprehension. The defendants were also uneasy and anxious. When the verdict was announced, Sir William was marvelously cool. He was really to all outward appearances the most uninterested spectator in court. Lord Middleton, his relative, who is reputed to have furnished the money for the prosecution, was quite the reverse. When the verdict was announced Sir William coolly donned his coat and hat and strolled away with Lord Middleton. The charge of Lord Coleridge is regarded as unnecessarily severe against the plaintiff. The evidence was sufficiently unsoiled without His Lordship's throwing his personal interpretation into the scale against Cumming. The charge is pronounced by lawyers as practically an instruction to find a verdict for the defendants.

Sir William Gordon Cumming held a consultation with Sir E. Clarke, Mr. Gill and his solicitor in the course of the evening before proceeding across, where he denied himself to all comers. A group of friends still adhering to him met at the Turf Club in expectation of seeing him. Since the scandal became public Cumming has not been seen at the Marlborough or Guards Club of which he is a member, but has occasionally visited the Turf Circle. To-night the members of the Turf Club seemed undecided how to act. Personally, Cumming is liked at the club. He has an honorable record throughout all his dealings with members of the club, and many are adverse to his expulsion. The division of public feeling upon the verdict will be largely a class division, the aristocratic circles siding with the decision and approving Lord Coleridge's charge, while the mass of the public sympathize with Cumming and accuse the judge of gross partiality. The hissing with which the gallery of the court saluted the verdict was repeated outside by an excited crowd thronging the corridors. The defendants on leaving the court were surrounded by a mob and numbers of insulting allusions were addressed to them until they reached the protection of their carriages. Mr. Lewis, their solicitor, had to fly for safety to the adjacent Chancery Court, where he escaped by climbing over a bench. Just before leaving Mrs. Wilson telegraphed the result to the Prince of Wales, adding congratulations. The popular reaction is largely due to Sir R. Clarke's outspoken and fearless address. When he appeared in the lobby of the House of Commons to-night he was greeted with congratulations, on the ground that he had done the best that could be done against the enormous difficulties. His friends fear that the increased distinction he has acquired in the trial will not commend him to the court.

A group of Radicals in the House of Commons, after a private conference, have decided to raise a discussion with special reference to the Prince of Wales, by motions upon the army estimates. Mr. Morton has already given notice that in committee on the estimates he will move a reduction of the salary of the commander in chief, in order to raise a general debate on the case.

As Sir William Gordon Gumming entered his carriage the crowd raised a loud cheer. The demonstration was all the more noticeable from the fact that the Wilsons had driven off a minute before amid silence. The effect of the verdict is that Sir William must be cashiered from the army and expelled from the clubs.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE ASCOT RACES.

The New British Educational Bill Discussed in the Imperial Parliament—Emperor William's Narrow Escape From Death by Lightning—General Cable News.

LONDON, June 9.—The race meeting at Ascot opened to-day with perfect weather. The Prince of Wales, fresh from the baccarat trial, with the Princess of Wales and her daughters, the Duke of Clarence and Avondale, the heir-presumptive, the Duke of Cambridge and the Duke of Saxe-Weimar drove in state from Windsor Castle to the grand stand, being preceded by yeomen prickers (volunteer light horsemen) in dazzling uniforms of green and scarlet headed by one of the baccarat trial witnesses, the Earl of Coventry as Master of the Buckhounds. The royal turnout was greeted with enthusiastic plaudits all along the line, and again on arrival at the royal stand at Ascot. All doubts as to the manner in which the Prince of Wales would be received by the public after the baccarat trial revelations were thus set at rest. The full band of the Scots Fusilier Guards, Sir William Gordon Cumming's regiment, was on the ground, a fact which excited some comment.

The Crimes Act and the Government's Education Bill Under Discussion.

LONDON, June 9.—Mr. Balfour in the House of Commons to-day, replying to a question by Thomas Sexton, said all clauses of the Crimes Act dealing with boycotting and intimidation can be withdrawn from the whole of Ireland excepting County Clare and some of the baronies in which the "plan of campaign" still exists. The debate on the Government's education bill being resumed, Mr. Balfour said Ireland's share of the budget would be applied to freeing elementary education, in much the same way as in England. An early opportunity would be taken to deal completely with the problem of compulsory education. He had little hope that the Irish measure would be passed this session, but it had been introduced in order to enable the members to consider it during recess. The minimum grant for Ireland for this purpose would be $300,000.

Germany's Emperor Has a Very Narrow Escape From Death.

BERLIN, June 9.—Grenadiers were being exercised by the Emperor at morning drill on the parade ground at Tempelhof. While the men were being put through their exercise a vivid flash of lightning, followed by a deafening thunder clap, startled and half-blinded the men on parade and hurled a number of them to the ground. The officer in command, Capt. Von Quaste, and three soldiers were rendered insensible. Two of the latter died almost immediately. Capt. Von Quaste and the other soldiers who had been struck were dangerously injured. It is supposed the rifles and bayonets of the soldiers attracted the electricity which caused such fatal results.

The French and American ministers at Shanghai have called upon the Imperial Cabinet to give efficient protection to European and American residents, hinting that failure to comply with this request will involve hostile action on the part of their respective Governments. The French squadron threatens to bombard Nankin unless the sufferers by the recent riots are promptly indemnified. Horrible details are given of the outrages at Wuzuch, on the French mission. Women and children escaped murder only by flying naked from their abodes.

New Era in the Sudbury District.

NICKEL CITY, June 9.—The opening of the works of the Algoma Reduction Co. here marks a new era in the history of mining in this district. The works are under the able management of Mr. R. H. Ahn, who has identified himself with the prosperity of the district. The ore to be treated will come mainly from the townships of Fairbank and Creighton and from the rich deposits of gold quartz in the neighborhood of Gordon Lake and the Vermillion River. In several places the veins have been stripped, showing immense bodies of auriferous quartz. A notable feature is the presence of streaks of galena, carrying both gold and silver. The veins occur in a Taloose formation in the Huronian rocks in that part of Algoma. Geologists pronounce the rock accompanying the gold-bearing quartz to be a schist. The country is somewhat hilly and the means of communication are not yet good. The Vermillion River is navigable, but there are several formidable obstructions between Nickel City and Larchwood, principally the McPherson and Stobie Falls. These, however, furnish fine water powers which will be utilized. Negotiations are pending for putting in a complete electrical plant on the property of W. D. McPherson, the Toronto solicitor, the power to be supplied by the McPherson Falls on his property.

SUN LIFE
ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Increase over 1889	75,649 95
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961.65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6.04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail then to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$64,824 07

Mr. Fitzgerald started the bidding with 8c. for selections, Mr. Clanton raising to 8¼, Mr. Fitzgeral again to 8½ and Mr. Clanton advancing to 8¾ for six factories. He named Ormonde, Westwood, Keene, Pine Grove, Cherry Grove and Lakefield, all of which accepted. Mr. Flavelle then offered 8½ for further selections, and that figure took Warminster, Shearer, Central Smith, North Smith, Warsaw, South Dummer and Missing Link. Mr. Cook took his turn next and bid a quarter for further selections, Mr. Fitzgerald going a sixteenth better and Mr. Cook finally advancing to ⅞. He named Norwood, Melrose Abbey, Brickley, Roseneath, North Dummer, Beaufort and Lakeview, and all accepted. Mr. Clanton bid 8⅞ for farther selections, and took, Maple Leaf, Fraserville, Lang, Fleetwood, Millbrook, Cedardale, Ida and Mount Pleasant. Mr. Fitzgerald took Trewern at 8¾c. This left only Stony Lake unsold on the Peterborough Board, and Mr. Cook took it for 8⅞c.

For the Victoria section Mr. Flavelle offered 8¾c., Gamebridge and Lorneville to be inspected at Lindsay, and the rest at the factories, and all accepted. This cleared the Board off.

At the last meeting of the Board Beaufort and Fraserville sold at 8¾c., to be inspected at the factories; not 8¾c., subject to inspection at Peterborough, as reported.

Important Meeting of Dairymen.

An Exhibition of Milk Testing Given by an Expert of the Dairy Department at Ottawa.

A very interesting and instructive meeting of cheesemen was held at the Lakefield Factory on the afternoon of June 2ad the following factories being represented:—Shearer, Keene, Peterborough, Warminster, South Dammer, Maple Leaf, Pine Grove, Central Smith, Warsaw, Cherry Grove and Trewerne by owners, patrons and particularly cheese-makers about fifteen of them being present who all should be alive to the best interests of this great industry.

Mr. Galvin President of the Lakefield Dairy Company in introducing Mr. J. B. McEwen of the dairy staff to the meeting stated that he supposed all here were interested in the cheese business and had come to learn something also to exchange ideas which he hoped would prove of mutual benefit to all. He went on to say that some years ago, the raising of grain in this country had failed, to a certain extent in proving remmerative to the farmer, on account of other countries, opening up where grain could be grown at much less cost, consequently the farmer was compelled to turn his attention to something else.

During the last number of years the dairy industry more especially the cheese business has been making great strides, and to-day Canada ranks at the front in producing a fine quality of cheese, but on account of competition we have to apply our best skill to hold that position. One step in that direction has been made by the Dominion Government in appointing a dairy commissioner and staff at Ottawa.

Mr. McEwen prefaced his address by giving an exhibition of testing milk with the Babcock tester on several samples of milk showing quite plainly the merits of the invention in determining the amount of butterfat in milk, and said be hoped and believed it would eventually do away with the present system of pooling milk at cheese factories and the farmer would be paid according to the quality of his milk. He considered the method now in vogue had a tendency to induce breading for quantity not quality, consequently the result was, it took more milk to make a pound of cheese and we did not get an article as rich as was possible. Continuing he said he would like to impress upon those who furnished milk to cheese factories the importance of taking the best care of their milk. The thorough aeration of the milk through the entire season, immediately after milking, was one of the great factors in helping the cheesemaker to produce a good article, and if patrons would pay more attention to this matter it would in the end be money in their pocket. Speaking of eastern, in comparison to western Ontario, he found factories and their equipments were not so good here as in the west, but was well pleased with the appearances here at this factory. Mr. McEwen went on to advocate strongly the scheme of the Dairy Department to induce the factorymen and farmers to go more into winter dairying, asserting that the farmer did not make the money out of his cows which he should. He considered that, by paying more attention to feeding and with the proper use of the silo, cows could be made to milk ten months as well as six, and if it paid to milk them six months, it would assuredly pay better for a longer time. All present enjoyed the meeting, especially the cheesemakers, who during the process of making were anxious to receive and willing to impart any new ideas they could. I think it would be beneficial to us as cheesemakers if it could be made practicable to all to meet at a different factory, say once a month during the season, it might be the means of helping us to make a more uniform article, as we that were at this meeting must know that where a number of us meet in such a manner, we cannot help but become more enthusiastic over our work, and I feel sure such meetings would have the propensity of instilling in us greater pride in our occupation, and by our united efforts, and with the assistance of the practical man of the dairy staff, such as Mr. McEwen, it would help to make our business more lucrative and still keep our cheese at the top, where it can be retained only by working, thinking and applying our skill. Hoping the good work commenced by the Dairy Department may go on with great results for the advancement of one of our country's best industries, and thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space in your valuable paper,

I am, etc.,
W. W. GRANT,
Sec. of Lakefield Dairy Co.

Telfordean Temperature Topics.

MONTHLY WEATHER NOTES.—How pleasant to survey the landscape with the eye, no matter in what direction. At every turn the rich green foliage of the forest, the fading blossoms on our fruit trees and bushes as their place is taken by their fast forming respective fruits, with the fast budding and shooting forth of our gardens and fields, all bespeak of a kind Providence who watcheth over and supplieth the wants and necessities of man, although the drought has somewhat retarded their growth. As flowery May, now gone, has been one of the dryest, I believe, on record, rain falling only on five days, but that only to the depth of 26 100 of an inch, being a little over a quarter of an inch; but for frost, we had more than enough, but only a little snow on two days. We had frost on several mornings, but the severest was on the morning of the 5th and 24th, being accompanied with thick ice. Again we had some hot days; at 2 p.m. the thermometer on the 9th standing at 84° in the shade; on the 10th at 87°, on the 20th at 85°, on the 29th at 85°, and on several days between 70° and 80°, leaving the mean temperature of the month at 48°. We had two thunder storms, but only a few drops of rain; an awful gale on the 4th, auroral lights on the 6th, the 7th and 23rd. The swallow, our last migrating bird, only put in its appearance on the 3rd. The following is the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, respectively, namely:—West, 6 days; south-west, 5 days; north-west, 11 days; north, 6 days; east, 1 day, and north-east, 2 days.

We had frost again on Sunday morning, the 7th inst,

The Progress of Science.

The progress of science during the past few years has been so great that we look almost with anxiety to what the future may have in store. The medical science alone has developed wonders sufficient to startle the world; but perhaps no other discovery in the medical world has created so great a stir or been productive of so much good as Beecham's Pills. Sold by druggists generally. B. F. Allen Co., 365 and 367 Canal Street, New York, sole agents for the United States, will mail a box of Beecham's Pills on receipt of price, 25c., if your druggist does not keep them. w24d

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

"Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

THE BACCARAT TRIAL.

Masterly Address on Behalf of the Man Whose Motto is "Sans Crainte."

LONDON, June 8.—Sir Edward Clarke delivered his address on behalf of the plaintiff, Sir William Gordon-Cumming, in the baccarat case to-day. "What was Sir William Gordon Cumming's reason for signing the document, about which so much has been said?" asked the Solicitor-General, looking straight into the Prince of Wales' eyes.

"It was," he said after an effective pause, "to save the Prince of Wales." "Among the mass of the people," Sir Edward continued, uttering each word with startling distinctness, "it is known that a club or inn could be prosecuted for playing baccarat, and in a great part of the community there was a feeling that this unhappy incident ought never to have been allowed to become known, because the circumstances were these which were at variance with the feeling with the conscience of the people.

"Then there was the strange and subtle influence of royalty," still more solemnly and dramatically, said the Solicitor-General, "and Sir William Gordon Cumming's action in signing that document was due to the influence which adorned history and which has made many knights do an unknightly and dishonoring deed to save their king, because they gave their honor as freely as they could have given their lives for the interest of the dynasty or to conceal the foibles of a prince."

A slight ripple of applause, which was promptly suppressed, broke out in court as the eloquent jurist uttered the last words in a most touching and impressive manner.

"The document," continued Sir Edward Clarke with increasing force and amidst the deepest silence throughout the courtroom, "was signed by Sir William Gordon Cumming in order to save the Prince of Wales from scandal. The motto of Sir William Gordon Cumming's race is: 'Without fear.' He came into the witness box without fear, confident of a verdict which would wipe this stain from the noble record of service with his gallant regiment of brave soldiers."

The Solicitor-General then said slowly to the jury: "It is too late to undo the mischief which has been done," and then facing the Prince of Wales and looking the latter direct in the face for about the space of a minute, he continued in a voice apparently shaken with emotion, "and it may be too late to save the reputation of some people mentioned in this case, but," again turning to the jury, "it is not too late for you to prevent the completion of the sacrifice of this gallant officer."

Sir Edward Clarke's speech was regarded as a most eloquent and telling effort and as he closed there was a burst of spontaneous applause, cheering and hand-clapping throughout the court which caused the Lord Chief Justice to shout "silence, this is not a theatre."

The jury, it was plainly evident appeared to be greatly impressed with the speech of the Solicitor-General and as he ended it this remark was heard throughout the court, "Cummings will get a verdict or at least the jury will disagree."

The court was then adjourned till to-morrow, when the Lord Chief Justice will sum up and the case will go to the jury.

The court was crowded long before the opening time and the interest in the case did not seem to have diminished in the slightest degree.

The Prince of Wales throughout the trial has demonstrated the fact that he is sticking to the witness, young Arthur Stanley Wilson, who has been elected a member of the Marlborough Club, the Prince's pet club, upon the nomination of the heir-apparent himself.

The Lord Chief Justice when he took his seat was flanked on either side by about 35 ladies. The galleries were in the main part filled with fashionably dressed ladies. Sir William Gordon Cumming was as dignified as ever and appeared supremely calm

THE MOON.

Some Things About That Luminary Which Everyone Should Know.

There are one or two things about the moon that everyone should know, says Prof. E. S. Holden. Let me mention them. How bright is the full moon, do you think? Suppose you look up at the moon on the next clear night. The sky is a pure pale blue, and the moon is almost dazzlingly bright against it. If the whole canopy of the sky were made up of full moons, and if one were in the centre of such a shining shell, one might think that the glare would be intolerable.

But let us see. This very same moon you have often seen in the daytime as a pale white disk just barely visible against the blackground of the sky. In fact, unless you know exactly where to look, you may require a minute or two to find it.

That means that the daylight sky is not so very different in brilliancy from the nearly full moon; or it means that you could very well live under a sky whose every part was just as bright as the moon itself.

We may say, then, that the brightness of the moon is not so very much greater than the brightness of the same area of sky. The total light of the full moon can be compared with the total light of the sun, though it is a very difficult problem, and the result will be that the sun is as bright as 600,000 full moons.

Once again you ought to know and remember how large the moon is. Its diameter is about 2,000 miles—one-fourth af the earth—and its angular diameter is about half a degree. As there are 180 degrees from the east point to the west point of the horizon measured through the zenith, there is room for 360 full moons in an arch spanning the heavens from east to west, each one touching the rims of those next it.

Another thing, too, you should notice and understand. The moon looks larger near the horizon than it does when is is overhead. The common explanation of this fact is essentially the true one; that is, the low moon is near enough to the horizon to be compared with hills, or trees, or houses, and consequently it looks large, while the high moon is isolated, and one has no term of comparison.

In both cases the angular diameter is about half a degree, as you can prove for yourself with a little ingenuity.

My Fellow's Great Race and Victory.

BUFFALO, June 9.—There were 3000 people at the races to-day and about 2000 of them made things uncomfortable in the betting ring. For the first time the Canadian delegation got to the front and made a comfortable stake, but many of them dropped part of their pile in the last race on Hercules.

Hercules was easily the best horse of the lot but had a bad start and ran behind the field for three-fourths of the distance, when he pegged up in the stretch Pope plied the whip vigorously, but Futurity had a good lead, was going easy and Hercules was only able to reduce the gap to two lengths at the finish.

The fourth race, Portchester being scratched, gave My Fellow's owner a great chance to test him against Rambler, who won the other day. My Fellow baulked as usual at the post. Tanner had the best start. At the quarter Tanner and Rambler were head and head. At the half Tanner led Rambler by a half-length. Up in the stretch all the horses were running head and head. The backers of My Fellow shouted as Joe Bergen pulled him in easy winner by two lengths.

He Did Not Call.

The man who tried Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and was sure of the $500 reward offered by the proprietors for an incurable case, never called for his money. Why not? O, because he got cured! He was sure of two things. (1) That his catarrh could not be cured. (2) That he would have that $500. He is now sure of one thing, and that is, that his catarrh is gone completely. So he is out $500, of course. The makers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have faith in their ability to cure the worst cases of Nasal Catarrh, no matter of how long standing, and attest their faith by their standing reward of $500, offered for many years past, for an incurable case of this loathsome and dangerous disease. The remedy is sold by druggists at only 50 cents. Mild, soothing, cleansing, deodorizing, antiseptic, and healing. o

MORE SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION,

Temporary Relief Will be Afforded.

By the Erection of an Addition to the Central School Building—The New Collegiate Institute Scheme Shelved for a Couple of Years—A Long Discussion on the Subject.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held Tuesday evening for the purpose of conferring with representatives of the Town Council upon the pressing matter of school accommodation. There was a quorum of the Board present at eight o'clock, but some of the councillors were slow in arriving, and it was within a few minutes of nine o'clock before they got down to business. Before opening the meeting, Mr. Dumble conducted the visitors through the basement rooms of the Public School building, to "show them the kind of a place they had to teach children in."

There were present of the School Board: Mr. Chairman Wrighton and Trustees Corkery, Dumble, Ferguson, Deane, Boucher, Hamilton and McBain; and from the council: Messrs. Davidson, Cahill, Dawson, Meldrum and Kendry. The session lasted till half-past ten o'clock, and resulted in a temporary arrangement being made for the relief of the Public Schools. The matter of building a new Collegiate Institute it was decided should be deferred for a year or two.

Mr. Dumble, who has been very active in urging this question forward, opened the discussion with a statement of the position of affairs in the schools. Owing to the rapid growth of the town, particularly within the past year, the school accommodation was overtaxed. In the South Ward building, for instance, there was one room where the average attendance was between 70 and 80, and the number of pupils on the roll 120. To meet the demands this room was being taught on the half-day system, the teacher taking one half of the pupils in the forenoon and the other half in the afternoon. This work was slow and unsatisfactory, and there must soon be a demand for more room. In the North Ward, the new building was intended to accommodate two of the old rooms and relieve the pressure elsewhere, but no sooner was it built then all four rooms were at once filled up. In the West Ward there was a good average attendance. The CENTRAL SCHOOL IS OVERCROWDED.

Mr. Smith, the head master, has an average of 70 pupils, whereas 40 to 45 is enough for an advanced class like his. Under present circumstances Mr. Smith cannot do justice to himself nor his pupils, and he must in a short time have an assistant teacher to take part of his class. The basement rooms of that building, which are not lighted or ventilated, and were intended originally only for store-rooms or play-rooms on rainy days, are filled up with classes now. They are dark, damp, and ill-ventilated, and teachers and pupils are liable to chills and sickness. Great complaints are being made by parents about this thing. But in addition to this, one of these cellar rooms was at present used for one of the forms from the Collegiate Institute, thus separating the class from the remainder and removing it from the supervising eye of the principal. Touching upon the Collegiate Institute, he said the High School Inspector and all competent judges advised the separation of the Institute from the Public School. Its position and dignity were higher, and the pupils of the Institute, feeling they are young men and women, do not like to associate with little children. They stand on their dignity. The Collegiate Institute should be in a separate building and elevated in all its surroundings. Then, apart from the building, the necessary school accommodations in the Institute building are lacking; besides, there is an insufficient number of rooms. The Inspector has condemned it as not meeting the requirements, either of the school or of the Department; and considering that the Board gets $1,500 a year from the government, they could not afford to ignore the requirements of the Department. Hereafter, under the new regulations, also, the Institute would receive a larger share from the county than formerly, and as one-third of the pupils were from the county, the Institute would receive considerable assistance from this source, and the burden to the town thus decreased. So under these circumstances and in answer to the demand of the government, Mr. Dumble thought the time had come for having in our midst a building worthy of the school and of the town, a building creditable to us and one which would not bring on us the condemnation of the Department. But something must be done at once

TO RELIEVE THE PRESSURE.

Mr. Dumble thought that for the present provision could be made for a couple of classes elsewhere and two rooms given to the Institute in their own building. The present building was handsome and fairly well equipped, but there was a dispute as to the ownership of the land on which it stood, and the Collegiate Institute paid a thousand dollars a year rent to the public school for the building. The question was, should the Institute vacate the building and erect a new one for itself; or should the public school retire and give the whole building up to the Institute? For the present the Committee had thought the best plan was to rent the lower story of Fitzgerald & Stanger's carriage works, at the corner of Water and Brock streets, and place several public school classes in it. The lower corner story could be fitted up for a few hundred dollars and the rent would be $175 a year for a term of three or four years. There were objections to it. The building was a mere shell, not conveniently fitted up, it was on the street corner, had no yard, and to fit it up would be spending public money on private property. It is also suggested that a building containing four rooms should be run up on the common school property, which could be done in a short time. But in his opinion, Mr. Dumble thought the wisest policy would be to get a suitable property at once and erect a new Collegiate Institute building. Other small towns throughout the province have been putting up handsome buildings in the last few years. The $1,000 a year rent paid by the Institute would pay 5 per cent interest on $20,000; and $20,000 debentures spread over 30 years would not press. The true economy he held would be to erect a new Collegiate Institute building and save building more public schools. The question was open for discussion. They should go to the town with a reasonable proposition after the matter had been carefully considered.

FULL OF DEFECTS.

The secretary then read the report of the inspector, pointing out the defects in the Collegiate Institute building, which was published in the EXAMINER when the report was made; also a letter from the department, asking the secretary of the Board to inform the Minister what action the Board intended taking to remedy the defects.

Mr. Dawson thought the inspector was determined to make the town build a new institute. Every year he finds new faults, and when they are remedied still he condemns the building. He thought it advisable to build the four-room building at once.

Mr. Dumble stated that the inspector never was satisfied with the Institute building, and when the Board last year spent a couple of thousand dollars on it they simply saved their heads from coming off. It improved the building, but that was all. Those repairs would have had to be made for public school purposes anyway.

Mr. KENDRY said he understood when the Board spent $2,000 in re-arranging the halls and stairways last summer the building would pass for some time. At present the town council was averse to building a new institute, for they had been under heavy expense recently in bringing new industries here. A new building would eventually have to be put up, but meanwhile he felt it would be more satisfactory to everybody to make temporary arrangements.

Dr. BOUCHER said the Town Council did well in encouraging industries to locate here, but these industries brought families, and the school children had to be accommodated. Several years ago Collegiate Institute buildings were a poor class throughout the whole Province. Latterly new buildings had been erected in a large number of towns, whereas our building stood as it was put up thirty or forty years ago. The attendance had doubled, and if good work was to be done the Institute should be separate from the common school. The Department urged it, and he thought it better to go in for a new Institute building at once. It was folly to go on with

THIS PATCH-WORK BUSINESS.

The amount expended in repairs, if capitalized, would pay the interest on money sufficient to build a new Institute.

Mr. DAVIDSON enquired if the building of a four-room addition would leave the Institute building entirely for Institute purposes?

Mr. DUMBLE replied it would not. The four rooms would simply relieve the extra pressure on the public schools and enable them to vacate a couple of the cellar rooms in the Central School.

In reply to a question by Mr. Cahill, Mr. DUMBLE said he thought the four-room addition, heated by the Smead-Dowd system, would cost about $6,000.

Mr. LANGFORD said the putting in of the Smead-Dowd system would have to be done for Public School purposes at any rate, and all that would be saved by building a new Institute would be the cost of the four-room addition.

Mr. DUMBLE—Yes, but if the new Institute was built five of the best rooms in the present Institute building would be given to the Public School.

Mr. Davidson said he was gratified to learn that the schools had increased, and thought they did good work. In considering the matter of increased accommodation the Board must look at the position of the town. If they went into a $40,000 expenditure they would seriously handicap the town. The town debt was now in the neighborhood of $300,000, and the council was committed to a scheme of sewerage, topographical surveys for which were now being made. They had asked the legislature for permission to borrow money up to 10 per cent of the assessment, which would be about $400,000, and if the Institute scheme was pushed they would have to go back to the legislature and ask for further permission to borrow for either school or sewerage purposes. But they wanted to keep themselves free to help industries. The interest on $300,000 at 5 per cent was a large sum. The board asked the council last year for $17,000, and already there was a debt of $50,000 on the schools account. Take these things with such uncontrollable expenditures as water, lights, streets, assessment, administration of justice, etc., and the rate would be 13½ mills; and all they had against that was their railway bonds and revenue from town buildings. Heretofore Peterborough had a reputation for being a

CHEAP TOWN TO LIVE IN,

but if these expenditures went on the rate would be up to 15 mills or over. The council of course wished to have all the necessary school accommodation. In the South Ward, for instance, they must certainly soon have increased room, but as for building a $40,000 Institute, Mr. Davidson could not support it just now.

Mr. DUMBLE held that the town was the most prosperous in Canada, and could build the Institute as well now as two or three years hence; and by spreading the expenditure over 30 years it would not be felt. He thought a good Institute building could be put up for $25,000.

Mr. HAMILTON said the separation of the High and Public School Boards would soon have to be brought about, as well as the erection of a new Institute building. But he thought the new building was not an absolute necessity at present. They could tide the difficulty over for a couple of years by putting up a four-room addition. As Mr. Langford had said, they might put up an Institute building now, and in three or four years find it did not suit after all. Mr. Hamilton enquired of Mr. Davidson what was the feeling of the council with regard to building a Collegiate Institute at a cost of thirty or forty thousand dollars two or three years hence.

Mr. DAVIDSON said that in a couple of years the council would be relieved of $72,000 of their debt, and if the Board could get along until that time he did not think there would then be any opposition to it.

Mr. KENDRY re-iterated his opinion that the town could not spend the money now, and that a four-room addition would do for the present.

Mr. DAWSON asked, if the new four-room building was put up on McDonel street, and fenced off, would that not do away with the annoyance caused by the mingling of the smaller children with the larger ones, which the Inspector complained of so greatly. He felt sure would not carry now; it might in a couple of years.

Mr. MELDRUM expressed his views. The expenditure of five or six thousand dollars now in making an addition to the public school would be money thrown away. He thought it better to make arrangements for a couple of rooms in another building and not go to the expense of putting up a new one, when a new Institute would have to be erected in the course of a year or two, when the town would be better able to undertake it.

Mr. KENDRY held that any rooms built would not be lost. They would all be required in any event.

Mr. DAWSON did not think Fitzgerald & Stanger's building could be fitted up less than $500 and it was not at all suitable.

Mr. FESSENDEN, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, and Mr. Smith Principal of the Central school, expressed the opinion that the new 4 room building ought to face McDonel, and if all the smaller children were placed in it and the building fenced off, a great deal of noise would be avoided. By joining it to the present public school building and erecting a fence between it and the Collegiate Institute, the same result might be gained, though it might not be as satisfactory.

A desultory discussion followed as to the size and probable cost of the new building. Mr. Hamilton favored a six room addition, which would cost about $8,000.

Mr. DEANE said they would find it would cost $9,000, and they might as well spend $20 000 for a new Institute.

Mr. LANGFORD did not think a $20,000 building would do for Peterborough.

Mr. DUMBLE objected to the proposed plan. The Board would be making all the improvements to the public school to the neglect of the Institute. Besides if the addition were built to the public school it would be massing too many children in one building. He did not think it wise to spend $8 000 when a new Institute would be required in a few years.

TAKE A PLEBISCITE.

Mr. CAHILL suggested putting the two proposals before the people to vote upon. They would have to vote upon the question at any rate. Mr. Cahill said he realized the necessity for better school accommodation. The rooms he had visited before the meeting began were not fit for teachers or children to occupy. He thought money for a building on McDonel street would be partly thrown away. Would it not be better to take hold of the broader scheme at once? It would take a couple of years to complete a new Institute building, and the issuing of the bonds next year would add very little to the town's debt. Mr. Cahill said he had changed his views regarding education in the last few years, and now thought the broader scheme the best one. But as there were difficulties in the way of cash, put the matter to vote and let the people decide.

Mr. HAMILTON believed the extra rooms were necessary at once. Build these now, and in the meantime put the other question before the people, and get the Institute as soon as possible.

Mr. DUMBLE wrote out a resolution embodying the two schemes, and asking for $35,000 for Institute purposes, but the councillors holding that a by-law in that shape would not carry, the resolution was divided, on the understanding that the people were to be asked at once for money for a Public School addition, the Institute scheme to be submitted later. The motion was:—

Moved by Mr. HAMILTON, seconded by Mr. FERGUSON,—That with a view of providing for the urgent demand for increased Public School accommodation, four rooms be added to the small Public School on the Central School grounds, and that the Smead-Dowd system of heating be introduced into the entire building.—Carried.

Messrs. Ferguson, Bradburn, McBain, Boucher and Hamilton were appointed a committee to procure plans and specifications for the new addition, to be submitted to the Board at a special meeting.

The meeting then adjourned.

The Christian Alliance

The Convention Opened in Peterborough The First Days Proceedings.

The second Convention of the Christian Alliance held here, opened its first session in the hall adjoining the opera house, yesterday morning.

Dr. Zimmerman had the first hour, and spoke on "Clean Hand and Pure Hearts." Rev. Mr. Salmon followed, speaking from "Blessed are the Undefiled in the way." He was followed by Rev. Chas. Warren Ryder, the Evangelist and Superintendent of the Alliance, who gave a strong talk on Sanctification from the words "With Him is Plenteous Redemption." Rev. F. W. Farr, of Milford, Mass., then closed the morning session, speaking on "I will run in the way of Thy commandments when my heart is enlarged."

The afternoon session was opened by Rev. A. B. Simpson, president of the Alliance and of the New York Missionary Training College. The first hour was spent in answering questions, after which Mr. Simpson gave an address on the first eight chapters of Romans. He said that the book to the Romans was the best one published on sanctification. First "sin" is treated in chapters 1, 2 and part 3, and then "salvation" in 4 and 5, followed by "sanctification" in 6, 7 and 8. The large gathering was many times spellbound as this God-honoured man spoke of the fullness of blessing in his Master and of the unworthiness and weakness of His servants. This is noticeable in most of the speakers—that they try to lift up their Master and not themselves.

Rev. Mr. Farr again addressed the meeting and made an eloquent and stirring appeal to the people.

The next speaker was Mrs. E. M. Whitemore, of New York "slum work" fame. She is a talented and sweet speaker, and many hearts were stirred and many eyes moistened as she spoke of the healing of her body and her consecration to Jesus. She is used very much in the rescue of fallen women in New York, both of the higher and lower class.

THE EVENING MEETING.

In the evening the front half of the Opera House was well filled with an attentive audience, representing nearly all the churches.

The proceedings began with devotional exercises, consisting largely of hearty singing. The singing was accompanied by the piano, played by Miss Shepherd, and the cornet, played by Rev. F. L. Farr.

The first address was a Bible reading by Rev. A. B. Simpson, a thin, sallow, intellectual, student-looking man. The subject he dealt with was Consecration, its nature and effects. He warned those who might come into this blessing to beware of being uplifted into boasting of their own goodness. His hearers were urged each to do the full share of his or her work, according to the talents God has given. No person had a right to be a Christian, who had not some definite aim in working for Christ. Consecration made the possessor of it loving in character and manner. Business men could take it into their business and ennoble it. Consecration made a happy, glorious Christian with a face set against gloom, a patient, trusting Christian—one who can love his enemies. Lack of love often kept Christians back from the fulness of Christ. Overcome evil with good; let the light in and the darkness will flee away.

Rev. F. L. Farr followed with an address founded on the words in Exodus, "Go forward." The speaker introduced his subject in rather a flowery agglomeration of words, delivered in a decidedly declamatory manner. He criticized the apologetic style of preaching that too largely prevailed to-day. Obedience to Divine commands was obligatory; hesitation was disobedience. The message "Go forward," appealed to every Christian. The devil, the preacher said, had dragged the churches with pride to such an extent that many members did not seem to believe that there was a promised land. They were simply "marking time" in the Christian march. Too many were simply "dragging on behind" the Gospel chariot. God, the speaker said, would take no man by the collar and drag him into the Kingdom, but he must "go forward" himself. Scathing reference was made to those who were skulking like chicken-hearted cowards in the rear, and they were urged to come out boldly and press forward.

Mrs. Whittimore, of New York, a young lady dressed in gray silk, with a modest bonnet crowning her pleasant face, gave an address, prefacing it with an earnest exhortation to sinners to come to Christ, upon the subject of her work in the slums of New York. She showed how God had given her grace to stand the terrible repulsive and loathsome scenes she encountered in her work. It was necessary to assume a dress as much like as possible to that of the wretched people visited. She entered into graphic details of her work and told how Gods, in answer to faith, had given her a home for fallen girls—"The Door of Hope." Mrs. Whittimore left for New York last night. A meeting will be held to-morrow afternoon, after the usual services, to organize a young ladies' Christian league.

Beautiful Ladies' Hats.

Or more strictly speaking, ladies' beautiful hats, a term which conveys as good an idea as possible without seeing them, of the splendid lot of 200 fine hats, including the very latest thing in dress hats, secured by Miss Delaney while in Toronto, from where she has just returned. These hats are the cream of the summer hats, dainty, stylish and, what is not at all an objection, at very moderate prices—far below the usual figures. This lot is specially worthy the attention of ladies who want beautiful stylish dress hats. Miss Delaney also secured an abundant supply of magnificent flowers, which are in great demand. Attention is called also to her very large supply of sun hats ranging in price from five cents upward. Ladies should lose no time in inspecting this new and beautiful stock.

The Electric Health Shoe.

Mr. Jas. T. Stenson, the veteran boot and shoe merchant, who has just removed his business to 364 George street, next Ormond & Walsh's drug store, has been appointed agent here for the Electric Health Shoe, a new invention which has just been put upon the market. These shoes are supplied with a gentle current of electricity, by means of a battery in the sole, and it is claimed the electro-magnetism creates a lively circulation through the whole body, keeps the feet warm and dry, and protects the human system from the deadly chills which cause sickness. The electric shoe has received many testimonials from those who have used them. These shoes cost no more than any other kind, and wear quite as well. Mr. Stenson is the agent in Peterborough and calls special attention to this line of his large stock of boots and shoes, which are being cleared off at greatly reduced prices during the summer months. d134

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning, sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of RAW, Bleeding Sores—Hirsutura Cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two hands sores and hands in the same condition; a body, around the waist of which was a bandage made of bleeding scruptures, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely nothing attaching to the sight. Such Miss H. A. Shutt to me:—"I have tried every thing suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Ev ery night I had to bandage her all over and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said that he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe that she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist, Dewitt, Ia., or to J. THE PREMIER'S FUNERAL

THE CEREMONIES INAUGURATED AT NATIONAL CAPITAL.

The Immense Crowds Necessitates Considerable Delay—The Remains are Further Exposed and are Then Removed to St. Alban's Church—Sent By Special Train to Kingston.

OTTAWA, June 10.—The mortal remains of the late Sir John A. Macdonald were borne another step to their long resting place to-day. The body lay in state in the Senate Chamber all morning. Thousands from all parts of Canada viewed those well-known features for the last time. Ottawa itself was in mourning. Business was practically suspended. Stores, dwellings and public buildings in all parts of the city were draped in mourning. At noon, the casket was closed and preparation for the funeral procession was made. Col. Sir Casimir Gzowski, A.D.C. to the Queen, laid upon the coffin a magnificent wreath at the request of Her Majesty. Shortly after noon the funeral procession was formed. It proceeded from the eastern gate of the grounds by way of Elgin, Maria, Theodore, King and Daly-streets to St. Alban's Church, where the funeral service of the Church of England was performed. The procession took precisely half an hour to pass a given point. An immense throng gathered to see the cortege wend its way to the church. The streets along the route were packed and buildings and offices were crowded. Returning, the procession proceeded along Daly, Sumberland, Rideau, Wellington and Queen-street west to the C.P.R. depot.

For the greater part of the day it had been oppressively hot, but about three o'clock a change came. The sky became rapidly darker. Immense black clouds rolled up. Just as the head of the procession passed the main entrance to the Parliament buildings the rain began to fall. A terrific peal of thunder was heard and the spectators scattered in all directions. Those who remained in the procession were thoroughly drenched.

The cortege started in this order:

1. Major Sherwood, Chief Marshal.
2. Squad of Dominion Police.
3. Squad of dragoon guards, four abreast.
4. Carriages for the pallbearers.
5. Six hearses chosen from the Dominion Police.
6. Band of Governor-General's Foot Guards.
7. Band of 43rd Battalion.
8. Militia officers in uniform.
9. General Herbert and Capt. Streatfeild, A.D.C.
10. Two cars of floral tributes.
11. The undertakers, S. Rogers & Son.
12. The hearse drawn by four horses.
13. The pallbearers:

Among the militia officers were Major Delamere, Major Sankey, Capt. Murray, Capt. Macdonald of the Queen's Own, Lieut. Ewart of the Royal Grenadiers.

As the funeral cortege entered the sacred edifice it was met at the door by the officiating clergy, Rev. J. J. Bogert and Archdeacon Lauder, each of whom wore a black cassock, white surplices and a green stole. The surpliced choir, 40 in number, lined up the aisle and chanted the solemn sentences of the funera service. All that was mortal of the late Sir John Macdonald was borne into the church and up the centre aisle to the chancel, the casket being deposited on the catafalque. The rector said, "I am the resurrection and the life"; then the choir moved towards the altar, the organist playing Chopin's "Grand Funeral March." Next was sung the psalms, "I Said, I Will Take Heed in My Ways" and "Lord, Thou Hast Been Our Dwelling place in all Generations."

As Archdeacon Lauder, as Bishop's commissary, read the lessons the congregation was hushed to silence and listened with mournful attention. They were from I. Corinthians, xv. chapter. The choir then sang, "Now the Laborer's Task is Done." Then came the sentences according to the Anglican form, beginning with, "Man that is born of woman," followed by the anthem by Franz Abt, "Oh Lord, Most Holy," with responses by the choir. The solo was rendered by the youngest member of the choir, Master Robert Gormully, a lad of barely 11 years, who sang in a clear soprano tone the most difficult composition. The sentences were read by the Rev. J. T. Bogert, the choir rendering the responses in beautiful harmony. During the prayers the scene was most impressive and will long be remembered by all who were present. At the conclusion a seven-fold amen was rendered, and as the large audience left the building to allow of the cortege being formed the choir rendered a nunc dimittis. The six stalwart constables raised the casket to their shoulders and the tones of the organ pealed forth the Dead March in Saul, and the procession re-formed on its way to the Union depot.

The clergymen present and assisting in the choral service were Venerable Archdeacon Lauder, Venerable Archdeacon Jones of Kingston, Canon Ellegood of Montreal, Revs. Bogert, Garrett, Muckleston, Mackey, Pollard, Snowdon, Hannington, Nesbitt, King, Smith, Gorman. The commissary was omitted by Archdeacon Lauder at the service to-day, it being arranged that Archdeacon Jones shall pronounce it at the funeral in Kingston to-morrow.

The church was most artistically decorated. The massive stone sides of the memorial window in the chancel were one mass of roses, tulips, hyacinths and other flowers embedded in smilax. This window was the gift of Lady Macdonald in memory of her mother, Mrs. Louise Foucks Bernard, wife of ex-Governor Bernard of Jamaica, and represents the birth, crucifixion and ascension of Christ. The altar was set with bluish-purple hangings trimmed with white silk with two bouquets in gold vases standing at either end. The base of the altar was surrounded with rows of tropical ferns, palms and similar hot-house plants, rich in their dark colors, there being about 100 of them. On the side windows were four heavy wreaths of smilax. The two candelabra were also wreathed in smilax. Along the organ above each choir were long festoons of smilax with wreaths surrounding each gasalier. The reading desks were wrapped with bluish purple trimmings and wreaths of smilax, while the base of the chancel contained two rows of tropical plants. The pulpit was surrounded with purple velvet, in front of which drooped a banneret of the same shade with a centre of old gold bearing the Greek lexicon, under which the casket rested, clothed in Imperial purple, the four pillars being draped in the centre and around the outside of each embossed wreaths of laurel in bullion gold being entwined. The inside of each pillar was similarly treated with oak leaves and acorns. At the juncture of each pillar with the canopy there hung bannerets of purple and gold bearing a centre design of the Greek lexicon. The sides of the canopy were covered with a gold azure, the top of black crepe and the interior of pleated purple. At the base of each pillar were fine specimens of palms. The casket rested on mahogany pedestals in gold and black.

Sir John's seat during his lifetime was immediately in front of the reading desk in the second tier and contained neither cushion nor hassock, an indication of the dead Premier's religious tastes. To-day the seat was filled by a structure covered with purple and old gold festooned in front, a wreath of smilax on the entry side, and on top a superb cross fully two feet in size, composed of white and cream roses, tulips and immortelles, a gift from the young ladies of St. Alban's.

The font was filled with superb tropical plants of the Yucca palm and ferns, and adorned with lilies and smilax. The whole building presented an effective spectacle, touching in its sombre shades, but beautiful in all its floral loveliness.

Em barked for Kingston.

After the service, which lasted nearly an hour, the cortege re-formed and proceeded to the Union Station, where the remains were placed on a special train and borne to Kingston.

The funeral train consisted of one buffet car for representatives of the press, Government private cars "Ottawa" and "Cumberland," for Cabinet Ministers, Canadian Pacific car No. 417, specially fitted up for the remains; Canadian Pacific private car "Metapedia," for Lady Macdonald and family. All the cars were heavily draped.

Mr. John Ross Robertson of Toronto, Grand Master, Mr. Otto Klotz of Preston, Past Grand Master, and Col. A. Stevenson, Montreal, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons, represented that body, of which the late Sir John Macdonald was an old member. At the time of his death he was the representative of the Grand Lodge of England in the Grand Lodge of Canada.

The Canada Southern Railway was represented by Nicol Kingsmill, Harry Symons and S. R. Heson.

AT KINGSTON.

Notwithstanding the Late Hour Thousands Assemble at the Station.

KINGSTON, June 10.—Kingston is in gloom to-night. Its streets are bright with lights, but its buildings are black with crape and mourning emblems. Nearly every business man has hung out the weeds of woe. Thousands of people are out to view the solemn scene. Some of the work is most artistic. Many windows are in black, relieved by purple bunches and busts or pictures of Sir John. The hotels are crowded and housands are now en route from all quarters of the country. It was 10.25 o'clock when the funeral train rolled into the station in front of the City Hall. The great crowds grew silent while the police force carried the body of the dead chieftain across the way into the magnificently draped hall. Their burden was deposited under a catafalque in the entree of the building. The catafalque was supported on four posts, with a four-sided roof slanting down them. It is covered with selesia, trimmed with heavy folds of cashmere and has ostrich feathers on the four corners and surmounting the peak. The floor is covered with white canvas with black border, and long streams depend from the ceiling to the various corners and centre of the walls on the side and end. The effect of the light reflecting on the oil paintings and tinted walls sets off the dark surroundings to a remarkable degree. The walls are looped with black selesia dropping below the gilt frames of the ex-mayors and about the windows. Between each frame depends a tassel of the same material neatly finished. The doors are covered with black, while the same material is floated above them. the stage has two raised platforms covered, upon which rest the myriads of floral tributes brought from Ottawa. The life-size picture of the deceased Premier as he appeared in 1863 stands in the entree of the stage. It is entwined with black and beneath it the words, "Our late beloved Premier." The outside of the hall is elegantly draped from basement to dome.

The people uncovered their heads as the gravily covered coffin passed through the lines of "A" Battery men. The Cabinet members followed the body into the hall and the doors were closed. Soon after great streams of people viewed the remains. A guard of the Royal Military College was placed over the corpse and they were relieved at stated hours during the night. Great crowds are around the city and to-morrow will witness one of the greatest pageants this city has ever seen. Every arrangement is completed. From 8 o'clock until noon thousands of persons will view the body and at 2 o'clock the funeral occurs. It will be headed by cavalrymen 8 abreast. The guards on each side of the state lines will be composed of local forces in single file, the infantry men with arms reversed.

SIR WILLIAM MARRIED

CUMMING NOT MUCH PUT OUT BY THE TRIAL.

An American Girl Who Did Not Believe in the Guilt of the Baronet was Quietly Married to Him Yesterday—Comments of the London Press on the Verdict of the Jury.

LONDON, June 10.—All the world and his wife are talking of the verdict pronounced yesterday in the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, which verdict, in so many words, declares that Sir William Gordon Cumming, until now an "officer and a gentleman," is socially and militarily degraded for having cheated at cards in a game of baccarat played at Tranby Croft last September.

There is no getting away from the fact that Lord Coleridge's charge was dead against Cumming. Perhaps, considering the unanimity of the evidence, this could not have been otherwise, but Cumming's friends hoped Lord Coleridge would at least allow some portion of the airy structure of defence, which Sir Edward Clarke erected with such consummate skill, to stand. It was a vain hope, for Lord Coleridge demolished it with as much ease and as little compunction as a child in the nursery kicks over its house of toy-bricks. Cumming evidently saw from the outset how the stream was running. He lost for a few moments the air of easy composure which he had maintained throughout the trial, turned in his seat, looked steadily for several seconds at each member of the jury, then he shut his teeth, folded his arms and awaited his fate with the stoicism of a trained soldier.

If the talk of the jurors after leaving the court room is to be believed their minds were made up before Lord Coleridge began to say anything at all. His charge was a mere waste of time so far as influencing the verdict was concerned. On the first ballot every juror but one declared unhesitatingly for the defendants, and this one frankly admitted that he could scarcely give a verdict for the plaintiff in face of such evidence, but intimated that he would like to discover some way of letting Cumming down easy. The jury was out only 13 minutes.

A quite different reception awaited Solicitor Lewis and the defendants in the action. As they came from the court-room into the corridor the crowd hissed, hooted and hustled so menacingly that they all lodged into Justice North's court until arrangements could be made to get them out of the building without further annoyance. This was a small affair of itself, but it accurately represents the popular feeling over the degrading spectacle the Prince and his swell set have made of themselves in this case. Without attempting to shut their eyes to the evidence that Cumming cheated, they believe that the trap that the Prince and his associates subsequently laid for him was unsportsmanlike and unfriendly.

The feeling was shown in a marked manner at Ascot to-day, when the news reached there. By some blunder the first despatch received there said that the verdict was in Cumming's favor. When this news reached Tattersall's inclosure, all the sporting men cheered, especially the bookmakers who had put their money on this result or on a disagreement. A few minutes later, when the first report was corrected by a despatch stating that Cumming had lost his case, the jeers of the crowd were too plainly audible to the Prince as he chatted with his friends in the royal inclosure.

Now that the seal of silence is removed from the press and public, the Prince will soon learn what the people of England think of the part that royalty has played in this Tranby-Croft business. Already one religious body in Wales has pronounced its protest against the position in which the heir to the throne is revealed.

"Tay Pay" As a Moralist.

T. P. O'Connor leads off, for the democratic press, with the following strong language in his new newspaper:

"It is not, of course, this mere single game in one country-house that accounts for the feeling of dismay in some circles, of disgust in others, which this case is exciting. It is that this small incident is a symptom—sidelight into the whole region of darkness. Beyond doubt the society of London is not improving; on the contrary, it is deteriorating, and deteriorating more every day. Gambling is more rampant; adventurers with money gained heaven knows how, find easier acceptance and more social distinction. Wealth is not only getting more vulgar but more potent, and finally there is a profound change in the way in which society in the upper classes, or in the middle classes that are trying to reach the upper crust, looks at some of the worst breaches of private morality. It really does look as if we were coming to a reign of adventurers and adventuresses in London. There will always be vice; there will always be folly; young men will ruin themselves at the card table; their elders will take advantage of their youth and of their inexperience; society will always be ready to welcome to its drawing-room the same kind of woman that, in other circles and under different circumstances, is sent to the pavement and ends in the river. But all these things in such a country as England depend very much on the example set by those on the throne and close to it."

England's Degradation.

"It is a sad confession to have to make, but undoubtedly it is true that servility to royalty has reached a pitch in England that is a degradation to the country and that marks us out among all people of the world as a nation of snobs, toadies and tuft-hunters. We see ladies of the highest station ready to perform for the Queen duties that should be left to cooks and chamber-maids. Our most venerated statesmen, in the evening of their days, are compelled to make long journeys for the purpose of going through empty formalities, and the Sovereign is considered justified in drawing the most magnificent Civil List in the whole world and at the same time neglecting nearly every duty of sovereignty. Of late years the Prince of Wales has succeeded in establishing over social London a despotism, the completeness of which nobody outside society can fully appreciate, and it is not a despotism for the good. He seems to surround himself, by preference, not with the best but with the weakest elements of society.

"It is time some one should call attention to the moral deterioration which is coming over London and English society as a result. We live in days when even crowns and dynasties are not above discussion and are not safe from destruction. The springtides of popular revolt have carried on their wreckage before now—the tinsel, the paste, the shattered woodwork of thrones—and the end and disaster always came suddenly from a slight cause, a petty tax, a diamond necklace, perchance a game at baccarat."

The Post says: "We do not desire to add to the anguish over the sad ending of a brilliant career, but the fact remains that the signing of the document rendered it impossible for eminent and dexterous counsel to rehabilitate the honor which Cumming himself treated so lightly. Lord Coleridge took a just aspect of the Prince of Wales' connection and of the morality of baccarat. We think the whole party displayed a want of clearheadedness of they would not have created difficulty by playing the second night."

The News says: "It was really second to the affair of the diamond necklace, the accusation being secondary in importance to its surroundings. In our judgment no other verdict was possible. Cumming's signing of the paper was damning. The public disappointment is due, not to dissatisfaction, but to the inadequateness of the verdict to meet the varied aspects of the scandal. The Prince of Wales failed in the middle course he adopted, but it has yet to be proved that his attempt was more than a grave indiscretion. The pity of it all is not there, but in the presence of the heir to the throne at the head of the baccarat table. The Prince is bound to a pure, simple and cleanly life as an example to his future subjects. Woe to a monarchy when it can no longer perform what may fairly be called its last surviving use. It is grotesque to have a Prince carrying about baccarat counters wherever he goes as a Mahommedan carries his praying carpet."

The Telegraph pays a tribute to the dignity, tact and sound judgment of the court, and urges that pity be mingled with condemnation over the miserable end of a brilliant career. The Telegraph warmly defends the Prince of Wales against everything but indiscretion and great error of judgment. From a military point of view it says the signing of the paper was a condonation; but the error was prompted by such an obvious leniency and kindness of heart that his generous and true-hearted countrymen will speedily forgive and forget.

Commenting on the result of the baccarat trial The Chronicle condemns the jury's finding and the partiality of Chief Justice Coleridge, and says there is no evidence inconsistent with the hypothesis that Cumming merely played the well-known coup de trois. The Chronicle says that the verdict means, according to the jury, that Cumming deliberately courted his illustrious but impecunious friend by a trick requiring long and tiresome years of practice to acquire.

The paper asks what steps will be taken to vindicate justice in regard to the crime which the Prince compounded by signing a compact with Cumming, or whether the scandal will be forever hushed up.

The other papers express the belief that no other verdict could have been given on the evidence. The Sun says it is a pity the Prince of Wales was at the gaming table and that he should show a cleanly life to his future subjects. The Times regrets the connection of the Prince with the affair and The Standard says the defendants are somewhat tarnished.

The flat assertion made by The Daily Chronicle, that until the Prince of Wales swears on oath as "his confederates" did that he (the Prince) did not violate the solemn pledge he gave to Sir William Gordon Cumming, the heir-apparent rests under an imputation of dishonor quite as shameful as that which the jury put upon Sir William Gordon Cumming, reflects the general feeling.

LONDON, June 10.—Sir William Gordon Cumming was married at 11 o'clock this morning at Holy Trinity Church at Chelsea to Miss Florence Garner, daugiter of the late Commodore William Garner of New York. Lord Thurlow gave the bride away. Major Venry Dawson of the Coldstream Guards was the best man. Rev. Robert Erton officiated. The marriage was practically a secret one. Only 12 persons were present at the ceremony. The bride looked charmingly happy and Sir William was proud-looking, cool and entirely self-possessed. There was no trace in his personal appearance of depression and commotion resulting from yesterday's verdict in the Court of Queen's Bench. Lady and Sir William Gordon Cumming left this city shortly after the ceremony for the bridegroom's estate at Altyre, near Forres, Scotland, where they will spend the honeymoon.

Resigned From His Clubs.

LONDON, June 10.—Sir William Gordon Cumming has resigned from all his clubs. The costs taxed against him amount to £5080.

What Does it Mean?

"100 doses one dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses and will average to last a month, while other preparations, taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier.

SUN LIFE
ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6.04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$64 824 07

The Future Tory Leader.

Dr. Douglass Enters a Protest.

BRANTFORD, June 9.—The Niagara Conference opened at 9 30 a.m. with the usual religious exercises. The minutes of the last session were read and approved. The Rev. Geo. Douglass, LL.D., the venerable principal of the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal, with enfeebled step ascended the platform and received an ovation from the conference. After reference to the work of the college under his care he proceeded to pay tribute to the memory of the late Premier of the Dominion. Continuing, he said:—"I look at the great providence which has come to this nation in the death of the Right Hon. Sir John Macdonald. I differed from him on many questions. His genius was great, his abilities unquestioned, and his patriotism, as he conceived it, was undoubted. But if what I hear be true—that there is to be called to the head of the Government of this country a man, of North of Ireland Methodist parents, who at one time taught in a Methodist Sunday School, but who under peculiar social circumstances forsook the faith of his fathers and went into the Church of Rome and threw himself into the arms of the extreme section of that church; made league with the Jesuits and sent his sons to be educated in their colleges; and who is opposed to the legislation of your brethren in Manitoba, and seeks to impose on the Western Provinces a system of Separate Schools; if what I hear be true we must protest as well as pray. I look upon this possible appointment with great dismay." (Applause.) "I am not a party man. I have struck right and left as you know and shall continue to do so. It is time for us who are not party men to lift up our voice and protest against the Government of this country being passed into the hands of such a man." Renewed applause.)

Norwood.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A team representing the Norwood Junior Lacrosse Club went to Hastings on Saturday and crossed sticks with the youths of that village. Play continued for an hour and a half, resulting in a victory for the Norwood boys by two goals to none. There were some periods of really brilliant play and altogether the match was a good one. The wielders were Alex. Fraser, W. Cope, Fred and Bert Hendren, O. Hill, J. Fraser, J. Williams, Harry and Herb Stephenson, Chas. Pearce, A. Anderson and H. McLeary; M. Fred Stephenson acted as field captain, and Mr. T. Fraser fulfilled this duty for Hastings.

The Cosgrove Company played here on Friday and Saturday nights and on both occasions were greeted with good houses. The four members of the Cosgrove family furnished the musical part of the programme, while the Ross sisters, Belle and Mabel, delighted the audience by their excellent rendering of the Sailor's Hornpipe, Highland Fling, Irish Washer-woman and Shaun Tarew. The entertainment was one of the best of the season, and will be well received when again in town.

To-day (Wednesday), June 10th, is an interesting day for a young couple of the village. The occasion is the marriage of Mr. Wm. Rutherford, druggist, to Miss Edith Stephenson, daughter of Mrs. James Stephenson, of this place. The ceremony took place at the bride's home, and the happy couple left on the noon train for their wedding tour. We extend our congratulation to Mr. Rutherford and wish his bride much happiness.

A Railroad Across the Great Desert.

French scientific men and engineers are discussing the feasibility of a railroad across the desert of Sahara to develop the North African provinces that France holds. A more wonderful triumph of skill, and one more far-reaching in its benefits than any Sahara railway can be, has been the introduction of that great remedy, Paine's Celery Compound—nature's great bridge or highway for the safe passage of humanity from the shores of sickness and disease, to the land of health, joy and peace. By this triumph of medical skill the victims of nervous disorders, clouded brain, insomnia, headaches, neuralgia, dyspepsia, rheumatism, and morbidness, are enabled to shake off the nightmare grasp of disease, and cross over to a new state and condition of perfect health, robustness, perfect digestive vigor, and long life.

Sufferers who have not yet tried this justly popular and well known bridge of escape, are warned not to tarry too long in the land of uncertainty and suffering; else their condition may become so hopeless, that no earthly power will be able to rescue.

Canadian Foresters.

The twelfth annual meeting of the High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters, opened Tuesday afternoon in Victoria Hall, Toronto, with High Chief Ranger Edward Lowe, London, in the chair. A deputation from the Reception Committee visited the Court and welcomed the 232 delegates to the city. After the various committees were appointed, and several notices of motion for amendments to the constitution were referred to a special committee, the High Chief Ranger delivered his address. He pointed out that during the past year 69 new courts had been established, making a total membership of 12,514, or an increase of 2,232 over the previous year. The increase in the reserve fund during the past year is $36,419.65. During the year 62 District Deputy High Chief Rangers were appointed, and cheques were issued in payment of 58 claims within an average of ten days from the date at which the claim papers had been received. During the past year 3,558 endowment certificates had been issued, and 287 were endorsed and duplicated. In addition to this some hundreds of membership certificates had been issued. The receipts on account of the endowment fund amounted to $95,419 65 and now the grand total of receipts to the credit of this fund, after the payment of claims, is $204,433 65. The balance of receipts on the general fund amounts to $2,876 32.

The Progress of Science.

The progress of science during the past few years has been so great that we look almost with anxiety to what the future may have in store. The medical science alone has developed wonders sufficient to startle the world; but perhaps no other discovery in the medical world has created so great a stir or been productive of so much good as Beecham's Pills. Sold by druggists generally. B. F. Ayer's Hair Vigor

IS the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken; and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—P. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for a dressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," McArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

KING MILAN AND WIFE.

EX-QUEEN NATALIE EXPELLED FROM THE SERVIAN COURT.

The Decision of the Servian Ministers and How it Was Carried Out—The Causes Which Led to the Separation of the King and Queen.

After a consultation of the Servian ministers on the 19th May, it was decided, coute qui coute, to expel Natalie from Servia, and instructions to that effect were given to the police. During the morning a strong force of gendarmes made an attack upon the queen's palace and succeeded in entering. The gendarmes then forced their way into Natalie's bedroom and summoned her to arise, informing her that she must instantly leave Servain territory. The queen calmly replied that she would yield to force, and requested the students to make no further resistance. The queen was then allowed to dress, and after bidding adieu to her defenders, during which a most touching scene was witnessed, the exiled queen was escorted to a carriage and hastily driven to the railroad station, followed by the cheers of the students and citizens, whose enthusiasm had to be kept within bounds by the display of an overwhelming force of troops who lined the entire route. At the station a special train was in waiting, and the queen was immediately conveyed on board. No sooner was the queen and her personal baggage on board than the train left for the Hungarian frontier, and Natalie of Servia calm and pale, but evidently suffering from intense emotion, left Belgrade, the scene of so many of her troubles and triumphs. The popularity of the exiled queen has been greatly increased by the recent action of the authorities, and the popularity of the ministry has decreased in proportion. During the fight that night one man was killed and 50 wounded. The ex-Queen Natalie of Servia arrived at Semlin, Hungary, the same day.

EX-QUEEN NATALIE OF SERVIA.

The causes which led to the separation of the King and Queen, and to the latter's final expulsion from Servia, are sensational in the highest degree. Two years ago King Milan abdicated, but not before he had succeeded in dissolving a marriage which had long been irksome. His is by no means the only divorce of a king in France alone thirteen monarchs have broken the ties of matrimony, and among them are such names as Charlemagne, Philippe Auguste, Louis XII., and Henri IV. It is therefore not the fact but the manner of the dissolution of the marriage which has exposed the Servian royal couple to censure. The Queen has, ever since the promulgation of the decree, wandered restlessly from country to country, from empire to republic, canvassing for support, or at least for sympathy, covering reams of paper in endless memorials and ardent pleadings, fed day by day by some fresh incident important only to herself. King Milan is less verbose with tongue and pen, but he is not improved since he exchanged royal and marital duties for private life and liberty. His once fine figure has grown heavy, his features now are coarse, his step slow, and though he shows himself constantly at all the Parisian clubs, theatres, and places of amusement, frequents the Boulevards and follows the fashions like a young man, yet he looks fully fifty years old at the age of forty. Paris is indeed like a second home to him, for he was educated at the Lycee Louis le Grand, where he had not completed his studies when he was summoned to assume the crown of Servia, left vacant by the murder of his uncle, holding it like his predecessor, with the assent of the Sultan. He chose for his wife a beautiful woman of noble birth, but without a drop of royal blood in her veins, although she was possessed of a right royal will, a domineering disposition, and unlimited ambition. She thought that when her consort exchanged the title of Prince for that of King her dreams of power were realized, forgetting that at Belgrade, as in all the East, women always hold an inferior rank, and that the Servian Constitution precluded them from reigning, or even exercising the functions of Regent. Almost from the first the conjugal relations of the pair were wanting in harmony; the husband did not choose to give an account of his actions and objected to being too closely watched; the wife, jealous as much from pride as from affection, galled him by her suspicions and wearied him by constant scenes of reproach, fatally alienating the fickle love of a man naturally disposed to infidelity and finding adulation elsewhere. For a while the Bulgarian war, so recklessly begun by a monarch not wanting, however, in intelligence and common sense, diverted the Queen from her domestic troubles; but the decisive and fatal defeat sustained by her husband, lamentably ending a campaign so ostentatiously commenced, embittered his wife, compromised his position, and diminished his prestige. A clever and intriguing woman seized the opportunity of ingratiating herself with the mortified sovereign, and soothed him with judicious and adroit flattery, wreaning him still more from the contemptuous Natalie; he resolved to abdicate, but not before freeing himself by a divorce. At this juncture a disagreement more serious than any former one broke out between the couple with regard to the education of their only son; the mother insisting that he should not leave Belgrade, the father declaring that he should pursue his studies abroad. At last a compromise was affected; Prince Alexander would begin his education in Germany, either at the end of '87, or the beginning of '88, and till then he would be allowed to reside with his mother in Italy or the south of France. Accordingly the Queen and her son spent the winter of 1887-88 in Florence, the early part of the spring near Vienna, and what thence to Wiesbaden. While there Natalie requested to be permitted to return to Belgrade, and during her stay in her old capital to make arrangements respecting the German school, to which her son was to be sent. It was then that King Milan abruptly unattached batteries, and losing all reticence, wrote to his wife that "the reciprocal aversion existing between them, manifest at every opportunity, necessitated the immediate dissolution of their marriage." This letter, it will be remembered was conveyed to the Queen at Wiesbaden by a messenger empowered to carry off the Prince Royal if his mother refused to sign the deed presented to her and insisted upon returning to Belgrade. The Queen refused to sign, announced her formal intention of being reinstated in all her rights, and the Prince was taken.

Henceforth the King, hastened the public and legal formalities of his divorce, but he was confronted by serious difficulties. The act was, according to the established laws illegal, and especially the religious authorities strongly objected to it. The King somehow contrived to overrule his opponents, and at last persuaded the Metropolitan of Servia to give his sanction, in defiance of precedent. The abdication soon followed on the divorce, and on the 2nd of February, 1889, Prince Alexander was crowned King of Servia in place of his father. One of the clauses of the act of abdication stipulated that the divorced wife should neither directly nor indirectly have any influence whatever on the new sovereign. From that moment Natalie has never ceased to strain every nerve in order to compel her reunion to her son. She wants to see him unconditionally, and to reverse the decision against her but she sets to work in the best possible way to injure her cause and alienate her friends, for she attacks her enemies, and those who do not entirely agree with her in the same words of violent and indiscriminate objurgation.

The extreme measures resorted to, however, by the Servian Ministers have but increased her popularity, and her friends stand patriotically by her, the students especially. Natalie's apartment at Semlin was filled with floral tributes and a silver wreath was presented to her. The burden of her remarks to the visitors, deputations of students and others was the welfare of her son. To the students she said: "Oh, if you noble youths could watch over the safety and purity of my son! Remember he is your king! Protect him if in need!" Before boarding the steamer she kissed all the women who were near enough to her. The students kissed her hands and hair. By orders from the Austrian Government the steamer traversed a deserted arm of the Danube in order to avoid passing the quay at Belgrade, where thousands of persons had assembled to bid Natalie farewell. Many Servian police were aboard the steamer to prevent the landing of the ex-Queen in Servia.

Unparalleled Butcheries in Port-au-Prince

NEW YORK, June 8.—A despatch from Port-au-Prince says rumors of a revolution against President Hypolite having reached the ears of the chief executive he caused the arrest of about 80 suspected persons. Thursday, May 8 (Corpus Christi), was the national holiday, and it having been reported that Hypolite in order to effectively terrify the populace, had ordered a gatling gun to be taken to the prison and the 80 persons summarily executed, the friends of the prisoners organized and freed all the prisoners, 250 in all. Then by order of the president began a shocking assassination. Between 40 and 50 citizens in all were shot down.

Archbishop Dennisen's Famous Toast.

"Here's health to all that we love,
Here's health to all that love us,
Here's health to all those that love them,
That love those that love them
That love us."

Do you notice what a large circle this wish for health includes? and will you notice the reference is not to the wine-cup, but to a standard medicine, the "Golden Medical Discovery," that can bring health to the large number of friends we each love. True, it is not a "beverage," and does not inebriate, but is a health-giving medicine, a blood purifier, liver invigorator and general tonic—a remedy for billiousness, indigestion, and stomach troubles. It cures consumption, in its early stages, scrofula, bronchitis, and throat diseases. a

A telling testimony to the excellence of the work turned out of Mr. A. Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. It comprises lacrosse match, bicycle races, athletic sports, grand horse races, baseball match, and other sports during the day. In the evening there will be a grand promenade concert, etc. We would strongly advise our readers to make their arrangements to spend Dominion Day in Port Hope. The programme there is always fully carried out. Special railway rates and special trains after the evening programme is over. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. E. BRAMISH, secretary of committee. dw

The Picnic! The Great Picnic!

The picnic of the season! Already the soil has been prepared and the walks and beautifully shaded groves of the St. Joseph's Hospital grounds in Ashburnham bear an inviting appearance. We understand that two of our best local baseball clubs are practising hard, both eager to win in the great game which will take place on that date. Booths are being erected where "lemonade as cold as ice, and twice as nice, and ice cream nicer still," will be vended out to the thirsty and temperate public. We can only repeat it make no other engagement until you see the programme of the Cathedral Picnic on the 1st of July.

PAIN from indigestion, dyspepsia and too hearty eating, is relieved at once by taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this. dw

One Day's Outings.

Peterborough by accident hit upon the 11th of June for an epidemic of outing.

The Foresters' excursion by the C.P.R. to Toronto was very ably attended, fifteen being the outside number of excursionists who took train this morning.

The steamer "Golden Eye" took quite a company of farmers, farmers' wives, farmers daughters and farmers friends down the river this morning to Idyl Wild to attend the annual union picnic of the United Farmers' Institutes.

There were about 250 happy St. Paul's Sunday School children and their friends in the five coaches that rolled out of the station this morning for Chemong Park where the annual picnic is to be held and doubtless enjoyed.

The marvellously cheap prices are attracting an endless stream of buyers, but the stock is so large the strain has scarcely been felt as yet. Don't miss this opportunity to buy cheap wall paper. People who never thought of it before are decorating their homes with nobby paper from the Peterborough Bookstore. They can afford to do it and never feel the expense, our prices are so low. There are 40,000 to 50,000 rolls of wall paper to select from, of all styles and qualities. The sale will last only about thirty days. Don't delay too long. The best bargains are being picked up every day. J. R. STRATTON. 2d134-1w

When a Person

Hears of an excursion to a desirable locality he always asks himself the questions: Can I go? Can I spare the money? and what advantages will accrue from attending? Ask yourself these questions in regard to the excursion of the Library Committee of the Charlotte street Methodist church to Stony Lake, and what will be the answers? Listen! I can go because it is being held on July 1st, Dominion Day, a public holiday. I can afford it, as all it costs is 90c. for round trip, tea and hot water provided, as cheap a way as I can "put in" the day; and as to the benefits they are so numerous that it would be impossible to enumerate them all here, but will simply mention the recreation to the body of relaxation of the strain upon the mind; the forming of new ties and associations from which who can tell the friendships, benefits and blessings that will follow, and the absolute guarantee that there will be none of that overcrowding which is such a distressing feature of most picnics. As the committee have limited the number of tickets to be sold, see to it that you are "in it" by securing your tickets at once. To be had from the committee—W. Hamilton, G. W. Morrow, W. Squires and T. Barrie.

County Court and General Sessions.

Conclusion of the Business—Presentment of the Grand Jury.

The business of the Court was resumed yesterday afternoon, and the case of the Queen vs. Coulter and Thomas Humphries, the Galway citizens charged with burglary completed. The accused were defended by Mr. W. A. Stratton, and the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

John Gilman, jr., against whom a true bill for seduction has been found by the Grand Jury, did not appear in court, and it is understood that the climate of the United States has considerable attraction for him at present.

The following is the presentment of the Grand Jury:

To His Honor Judge Weller:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOR,—The Grand Jury desire to thank your Honor for your explanations regarding the cases that were to come before us, as they have been of great assistance to us in the performance of our duty.

We visited, as is customary, the gaol and inspected the premises. They were in excellent order throughout and reflect credit on the gaol management.

We regretted to see persons whose only crimes were age and poverty confined in the prison, and we would urge upon the Town and County Councils the necessity for securing a proper place for such unfortunate people.

We, with your Honor and the people of Canada generally, deeply regret the death of the Premier of our Dominion, as we feel that the death of any of our leading men is a deep loss to the country, and this is especially so when the one called away has been so long connected with the councils of the country, so pre-eminent among our legislators, so distinguished by myriad abilities and was one who had served his country so faithfully.

The Funeral of the Premier.

Signs of Mourning and Marks of Respect.

A considerable number of our citizens went to Kingston by G.T.R. train last night to attend the funeral of the Premier which took place there this afternoon, and a considerable number more went down on the midnight C.P.R. express. This train consisted of eleven largely laden coaches.

In town many flags that had not been used earlier were placed at half-mast and many of the merchants' shops showed signs of mourning. Mr. Geo. W. Rutledge was the pioneer, having had a crape framed portrait adorning his window since last Saturday. Mr. W. Salisbury was next with a life-size bust of Sir John, with a black background, further relieved with flags. Mills Bros. hat store had a bronze life-size bust of the Premier, backed with black velvet, behind which again were pots of blooming white campanula. Mr. J. W. Butcher had in his window a draped portrait of the dead Premier. The south show window of Mr. Robt Fair's store was draped in black, and relieved with purple. In the middle stood an easel bearing a crape framed portrait of Sir John, and flanked by broken pillars of white cashmere. Mr. J. J. Sheehy's shop window contained perhaps one of the neatest displays of mourning made in the town. The floor of the window was occupied by a pyramidal platform of dead black bunting, upon the apex of which rested the pedestal of one of Hebert's famous statuette of the Old Chieftain. The whole window was draped in black, relieved with white, in a very tasteful manner. The gasalier was swathed in black, and streamers of black bunting draped the pillars on each side of the door. Mr. Sheehy's window attracted great admiration, and for the excellent taste displayed it deserved all the lavish praise it received. Mr. O. C. Rowse's window was also very tastefully dressed with mourning emblems, surrounding and forming a background to the portrait of Sir John. Messrs. Reowles & Son had also a very tastefully decorated window, completed, of course, by a portrait of the dead Premier. Mr. T. Kelly's dry goods store was hung outside with festoons of black bunting, and the front of the Review office was similarly hung. The front of the office of Mr. Stevenson, M.P., was hung with festoons of black bunting, interwoven with the Union Jack. Mr. Alex Elliott's shop windows held two portraits of Sir John draped in black. After the arrival of the city papers several shops displayed the rather gruesome portrait of the Premier published by the Empire.

At one o'clock the town bells in the tower of the town hall and of the post office began to toll, and from two to four the shops were closed and business suspended to a greater or less degree.

Christian Alliance Convention

Second Days' Meetings—Good Attendance —Much Interest Exhibited.

THE MORNING MEETING.

The second days' proceedings of the Christian Alliance convention commenced yesterday morning, Rev. Mr. Ryder leading in a prayer and testimony meeting. There were some striking testimonies, one man saying that he would not have risen up the day previously for one hundred dollars.

About ten o'clock Rev. Mr. Simpson took the meeting, and Rev. Mr. Salmon was the first speaker. He spoke from Jer. xvii. 7, 8 Rev. F. W. Farr followed, announcing his subject as "The zero of human nature according to Scripture." The forenoon session closed by Mrs. Simpson giving a personal testimony. The addresses are interspersed with lively new hymns, led by Miss F. L. Shepard.

THE AFTERNOON MEETING.

The first hour and a half of the afternoon was occupied in answering questions. This was considered by some as one of the best hours of the convention so far. The questions touched more on the doctrine of healing than the day before, although very little had been said up to this time about the subject, as the speakers say they do not put it in the foreground, but they say first get right spiritually, and then healing will be an easy matter. A good deal of light was given, and the work of the Alliance will probably be better understood. Rev. Mr. Simpson also spoke of how he had himself been gradually led out into the work in which he is now engaged. Miss Lindenberger, the deaconess of Bethshah Home, New York, next spoke of how she had been led into the work, and carried all hearts as she told with radiant face of the goodness of the Lord to her.

Rev. Mr. Ryder was the last speaker of the afternoon, and referred mostly to his own experience. He spoke of his salvation, sanctification and healing of paralysis, spinal and heart disease. There is a good attendance at the forenoon and afternoon sessions, and people are present from the surrounding towns and villages.

THE EVENING MEETING.

There was a better attendance last night than at the previous evening meeting of Convention.

The usual devotional exercises were then followed by the addresses of the special speakers.

Rev. F. W. FARR appeared in quite a different role from that filled by him the previous night. He was less declamatory and more earnest. He gave a very fine and thoughtful address upon the Truth making us "free." His address abounded with numerous striking and happy illustrations.

Rev. Dr. SIMPSON also made a few remarks, chiefly on the objects and aims of the Alliance, which puts Christ first and healing afterward, reversing the order of Dr. Dowie, the porkophobe propagandist, who by the way, Dr. Simpson repudiated so far as his connection with the Christian Alliance was concerned.

Miss SHEPHERD, a recent convert, gave a Bible reading—the 14th chapter of St. John's gospel. By reason of many years' residence in Belgium, Miss Shepherd has a good knowledge of the French language, and she showed how extremely striking the French version makes this beautiful chapter.

Dr. SIMPSON made a few closing remarks, generalizing and applying what had been said by the other speakers.

To-night's meeting, the closing one of the convention, will, it is expected, be of especial interest.

Bay of Quinte Conference.

Methodist Ordination Services—A Resolution on the Liquor Question.

NAPANEE, June 6.—The reception service last night was attended by a large and enthusiastic audience. Rev. O. R. Lambly presided and briefly stated the object of the meeting, and introduced to the audience the candidates, Wilmot G. Clarke, B.A., and Geo. R. Clare, who had completed their probation and were received into full connection as members of the conference. Their reception was moved and seconded by Revs. F. H. Wallace and Caleb Parker, who in their addresses set forth the claims of the ministry and the needs of the pulpit of today.

Rev. O. R. Lambly delivered the usual charge, and at 10 p.m. one of the most successful meetings of the series was closed.

When the conference opened this morning a very large number of delegates were in their places. The opening exercises were better attended than formerly. The only session of the day was held in the forenoon. The book steward's report, which showed the affairs of the book room to be in a very prosperous condition, was presented. The report of Alma College presented by its genial president, Rev. B F. Austin, showed the concern to be in prosperous condition. The sympathy and confidence of the members of Conference in both the institutions were expressed in resolutions heartily adopted.

The liveliest debate of the session was provoked by a memorial from the Bowmanville district touching the action of the general conference in detaching the district from Toronto Conference. A wordy contest followed, in which the champions were Judge Dean, E. Roberts, J. S. Clarke and A. B. Chambers. The matter was finally referred to the Commission on Conference Boundaries.

During the morning a telegram from Ottawa was received acknowledging the message of sympathy forwarded yesterday.

The afternoon was devoted to committee work, the Stationing Committee being the centre of attraction.

THE SUNDAY SERVICES.

NAPANEE June 8.—The annual lecture before the Theological Union was delivered on Saturday evening in the Western Church by Rev. Henry Thomas. The subject was "Messianic Psalms," and was treated by the lecturer in a very scholarly manner.

The public services of Sunday were largely attended. The love feast at 9:30 a.m. was conducted by Rev. J. W. Totten, and was one of great power. At 11 a.m. Rev. Dr. Briggs, of Toronto, preached the ordination sermon from 1 Corinthians, 1, 23, and rarely has a Napanee audience been permitted to hear a more eloquent sermon. Rev. A. W. Mallet was ordained at the close of the service.

Rev. E. W. Baker and Messrs. M. Hall and W. Johnston addressed the Sunday School in the afternoon.

In the evening Rev. W. J. Joliffe delighted a large audience assembled in the conference church.

When the genial president announced the opening hymn this morning he had not a very large assembly. The shade of the trees by which the church is surrounded seemed to possess great attractions for the members of the conference.

The business of the morning was of a routine nature. Rev. Pro. Wallace read the report of Victoria College, Principal McAmmond that of Stanstead College, and Principal Dyer that of Albert College. These reports were received and endorsed by the conference.

Memorials were received from several districts and referred to the proper committees.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Rev. Dr. Briggs for his able sermon of yesterday.

Rev. J. S. Clarke and Judge Dean were elected members of the Commission on Conference Boundaries.

At the afternoon session the following motion was introduced and referred to the Committee on Temperance:—

Moved by Mr. S. D. Clarke, seconded by Rev. W. Barns, "That, in the opinion of this conference, the sale of intoxicating liquor should be disallowed in houses of public entertainment."

At 3 p.m. Rev. A. E. Sanderson was introduced and addressed the conference in the interests of the Students' Volunteer Missionary Society.

Mrs. (Rev.) J. C. Wilson, representative of the Women's Missionary Society, was introduced and delivered a brilliant address. A resolution pledging the sympathy and support of the conference with the objects and work of the society was moved by Rev. C. Cocking and seconded by Rev. T. M. Campbell.

The remainder of the session was occupied with the obituaries of the members of the conference who had died during the year, viz., Revs. Young, Norman, Hurley, Carr, Pettyson, Brodin and Foster.

The conference missionary meeting is being held to-night.

A Bubble that Burst.

Looking Backward for Half a Century—What we May Expect to Read in the Year 1942.

The following is (supposed to be) clipped from the Silver City Daily Nugget of Sept. 7, 1952:—

The men who were working on the Mexico and Arctic Railway, which will pass within a few miles of this city on its way to the recently thawed out regions surrounding the North Pole, made an interesting discovery a day or two ago. While delving among the rocks for the purpose of levelling the roadbed, they came across a number of half-buried logs and portions of what had once evidently been a derrick. Some papers which had been accidentally dropped beneath the debris partially explained their presence there. One of the "oldest inhabitants" in our city, whose memory dates back over half a century, has recalled to mind the whole circumstances of this extraordinary find. It seems that at one time in the early history of our country a tradition was current that a cave lined with pure silver was hidden in the bowels of the earth somewhere in this vicinity, in what was then Barrie township, in the county of Frontenac, and repeated efforts were made to discover it. Thousands of dollars were squandered from time to time in the fruitless search for this mythical mine. The tradition ran, that away back at the beginning of the nineteenth century this cave was known to the Indians, who visited the frontier towns, and sold great chunks of solid silver to the traders. Despite the strenuous efforts made to discover the location of this wonderful cave, the Indians preserved their secret. Finally, a white man who had married and lived among the Indians, induced them to take him to the spot. They blind-folded him, and led him by tortuous paths into the cave, through the opening into which there was just space enough for one man to crawl. When the bandages were removed from his eyes,

THE MAN HELD HIS BREATH

with admiration and amazement. The interior of the cave was walled and floored with glittering silver, which flashed back with radiant brilliancy the light from the torches carried by the Indians. So complete was his astonishment that the Indians, accustomed as they were to the sight, grunted with contempt and turned away in disgust. Watching his chance, however, the wily pale face by a clever ruse, gained possession of the Indians' guns, and turning them on the redskins, kept the "drop" on them while he made his escape. But he had been blindfolded on the way in, and in the darkness, and without any means to guide him, he lost his way. After wandering about for several days he finally reached his home in a dying condition, but before his death he was able to make out a rude chart of the place as far as he could remember it. This eventually fell into the hands of a gang of counterfeiters, who about 1850 plied their business in the cave and flooded the country with silver coins of purer quality than was turned out of the government mint. The gang was broken up, some sent to prison and some fled across the lakes into what was then the United States, but which is now a part of our vast Dominion. They carried the secret with them. Stories concerning the cave began to circulate freely, and the silver fever found many victims. Fortunes were spent in trying to locate this treasure-trove, which was reputed to be worth untold millions. The silver it was said could be chopped off in pieces, and was so pure it did not need refining. In the year 1891 some residents of Peterborough, the great city to west of us, which was then merely a town, became infatuated with the statements of a couple of adventurers who came along with a plausible story and a chart which was claimed to be the original and true one; and who were further assisted by the fact that there actually was a thin streak of silver in the ground, but which never was and never will be worth working. The desire for wealth so infected the people of Peterborough, or at least a portion of the male population, that a company was formed with reputable men at the head of affairs. This company, inflated with enthusiasm and a sublime faith in the reality of the mine, placed their capital at the ridiculous sum of ten millions or thereabouts, and bought the property on which the cave was supposed to be situated. Some of the knowing ones who got in on the "ground floor" made out of the "unearned increment." The company was boomed and finally shares sold at a respectable figure. From time to time interested visitors from Peterborough to this district in search of the spot, brought home marvellous tales of discoveries of hammer handles and other tools, as well as exhibiting samples of silver ore alleged to have been picked up on the spot. About the middle of June in the year 1891, a small party, armed with the chart and various other directions, as well as a derrick and tools, began a systematic search, while their comrades at home waited in anxious expectancy for the message announcing the joyful tidings that the treasure had been found and their working days were over—for each shareholder had the utmost confidence that there was millions in it for him. But the letter that they longed for never came. After weeks of weary wandering and arduous toil the search had to be given up, and the party of prospectors returned home sadder and wiser men. The whole thing ended in a complete "cave." One of the shareholders of the company survived the laughter of his fellow men and lives to-day in this city to tell the woful tale. No more has been heard from that day to this of the famous Counterfeiters' Cave, and it is only now after the lapse of over half a century that the minds of men are called back to that episode. The story is a sad commentary on the credulity of mankind, and the mysterious fascination which there is in a silver mine, no matter how unsubstantial it may be, for men of otherwise well-balanced brains.

A FEW HONEST DOLLARS

Sarsaparilla belongs to the smilax family of plants, and is found very generally over the American continent; but the variety that is richest in medicinal properties is the Honduras root, of which the famous Ayer's Sarsaparilla is made.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Sore, Bleeding Scrofulous Humors Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two hands, arms and hands to the same condition; a body, around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tops of her toes the skin was as raw as to be absolutely unknown in the adult. Said Mrs. H. A. Sweet in me: "I have tried every thing suggested in my own and my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but the sores seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her finger nails. My husband said that he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. All that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe that she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woodward, Druggist, Dansville, N. Y.

SIR JOHN BURIED.

IMPRESSIVE SCENES ALONG THE STREET.

80,000 Persons Attended the Kingston Funeral, Which Is on a Magnificent Scale—Thousands in Procession Walk Beneath a Tropical Sun Behind Sir John's Bier.

KINGSTON, June 11.—The mortal remains of the late Sir John A. Macdonald were committed to their last resting place to-day. The day was truly a memorable one for Kingston. It marks an event that cannot fade from memory. Cataraqui graveyard becomes a historic spot and thousands in the coming days will make pilgrimages here to view the resting place of the greatest governmental ruler Canada ever had in her earliest day. The day was hot, the sun shining brilliantly. The rain came down vigorously after 6 o'clock, but did not interfere with the proceedings. The city was crowded. The people began flocking in as early as 4 o'clock in the morning. They came from all parts of Canada. The entire morning was spent in viewing the remains in the City Hall; 20,000 persons in double lines passed the bier. The guards were composed of Royal Military College cadets. They remained on duty from 9 last night till 9 this morning, when they were relieved by another party. At noon the great floral heaps were removed to a prepared car For hours the display was witnessed by all eyes. At 1 o'clock the procession began forming, and was one of the grandest ever seen in Kingston streets. It was over two miles in length and occupied over 40 minutes in passing a given point. The parade moved at 2.45 o'clock. At this time three miles of Princess-street was lined with spectators. Not less than 40,000 persons viewed the solemn advance to the grave. The stores were closed and draped. Order of the parade was thus: Route—Direct from the City Hall along Ontario-street to Princess-street and direct to Cataraqui Cemetery.

The Masons made a great turnout, 350 strong, under marshalship of James Greenfield of Toronto. Among the distinguished representatives were J. Ross Robertson, Grand Master, R. T. Walkem, R. Gull, E. T. Malone, R. L. Patterson, W. R. Hanse, S. Davidson. Zetland Lodge, Toronto, had 27 members, Belleville 50, Napanee 20, Deseronto 15, Sussex and St. Lawrence Lodges, Brockville, Gananoque, Brighton, Odessa and Kingston had representatives. The Kingston brethren wore crape on their arms.

There were representatives from many lodges in Eastern Ontario. The Independent Order of Foresters was represented. The Catholic orders numbered 400. They were dressed in black, wearing silk hats and having a badge with the words "In Memoriam" in the ' l of their coats. Nearly every member the fraternal societies had on a mourning emblem. It took 18 minutes for them to pass walking four abreast. The pallbearers were members of the Cabinet and Hon. J. C. Aikins. The guards extending down the entire line were composed of men of "A" Battery R. M. College, Kingston Field Battery and 14th Princess of Wales' Own Rifles. The infantry men carried their arms reversed. Col. C. Gzowski, representing Her Majesty, was accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Smith, A. D. C. to the Governor-General. Sir Alexander Campbell, Hon. Oliver Mowat, Moderator Wardrope of the Presbyterian Assembly, and Archbishop Cleary occupied carriages. Nearly every city, town and village in Ontario was represented.

The men in line, numbering 7000, stepped off at slow pace to the music of "A" Battery and 14th Princess of Wales' Own Rifles bands combined and the Gananoque band. The solemn strains floated back as the cortege moved far into the country. Slowly the sortege proceeded and in a few minutes the thousands of spectators who had proceeded to the cemetery by rail could see the glistening helmets of the cavalrymen as they reached the top of the hill. They descended the dusty road towards the little village of Cataraqui, the streets of which were lined by the villagers and hundreds of ruralists who had driven in to see the event. The cemetery looked its very best, the soft green ward, the warm summer sun and the beautiful foliage of trees contrasted artistically with the beds of bright flowers which dotted the hillside here and there where the grave was located. The sad procession passed through the throngs of people bowed and with uncovered heads. The hearse was flanked by eight artillerymen, who on arriving at the last resting place reverently took up the remains of Canada's great statesman and carried the casket to the grave. As Archdeacon Jones stepped forward in clerical robes the harsh rattle of the timbers was heard as the workmen uncovered the grave, and there was scarcely a dry eye in the large surrounding multitude as the casket was lowered into its last resting place. Hugh J. Macdonald, Prof. Williamson and Hon. J. A. Chapleau were prominent at the edge of the grave, and their sorrow was plainly visible as they bravely tried to bear up in their affliction. Impressive and affecting was the beautiful burial service of the Church of England, as read by Archdeacon Jones: "Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust." The words came solemnly from the preacher's lips, followed by the benediction, and Canada's greatest man was in his long last resting place. The grave was then securely sealed with several large pieces of stone-work set in the sides to make it perfectly safe, the cavity was filled in and the floral tributes paiced around it. The crowds slowly dispersed and, as if to fittingly close the last scenes of a great career, a brilliant rainbow circled around the eastern sky through the sprinkle of rain then falling, and nature seemed to naturally say: "Peace to his ashes."

A guard of "A" Battery will remain in charge for a month.

THE NEWS OF CANADA.

SHOCKING INJURY TO A GUNNER AT CHATHAM.

Fires in Many Towns—A Brakeman Killed at Bright—A Little Boy Loses a Hand While at Play—A Woman Burned to Death with Coal Oil.

CHATHAM, June 11.—While the minute gun (an old relic of the Crimea) was being fired in Tecumseh Park this afternoon a terrible accident occurred. The gun had been discharged, swabbed out, and a new charge rammed home, when as Frank Murdock, aged 30, was in the act of withdrawing the ramrod the charge exploded, hurling him 50 or 60 feet down the slope towards the river. When picked up he was found to be terribly burned and lacerated about the head and upper part of his body. He was removed to the hospital, where but little hope for his recovery is entertained.

THE FIRE RECORD.

Not so Serious as Reported—M.C.R. Ice House Burned.

THAMESFORD, June 11.—About 6 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the McCartney House, Thamesford. In an incredibly short time the building was a hopeless prey to the flames and in an hour nothing remained but a smouldering mass of ruins. For a time it was feared that the flames would spread and the Ingersoll fire brigade was telegraphed for assistance. The building was a two-story frame with a Masonic Hall attached. It belonged to Mr. James McCartney and was occupied by his brother John. Everything was destroyed except the Masonic Hall furniture. The hotel was insured for $2500 and the contents for $500. The Masonic Hall was insured for $750.

M. C. R. Icehouse Burned.

INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE, June 11.—About 4 o'clock this afternoon the M. C. Railway icehouse caught fire, it is supposed from a spark from a passing locomotive and in a very short time it was a mass of flames. The fire spread to a car repair shop and a blacksmith shop. The three buildings were burned to the ground. Loss $4000.

Escaped With their Lives.

SIMCOE, June 11.—About 1 o'clock this morning the residence of Mrs. Watts was discovered to be on fire. Mrs. Watts and family narrowly escaped. Origin of fire unknown.

KILLED WITH KEROSENE

A Young Woman Burned to Death While Kindling a Fire.

INGERKIP, Ont., June 11.—Mrs. Toombs, wife of a young man on the "Glen" stock farm, attempted to light the fire with coal oil yesterday. She was pouring coal oil with one hand while she struck a match with the other, when the can exploded, scattering the blazing oil completely over her and setting her in a blaze from head to foot. She rushed screaming outdoors and tried to tear off her clothing, but the effort was too late to be of much avail, as her body and limbs are everywhere burned in a dreadful manner. Dr. Clement was soon present and did all he could to allay her sufferings, but she died this morning.

She came with her husband from England about a year ago and she had one child, an infant five months old.

He was found dead on the sidewalk with a bullet hole in his temple. There is no trace of the murderer. Belle Browning has been arrested on suspicion. The general belief is the crime was committed for revenge by someone who has been offended by an article in Penrose's paper.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

THE GOVERNESS AND ITHE FUTURE EARL.

A Big Bait for Breach of Promise Pending—Newfoundland Delegates at the French Capital—Italians Panic-Stricken Owing to Earthquake Shocks.

LONDON, June 11.—The case of Valerie Weidmann, a German governess, against Robert Horace Walpole, the future Earl of Orford, for breach of promise of marriage, came up for hearing to-day in the Court of Queen's Bench. The plaintiff also charges Mr. Walpole with criminal libel, inasmuch as he said she was an adventuress and a thief.

According to the evidence the parties met at Constantinople, where Miss Wiedmann was professionally engaged as governess. After courtship and promise of marriage Mr. Walpole went to Liverpool, leaving her a signet ring in pledge of his troth, which ring, Mr. Walpole insists, was stolen from him by the plaintiff. Miss Wiedmann went to Cannes, saw Mr. Walpole's mother and told that lady she was about to become a mother. The plaintiff also avers that a detective employed by Mr. Walpole not only stole but utterly destroyed letters which were written by the defendant to the plaintiff.

DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER.

British Tories Still Determined that no Such Bill Shall Pass.

LONDON, June 11.—The promoters of the Deceased Wife's Sisters Bill took advantage of the fact that a large number of the opponents of the bill were at the Ascot races today to attempt to rush the measure through the committee stage by surprise. They were antagonized by a small but determined group of Tories, who talked against time, and the result is that instead of advancing the bill its friends have rendered it impossible for it to be brought up again at this session with any chance of passing.

ANOTHER "TURK."

And This One Will Probably Outdo the Turkish Brigands.

BERLIN, June 11.—A peculiar story of domestic trouble in the family of a well-known banker of this city has been revealed as a consequence of the recent capture of a party of tourists by Turkish brigands. When the news of the daring outrage by banditti was first published it was accompanied by details of the agonizing grief displayed by Mme. Graeger over the fate of her husband, who was one of the prisoners, and who was carried off to the banditti's stronghold, while she was left behind and obliged to remain at Adrianople in suspense, not knowing for many days whether or not she would ever be permitted to see her beloved spouse again. It so happened that Herr Graeger had left his wife in Berlin when he started on his eastern journey, and that worthy lady read with much surprise the story of the grief of the lady who was known to the authorities of Adrianople as the wife of the imprisoned tourist. She caused inquiries to be made in a quiet way, and discovered that her husband had been joined at Pesth by a handsome young lady, with whom he continued on his travels, introducing her as his wife. Herr Graeger is now on his way home, having been released along with his fellow-unfortunates in consideration of a large payment of ransom. It is needless to say that he will recei a warm welcome.

Edward King, D.D., against the decision of the Archbishop of Canterbury in regard to charges made against the Bishop of Lincoln of having offended against the established ritual came up for first hearing to-day before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The Bishop of Lincoln said in opening his case that the appellant complained that the Archbishop in giving judgment had not followed the Privy Council's decision in previous ecclesiastical appeals.

POISONED BY ARSENIC.

Rev. James Thompson of Honeywood With His Wife and Child Narrowly Escape Death.

SHELBURNE, Ont., June 11.—The people of Honeywood were thrown into a state of excitement by the announcement that the Rev. James Thompson (the Methodist minister who was suspended a few months ago on the charge of heresy) had been poisoned, together with his wife and one child. It seems that Mrs. Thompson had prepared some arrowroot for dinner, and before sitting down to the table had partaken of a spoonful of it. Shortly afterwards she was taken sick, but not before Mr. Thompson had taken a spoonful or two of the arrowroot himself and also given some to the child. Soon all three were taken violently ill, and a neighbor was sent for Dr. Lawrence. The doctor pronounced the symptoms to be those of arsenic poisoning, and the proper steps were taken to restore the sufferers, with the result that all three are now in a fair way of recovery. Fortunately the other children were away at school at the time, and they escaped the poison entirely. It is not known how the poison got into the food.

International Football.

BERLIN, June 11.—The great international football event of 1891 took place this evening in Berlin and resulted disastrously to Canada's representatives.

Canada won the toss and took advantage of the light wind. At 6.50, when play began, the home team at once were aggressive and for 10 or 15 minutes it seemed as though the Canadians would have little trouble with the American defence but, as it proved later, the latter had not settled down.

After a few minutes' play the game became fast and furious and Jeffrey once more got in a good run. Rost misjudged and the centre forward had no trouble in scoring the first goal for the Americans.

Buckingham, while a dispute was taking place as to whether the ball was out in touch or not, rushed down his wing and by a swift, strong shot scored the first goal for Canada.

Then followed some grand play on both sides. Twice the leather was driven in on Sims, but on each occasion he saved well, but the third attempt was too well placed for him and Canada's colors were lowered a second time.

The Americans were having the better of the game at the close. The Canadian halves were working nobly, and though charges were made dangerously close on the American citadel no further goals were scored, and Canada had lost her international match by a score of 2 goals to 1.

The Americans surprised everybody by their excellent combination and rare heading and they deserve their victory, though it is a matter for sad reflection that Canada was so severely handicapped.

The teams lined up as follows:

Americans (2): Goal, Farrell; backs, Gregory, Waring; halves, Hughes, Dalton, Whittaker; forwards, (right) Gavin, Keaney, (centre) Jeffrey, (left) Sunderland, Randall.

Referee—Sol Brubacher.

General Assembly.

KINGSTON, June 11.—At the seventeenth general assembly of the Presbyterian Church this forenoon, Dr. Grigg of Toronto reporting for the Hymnal Committee, intimated that over 27,000 copies of the hymn book had been sold during the year, and that from proceeds obtained nearly $1200 had been given to the Aged and Infirm Ministers Fund.

On motion of Principal Grant, seconded by Dr. Reid, the General Assembly recorded with profound sorrow the decease of Sir John A. Macdonald, expressed sympathy with Lady Macdonald, prayed that the demise might be sanctified to all who take part in public affairs, and with the people of the Dominion, agreed to give up the afternoon sederunt out of regard for Sir John to give the moderator and clerk and members an opportunity to attend the funeral.

The evening sederunt was devoted to the two important subjects of home missions and augmentat on as conducted in the eastern and western sections of the church. In the Maritime Province home mission field the income was $11,328.38, an increase of $212 on the previous year, and of $3414 on the year preceding that. The number of workmen employed here was 87. In the western section, from Quebec to the Pacific, the revenue amounted to $54,344.24 and work is conducted in 880 preaching stations. In the Maritime Provinces 56 congregations were added last year by the augmentation fund to the extent of $8065. In the western districts the income amounted to $22,762, and although a slight deficit marks the fund this year, the fund is not by any means in a discouraging condition. Capital addresses were given during the evening by Messrs. MacMillan, Morrison and Lack from the east, and from Drs. Cochrane, Bryce, Warden and Robertson from the western section.

He Wants His Children.

NEW YORK, June 11.—In the Supreme Court, Kings county, the claim of Insurance Broker J. H. L. Pelletier of Montreal for the custody of his four children came up yesterday. The little ones, the oldest of whom is 8 years, were in court. The children were permitted to accompany their aunt, Mrs. James Stikeman, to Brooklyn in December last. The father said he had been unable to recover them. Mrs. Stikeman, who lives at No. 291 Clermont-avenue, alleged that Mr. Pelletier was not a fit person to have the custody of the children. Affidavits as to character from the Archbishop of Montreal and from Judge Loranger of the Superior Court were put in by Mr. Pelletier.

De Lesseps to be Prosecuted.

PARIS, June 11.—Le National announces that Mr. De Lesseps will be prosecuted for misleading investors who subscribed money for carrying on the work of the Panama Canal Company. Sixty shareholders in the Panama Canal Company have filed a complaint against officers of that company. The prosecution of those officials will open with placing Mr. De Lesseps, his son and two other directors on trial. The action of the prosecution is based especially upon the last issue of Panama Canal shares.

May Have Been Murder.

WINNIPEG, June 10.—There is suspicion that Constable Byron, Calgary, might have been murdered instead of suicide, and suspicion rests on two comrades, who were with him shortly before the shot was fired. Deceased was son of H. J. Byron, the English playwright.

Found Guilty of Bribery.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 10.—McCrystee, Detective O'Malley's assistant, was to-day found guilty of attempting to bribe McCabe, a tales juror in the Hennessey murder trial.

Infanticide.

WINDSOR, June 10.—Edward Stuart Moore, a colored man, was engaged to clean the closet of Mrs. Simons in Albert-street. He dumped the barrels this morning and the first thing that met his notice was the upturned face of an infant. The body was wrapped in some old clothes. It was that of a white male of mature age. Around its neck was a strap or part of a man's necktie, by which it had been strangled to death.

Fatally Injured.

BRANTFORD, June 11.—This morning Mr. Dodds, a milkman living north of the city, was driving into the city with his sister and while coming down the hill near the hospital a portion of the harness gave way, and the team became unmanageable, running away. Mr. Dodds, who is partially paralysed, was unable to get out of the rig, which was badly smashed. He was picked up insensible and it is thought his injuries are fatal.

The Great Benefit

which people in run down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood, and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver.

SUN LIFE
ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Life Assurances in force, 1st January, 1891	$16,759,355.92
Increase over previous year	3 421,372 54
New Applications received in 1890	6.371.529 15
Increase over 1889	2 265.888.60
Cash income for year ending 31st December, 1890	869,078 87
Increase over 1889	325.936 35
Assets at 31st December, 1890	3,473 514.19
Increase over 1889	647,691.47

Surplus over all Liabilities and Capital Stock	232.175.69
Increase over 1889	75.649.03
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961 65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6.04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail then to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$64 824 07
" " " 1885, "	89 452 97

FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1891.

The State of the Country.

Although recent crop reports from Ontario and Quebec are on the whole unfavorable, it is not too late yet for a recovery in wheat, oats and roots. Fruit was injured by the cold nights three weeks ago, but the damage was by no means fatal. There is no use concealing that profound anxiety exists. Speaking roughly from the returns of the Ontario Bureau of Industries the marketable value of what may be called an old-fashioned bumper crop at present price would be about $150,000,000 for Ontario alone. We have fallen short of that for several years back. In 1887, the very dry year, the marketable value was only $106,000,000. In 1888 things improved, the value being estimated at $129,000,000, but it dropped again in 1889 and 1890. The reign of wheat in this Province is rapidly drawing to a close. As in the Eastern States, the farmers cannot compete at ruling prices with the prairie lands which they have taxed themselves to develop or with the yield of countries like Russia and India which by the application of railroads and the compound engine in steamships is now landed at Liverpool for less than it would have cost thirty years ago to carry it 200 miles. Wheat is taken to day from Jubbalpore, in the middle of India, to Liverpool via Bombay and the Suez Canal at a rate not exceeding that charged for conveying it from Monsomin to Liverpool. Accordingly we find by the returns that in Ontario wheat is steadily giving place to other crops. The marketable value of all the spring and fall wheat raised here in 1885 was nearly ten million dollars in excess of the value of that raised last year. The farmers, or all who can afford it, are going more and more into the production of cattle and cheese. There has been a large increase, of course, in the acreage of hay, the value of that crop being now nearly $40,000,000 a year, as compared with $30,000,000 and less ten or twelve years. Barley has also been more largely sown until the present year. It and hay are struck heavily by the McKinley tariff, and so are beans, peas and potatoes, which have also been more liberally sown than in former years. It is necessary, however, unpleasant to bear in mind in considering the crop prospects for 1891, that whereas the farmers escaped last year by rushing their coarse stuff across the line before October 6th, they will feel the full brunt and pressure of that tariff next autumn. Without indulging in political recrimination, the attempt made by the Dominion Government to open distant markets for that sort of produce was from the nature of things foreordained to failure. It does not matter much, so far as the pocket of the farmer is concerned, whether the toll he has to pay is a customs tax at the American frontier or an excessive transportation rate such as long-distance carriage entails. Nor has anything come of the effort to introduce two-rowed barley. That was another fight against nature, the climatic conditions and perhaps the properties of the soil rendering a profitable cultivation of that variety impossible. The fate of eggs is also decided—we cannot ship them to England and make as much as we could make if the American market were free. Ministerial newspapers endeavor to hide this by showing that prices this season have been higher in Ontario than in certain previous years. But it is clear from the market reports that prices would be still higher than they are if shippers had free access to Buffalo, Detroit, New York and Boston as before, and that is the whole point at issue. To sum up it is probable that this year our chief reliance must be upon cattle and cheese, and those staples are likely to be affected by the dry weather; wheat can scarcely reach an average; the acreage sown to barley has greatly declined; and that and the coarser products with horses, sheep and poor-grade cattle will feel the full blow of the McKinley Bill. This is not a cheerful outlook, but as has been said the weather may take a turn and copious rains being a change for the better.

The most serious feature of the situation is that the farmers as a body are already greatly pinched. The succession of poor crops and the long run of poor prices—broken, however, by a rise of late—have brought about a marked depreciation in the value of their land and left a good many in debt to the storekeeper besides diminishing the purchasing power of all. The mortgage indebtedness has, as might be expected, gone up with a bound. Sixty-four loan and investment companies had $55,000,000 out at the close of 1889, and it is estimated the private mortgages had at least $30,000,000 more. It will not be wide of the mark to place the mortgage indebtedness of the Province on farm and all other property at $120,000,000 at least, or about equal to the entire marketable value of a first rate harvest of cereals, roots and hay. The interest on that sum constitutes a heavy drain upon industry. Account must also be taken of the enormous increase in the Federal taxation, the customs revenues alone having jumped from $15,000,000 in 1873 to $24,000,000 in 1890 as well as of the fact that owing to the N.P., the Ontario farmer is paying exorbitant prices, higher perhaps than any farmer of any other country in the world, for very many of the necessaries and conveniences of life and labor. Matters are brighter in Manitoba and the Northwest. The crops there are a fortnight ahead of their condition at this time last year, and there has been a fair amount of rain. Let us hope that they may escape the frost and hail which sometimes strike them in August. The reports from the Maritime Provinces are also very good, but the farmers look with dread upon the effect of the McKinley bill upon the coarse products which form the bulk of their crops. In Quebec, where the farmers have suffered severely of late years from excessive drought and from excessive rains, the prospect is not unlike that in Ontario—doubtful. There, as everyone knows, coarse products hold the field, and the McKinley Act is bound to cut a swath in them. It is no use telling these people, or any of us for that matter, that things will come right in the end. What the French Canadian sees and feels is that the combined operation of the two tariffs, plus lean crops, is leaving him as poor as a church mouse, and that if relief can be got in no other way he must seek it by emigrating.

No one who knows will say that this is an over-charged picture. To those weak souls who maintain that all true Canadians ought to conceal the truth about the state of the country, and even lie strenuously if need be, we commend the old saying: "Things are what they are and the consequences of them will be what they will be; why then should we seek to deceive ourselves?" The Administration now being formed at Ottawa is confronted with an extremely critical condition of affairs. Apart from the plight of agriculture, by far the most important industry in the Dominion, the lumber trade, which comes next to it, is not as healthy as it used to be. The trade in square timber, carried on principally from Quebec, is much depressed. Over and above all this there is the getting over it, that Sir John Macdonald has left us with a huge national debt, with a most costly fiscal system, with the Provinces clamoring for relief at the expense of the Federal taxpayer, and with our power for borrowing more money foreshortened to some extent at least by the grave disparity between our per capita burdens and those of the United States. These are things which the conscienceless partisan strives in vain to minimize. Nor does he help the country out of the hole in the slightest degree by saying like an energumen at us who ask in God's name that our new rulers, whoever they are, should quit lying and face the truth like honest men.—Globe.

Canadian Prize Cheese.

The New York Bulletin has the following: "It may be remembered that at the fair of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario, held last fall at Belleville, special prizes were offered by Mr. J. T. Warrington for the finest large cheese, 100 lbs. or over; cheese to be made any time between 1st August and 6th September, both days inclusive. A prize each for colored and white. The winning cheese were sent to this city. The colored one came to Mr. M. J. Farrell, who cut it up for exhibition and trial last October. The white cheese made came to Mr. Harry Webb, who has kept it in store until this week, and now divides it in sample pieces among the trade. The fresh made goods were considered of the most excellent and promising character, and the parcel held appears to verify in all particulars the expectations in regard to its keeping quality, the general verdict of those who are experts deciding it to be a perfect cheese. These cheese were made by Mr. J. S. Drewry, of Warkworth, who carried off the honors in 100 lb. class, and the results afford much satisfaction to the champions of the Canadian product."

Winter Sports.

The gay winter season exposes many to attacks of colds, coughs, hoarseness, tightness of the chest, asthma, bronchitis, etc., which requires a reliable remedy like Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for their relief and cure. Known as reliable for over thirty years. The best cough cure. 2w24d

Ayer's Hair Vigor

IS the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken; and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—T. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for a dressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," McArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

MR. AND MRS. BOWSER.

THEIR HEADQUARTERS CHANGED FROM DETROIT TO NEW YORK.

"M. Quad's" First Sketches Since He Joined the New York World Staff—Bowser's Method of Detecting the Unworthy at a Glance.

IN introducing Mr. Bowser to the readers of the World, and more particularly to New Yorkers, I want to put him in a right light at the very outset. He is simply an average husband, having and displaying no more pomposity, erudition and the desire to lay it all on his wife than forty-nine husbands out of every fifty. He finds fault, but that is expected of a husband; it's his privilege, assumed not granted. He is selfish to an extent, but find me a husband who isn't. If things go wrong he blames Mrs. Bowser. Why shouldn't he? Her pains and aches are nothing; his are everything, and the household taust "stand around" accordingly. Ever know a husband who was different?

Mrs. Bowser has opinions, but they are of no weight compared with his. Mrs. Bowser can make $2 buy as much as his three, but he won't admit it. Mrs. Bowser has trouble with her cook, but he'd get along as slick as grease—of course! For three days he will wear an old shirt all torn up the back and say nothing about it. On the fourth day, if he should happen to find one loose stitch somewhere, he'd declare that his was the worst-run house in all America. Mr. Bowser has streaks of fat and streaks of lean—like all the rest. He will walk over a chair upset on the floor one day and kick about a thimble on the next. Take him, therefore, as he runs. If he doesn't live in the same house with you perhaps he does next door, or around the corner.

"Look here," said Mr. Bowser, as he came home the other evening, "didn't I see a woman going out of the basement with a basket on her arm as I came up?"

"You probably did," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"She was a poor woman who had burned her hand and couldn't work with it, and I felt sorry for her."

"That's you—you to a dot! Never even saw her hand to know that her story was true?"

"But I did. It was a burn."

"And she gave you her street and number?"

"Yes."

"And you want there to see if it was all right?"

"No; I took her word for it."

"Took her word! Well, you are a soft mash! I'll bet $100 to a cent that she was the biggest kind of a fraud! She's probably grinning now as she thinks how nicely she soft-soaped you!"

"I think she was deserving of what I did for her," quietly replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Oh, yes—of course! Mrs. Bowser, let me give you a little advice. You were born in the country and"—

"Weren't you?"

"No, ma'am!"

"Weren't you born exactly one mile east of Podunk?"

"No! That is to say, I was born there, but I was reared"—

"In Podunk itself—a hamlet of thirteen houses and a cider mill!"

"Mrs. Bowser," he continued, after a moment, crossing his hands under his coattails and balancing himself heel and toe, "I want to define my position in this matter. You were born and brought up in the country. You have never had a chance to study human nature as I have. The average face is the index of the average mind, but you haven't learned to read facial expression."

"Have you?" she asked, as he halted for breath.

"Certainly. Indeed, it came natural to me. I can detect an unworthy person at a glance. I can almost tell what he is thinking of. From the mere glance I got at that woman's face I would wager my shoes against a toothpick that she is a chronic beggar and a wretched fraud."

"I can't believe it," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Indeed! What you can or cannot believe is of very little importance to a nation of 60,000,000 people, Mrs. Bowser. I say she was unworthy, and that settles it. However, I do not blame you so much, as she probably told a very plausible story, but let this be the last time. I am just as charitable as the next man, and perhaps more so, but I want to know who I'm giving to."

"I can't help but believe she was just what she represented herself," protested Mrs. Bowser.

"That matter was definitely settled Mrs. Bowser—definitely settled, understand—when I declared her unworthy. I will some day give you some instructions as to reading human nature, but until I do give to no more mendicants. You simply encourage fraud, vice, ignorance and crime. There's no telling but what your action in this case will land that woman behind prison bars to-morrow."

"I don't see how it could," she replied.

"Probably not. You don't as a great many things you haven't seen. I can't see and never will see, Mrs. Bowser. When I am away give all such people the cold shoulder; when I am home refer them to me. In that way no mistakes can possibly arise."

About 8 o'clock that evening the gate-bell rang, and pretty soon the cook came in and reported that there was a man outside who wanted money to pay for a night's lodging.

"Ah! Got the house located down fine, haven't they?" sarcastically exclaimed Mr. Bowser, who was reading his newspaper.

"Tell him we have nothing to give," said Mrs. Bowser to the cook.

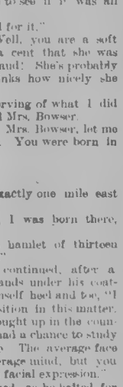
"Tell him nothing of the kind," added Mr. Bowser. "On the contrary, send him right in here. Here is a chance for you, Mrs. Bowser to take a first lesson in reading human nature. See how quick I will turn him myself out! Move that chair out for him to sit down on."

A moment later the man was shown in. He was a tough-looking specimen of manhood, and looked as if he had tramped twice around the globe. There was rum in his breath and shavings in his hair, and HEART DISEASE had he even appeared in daylight Mrs. Bowser would have shut the door on his toes.

"Well, sir," sharply queried Mr. Bowser.

"It's a case of heart disease, sir, and I can't work," whined the man.

"Run out your tongue."



The man showed his tongue, and Mr. Bowser looked at it and then said:

"Yes, you are right. You have heart disease, and you will find the police station on the corner. Move right along, sir!"

"But I'm hungry, sir!"

"Move right along, sir! Don't you see that I am busy reading?"

The man moved along, and Mr. Bowser resumed his paper, and Mrs. Bowser her sewing.

"Well, I'm glad you've got rid of him," she finally remarked.

"Yes, I am glad myself. I don't like to be imposed upon, and I don't like to impose upon others. I'm glad I've got rid of him myself."

"Yes, I'm glad you've got rid of him myself," she repeated.

"Why do you repeat my words?"

"Because I'm glad you've got rid of him myself."

"Why do you keep on repeating my words?"

"Because I'm glad you've got rid of him myself."

"Mrs. Bowser, I'll thank you to stop repeating my words!"

Ashburnham Sidewalk.

A correspondent writes:—"Unless some steps are taken to remedy the defective sidewalks in Ashburnham, the honourable members composing the village council will surely, sooner or later, be presented with heavy claims for damages. Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. It comprises lacrosse match, bicycle races, athletic sports, grand horse races, baseball match, and other sports during the day. In the evening there will be a grand promenade concert, etc. We would strongly advise our readers to make their arrangements to spend Dominion Day in Port Hope. The programme there is always fully carried out. Special railway rates and special trains after the evening programme is over. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. E. BEAMISH, secretary of committee. dw

St. Paul's Sunday School Excursion.

The excursion of the St. Paul's Sunday school on Thursday was a delightful success. The party of delighted young folks and their friends went out by Chemong Valley train and spent a delightful day at the park. The people enjoyed themselves highly with the many pleasures the park presents and there was nothing untoward except a fidgetting youngster dropping into the water between the steamer and wharf without any but damp results. It came on to rain about three o'clock but there was abundant shelter and the pleasure of escaping from the rain was one of the most enjoyable pleasures of the day. The party arrived home in good time, the early hour of arrival from Chemong being one of the great features of attraction for excursions to this pleasant spot.

The Lightning's Close Call.

Yesterday afternoon during the thunder storm the City Hotel bar was open from front to rear. Mr. Clancy and others were standing chatting in the bar, when a bolt of lightning seemed to flash through from front to rear, accompanied by a loud report, which momentarily deafened the party and shocked them considerably. At the same moment, Mrs. Clancy, was sitting in a rear room on the floor above, with her child. The child was thrown from the chair by the force of the shock and Mrs. Clancy so severely stunned that she feels the effects to-day—pain in the head and dizziness. The two telephone instruments in the bar were also knocked out of commission by the electricity. The lightning also took the skin off an electric light wire in front of the opera house and the concession is said to have broken some windows in a house further down George street.

Suicide at Alnwick.

A sad case is reported from Alnwick. On Friday afternoon last the wife of Mr. Jno. Sanderecck, a respectable farmer who resides in the 3rd concession of the township, committed suicide by taking a dose of Paris Green during her husband's absence. Upon the discovery of her rash act, Dr. Lapp was immediately summoned, but the deadly poison had attacked the vitals before medical help arrived. The unfortunate woman had been despondent for some time, and it is said that she put an end to her life in the dread of conviction that she would have to be sent to the asylum. Mrs. Sanderecck was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Westington, of Hamilton township. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved husband and the six motherless children, the youngest of whom is only five months old.—Cobourg World.

The Grand Lodge of Prentice Boys met in annual session at Lindsay this week. The meeting was a most pleasant and satisfactory one. The delegates from Peterborough were M. A. Jamieson, W. J. Sloan, W. J. Saunders, A. Armour and Jas. Telford. The following Grand officers were elected:—

Personal.

The Brockville Recorder says that Mr. Burt. Lafayette has gone to Peterborough, where he has secured an excellent situation.

Mr. D. G. Donoghue, of Downeyville, Ont., has entered the Peterborough Business College for a full course in book-keeping.

Miss McPhee, of Whitevale, arrived in town last night, and for some weeks will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wm. Birnie, of Ashburnham.

Mr. P. W. Graham, of the Canada Mutual Loan and Investment Co., Toronto, is here in the interests of that company. It is the intention of Mr. Graham to form a local board here, and a public meeting for the discussion of business is to be held on an early date.

Two Trains Collide.

A Serious Smash-up on the C. P. R. About a Mile-and-a-Half West of Peterborough.

About two o'clock yesterday afternoon a disastrous collision occurred between two C. P. R. trains near the Leary farm about a mile and a half west of the town. It seems a gravel train was working between Peterborough and the next station, and had orders to return here by two o'clock. In the meanwhile a freight train arrived at Peterborough from the east, and received orders to run to next station. At twenty minutes to two o'clock the freight train met the gravel train, which was returning to town. There was a sharp curve in the line at this point, but the drivers had time to reverse their engines, give their crews warning, and all hands jumped. Fortunately no one was hurt, though one man alighted in a shallow creek and was cut and bruised. The engine of the gravel train was running backwards, but hauling a long string of empty flat cars. The collision resulted in a curious smash-up. Both locomotives were almost totally wrecked. They were stripped of smokestacks, cabs, bells and left simply huge cylinders on wheels. Neither of the engines left the track, nor were any of the heavily laden box cars derailed, though the trucks and drawheads of the latter were broken. Great havoc was done among the flat cars, seven or eight of which were badly wrecked and tossed about in all sorts of shapes, while a number of others were damaged. A cracksmack of one the locomotives was buried a hundred feet by the force of the shock.

Work was at once pushed on clearing the track, and traffic was resumed by ten o'clock at night. The six o'clock express from Montreal was delayed nearly four hours here, and the eight o'clock local did not reach Peterborough till after ten o'clock.

Every one is anxious to know who was to blame for the accident. Of course the C. P. R. officials are mum, and simply say steps are being taken to investigate the matter. It is certain that wrong orders were given from some source, though it does not appear certain just who is responsible.

The wreckage was brought to Peterborough, where it was inspected by many interested townspeople. Quite a number also walked out to the scene of the accident in the evening.

The Grand Union Picnic.

The Farmers Hold High Festival and Jubilee at Jubilee Point.

The Farmers' Institute of this district scored another big success in their annual picnic at Jubilee Point.

From Peterborough the Golden Eye under the obliging captaincy of Capt. Clare Calcutt took down about two hundred pleasure seekers. The steamer after a pleasant sail down the beautiful winding Otonabee, reached the point about 1 p. m. to find that steamers from other points the "Daisy" "Sunbeam" "Beaver" and "Pearl" had brought large crowds of pleasure seekers.

The first care of the visitors on their arrival was dinner, and this important item having been disposed of with the vigorous appetites which early rising and a breezy sail down the sparkling river, breathing in ozone by the gallon, gives, the younger portion of the visitors then sought the recreations the place afforded, dancing, boating, fishing, strolling and flirting, while the steadier portion assembled around the platform where the speeches were to be delivered. Mr. Robert Vance, of Cavan, occupied the chair, and upon the platform there were F. Birdsall, president of the East Riding Farmers' Institute, D. Kennedy, president, Wm. Collins, auditor, and J. A. Davidson, secretary, of the West Riding Institute; J. Russell, president of the West Northumberland Institute, J. B. Ewing, secretary of the East Northumberland Institute; and George Fitzgerald, John Bennett, the representatives of the EXAMINER and Review, and others.

Prof. Fletcher, entomologist of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa, gave a most instructive address upon grasses and hay crops.

Mr. N. Awrey, M. P., president of the Central Farmers' Institute gave a very able address upon general agricultural topics, and Mr. T. Blezard, M. P. P., also gave a good, plain practical address.

The day was delightfully spent at Jubilee Point, which grows in beauty and attractiveness as a summer resort. Just as the steamer was leaving the grounds, the crowning incident of the day, a pouring rain, broke the long dreary rule of the drouth and brought joy to the hearts of the jolly farmer who enjoyed his holiday all the more because it brought the welcome rain that saved the crop of 1891 from being what it must have been—had rain been delayed only a little longer—a total failure. The Peterborough contingent arrived home after a prosperous sail, the steamer reaching to within a cable length of the wharf at nine o'clock, but struck a snag that held her fast for three quarters of an hour. It is a shame that the Dominion Government does not take some steps to improve the navigation facilities of the lake and river, so that one of our most desirable pleasure outlets may not be rendered a nuisance instead of a benefit. The Farmers' Institute may congratulate themselves upon the striking success (barring the snag) of their annual picnic.

Christian Alliance Convention.

Third and Closing Day of a Successful Gathering—The Meetings of the Closing Day.

The last day of the Christian Alliance Convention opened yesterday morning at nine with a prayer and testimony meeting.

The meetings seemed to grow in interest and power as they drew to a close, and already the results of the presence of these people in town has been seen.

Rev. Chas. Warren Ryder gave a talk on the "Ability of God," from II Cor. ix. 8.

Rev. A. B. Simpson then gave a Bible reading on "Faith." Those in attendance were surprised and delighted at the clear exposition of the matter of believing God.

Miss Lindenberger closed the morning session with a talk on the same subject.

THE AFTERNOON MEETING.

Again the first hour of the afternoon was spent in answering questions, after which Rev. Mr. Simpson gave a Bible reading on "Divine Healing." He particularly emphasized the fact of its being in the atonement, as shown not only in type and prophecy in the Old Testament, but applied directly to us in the New Testament.

Rev. Mr. Salmon spoke on healing also, referring especially to the last part of the 5th of James.

Dr. Zimmerman followed on the same subject, from I Cor. vi, 19 20. He touched on the question of Christ being for the little ones also, and said if anything went wrong he would have a little enquiry meeting of the members of his family to see if they were all right with God, and if they were, he said, that God always delivered them.

THE CLOSING MEETING.

The evening meeting was a wonderful one, especially as the last, when many stood up on their feet for a deeper spiritual or physical blessing, and then bowed in prayer.

The subject of the evening meeting ran on the life of the Lord's pre-millennial coming. Rev. Mr. Simpson spoke first, referring to the power and blessing such a hope should have in Christian lives. Then each of the speakers in turn gave a short parting word, and Rev. Mr. Ryder closed with a short reference to the Alliance and the regular meetings held in town. Then he gave a very earnest exhortation to those present to immediate consecration of spirit, soul and body to God.

NOTES.

There was a good attendance in the afternoon and in the evening, the opera house was nearly filled.

Miss Shephard's beautiful voice assisted in making the meetings pleasant.

The visiting members of the Alliance left on the midnight train for Ottawa, where they will hold a similar convention opening to-day.

They have almost every day until October filled up with conventions in the United States.

Entertaining the Foresters.

An Inland Excursion, Games on the Green and March Delight the Foresters' Delegates.

The members of the Toronto courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters held a demonstration on Thursday afternoon at Island Park for the entertainment of the 300 delegates who are in the city for the purpose of attending the twelfth annual meeting of the high court of the order now in session in Victoria Hall in that city. The weather was very unfavorable, but notwithstanding this a most enjoyable time was spent. The excellent band of the Q.O.R. was in attendance and played a choice programme of music. The games were announced for 2 o'clock, but a downpour of rain compelled the committee to postpone them till 4 o'clock, when a long programme of events was successfully carried out. About 300 sat down to the banquet table at 6 o'clock, and after the good things provided had been disposed of, speeches were delivered by the officers and by such of the members as felt oratorically inclined.

Sam Small's Accounts.

The Auditors Report a Shortage of $11,000.

OGDEN, Utah, June 10.—The court appointed by the Methodist Episcopal Conference, which has just closed, to audit the accounts of Sam Small in connection with the University, reports that they find him in arrears over 11,000. It was decided that no action should be taken in the erring minister's case, but that the affair be left with Georgia conference for whatever settlement his brethren in the South deem best.—Toronto News.

ROMANCE IN COURT.

Alfred B. Schneider's Gay Career Ended by a Suit at Law.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Supreme Court yesterday heard a romance. Suit was begun against A. B. Schneider, a good-looking German of 35, for the recovery of 80,000 marks, the property of his wife. In addition, it is said, Schneider will be prosecuted for bigamy. Mrs. Schneider for over a year had lived in widow's weeds, weeping night and day for her husband, whom she believed to have died in Spain. One day last Christmastide, however, on Broadway, she walked unexpectedly into her husband's arms, who was escorting a pretty Spanish girl.

Schneider originally said farewell to his wife in October, 1889, when he sailed away to Germany with power of attorney to obtain 80,000 marks bequeathed to her by her father. Months passed, but no word reached her of her husband's whereabouts. At last, in the following spring, a letter came to the effect that his ship had been wrecked on the Spanish coast, but that he had been saved. Later came the sad intelligence, in a strange hand, that her husband was dead. With the letter came 1000 marks, all that he had left of her fortune.

USED A PIANO AS A HOUSE.

Evidences That a Man and Woman Eloped in a Piano Box From Toronto.

VICTORIA, B.C., June 11.—A piano case, supposed to contain a piano and consigned to W. R. Wright, Victoria, came through from Toronto some months ago and a claimant not putting in an appearance the case was placed in the freight sheds here awaiting an owner. Yesterday the company decided to examine the piano, but when the case was opened, instead of an instrument being revealed, the interior of the case was found to be fitted up as a comfortable little apartment and bearing traces of having been occupied by a man and woman during the trip across the continent. A good soft mattrass was on the bottom of the box and several articles of male and female apparel were scattered round. The sides of the box were adorned with hooks for clothes and some morsels of food were scattered around. Several air holes in the box and cover were fitted with hinges, so as to easily open from the inside. As the case came through in a bonded car the occupants of the box could of course escape detection. The case is believed to have been occupied by an eloping couple, but who they are is a mystery.

WHAT THE TIMES THINKS.

Devotes a Leader to Reviewing the Canadian Political Situation.

LONDON, June 11.—The Times devotes its first leader to-day to the Canadian political situation. The Times thinks Sir Hector Langevin is impossible as the successor of Sir John Macdonald not only because the could not lead a party mainly recruited from vehement Protestantism, as The Times holds the Conservative party is. The same objection The Times applies to Sir John Thompson, while the fact of his being a Nova Scotian by birth will operate both against him and Sir Charles Tupper in the other parts of Canada. Sir Charles Tupper, The Times says, is probably the ablest man, but Lord Stanley may wisely decide to choose a politician less exposed to criticism. Mr. Abbott, The Times thinks, will probably be accepted as a provisional chief.

This is the line adopted in The Canadian Gazette yesterday, which suggested that Mr. Abbott should be chosen temporary leader and the session be speedily wound up and a full reconstruction of the Cabinet left till the recess.

Found Dead.

OTTAWA, June 11.—Charles Sharpe of Russell, near Ottawa, one of the oldest and most respected settlers, was found dead in bed this morning. Death is supposed to have resulted from heart disease.

Postoffice Robbed.

ORILLIA, June 11.—Burglars effected an entrance into the postoffice last night. They drilled two holes in the safe, but abandoned the job. The burglars left their oils and lamp scattered about promiscuously as if they had decamped suddenly.

Died in Jail.

WOODSTOCK, June 11.—Moses Green, a poor old colored man who was sent to the jail here some time ago from Ingersoll as a vagrant, died there yesterday. The coroner's jury found that death was due to natural causes. He was 68 years of age.

Drowned in a Millrace.

LONDON, Ont., June 11.—The 7-year-old son of W. Rogers, named Roy, was drowned yesterday afternoon just above Hunt's mill. The boy was playing on a raft and, falling into the water, was carried under the log by the swift current and held there by a splinter, which caught his clothing and kept his head under water close by the log.

Sarsaparilla belongs to the smilax family of plants, and is found very generally over the American continent; but the variety that is richest in medicinal properties is the Honduras root, of which the famous Ayer's Sarsaparilla is made.

This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores—Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little arms and hands in the same condition; a body, around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was as raw as can be admissively sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Street to me:—"I have tried every thing suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said that he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe that she has entirely recovered. The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Weekes, druggist.

THE NEW GOVERNMENT.

MESSRS. THOMPSON AND ABBOTT SUMMONED.

They Had a Consultation with the Governor General Yesterday, But No Definite Result Achieved Up to the Present Interviews with Several of the Ministers.

OTTAWA, June 12.—The great political problem, who will form the next Ministry, has not yet been solved. A prominent Ontario Conservative said to-night that whatever the solution might be the party was ready to accept the choice loyally.

Sir John Thompson had an hour's interview with the Governor-General at his office in the eastern block at noon to-day. Being asked afterwards whether he had been summoned to form a Cabinet, he replied: "I was merely consulting His Excellency on departmental business. I have no instructions on that point." This afternoon Sir John Thompson had another long interview with Lord Stanley, this time being accompanied by Mr. Abbott. At the conclusion of the interview he made the announcement to the press that he and Mr. Abbott had been consulting with His Excellency regarding the formation of a new Government, but no decision had been reached.

This announcement of Sir John Thompson is very significant. Apparently Sir Hector Langevin, who acted as premier for years in the absence of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, has been overlooked by the Governor-General. If such is the case it must be that the Governor-General has prejudged the charges brought against him by Mr. Tarte. Sir Hector refuses to be interviewed, but so far as is known the first men the Governor consulted were Mr. Abbott and Sir John Thompson.

To-night no definite settlement has yet been reached. Sir John Thompson said to a reporter at a late hour that nothing had transpired to be made public.

A Tupper Boom.

To-day's Citizen says: We take it that no Conservative, no well-wisher of his country, no high-minded and unselfish Canadian would for one moment, will for one moment consider his personal interests except as merged into the general interests of the commonwealth. This being so, the strongest possible man, the man drawing around him the collective strength of the party, the man best known to the electorate at large, the man identified with Canada since Confederation—should first be considered. That man is beyond doubt Sir Charles Tupper, and whether he would accept or decline the position we are perfectly unaware. Nevertheless, we are bound to speak according to what we believe to be a national sentiment, and do so irrespective of other individual claims or aspirations. Personally, other men may be preferred, and it is quite within the range of probability that Sir Charles Tupper, unless urged by the united strength of the Conservatives, and even then, might prefer escaping from the active turmoil which some years ago threatened to carry him off before his leader. Still, if we know those now eligible, we are convinced they have no ambition that would lead them into any other path save that of duty, save that which promised to strengthen the hands of those who believe in the policy left as a sacred heritage by the great leader, whose life was one of self-denial and labor, and who on the threshold of Confederation relinquished his claim to the position of Prime Minister in order to conciliate and strengthen both friends and opponents, in his struggle to bring about the union of the provinces. We feel that the country's interests must stand first, and that these demand a union of all the intellectual forces of the dominant party. In saying this, we express one opinion only; we do not profess to reflect that of Conservatives generally, and no matter who is called to form a government from the Conservative majority we feel assured a loyal and generous support will be accorded. We are bound to say, however, that

A Provisional Prime Minister will be a public proclamation of weakness—a flag of truce never yet displayed by Conservatives.

And why? The answer must be patent to all. It is an admission from which conclusions the reverse of correct may be drawn. The party is united, firm, solid, unwavering. It wants a leader who is going to stay, and given that leader his supporters will keep him there. As we have said, the party is strong, united, willing and compromises would not alone prove dangerous, but be unworthy of those into whose charge the destinies of the nation were entrusted little more than two months ago. Compromises make fair umbrellas, but very poor roofs; hence the man who is to lead should at once be instated as the permanent frontispiece, the responsible head, looking to the future as well as the present. The hour has arrived—the Conservative party awaits the man.

OTTAWA, June 12.—Chapleau does not hesitate about expressing his views very freely about the present crisis. Interviewed by a reporter he said: Under the present circumstances I do not think any provisional arrangement should be made. We are fresh from the electorate and we can form a strong ministry. Sir John Thompson, to my mind, is the only man who can give a guarantee of stability in reorganization of the government and party. He will meet with difficulties but we believe that our Ontario friends will see that it is their duty and interest to join and co-operate at this juncture. Sir John Thompson is essentially an Englishman and a Britisher. As the ex-Minister of Justice has frequently pointed out in his speeches this Government is governed by political not religious principles. The selection of Sir John as Premier would besides meet with general acceptance both in England and the United States. There are various international questions still unsettled, and with Sir John Thompson at the head of affairs the prospects for a satisfactory solution of all difficulties would be greatly improved.

"What about Sir Charles Tupper?" asked the correspondent.

"His nomination would be open to two objections. Despite his well-known abilities it is well known that the unpleasantness existing between himself and a powerful corporation might become more intensified. Again, his selection would mean the withdrawal from active public life of his talented son, whose services the party cannot afford to lose.

C. H. Tupper said: "Sir Charles Tupper does not seek the Premiership. His inclinations are all the other way and if a contingency arose necessitating his presence here he would not come unless the Conservative party as a unit expressed itself in a most unqualified manner. If it were thought he could best direct affairs Sir Charles would, I have no doubt, make personal sacrifice. If his inclinations had been consulted he would not have participated in the election campaigns in 1887 and 1891, but personal reasons were made subordinate to what he considered, politically speaking was a deep sense of duty both to the Premier and the Conservative party.

Mr. Abbott said to your correspondent, "I am not in a position to communicate any intelligence with regard to the situation. Thus far I am not aware that Lord Stanley has taken any action. I may tell you that there are men in the late ministry more capable than myself at this juncture to form a government Personally I do not favor any provisional arrangement. I shall cheerfully support the Governor-General's choice."

SONS OF IRELAND.

Meeting of the Grand Lodge at Orangeville Yesterday.

ORANGEVILLE, June 12.—The Grand Lodge of the Sons of Ireland Protestant Association opened its annual meeting in Tyrone lodge room yesterday. The following grand lodge officers were present from Toronto: A. E. Whinton, grand president; A. R. Williamson, acting grand vice-president; John McFaul, grand secretary; Follis Johnston, grand treasurer; Rev. J. C. Madill, grand chaplain; Robert Dunlop, Thomas Rooney, grand lecturers. Each lodge of the association was represented by its full complement of delegates. Reports were received showing substantial progress in each lodge of the association during the past year and a rapid growth in membership. Grand President Whinton, Grand Secretary McFaul and Treasurer Johnston submitted their annual reports, which were found satisfactory and adopted. The Grand Lodge devoted its attention to the proposed amendments to the constitution, adopting some and rejecting others. Those pertaining to the benefits were exhaustively discussed, and the changes tend to the material advancement of the order. The election of officers for the ensuing term resulted as follows: A. E. Whinton, Toronto, grand president; Robert Dunlop, Toronto, grand vice-president; John Philips, Toronto, grand secretary; Follis Johnston, Toronto, grand treasurer; Rev. J. C. Madill, Toronto, grand chaplain; Robert Kerr, A. R. Williamson, Toronto, grand lecturers. William Harding, Orangeville, grand director of ceremonies; Joseph Nelson, Thomas Rooney, Samuel Wright, Toronto, grand trustees; A. Hugh son, Orangeville, J. M. Dixon, Toronto, auditors.

FELL FROM THE BOAT.

While Testing His Invention a Port Hope Man is Drowned.

PORT HOPE, June 12.—James Donaldson, aged 50, rowed out on the lake last evening to test a new boat which he had built himself and just launched. When last seen he was sitting on the edge of his boat and it is supposed he overbalanced and fell into the lake. His cries for help were heard by a couple of small boys but before assistance arrived he had gone to the bottom. His body was found after an hour's search.

A PECULIAR DEATH.

Remarkable Death of An Orillia Man from a Trifling Wound.

ORILLIA, Ont., June 12.—Charles Sweet in company with several other gentlemen went over to Horse Shoe Island to camp. One of the party had been cutting tobacco and left his knife on the ground inside the tent. Mr. Sweet in turning over ran the blade of the knife about a quarter of an inch into his arm. Nothing was thought of it at the time as the wound did not bleed at all, and was not painful, but the next day Mr. Sweet complained of it and a doctor being consulted pronounced it a case of blood poisoning. He gradually grew worse and died in a few days.

Swept Over the Falls.

OTTAWA, June 12.—A gang of men employed on the Gatineau by Ald. Bingham were engaged at the head of Aylen's chute, about one and a half miles below Kazabazua Creek, yesterday morning bringing down the logs. This chute has three falls narrowing at the bottom, each one of which is worse that the Chaudiere. By some means two men named Paquette and Tremblay were swept over the boiling waters and dashed to death below.

Drowned in the Thames.

BOTHWELL, June 12.—A girl named Annie Austin, aged 18, was drowned in the River Thames about two miles from here to-day. She had taken off her shoes to wade across. The current had evidently taken her off her feet. Some parcels were found and a search was then made for her body, which was found about half a mile below where she had undertaken to cross.

Dropped Dead.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL IN THE COMMONS.

Religious Bodies in Various Sections of the United Kingdom Score Wales Unmercifully for His Share in the Affair—The End is Evidently Not Yet.

LEEDS, June 12.—The police have arrested a weaver named Turner on charge of murdering the little child Barbara Waterhouse.

The Baccarat Scandal to be Brought up in the House of Commons.

LONDON, June 12.—It is understood the Prince of Wales is keenly stunned at the adverse press criticisms which have been showered upon him from all quarters. Especially is this the case in regard to newspaper comments, which practically accuse him of revealing the secret of the Tranby Croft scandal, and referring to the fact that the Prince was not asked if he had spoken of the affair to anybody after Sir William Gordon Cumming signed the incriminating document, while this question was put to all the other witnesses for the defendants. The Prince of Wales emphatically denies that he divulged the secret to anybody.

In the House of Commons Monday next William Summers (Liberal) and Henry Peyton Cobb (Radical Nonconformist) will question the Secretary of State for War as to what action he intends to take in regard to the three officers, the Field Marshal the Prince of Wales, Gen. Owen Williams and Lieut. Berkeley-Levett of the Scots Fusilier Guards, who signed the document which practically allowed Sir William Gordon Cumming to remain an officer of the British army, although he was believed to have cheated at cards, and as to what action he intends to take in regard to the same officers for having broken the army regulations requiring that such a case should be brought to the notice of the commanding officers.

Several Radical members of the House of Commons have met and decided to put a series of questions to the Government bearing upon the responsibility which the Tranby Croft party incurred in concealing Sir William Gordon Cumming's offence, and the question of military discipline involved. If the replies are unsatisfactory they will move an adjournment. It is understood the Liberal leaders will hold aloof from the contemplated censure of the Prince of Wales.

The Official Gazette announces, under date of June 10, that the name of Sir William Gordon Cumming had been removed from the list of officers in the army, as Her Majesty has no further occasion for his services.

The Southern Baptist Association has passed a resolution condemning the Prince of Wales for the part he took in the baccarat scandal and instructing the secretary of the association to send the Prince a copy of the resolution.

Sir William Gordon Cumming has requested the people of Forres, Scotland, not to take any steps to celebrate the arrival of Lady Gordon Cumming and himself at their future residence.

A MANITOBA MURDER.

A Young Englishman Murders His Employer's Sister-in Law.

MARQUETTE, Man., June 11.—James Tadgell, a farmer living near Woodland's post office, left his house at 6 p.m. yesterday to attend a trustee meeting, leaving his sister-in-law and a young Englishman about 17 years of age, whom he was bringing up, at home. When he returned about 7.30 o'clock he could find neither. On a search being made blood was found near the door, covered with earth, and also on the kerbstone on the well, and on a pail of butter down in the well. A light was lowered into the well and the young girl's body was found head downwards in the water. Tadgell's watch and gun were gone. A neighbor named Edward Langley heard two shots fired shortly after 6 o'clock, and there is no doubt the young Englishman is the murderer.

The woman's name was Mrs. Anna Rodway and her home is in Philadelphia. Her murderer, whose name is Fattenden, has been arrested and has made a full confession.

THEY KISSED EACH OTHER.

While the Scoundrel Who Deceived Both Was Sent to Prison.

HAMILTON, June 12.—At the Sessions today Daniel Hickey, a gallus-looking young man, was put on trial for abducting and seducing Sarah Jane Badgley, a very pretty young girl about 16 years of age. Hickey had deserted his wife and two children in Toronto and came here. The prisoner went to board at the Badgley house, 107 Johnstreet north, and passed as a bachelor. On May 6 he persuaded the girl to elope with him and took her to a hotel in Stuart street where they stayed all night and then went to Dunnville.

The prisoner's wife was in court, but was not called. Chief McKinnon found her at 40 Broadway-street, Toronto, yesterday, where she is living poorly, supporting her two children by her own work. There was a very affecting scene in the Crown Attorney's room when the wife and the girl who had been seduced by the prisoner met each other. Mrs. Hickey is very good-looking and ladylike in appearance. The two young women kissed each other and had a good cry together.

The prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to the full extent of the law, two years lacking one day, in Central Prison.

A MISSING LAWYER.

A PARIS COUNCILLOR TAKES FRENCH LEAVE.

Said to Have Swindled His Clients Out of Seven Thousand Dollars in Cold Cash—He was a Society Leader and Universally Popular in the Neighborhood.

PARIS, Ont., June 12.—John MacMillan, one of the best-known legal men in this section and a member of the Paris council is missing. About 10 years ago Mr. MacMillan began practice in Paris. He succeeded in the business and office of a lawyer named Hart, who "tripped out" shortly before that time, taking with him several thousands of dollars belonging to clients, and has since, it is said, been living comfortably on the other side. Everything seemed to go well with MacMillan until within a year or two ago, when he began to develop an affection for the "flowing bowl," which caused his friends much anxiety, and which resulted in financial embarrassments. Almost 18 months ago, it is said, he obtained a loan of close upon $1600 from Mr. S. C. Smoke, barrister, of Toronto, in consideration of which he assigned to that gentleman his furniture, library and business. Things did not mend in the months that followed, though on the outside everything appeared favorable and prospects were good. Things went well until May 20, when MacMillan left Paris for Ayr, ostensibly on business. He was seen in Toronto on the same day by a number of the deputationists who were interviewing the Premier regarding suburban annexation. MacMillan has not been seen in these parts since.

For a day or two his absence was not particularly noticed. Upon enquiry he was said to be at Toronto on business, a statement which the office staff firmly believed, as it was no unusual thing for him to absent himself for days at a time, and without a knowledge of his whereabouts by his partner. When the absence became longer some anxiety was felt about his return. This feeling gave rise to some suspicion among those for whom he was doing financial business. Mrs. Cameron of Chicago, formerly of Paris, wrote him several times for remittances of several hundreds of dollars of which he had possession. No reply was vouchsafed and young Mr. Cameron came from Chicago, to find Mr. MacMillan gone and no signs of his mother's money.

Besides this money and the mortgage granted Mr. Smoke, which is quite a legitimate transaction, it is alleged that the Gouinlock estate is short $1500; Mr. Huson, Paris, $700; the Capron estate close upon $3000, the bank overdrawn $150 and several other parties smaller sums. The alleged defalcations and the debts together will, it is understood, amount to close upon $7000. It is said that most of the money which is not accounted for was collected from the various properties in the shape of rent, and that in the case of the larger amounts he gave the owners and representatives notes for the amounts and put their moneys, it is alleged, to his own uses. Mr. S. C. Smoke of Toronto, who held the mortgage on the office, came to Paris and took possession of the premises and is now running the business, which has been placed under the control of his younger brother, Mr. Franklin Smoke. Mr. Green, who was MacMillan's partner, retired from the business when Mr. Smoke made his appearance.

The whole affair has caused the greatest pain and not a little sensation in Paris. Mr. MacMillan enjoyed so much of the public confidence that he might have been trusted with anything. He is a bachelor, but has always kept a good style, and has all along been known as kind and generous to relatives dependent upon him. He was popular in local society circles and occupied a seat at the town council for the past year or so. He is supposed to have gone to the States, but nothing definite is known.

AWFUL DEATH.

A Walkerton Marble Dealer Precipitated Over a Precipice.

KINCARDINE, June 12.—David McConnell, marble-dealer of Walkerton, left here about 11 o'clock last night to drive to his home in Walkerton. This morning his dead body was found lying in the Penetangore River. His horse was standing over him, while the buggy was smashed. It appears that he dropped asleep and the horse wandered off the road and walked a considerable distance along the bank of the river to the northeast corner of the high school premises, when the buggy fell over the precipice, dragging the horse after it, a fall of over 50 feet. McConnell must have been killed instantaneously, having fallen on the stones on the river side. The horse was uninjured.

SAM SMALL.

The Committee Reports That His Accounts Are All Right.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Atelegram addressed to Rev. Sam Small, 1905 Diamond-street, yesterday afternoon, from Lawyer Thomas Maloney, Ogden, Utah, states that the committee appointed by the Utah M. E. Conference, consisting of Bishop Andrews, Rev. Dr. Diff and Thomas Maloney, to audit accounts in connection with the Utah University, report that they have carefully examined the accounts of the institution and find the same correct.

This, it is said, ends the charge of dishonesty made by Rev. Wesley Hill, pastor of the Ogden M. E. Church, and completely exonerates Rev. Dr. Small from any wrongdoing.

The charges of Rev. Mr. Hill were that Dr. Small misappropriated money while president of the University of Utah.

Chinese Missions Attacked.

LONDON, June 12.—Despatches from Shang hai announce fresh excesses upon the part of the anti-European element in the population of China. Attacks upon the Christian missions in the interior continue. In one case the Chinese troops sent to repress the rioters sided with them and made matters still worse. More serious rioting has occurred at Takange, where the lady missionaries were compelled to flee for their lives. About the neighborhood of Lake Poyang several missionary establishments have been looted and burned by the riotous Chinese.

Drowned in Gull Lake.

LINDSAY, June 12.—Miss Leary, eldest daughter of Mr. T. Leary of Moore's Falls, went down to Moore's Lake, about four rods from the door, to draw a pail of water. Not returning, the family and some friends went out to the lake shore where they saw the pail floating off shore. At the foot of a steep rocky ledge the body of Miss Leary was found standing in water about 6 feet deep she having slipped off the ledge.

Had His Jaw Taken Out.

HAMILTON, June 12.—James A. Snider, flour and feed dealer, York-street, has been suffering from pains in his lower jaw, and it was found that Mr. Snider was suffering from a cancer in the jaw. To save his life it was decided that the affected portion of the jaw must be removed. The operation was performed by five city physicians. The left side of the lower jaw, from the ear to the chin, was cut out. In order to facilitate the operation it was necessary to cut a hole in the tongue, through which a string was run to tie the organ out of the way. Mr. Snider is in a critical condition.

The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders must at fall three to be highly satisfactory. SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1891.

A SCARCITY OF COUNSELLORS.

SIR John Macdonald's dominant greatness over all his late political colleagues, while it is a matter of great credit to him has an exceedingly awkward effect. While it places the abilities of the late chief of the Conservative party in a most brilliant light, it places the party in a very uncomplimentary light. The late Chieftain made, and has kept, his party together by virtue of qualities that have never been surpassed. The value of his services in this respect is only emphasized by the chaos that strikes the party when the guiding, sustaining and cohering hand is withdrawn. There is not a single man that can be selected, who is able to take up the tangled threads into which the party reins have been shredded, and guide the Cabinet team, not to speak of the impossible task of getting such a team together. There is, however, no end of names of leaders mentioned. But for every one named there rises some fatal objection—this one is too unpopular with the party; that one is at daggers drawn with another who, such is the scarcity of material, must form a member of any cabinet that can be got together; another is under indictment for crimes and misdemeanours and it would never do for "the party of gentlemen" to select a leader from the prisoner's dock; another is too politically unsavoury to be relished even by the palates of politicians accustomed to pabulum in a "high" condition; another looks this and another has too much of that, and so on through the political gamut. The dilemma in which the Conservative party is found at this moment seems to argue that while they may have, as they arrogate to themselves, all the loyalty and old flag virtue extant in Canada, they by no means possess a monopoly of brains. In matters of loyalty et hoc genus omne, they have a monopoly of mouth, but they would ignominiously fail to work up a corner in the very necessary commodity of brains. A few days, however, must bring a solution of the crisis, and we can afford to possess our souls in patience. Meanwhile the country is, in one sense, without a constitutional government. His Excellency, the Governor-General, has no constitutional advisers. It is to be hoped that he will take counsel of an honest conscience and make the best possible selection of a prime minister that the heterogeneous and not altogether, hopeful material at his command will permits him to do.

THE expenditure for the year ended June 30th, 1890, charged to consolidated fund, amounted to $35 994 000 The estimates for the year ended June 30th, 1891, including supplementary estimates, amounted to $37,234,000. The estimates for the year ending June 30th, 1892, amounted to $36,931,000, and supplementary estimates brought down the other day will add $1,624,000 to this amount, making a total for 1891 92 of $38 555,000—and additional supplementary estimates are possible, at least the local "faithful," who still believe in the Dominion Government, hopes for the supplementary estimates to yet bring a "business" appropriation for continuing work on the Trent Valley Canal. Evidently the Government have no intention of economizing, except, of course, in the matter of the Trent Valley Canal, notwithstanding that the revenue for the ten months of the current fiscal year shows a decline of $888 358, while the expenditure shows an increase of $232,282. The net debt of the Dominion on May 31, was $234,142,372, an increase of $393,036 over what it was at the end of May, 1890. If the process indicated by these figures is kept up very much longer Canada will soon reach the end of her financial tether.

Cast Off the Demon.

A well known American writer says: "It is fair to say that of the adult population not one person in ten is free from dyspepsia, and yet it is an entirely preventable disease, one for which there is absolutely no excuse."

Doctors who are called upon by dyspeptic people often err in their diagnosis and treat for some other ailment. To those who suffer from this dreaded trouble, it is almost unnecessary to describe any of the symptoms. It will be well however, to remind the sufferer of nausea, gnawing at the pit of the stomach, heartburn, variable appetite, dizziness, furred tongue, constipation and sallow skin. For dyspepsia and its attendant troubles, that great scientific discovery, Paine's Celery Compound, goes direct to the root of the difficulty, and gives permanent relief. No other remedy of the present day has been so successful for the cure of this terrible disease. It does its work thoroughly, and builds up the body with flesh, bone and muscle; it gives strength to the nerves, and a look of freshness to the countenance which no other medicine can give. Try it, dyspeptic sufferer, the result will make you happy!

Uneasiness at Ottawa

A Struggle for First Place Among the Place Men.

A despatch from Ottawa states:

OTTAWA, June 11.—The Citizen this morning gave strong proof of the dissatisfaction that exists in the Tory ranks as regards the line of succession. The Citizen unmistakeably indicates the serious and threatening character of the elements of dissension that are at work in the Tory camp, and calls a truce of the conflicting race and creed prejudices which menace the autonomy of the party. The publication in the Government organ at this moment of such a note of warning, and the circumstances which necessitated it, are certainly full of significance.

After referring to the great loss the party has sustained, the Citizen says:

"Self-interest, self-promotion, self aggrandisement must be put aside, and the men or men who so further their own interests for one moment jeopardize the autonomy of the Conservative party, must not be surprised if those who are loyal and true refuse to surrender their consciences and their privileges into questionable keeping. A few plain words now may save much trouble, much misunderstanding, much apprehension in the future. Every honest man will feel that a sacred obligation is violated if for one moment there is even an individual who swerves from his allegiance. We would counsel firmness; we counsel conciliation and consolidation, and when the time comes, as come it must within a few days, let there be no disagreement, no selfish grouping after individual aims, but the one potent and patriotic motive of doing that which is best for the collective and not the individual interests."

The friends of Sir Hector Langevin are insisting upon his pressing his claims to the leadership. They point out that his wavering not only plays into the hands of his opponents in the Cabinet, but is an admission of guilt before the verdict of the Parliamentary court now investigating the charges against him has been rendered. There is certainly a big Langevin boom, and one of Chapleau's strongest supporters and confidential friends told me to-day that while there was no doubt Lord Stanley would send for Sir Hector, he would find, after looking about for two or three days, that he could not form a Government. Anyway it may safely be said that another adjournment will be asked for on Tuesday, but it will only be agreed to from day to day.

Sir Adolphe is now to be found tucked on to Sir Hector's skirts. He went over to the Chapleau camp in the hope of saving his neck, but was informed that he was not wanted. Failing in this alliance, he falls back upon Sir Hector, and the question is now asked how the conciliation was effected!

The fight for vantage ground between the two great political parties almost sinks into insignificance before the bitter war that is now waging between the various elements working for ascendancy in the Tory party. Sir Hector, however, holds his future in his own hand. The Chapleau faction are doing their best to intimidate him and secure his consent to stand aside, a self-convicted man, branded guilty by his own acts and admissions. If he yields he becomes a political outcast; if he stands his ground and insists upon that right which custom and courtesy concedes him he has an opportunity of forming a Government equally as strong out of the material at his disposal as any Cabinet that could be formed under the leadership of any other member of the party.

I hear many Tory members talking coalition. This comes from the more moderate Conservatives. One prominent Conservative member from the Maritime Provinces told me this morning that there was a strong disposition in favor of a coalition on his side of the House. He believed that the interests of the country now demanded it. There was splendid material to be drawn from both sides, and a Cabinet formed out of the available material could stand for all ages. There are the views entertained by a very large number of the Conservative members, but what does it mean? Simply that they are alive to the dangers which threaten their party, and the absolute certainty that the ship cannot hold together much longer, and rather than accept an ignominious defeat they accept the other alternative, coalition. Evidences of weakness in the Tory ranks are abundant. There is no lack of proof of what an unhappy and divided family they are,

Ayer's Hair Vigor

IS the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken; and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—T. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for a dressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," McArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Weak Women

The more sensitive nature of the female sex renders women much more susceptible than men to those numerous ills which spring from lack of harmony in the system. The nervous system gives way, sick headache is frequent, the appetite is lost, and other ailments peculiar to the sex cause great suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for such cases, and has received the most gratifying praise for the relief it has afforded thousands of women whose very existence before taking it was only misery. It strengthens the nerves, cures sick headache and indigestion, purifies and vitalizes the blood, and gives regular and healthy action to every organ in the body.

Red and rosy cheeks follow the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are nature's remedy for driving out all diseases resulting from poor and watery blood, enriching that vital fluid, building up the nerves and promptly correcting irregularities, suppressions and the ills peculiar to females. Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing The Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Brockville, Ont. 6d1w

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. and $1 a package. dw

THE "ARIZONA KICKER."

Some of the Wild Ways of Western Journalism.

LAST December, when we had completed the repairs to the picket fence surrounding our private graveyard and counted up the graves we announced our earnest hope that the number would never exceed nine. We never really wanted to kill any one of the batch, much preferring to live at peace with all mankind, but it was a case of "shoot first or go under" in each and every instance, and it becomes our duty to shoot.

Everybody knows that we have done the square thing when compelled to outfit a man for the far-off country. We have bought coffins, furnished shrouds, got up funeral processions and planted the immigrant on our own private lot, where his headboard would not be taken by the cowboys for a euchre-table nor his bones become the prey of the coyotes. It is needless to add that we shall continue to pursue this liberal policy in the future, while the subscription price of the Kicker will still remain at $2 per year.

As stated at the beginning, we hoped to keep the number down to nine, but circumstances over which we had no control erected a tenth headboard the other day. In writing up Col. Woodhouse's new ranch, two weeks ago, we jocularly referred to a cowboy as "Cock Eyed Bill." It seems that his proper title is "Squint-Eyed William," and he took offense at our license. We have invariably noticed that when we attempt anything jocular somebody dies before the month expires, and we shall now swear off.

Bright and early Monday morning the gentleman with the imperfect optics opened the front door of our office with a great deal of useless energy, and before we could give him C. O. D. rates on a half column ad. he began banging away at us. We know, from the way his first bullet chased its way through the straw hat we wear in the office, that he meant business, and we didn't allow any vision of the dear old home back in New England, with mother standing in the door, stop us from getting ready to return his courtesies.

William shot the hands off our office clock, split the ear of the Chinaman who turns the crank of our power-press and blasted the peaceful life of a yaller cat which we paid $4 for in Tucson last Fall; but when the cannonade had ceased William had gone down the long, dark trail to join his forefathers. We were, of course, promptly acquitted before the Coroner's jury, and we think we did the square thing when we got thirteen vehicles out to William's funeral.

ANOTHER LIE NAILED.

All our readers will bear witness to the fact that we have exercised the greatest patience in bearing the slurs and taunts of our esteemed weekly contemporary. On three different occasions we would have been perfectly justified in killing him, but we restrained our hand because we knew he owed his two compositors money which they would lose if he went under ground. We long ago decided to pay no further attention to him, no matter what he said; but there was an item in his last issue which calls for a word or two of explanation from us.

Our lop-eared, lop-shouldered, knock-kneed, slab-sided, ram-shackle, bald-headed, poverty-stricken, cross-eyed, web-footed, toothless old contemporary, with an average circulation of 217 copies weekly, against our tens of thousands (see our sworn statements), says that we were cowhided in our own sanctum three days ago by a lady named Miss Green, who is a music teacher lately arrived here from Indiana.

This statement is an insult to a young, beautiful and accomplished lady, who was at once accorded the entree of the best society in the town, and who came here with letters of the highest recommendation from respectable people. The above cut portrays her visit to this office.

Do we look cowhidy?

Is she attacking us?

Is there anything in this pastoral scene smacking of gore?

Miss Green called at the Kicker office in the most amiable mood and with the most peaceful intentions. She simply and sweetly desired us to publish one of her original poems, entitled "When the Hen's Egg Nests Again," and we were thrice glad to do so. It appears on our third page to-day and we feel that we cannot say too much in praise of it.

Thus do we confound, paralyze, upset, break in two and knock out the human hyena whose spiteful soul would blacken our private character before this community, and with it the fair reputation of an angel in female clothes. Words fail to express our contempt for this inhuman monster, but no advance will be made in our advertising rates.—New York World.

He Was Out of Order.

Teacher—Keep your hand down, John Billings; when I am ready, I will call upon you.

(Ten minutes later.)

John Billings—I only wanted to tell yer that I seed a tramp in der hallway hook yer gold-headed umbrella.

The New Moderator.

KINGSTON, June 10.—The eighteenth annual session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church opened this evening in St. Andrew's Church, a handsome stone structure on the corner of Princess and Clergy streets. Ten years ago the assembly met in Queen's University. It was in St. Andrew's Church in 1844 that the disruption occurred, now happily cemented. At 7.30 o'clock the opening service occurred. At it the retiring moderator, Rev. Dr. Laing of Dundas, preached a forcible sermon from Ephesians iv., 7-8.

There were a number of nominations made for position of moderator and the choice fell upon Rev. Dr. Wardrope of Guelph. Rev. Dr. Cowen was nominated, but withdrew. The choice lay between Dr. Wardrope and Rev Thomas Sedgewick of Tatamagouche, N.B. Dr. Wardrope had a very large majority. He has long filled the position of convener of the Foreign Mission Committee. The assembly will adjourn from 12 until 7 o'clock to-morrow evening, so that the members may attend the funeral of the late Sir [illegible]

LIFE IN URUGUAY.

Peasants Who Dwell in Little Mud Huts, Comfortless and Rheumatic.

Excursions across the territory of Uruguay reveal nothing of very great interest to the tourist, writes Theodore Child in Harper's. The landscape in parts is pretty: some finely situated estancias are to be seen along the banks of the Uruguay; the vicinity of the Rio Negro, too, is especially interesting and characteristic of the fertile parts of the territory, which present a similar combination of water, wood and rolling prairie. But, after all, one soon wearies of looking at the same kind of view hour after hour, league after league and province after province. The fences of posts and wire are varied sometimes by fences of aloes and cactus; the eucalyptus, the poplar and other trees are also planted to form fences, as in Chili; the roads, where one sees long teams of oxen toiling along with huge wagons, are as terrible as those of the Argentine; the prairies are dotted with innumerable herds of cattle and horses; occasionally you see two or three peasants wearing brown ponchos, riding and driving animals before them: at long intervals you see one or two ranchos, or huts, where the peasants live. In the Argentine the ranchos appeared miserable enough, but in Uruguay I saw many even more primitive mere huts of black mud, with a roof of maize straw, a floor of beaten earth, a doorway, but not always a window. The cabins of the Irish peasantry give some idea of the Uruguayan rancho. It is a comfortless, unhealthy, rheumatic dwelling, less civilized than that of the Esquimaux, and more carelessly built than the most ordinary bird's nest.

Von Moltke's Thrift.

It is related of Von Moltke that, after the capitulation of Paris in 1871, he went to Colmar, and meaning to stay there a few days, did not disdain to act for a billeting order. Mlle. R., however, upon whom the marshal was to have been quartered, would have nothing to say to him, and Moltke was fain to lodge and feed himself at a hotel—of course, at the lady's expense. He asked for four rooms on the first floor, invited people to breakfast and dinner and treated them to champagne—in short, the Teuton hero lived like a fighting-cock. But at the end of three days the landlord, who hated him, quietly took leave to remind is excellency that the term billeting order had now expired. Moltke replied with a dry cough and a demand for a small room on the second floor. During the remainder of his stay he dined friendless and champagneless at the table d'hote.

A Nice Point of Law.

OTTAWA, June 11.—A case involving a nice point of law is coming upon the County Court. Gallagher, a member of Ottawa, sues Deegan, a contractor of Grenville Junction, for a board bill. Deegan says he has paid, but further evidence is that, as his place is in a state of repair, no payment can be made to him, nor can the plaintiff collect.

Reduced Postage to Australia.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Advices from the fourth quinquennial Universal Postal Union Congress, now in session at Vienna, say the long-desired accession of the Australian colonies has been effected. This means a reduction of more than 50 per cent. in the rates of postage to those countries, the Postal Union rate being only 5 cents per half ounce for letters and 2 cents for postal cards.

He Did Not Call.

The man who tried Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and was sure of the $500 reward offered by the proprietors for an incurable case, never called for his money. Why not? O, because he got cured! He was sure of two things: (1) That his catarrh could not be cured. (2) That he would have that $500. He is now sure of one thing, and that is, that his catarrh is gone completely. So he is out $500, of course. The makers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have faith in their ability to cure the worst cases of Nasal Catarrh, no matter of how long standing, and attest their faith by their standing reward of $500, offered for many years past, for an incurable case of this loathsome and dangerous disease. The remedy is sold by druggists at only 50 cents. Mild, soothing, cleansing, deodorizing, antiseptic, and healing. o

HEAD OFFICE—168 Yonge St., Toronto

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT OF QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It has a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Five Days in the Water.

The body of little Frank Gilman, who was drowned at the foot of the Dickson dam Monday morning last, was found this morning about a hundred yards below the locks by Mr. Richard Martin. Mr. Martin was paddling down the river and found the body where it had been washed up on the Otonabee shore by the action of the water. He at once notified Mr. John Gilman, father of the unfortunate little fellow, who took the body home, and it was buried this afternoon. The boy's face was badly disfigured.

Entertainment at Lakefield.

A bus load of young people from town, and another from North Monaghan, drove to Lakefield last night for the purpose of attending a social under the auspices of the Mission Band of the Baptist Church in that village. The social was quite successful. Rev. Mr. Pallramam occupied the chair, and an interesting programme was rendered, in which Peterborough talent appeared prominently—Miss Batcher and Mr. Hoover in an instrumental duet; Miss Lillie Jackson and Miss Dallie Fowler (of Monaghan) in vocal solos. A number of recitations were given by pupils of the Mission Band. Ice cream and cake were served as refreshments.

Four Days or Two,

Since the vote last Tuesday night a doubt has been raised as to the advisability of the 57th Battalion spending four days at Ottawa, and there is a possibility that the vote may be re considered. The following from the Ottawa Journal has a bearing upon the matter. The Journal says:—"The 57th Battalion will return the Guards' visit on Dominion day. They had intended leaving on Saturday evening, 27th June, and leaving Ottawa on the evening of Dominion day, after spending four days here. They have been advised, however, that the sights of the Capital are not sufficiently numerous to keep them employed four days, and possibly their plans may be altered in consequence, although in any event they may be sure of a hearty welcome from the Guards and the city."

Dover Picnic.

Remember this great festal event will be held in the beautiful grove adjoining St. Martin's church, Dover, on Thursday, June 18th, the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo. A magnificent bill of attraction has been issued, appealing to the tastes of all—refreshments for every body, dancing to delightful music for the light hearted and light heeled, games for those with sporting panchants and social reunion, and rational enjoyment and rest for the more sedate and sober minded, and all will be conducted with a single eye to the public pleasure and profit under the watchful eye of the popular parish priest, Rev. Father Kelly. Be sure and fix your engagements with a view of attending this picnic. A special welcome to visitors from town.

Oddfellows' Decoration Day.

A joint meeting of the Decoration Day Committees of Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges of Oddfellows was held in the rooms of the latter last night to make arrangements for the annual Decoration Day. It was decided to fix the date of the day on Friday, June 26th, the programme of events to follow the general lines of the similar occasions of former years. The committee adjourned to meet again on Tuesday evening next to complete arrangements. The general public will look forward to the day with great pleasure, and already there are scores of young eyes watching the development of the bloom of the ox-eyed daisies on Vatican Park, Gilmour street, whose bloom is in great demand for Decoration Day, which make such an exhaustive demand on the floral resources of the town.

Ashburnia Lodge, I. O. G. T.

The lodge meets every Friday evening in the council chamber. The application for charter contains 30 names. The Organizer, Mr. Dowd, wishes to thank the members of Carswell Lodge for their assistance, and especially Bro. R. Munro, to whose untiring efforts the organization is mainly due.

The Fire Alarm System.

Thursday's thunderstorm played havoc with the telephone wires, but the Bell Company soon overcome the damage and had the entire system tested. The fire alarm was tested and is now in perfect working order. It has been made much more efficient by the placing of an alarm in the police station where some one is always on duty. Now when an alarm is rung from any of the ward boxes the alarm is at once sounded in the firemen's homes and the fire hall, and in the police station and it is the duty of the policemen to at once ring the general alarm bell. Now, to make the system complete, something must be done with the bell in the town hall tower. It must be placed where it can be heard, and the idea of attaching an automatic electrical ringing apparatus should be considered. This electric apparatus would cost little, and the maintenance of a gravity battery to operate it would amount to only a few dollars a year. Let us be a live town and live up to our privileges and keep ahead, as we now are, of all other towns in Canada.

The Glorious 1st of July.

On Dominion Day there will be held, in keeping with former years, the annual picnic of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral in the aid of St. Joseph's Hospital, on the grounds adjoining that institution. It is not necessary to say much regarding this "annual day of pleasurable rest." Everybody knows, and everybody says—and what everybody says must be true—that the pleasure to be had by attending the pic-nic is of a more enjoyable nature than that of all the pic-nics of the season put together. The posters will be out in colours of brilliant red in a few days, and just glance over the list of events and the list of prizes offered to the successful competitors in running, jumping, dancing, in baseball, handball, football, and—no, not snowball Watch and wait for it. Make no calculation towards spending the day out of town until you see what is in store for all those who go over to the St. Joseph Hospital on Dominion Day, Wednesday, July 1st. Rev. Father Rodkins will be present to take the oversight of affairs, and as usual see that nothing left undone to promote the pleasure of those who attend this great picnic.

Court House Park.

A straight-laced lady was heard yesterday complaining that the money spent on the adornment of Court House Park would be better given to the poor. Bless your good, narrow soul, madam, if you had been at the park last night and seen the barefooted gamins gamboling over the grass, mingling their happy shouts with the music of the band, you would have thought the park was for the poor. The rich man has his fine grounds, but he gets no more pleasure from them than the poorest in town from the Court House Park, except that Dives has his title deeds in his strong box and has the pleasure of gloating over them. The park costs considerable money, but it is money well spent. Take, for instance, the large central bed just planted; one would hardly think that the cost of arranging that bed and planting it is just $105 30. But such is the case, and it was planted in sixteen hours by Mr. Robert Warrington, Mr. Mason's foreman. The design is very neat, the chief centre being composed of six varieties of coleus arranged in segments, exactly the shape of a circular pie cut into six pieces. This is surrounded by a deep border composed of four varieties of alternanthera, set in geometrical patterns, the periphery of the whole being a closely set row of echeveria. The design is very tasteful, and the whole (one thousand seven hundred plants) was set by the eye without a circle being drawn in the soil. The condition of the award in the park is referred to by a correspondent's letter in another column

The Ministerial Crisis.

Hon. J. J. C. Abbott Reported to have Been Sent For—A Sensational Makeshift.

(By Telegraph to the Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., June 12, 1891.—It is understood that in conformity with His Excellency's desire, Hon. J. J. C. Abbott has undertaken the formation of a cabinet, and that this decision has been arrived at with a full understanding with those of his colleagues who have been spoken of in connection with the premiership, and with assurances from them of their cordial support.

[Sufficient comment on the above is furnished by the following from the Ottawa Citizen, the Government organ at the capital of June 12th, under the heading of the "Duty of the hour." Mr. Macdonald through his organ says:—

"A provisional Prime Minister will be a public proclamation of weakness, a flag of truce never yet displayed by Conservatives."

Closing of the Schools.

The Children to Signalize the Occasion by an Entertainment, Musical Calisthenical, Educational.

The closing of the public and high school term will be marked this year by a splendid entertainment to be given on Thursday evening, June 30th. The musical portion of the programme is under the management of Mr. Ketcham, who has had the children in training for some time. Three general rehearsals have been held, the third having been held in the opera house this afternoon. There are about 300 children in the choruses, of which there will be about five or six ready to be presented. Sergt.-Major Randle has charge of the calisthenic department of the entertainment and will doubtless present, as he is accustomed to do, several striking features in this line. Parents of children are requested to encourage their children to attend the rehearsals. The training in the musical knowledge and muscular development received will amply repay any sacrifice that may be necessary to permit the attendance of the children in some instances. The public may confidently look forward to this entertainment with great pleasure.

Taking in the Strangers.

Reception Tendered the Employees of the Edison Company by the Y.M.C.A.

The reception to the employees of the Edison Company Friday night was a very pleasant affair. The hall was tastily decorated with bunting and other articles of ornamentation, while the platform was filled with potted plants. There was a good attendance of young men from the Edison works, and all were warmly received by the committee of the Association which was present to welcome their guests. During the evening addresses of welcome were given by Messrs. O. C. Rowse, Sheriff Hall, G. M. Roger, G. A. Smith, Rev. Messrs. J. C. Davidson, J. E. Trotter and A. McWilliams, and by the President and General Secretary of the Association. Rev. Mr. Locke was present, but had to leave early. The kindly worded addresses were replied to by Mr. Tavey on behalf of the Edison Company's employees. Selections by the Y.M.C.A. band were interspersed through the speeches. The proceedings lasted till about ten o'clock, after which the Ladies' Auxiliary provided refreshments in the shape of cake and lemonade. The reception will doubtless have a good effect in making the young men feel that, though strangers here, they have yet true and warm-hearted friends in the Y. M. C. A., upon whom they can always rely for a hearty welcome, and whose rooms are always open to them.

A Peterboronian's Soliloquy.

On hearing of the excursion of the Library Committee of the Charlotte street church, on July 1st to Stony Lake. Fare 80c., return.

To go, or not to go: this is the question,
Whether it is better to remain at home
And bear the pain that loneliness doth bring,
Or take away from self a ticket fare,
Which will not let me lonely be some more.
Now let me think. I place within this scale
The good I gain; in this the "comforts" found.
That as a stay-at home I must give o'er;
There's pleasure—one; there's energising health—that's two;
There's friends to make—three; can capture fish, immense,
Well, no, methinks I'll count not that as "good;"
Will nature's beauties see, and lie beneath trees green—
Which may together counted be as four.
Can bathe and gambol, five, as long as it doth last,
But then good-bye, the lazyman's content;
Adieu, the lack of relish for one's meals, for other foods demand,
Farewell, the jawing of the lady of the house;
And an revoir, moroseness by the hearth.
My temper, too, will crankey be and sour,
And I will have to leave, ejected e'en by force.
I'll find himself,—but hold!—the spell is past.
The madness seizeth me at times, but when I gaze upon myself, in my mind's eye,
Ensconsed at home, alone, and moping all the day,
Is truth to me, I am myself again—
A ticket bought, the happiest man in town.

The Band in the Park.

The Relation and Duty of the Public to the Band and its Maintenance.

Last night Court House Park was thronged with thousands, of all ages, sexes and conditions to listen to the fine programme of music presented by the band. The several selections performed were executed with excellent effect. The programme was sufficiently varied to suit all tates, ranging from classic to burlesque. A selection, consisting of a fantasia in religious airs, including "Son of my Soul," Pleyel's Hymn, "Coronation, "Rock of Ages," etc., to the number of twelve or fourteen, was rendered by the band, in excellent style, and the public can hardly believe that this selection was played at sight, so well was it performed, the shading under the circumstances being excellent. The harmonies in some of these selections is magnificent. It is remarked by some that there is a great absence of applause in the park at the conclusion of the music. This is the fact, but it is not an indication of lack of appreciation. One who, with his ears open, mingles among the people can hear on every side expressions of high opinion of the band's playing, and delight at the pleasure received. Those who make the most fuss do not always feel the most deeply; and there is a possibility of deep, quiet enjoyment, incompatable with noisy demonstration.

And it is possible that a draft will be made on the bank of public appreciation before long. Long ago the EXAMINER helped in the advocacy of small reeds for the band, and the response has enabled the band to procure these instruments. Now, to properly balance the band — to modify the smaller reeds, as these were required to tone down the brass—there is required three or four saxaphones to balance the reeds. These are absolutely required to properly equip the band, and it is these that distinguish a first class band from the equipment of the ordinary bucolic bronze organization. They should be procured as soon as possible so that they can be put in hand for winter practice and be incorporated in the band for its out-door playing next summer. These instrument are expensive and the current funds of the band are quite inadequate to meet the cost. Therefore the public are expected to do their share and contribute to a fund to purchase these instruments. The public without charge are treated to semi-weekly concerts of high character in the most beautiful surroundings to be found in Canada and they would not naturally care to be placed under an obligation of this kind without in some way returning the compliment. The purchase of these instruments is an opportunity and this hint is thrown out to be taken up by some person or persons and turned to practical account. The ladies as the head and front and fountain of all good works are expected to lead in the matter and there is no reason why the young persons who par excellence seem to appreciate the advantages of band night in the park should not make a concerted effort to accumulate funds for the purchase of the required saxaphones for the band. The instruments are expensive—ranging, from the cheapest, from $75 to $100. The total cost of four would be between $350 and $400. What lady of influence and energy will move in the matter?

The Court House Park.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Allow me through your columns to call attention to the mistaken idea the Court House authorities have at present of pleasing the public eye. Too much time is wasted tinkering with long and short flower beds, to the neglect of the grass. As a matter of fact full advantage is not by any means taken of the water. It is not nice to see brown and grey spots and patches where there should be a sweep of refreshing green. The reason I write is that the faults may easily be corrected by the use of water and care. I hope the authorities will not think this communication too interfering.

Yours, etc.,
SMILAX.

They are not Orangemen.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—I feel it my duty to correct an error in yesterday's Empire concerning the Orange representatives from this county at the late Sir John Macdonald's funeral in Kingston. The whole of the names mentioned in the Empire were not mentioned in the lodge at the time of appointment and although there is no reason to doubt but that the first named in the report are as good Orangemen as the last named, yet it is an injustice to those gentleman to have their names thus appear, as they do not belong to the Orange Order, and therefore could not be representatives, unless the rightful delegates, through their usual mighty influence, have prevailed on them to join the order, which if done would be a great boon to the society; for if we had a few men of such principles as they possess, I believe the order would be very much benefited. I understand also that the first named gentleman on the list, this morning purchased one of the Indian saddles sold on the market square by Mr. Wainright, which he says he wants to use on the 12th of July when he expects to lead the Orange procession.

Yours, etc.,
ORANGEMAN.

The Early Closing Movement.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—At the meeting of the W. C. T. U. on Monday last I was much pleased to learn that the early closing movement, inaugurated by the ladies, is meeting with much favour among the merchants. The canvassing committee has but partly done its work and reports success so far.

There is another class of establishments to which early closing would be a boon, and this class might easily be overlooked. I refer to the dressmakers' shops. Every Saturday night, especially in the busy season, delicate girls in these shops work on till near midnight, under pressure, to finish dresses that must be worn on the Sabbath. And this they do without pay for overtime. These girls are as unfit for Sabbath duties as are those who stand behind the counters. Now, I fancy somebody will say in righteous indignation, "Yes, that is so, and should not be allowed."

Dear madam, do you know why it is allowed and considered necessary? Because you "must have that dress on Saturday, as you have really nothing to wear on Sunday."

Sisters, if your experience is like mine, we must all plead guilty of this offence. Let us not blame, altogether, the mistresses of these establishments for late hours. The fault lies, to a great extent, in us. Have we not repeatedly had dresses sent home to us at eleven or twelve o'clock on Saturday night? I confess, with shame, to having one sent home at ten o'clock on Sunday morning. I never imagined it any of my business when it came, and went to church in it with a serenity of mind to be envied, with never a thought of the little woman who had worked until one o'clock that morning, and was too tired for church. That was some time ago. Now that the arrest of thought has come to me, I could not do such a thing.

How many of you can make like confessions, and what shall be done about it? I hear of one dressmaker who works evenings herself but never asks her girls to do so. All honor to her, and I hope the day may soon come when we shall understand our relations to one another and humanity at large that none shall be obliged to imperil their spiritual as well as physical health on account of the thoughtlessness and selfishness of others.

Yours, for humanity,
WHITE RIBBONER.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." B. C. BEGOLS, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 99 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores—Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little arms and hands in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a band of like of bleeding eruption, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was one raw sore so to be absolutely disfiguring to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Shortt to me:—"I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said that he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe that she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Westover, druggist.

THE NEW PREMIER.

MR. CHAPLEAU HAS NOT YET AGREED TO ACT.

He Meets With a Painful Accident at Montreal, Spraining His Ankle Mr. Abbott Resigns His Directorship on the Canada Pacific Railway.

OTTAWA, June 14.—Hon. J. J. C. Abbott having undertaken the formation of a new Cabinet, the next question is as to the composition of that Cabinet. The new Premier himself stated yesterday that constitutional usage provided that the House should be taken into confidence when that announcement was made. The names of the new Ministry will, therefore, not be known officially until Tuesday. In the meantime straws indicate how the wind blows. Mr. Abbott's statement that he had undertaken the task with a full understanding with those of his colleagues whose names had been mentioned in connection with the Premiership and with assurances of their cordial support, means, of course, that Sir John Thompson and Sir Hector Langevin will form part of the new administration. It is a fact that all the old Ministers have been asked to join the new administration and it remains with them to say whether they will or not. Mr. Abbott stated to-day that the formation of the new Cabinet had not been completed. It is probable that with one exception the personnel will remain the same until after prorogation, at least. Sir Adolphe Caron has been drawn closer to Sir Hector Langevin than formerly by the course of recent events. He was closeted with Sir Hector for several hours on Friday and this afternoon had another long consultation with him. He will not go, for the present at least. There is no doubt that those members of the late Government whom the Opposition papers have designated "useless timber" will also form part of the new one. They have been invited—that means they have accepted.

Mr. Chapleau is the exception spoken of. He has not yet accepted the invitation to join with Mr. Abbott. He went to Montreal Saturday evening to consult with his friends.

Before leaving he said he adhered to the opinion he expressed a few days ago, that "Sir John Thompson to my mind is the only man who can give a guarantee of stability in the reorganization of the Government and of the party." Mr. Chapleau added that if a man's religion was a bar to his acceptance of a Premiership it was time the fact was known. Whether he will accept office or not will depend upon the consultation he had with his friends in Montreal.

The temperature of the Commons chamber to-day leads members to wonder when prorogation will arrive. The huge thermometer at the side of the Speaker indicated 81 at 9 o'clock to-night, although the chamber was entirely deserted and every air duct and ventilator was open. The Opposition, however, is averse to an early adjournment. They are anxious, for one thing, to see the end of the Tarte-McGreevy scandal. So far the investigation has not got beyond a beginning. It is impossible to say how long it will last.

Hon. Mr. Abbott, the Premier-elect, spent Sunday quietly at his office in the Senate. He spent several hours with Hon. Speaker Lacoste, and his callers included Hon. Mackenzie Bowell and Mr. Kenny, M.P. In the meantime Hon. Mr. Abbott has cabled to London, England, ordering his broker to sell all his stock in the Canadian Pacific Railway. President Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific Railway has also received Mr. Abbott's resignation as a director of the company.

Sir John Thompson, it is very generally understood, was approached by His Excellency with the object of inducing the ex-Minister of Justice to form a ministry. He did not entertain any strong desire to become Premier, in fact all his inclinations were in the opposite direction. His decision was confirmed when it became known that two of his French colleagues did not favor his claims and when opposition developed in various ultra-Protestant quarters in Ontario.

Mr Chapleau Sprains His Ankle.

MONTREAL, June 14.—A large number of prominent politicians were in the city to-day, and the political complications are being eagerly discussed. Both Mr. Laurier and Mr. Chapleau spent the day here, and received a large number of their followers, with whom they discussed political matters. Mr. Chapleau was laid up all day with a sprained ankle, as the result of an accident here last night. While walking home to his hotel his foot caught on the sidewalk and he sustained a serious fall. He was badly shaken up, and had to be removed to the hotel. A doctor was called and bandaged his foot. Mr. Chapleau returns to Ottawa to-night. It is understood he will be appointed Minister of Railways in the new Cabinet. Mr. Laurier will return to Ottawa to-morrow.

TENEMENT HOUSE FIRE.

Another Holocaust in New York Sunday Morning.

NEW YORK, June 14.—A tenement house fire in Third-avenue early this morning resulted in the death of three members of one family, tenants of the fifth (top) floor. Those burned to death were: Philip Brady, aged 55; his wife, aged 40; Philip Brady, jr., aged 13. The fire was a mysterious one, breaking out at 3.30 o'clock, and caught the tenants asleep and there were many narrow escapes. Those burned were blackened by the fire and almost unrecognisable.

Drowned in the Canal

CORNWALL, June 13.—A 12-year-old boy named Loucks, whose parents reside in Beaconsfield, was drowned in the canal near lock 18 yesterday morning. The little fellow, with his brother, went to the canal, and seeing some driftwood coming down, went on the beam where the workmen cross, and losing his balance fell into the water.

A CORPSE IN A BOX.

An Arnprior Woman Strangles Her Babe and Sends it on the Railway in a Trunk.

MONTREAL, June 14.—A mysterious case is now being investigated by the police. As the Soo train was about leaving Montreal for the west yesterday a suspicious looking trunk was discovered amongst the baggage, from which a strong odor was emitted. The checks were looked up and it was discovered that the trunk belonged to a woman on the train. When she was confronted with it she acknowledged that she was the owner of the trunk and then broke down. The trunk was opened and inside was discovered a dead infant tightly wrapped up in a quantity of old clothes. The woman was arrested and when brought before the coroner she said her name was Ellen Enwright and that she came from Arnprior, Ont. She claimed to have been employed as a domestic by a Mrs. Shaw of Montreal. Her story was that the child was still-born and in order to avoid an exposure she decided to bring it to Renfrew, where she had friends, and dispose of it. The doctors, however, gave it as their opinion that the child had been strangled and the jury returned a verdict of death from strangulation. The woman was remanded on a charge of infanticide.

MR. PURCELL'S REMAINS.

The Point Where It Was Sunk in the River Pointed Out to the Relatives.

CORNWALL, June 14.—Despairing of securing the body of Mr. P. Purcell by means of the $1000 reward offered the relatives of deceased approached Narmal Derouchie, who was arrested on suspicion and subsequently discharged. They promised Derouchie $500 with immunity from prosecution for the guilty parties if the body was returned. He undertook the task and showed the relatives of Mr. Purcell a chart indicating the point where the body was sunk in the river about half a mile from the graveyard. The search is now in progress and the news of the recovery of the body is looked for hourly. A grave has been dug in readiness to receive the much-disturbed remains of Glengarry's millionaire.

WITHOUT A PRECEDENT.

The Memorial Service to Sir John Macdonald in Westminster Abbey—

LONDON, June 14.—The service in Westminster Abbey in memory of Sir John Macdonald is a tribute which has no precedent. No colonial statesman has ever before been thus honored. The Queen, the Prince of Wales and Princess Louise sent representatives, and so did the people of Great Britain, in the persons of the Speaker of the House of Commons and many men of distinction. The First Lord of the Treasury and Secretary of State for the Colonies were there for the Government, and a multitude of officials from other colonies were present. Sir John Macdonald's death has called forth praise from the British press of a kind seldom bestowed on a colonial leader. There is at such a moment a real sense of the services rendered to the Empire. He is no longer merely the Prime Minister of Canada; he is an English statesman who, in his time, had shown on a lesser stage gifts equal to those which in the Imperial Parliament itself have made great reputations. For many years Sir John Macdonald's name was hardly mentioned in England, save in connection with some political or diplomatic crisis. He so impressed his will and his policy upon Canada that English rulers felt that Imperial interests were safe in his hands, and safe, without saying, they were safe, with questions of reciprocity and even of political union between Canada and the United States in the air. With other questions of the fisheries more menacing still, the feeling in England was still the same—Sir John Macdonald will manage it all somehow. Probably his political record is unique. To have governed a great colony for a quarter of a century; to have created a great commonwealth under the name of the Dominion and under the Crown; to have, during all this period, strengthened the tie between the colony and the Mother Country—what other English colonial statesman has done such work as this? So he passes away amid such anthems of grateful eulogy as echo about few other graves.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS.

Two Lives Lost in Toronto—Other Towns Give Their Quota.

TORONTO, June 15. — The Saturday half holiday brought sorrow into some homes and even on Sunday there were sad occurrences to record. At the Island on Sunday afternoon, Albert Wright, an employee of Clark Bros., grocers, Yonge-street, was swimming in the lagoon, near the restaurant. Beside him swam a companion named Fenwick. When near the middle of the lagoon Fenwick noticed that Wright was swimming very feebly. He asked what was the matter, but just that instant the young fellow sank. Fenwick seized him and did his best to hold him up, but being tired by his previous exertions was unable to do so. Before other assistance could come Wright was drowned. The body was recovered.

Fred Beckett, a bright young lad, 15 years of age, whose parents live at the corner of George-street and Wilton-avenue, went down to the Don on Saturday for a swim. He was accompanied by Bothwell Blair, a younger lad, and both went in above the Winchester-street bridge. Beckett, who could not swim, got beyond his depth, and immediately sank. The body was taken home. Deceased was employed in Muirhead's office in Bay-street.

Fire in Hamilton.

HAMILTON, June 14.—A fire broke out about 10.30 Saturday night in the grocery store and residence owned and occupied by Charles Holt, corner Victoria-avenue and Barton-street. The grocery stock was completely destroyed, the residence part of the house was also much damaged. Total loss of stock and building will amount to about $2000, on which there was a small insurance. Cause of fire unknown.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL.

THE BARONET'S NAME STRUCK FROM THE ARMY.

Continental Authorities Astonished That a Field Marshal Should Play Cards With a Subaltern—Sir William Cumming's Marriage.

LONDON, June 13.—There appeared in yesterday's Gazette official notice that Major and Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Gordon Cumming, Bart., is removed from the army, Her Majesty having no further occasion for his services. That is the time-honored formula by which an officer is cashiered. It has not yet been employed with reference to Field Marshal His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, nor with reference to Major-General Owen Williams, nor does anybody suppose it will be. Sir Edward Clarke's fulminations against those officers were sound and fury, signifying nothing except his desire to score a point for his client and perhaps for himself. It was perhaps the only error in a speech of singular ability.

But the Prince of Wales does not escape the penalty for such mistakes as he has committed. The press turns on him. What is said in respectable papers is seldom very severe in words. It is significant that anything should be said. The Prince, during his long social career, has enjoyed something like immunity from criticism. Seldom have the English papers taken notice of what must have come to their knowledge. But in this case silence would have become mere affectation, and most of them say plainly that the Prince deserves censure. He ought not, in their opinion, to be a gambler, or to keep gambling company, or to carry about with him baccarat counters, or to choose his friends with such plentiful lack of wisdom. He is reminded in more than one leading journal that the monarchy itself is in his person on its trial, "and any personal default of his gives a shock to the principle, which in these democratic days is mischievous and even dangerous." That is perhaps slightly too solemn. So are some of the resolutions passed by religious bodies—in all cases by Dissenters. There are not many of them, and they are not very important; but the outburst in the press is exceedingly important. There are in this country a half-dozen great provincial papers of different parties, which, when they agree on any public matter, may be deemed to express the general opinion of the community. They do agree in rebuking the Prince of Wales in language all the more effective because of its studied moderation.

It must be said that it is not what the Prince has done which has brought down on him this avalanche of reproof. He is the same man he was before Sir William Cumming thought proper to cheat at Tranby Croft. His way of life is the same; it was perfectly well known to his present sermonizers, or to many of them. But they were dumb and they only found their voices when the publicity of this trial made it imperative to say something. It is his breach of the Eleventh Commandment which has proved so disastrous to the Prince. It need not be permanently disastrous, great though the shock of this discovery be to the serious part of the community. Very slight signs of repentance would be accepted joyfully. None is yet made, though the Prince's friends say that his baccarat days are over. He was greeted at Ascot very much as usual, but that proves little, because he was in the same carriage with the Princess, who has never yet been ill-received by any of her future subjects, except those who reside in the southern part of Ireland.

The anger of the working classes is understood to be deep. They think that they have to pay taxes in order to provide the Prince with the means of gambling. Yet all municipal attempts to express this feeling have failed. A resolution of censure offered in the Birmingham Town Council found no seconder.

Perhaps what he will care for most is the continental view of his conduct. French and German officers are scandalized that the Prince of Wales should play cards with subalterns; scandalized still more that his name should be signed to a document the intent of which was to condone, or at least to conceal, an act of cheating at cards by a colonel in the Guards. The military mind abroad does not understand trifling in such affairs. Vienna has spoken loudest; but perhaps it is in Berlin that the indignation is greatest. Nor is it thought that the Prince will be likely again to lecture his Imperial nephew on points of deportment.

This military view of things is not the general English view. The point of honor is not their point—or not that of the majority. The middle classes care little, it appears, about cheating. What horrifies them is that cards should be played for money at all. The most perverse opinions are heard. They are sentiments rather than opinions, and the most complete expression of them was in the hissing with which the verdict of the jury was received. No verdict was ever based on clearer evidence. If Sir William Cumming did not cheat when playing baccarat at Tranby Croft on the 8th and 9th of September of last year, human testimony is good for nothing. The jury were never in doubt, the judge was in no doubt, society has no doubt, the press has no doubt; probably the very classes who dislike the verdict believe Sir William Cumming guilty. But in this, as in some other current matters, one section of public opinion is demoralized. The people who hissed in court are people who think it a greater offence to see cheating than to cheat. They dislike the Wilson family. They hold that obligations of hospitality should cover such acts as those of Sir William Cumming. He was the guest of the Wilsons and it was an outrage, they say, that though guilty he should be exposed or even discovered. They consider that it was the duty of the Wilsons, in deference to this particular guest, to allow their other guests to be robbed. They complain of spying and watching, though it is abundantly proved that there was none of either. Sir William Cumming was, in truth, given every chance. His friends, from the Prince downward, including the whole Wilson family, strove to screen him. To accept his written confession of guilt and his pledge to abstain from cards was a mistake, but a mistake dictated by charity to him. The Prince of Wales, Lord Coventry and General Owen Williams knew him to be guilty. His confession was not a more damning proof than his demeanor when accused and his conduct since. Yet Sir William Cumming's guilt seems to this curious English mid dle class less guilty than the indiscretion of the Prince. It is natural that his family should stand by him as they do. But could anything be more grotesque than the triumphal welcome which the Town Council of Forres offer him?

A man of high position found cheating at cards is thought by his former associates to have fallen as low as any man can fall. The wreck of his life is complete. It remained to Sir William Cumming to prove them mistaken. There was one infamy left for him to commit, and he has committed it. He drags a woman down with him. His demeanor and conduct to women have never been defensible, but no act of his life is so base as his marrying Miss Garner, a girl of great fortune, not half his own age. That she wished it, acting under a generous but mistaken impulse, is no excuse. His offer to release her is no excuse. If any sentiment of honor had survived his disgrace he would have shot himself sooner than suffer this lady to add the ruin of her life to his. The only thing her friends can hope is that her eyes may never be opened.

WITNESS AND PRINCE.

Wilson Said to Have Lent the Heir-Apparent $1,000,000.

EDINBURGH, June 14. — The Scottish Leader to-day says that at the time of the Baring Brothers crisis several financiers who had lent large sums of money to the Prince of Wales were obliged to ask him for the re-turn of their money. These sudden demands put the Prince in a serious fix for a time, until Arthur Wilson, at whose house the noted games of baccarat were played, lent the Prince $1,000,000, with which sum the latter paid back some of the money advanced to him by other financiers.

LONDON, June 13.—Sir William Gordon Cumming and his bride received what is generally known as a "royal welcome" upon their arrival at Forres, Scotland, near which burgh Altyre, the baronet's estate, is situated. The bride and bridegroom were welcomed by the provost of Forres at the head of the municipal authorities of the neighborhood. The town was decorated with flags, flowers and bunting, and on their way to Altyre Sir William and Lady Cumming passed beneath several handsome arches. The newly married couple were enthusiastically cheered by the inhabitants of Forres and its neighborhood, who gathered from many miles around to show their sympathy with owners of Altyre. The provost of Forres upon the arrival of Sir William and Lady Gordon Cumming at that place made them a public address of welcome and presented them with congratulations of the inhabitants of the town. Nothing was wanting to show the bridal couple that, though some people might frown upon them, the sturdy Scotch burghers of Forres had resolved to testify in as open a manner as possible their sympathy with Sir William in the troubles which hovered over him and his loyal hearted bride.

Coleridge to Defend Himself.

LONDON, June 13.—It is reported that Lord Coleridge, the Lord Chief Justice of England who presided at the recent trial of the suit of Sir William Gordon Cumming against Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson and others, will take official notice of the charge made against him by Sir William, the substance of which is that the verdict of the jury would have been entirely different had it not been for the partiality for the defendants which the Lord Chief Justice showed in his summing up and charge to the jury.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A RAILWAY TRAIN PLUNGES FROM A BRIDGE.

Sixty of the Passengers Drowned and Over 100 Injured—An Inman Liner Narrowly Escapes Being Burned on the Ocean—General Foreign News.

BERNE, June 14.—A most horrible accident occurred on the Monchenstein and Bale Railway to-day through the collapse of a bridge beneath a heavily-loaded excursion train. The train was crowded with people on the way to attend a municipal fete. Sixty persons were killed outright, while hundreds were injured. Two engines and the first car plunged into the river, and all the passengers in the car were drowned. Two cars remained suspended from the bridge. All the trainmen were killed. Thirteen cars were saved.

The musical fete at Monchenstein was abandoned as soon as the news of the accident arrived and hundreds of villagers hurried to the scene to assist in rescuing the victims. The bridge was an iron skeleton structure which was considered well built and substantial. The only apparent reason for the collapse of the bridge is that the train left the rails and threw its entire weight on one side of the bridge.

QUEENSTOWN, June 14.—The Inman Line steamer City of Richmond, some of whose passengers were landed here yesterday, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire on her passage over. On Tuesday at midnight it was discovered that the cotton in her hold was on fire. The fire continued to burn until Friday, when it was sufficiently subdued to allow her to proceed. Meantime the signals of distress, which she had run up, attracted the attention of the captains of the Servia, City of Paris and the British steamer Counsellor, and all three steamers on nearing the condition of affairs stood by the Richmond. Just as the Counsellor came alongside her captain suddenly fell dead on the deck. The three vessels remained alongside the Richmond until danger was passed.

The passengers were unanimous in praising the conduct of the captain, officers and men of the City of Richmond. As a mark of their appreciation of the services of the captain and crew, a memorial was presented to the commander of the vessel, while a collection of £70 was taken up for the benefit of the crew. The scene on deck after the discovery of the fire was remarkable. Many groups of women prayed fervently and crying, but no unusual excitement prevailed.

There were 14 Obarrels of oil stowed close to the burning cotton. Luckily the flames did not communicate to the oil. It is generally believed that the cotton had been smouldering since the steamer left New York.

PARNELL'S MARRIAGE.

Parnell Will Marry Mrs. O'Shea Early Next Week, So 'Tis Said.

LONDON, June 13.—It is rumored to-day that Parnell's marriage with Mrs. O'Shea will take place the coming week. Parnell has subsided somewhat of late, the reason being that he is spending nearly all his spare time in the company of Mrs. O'Shea. The lady is said to look remarkably well by those who have seen her lately, and as being elated over the prospect of her marriage to Parnell. The daughters, however, adhere to their father, contrary to the prevalent impression, and will, it is stated, have no more to do with their mother after the marriage. As the mother is wealthy, however, and their father poor, cynical society whispers that they may change their minds.

A Clever Arrest.

TORONTO, June 15.—Detective Murray, chief of the Ontario Detective Department, has after considerable trouble succeeded in effecting the arrest of Thomas Chambers of Guelph, one of the cracksmen who is believed to have had a hand in committing the recent postoffice robberies throughout the west. A few weeks ago Constable P. R. Balmer of Listowel endeavored to arrest Chambers in a Clinton hotel on a charge of being concerned in the robbery of the Brussels postoffice. Chambers' sensational escape from the officers at the time is familiar. After a fusilade through the bedroom door between Balmer and himself, Chambers emerged with two loaded revolvers in his hands. Balmer attempted to bar his passage and Chambers lodged a bullet in the officer's breast, and then coolly marched downstairs and out into the street, his firearms serving to keep the citizens who had been aroused by the firing at a safe distance. Chambers reached the woods unmolested and escaped. The Government was notified, and, learning that Chambers had gone to the North-west, Detective Murray notified the authorities at the Portage and Chambers was arrested and committed for 60 days for an offance committed there. As soon as his time is up Detective Murray will hand him over to the Huron authorities to answer a charge of shooting with attempt to commit murder.

Suspicious Death at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, June 14.—A man named John Conroy died suddenly in a house in Cumberland-street here to-day. Conroy is a married man, but has not been living with his wife for some time. He has been drinking very hard and was under the influence of liquor at the time of his death, which it is claimed was indirectly caused by a beating he received. An inquest will be held.

TURNBULL'S

As the season advances we have many bargains to offer the public. One of the greatest attractions in our store to-day is some thirty or forty pieces of dress goods that were formerly from 25 to 50c. a yard. They are odd lines, and are now being cleared out at 15c. a yard. They can only last a short time, call early and secure the best patterns.

We want to tell you about our cheap Hosiery. We have piles upon piles of heavy goods to select from, in men's, women's and children's. 3 pairs for 25c.

For a week past we have been showing a window of Prints at 10c a yard. Handsome as it is possible to have them, and perfectly fast colors. We never had the like before at less than 12½c. Remember them if you do not see them in the window now.

We are showing an elegant range of white embroidered shirtings and all over embroidered muslins.

We have a great many patterns of figured Wool Delaines, so that it is no trouble to get something to please with us.

We have bought out a wholesale agent's samples of pretty little Lace Dolmans and Fichus and are selling them now at a bargain.

Our best quality of Black Gloves and Hosiery this season are perfectly stainless dye. We have great pleasure in selling them, as they please everybody as to quality and price.

SUN LIFE
ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

The attention of our Policy-Holders is directed to the following summary of the leading items of the present report, which speaks for itself as to the progress and prosperity of the Company:—

Increase over previous year	3,421,272 84
New Applications received in 1890	6,371,599 15

Increase over 1889	75,649 05
Death claims fallen in during 1890	143,961 65

The progress made by the SUN LIFE during 1890 was remarkable. The new business was the largest in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one other Canadian Life Company. The income for the year exceeds $2,000 for each day in the year, Sundays included. The Assets are large and rapidly increasing. They are, moreover, of the highest character, yielding an average interest of 6 04 per cent. The overdue interest is small, and the Real Estate owned under foreclosure is only four per cent. of the amount of mortgages. This is a remarkable showing. The SURPLUS accumulated during the FOUR years of the current quinquennium is nearly THREE TIMES as much as the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fall thus to be highly satisfactory. The following are the figures:—

Net Surplus, 31st Dec., 1881, (five years)	$84 824 07

To Destroy Canadian Thistles.

Mr. John I. Hobson in the Canadian Live Stock Journal for June deals with the subject in the following manner. Mr. Hobson has appeared in this county at several farmers' institutes and has impressed all who heard him as being possessed of a wide range of practical knowledge which he comments upon with great terseness and tact:—

The method which we find most effective in getting rid of thistles is to put plenty of work on the land at the proper time. We often hear of some patent way of killing them, but this I know for a certainty, that the cleanest farms in Ontario are those on which the cultivation is most thorough. In this particular section, where fall wheat is grown only to a very limited extent, many of our best farmers have, in a large measure, given up summer-fallowing, and rely mainly for keeping their farm clean and free from weeds on thorough fall working and growing hoed crops. The system followed is to plough over the stubble with a thin furrow—using double furrow ploughs for the purpose—as soon as possible after harvest, or even during harvest, as soon as the field is ready and time can be spared, the object aimed at being to bring any seeds which may be lying on the surface, into favorable conditions for germinating. Then again, if time can be spared, give another thin ploughing, a little deeper the second time. Where manure is applied in the fall it is drawn on after the first ploughing and covered in lightly, the object aimed at always being, as first mentioned, to get as many seeds as possible to germinate, and in this way, if there are seeds in the manure possessing vitality, many of them are destroyed. By this system a great deal is done in the way of cleaning the land, for not only are many seeds got rid of, but by no other mode of culture can the growing weeds be more effectively destroyed, especially the Canada thistle. Later in the season, the land is ploughed deeply and left in good shape for spring seeding. Then again, as already said, the cultivation of hoed crops is relied on a good deal for keeping down and getting rid of thistles. On very many of our best managed farms, especially on those where stock-raising or dairying is made a specialty, the various hoed crops are extensively grown. One of the great advantages in cleaning the land in this way is that, while the weeds are being destroyed, the crop, whatever it may be, corn, roots or rape, is being greatly benefited at the same time by the extra cultivation. However, perhaps, there is no way in which nearly every noxious weed can be more thoroughly got rid of than by a judicious system of partial soiling, and, next to draining, would at the same time do as much towards raising the average yield of the farms of the country. I am led to speak in this way from the satisfactory results which I have found to follow my own practice, and from observation when judging prize farms for nine or ten years in every part of the country.

Resolution of Condolence.

At the last regular meeting of Peterborough L.O.L. No 49, the following resolution was adopted:

To Mrs. James McIntyre,

Dear Madam,—Being sensible of the heavy trial in which you have passed through in the death of your husband, we the members of Young Canadian L.O.L. No. 49, feel it to be our duty to give expression to our heart-felt sympathy with you and your family in your bereavement.

If there is a period in the history of our lives when the cords of love and the ties of friendship are broken, it is that period when death comes to call a brother from the lodge and a husband from the home.

The Supreme Ruler of the Universe, who is "too wise to err, and too good to be unkind," has taken you through this period, and we assure you, dear madam, that we deeply sympathise with you in your affliction, and will ever pray that you may realize the fulfilment of the Saviour's promise, "I will be a husband to the widow."

We trust that you will look on this event as a wise dispensation of the Omniscient One, without whose knowledge "not a sparrow falls to the ground." God's ways in His providential dealings with His children are often mysterious and unsearchable; but an infinite wisdom can make no mistake, and it is for us to remember that He hath said, "All things work together for good to them that love God."

It is, therefore, our prayer that this bereavement may be so sanctified by divine blessing that you may be enabled to rise above the darkness of your present grief and realize that trouble tends to elevate, strengthen and ennoble the true life.

Remember, dear friend, that he whom you cannot forget will not soon be forgotten by the members of our noble Order.

Signed on behalf of Young Canadian Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 49, Peterborough, Samuel Campbell, W.M.

Sidney B. Weir, D.M.
James Noble, Secretary.

A Practical Quid Pro Quo

Poetry is not generally as having a very close affinity with the thing of practical life, but when it is so much to the point as to touch the heart and the pocket, poetry must be removed from the realm of mere romance. From time to time the Examiner has published the poems of Mr. Telford, bearing upon the interests and dealing with the callings of several of our citizens, and it appears that some of his poems have borne practical fruit. A few days ago Mr. Telford "did up" the brickmakers in rhyme, and now they, in amiable revenge, have given him a "dressing." On Saturday Mr. John Heaps, representing Mark Curtis & Sons, and himself, accompanied Mr. Telford to LeBrun & Co's, and presented the bard of Smith with an excellent suit of tweed, Mr. R. J. Kidd, the bootar, in memory of favors received, shod the poetical pedestrian for climbing Parnassia's heights, and Mr. A. P. Morgan, the beneficent boniface of the Morgan House, furnished the laurel wreath for the brows of the bard, in the shape of a hat to crown the generosity of Mr. Telford's admirers. The monetary value of these presents is considerable, but what Mr. Telford values more is the evidence they afford of the appreciation of his political effusions by his friends. He wishes to take this means at the present of thanking the generous donors for the gifts mentioned above—reserving the right to deal with the matter in a professional and practical manner hereafter.

Mr. Telford has promptly justified the prediction that closes the above remarks and furnishes the following

Ode of Thanks.

Respectfully addressed to Messrs. Mark Curtis and John Heaps, or any other associated with them in purchasing and presenting to me, a splendid suit of tweed, as a token of their appreciation of a few verses composed by me for them a few weeks ago.

Though time has changed my locks to grey
With life's sands ebbing fast away
My heart beats light and strong to-day,
As when a young brickmaker.

And why—because your generous gift
My weight of years and sorrow lift,
And sweeps them off like withers drift
By your kind act brickmakers.

Your freewill gift my muse inspire,
Fans into flame poetic fire,
Could I but write as I desire
I would praise you high brickmakers.

Appropriate words I fail to find
To thank you for your act so kind,
Though unexpressed fresh on my mind
Shall love dwell for brickmakers.

I thank you Mark—but not alone,
Straight from my heart I thank you John;
And unto all that helped you on
With this suit from brickmakers.

No vain false praise sounds on my part,
No language trimmed by flattering art;
From the depths of my grateful heart
I thank you, kind brickmakers.

If but His will my life to spare,
Long your nice handsome suit to wear;
Even when its faded or threadbare,
I will think on you, brickmakers.

May health and wealth dip your life's scale—
Fine weather for your work prevail,
Good price for bricks, with ready sale.
To reward your toils, brickmakers.

Boys, bow your present stirred up strife,
Cruel jealousy has cursed my wife;
Fair once the cause—you bet your life,
And she blames this suit, brickmakers.

Peace is restored since I did swear
To speak not nor look upon the fair,
Whenever I the suit do wear
That you gave me, brickmakers.

I strove to grasp and hold the train
Of thoughts that's rushing through my brain,
The hearts true flowing, thankful strain,
As a tribute to you, brickmakers.

Smith.

A Spring Medicine.

There are few who do not at this season feel the need of a spring medicine, and to all such we recommend Lane's Family Medicine as the best. This is a pleasant herb drink made by pouring boiling water on the dried roots and herbs. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1. It is the best as well as the pleasantest cure for constipation and headache. dw

Why Struggle.

Why struggle with exhausting disease when you may be promptly cured by the use of nature's remedy—Burdock Blood Bitters—the perfect cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, sick headache and all forms of bad blood from a common pimple to the worst scorfulous sore. 3w25d caused by cold weather, is made perfectly smooth by one application of Dyer's Jelly of Cucumber and Roses. Try it. Druggists keep it. W. A. Dyer & Co., Montreal 61139

Rough Skin,

If you are taking the large, old-fashioned griping pills, try Carter's Little Liver Pills and take some comfort. A man can't stand everything. One pill a dose. Try them. dw

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Is the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken; and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—T. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for a dressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," McArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Bay, Cohoes, N.Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

Lindsay Laconics.

"Posted" Into the Hours Ledger.

The Whitby and Lindsay Association of Baptist churches will hold its 73rd annual meeting in Lindsay this year on Wednesday and Thursday, June 18th and 19th.

Mr. H. B. Dean has kindly granted the use of his grounds to the Citizens' band for a garden party, to be held on Thursday evening, June 18th. A fine musical programme will be rendered.

Mr. C. H. Grantham has just added two new incubators to the equipment of his poultry farm in the east ward. When all his incubators are running full blast, so to speak, there will be an output of 2,500 chicks every three weeks.

Mr. Frank Crandell has a gang of about twenty men at Bass lake, in Galway township, getting his drive of about 15,000 ties and telegraph poles into Nogey's creek. There is plenty of water and he expects to reach Pigeon lake in a week or two days.

The steamer "Sunbeam" arrived in port on Tuesday evening from Lakefield with an excursion party on board. The members of the party put up for the night at the different hotels, and started for home next morning delighted with their trip and with Lindsay in particular.

Rev. Father O Connell's picnic at Bobcaygeon on Thursday last was largely attended, and a handsome sum was realized. The base ball match for a handsome silver cup between the Athletes of Lindsay and a team from Indian village was won by the former with ease.

A meeting of the West Victoria farmers' institute will be held in the council chamber, Lindsay, Tuesday, June 23rd, commencing at 10 a.m. Prof. James of the agricultural college, Guelph, will deliver an address on "The soil and farm." It is to be hoped there will be a large attendance of agriculturists and others.

In addition to having been selected as the rallying point for the meet of the canoeists of the northern division of the A. C. A. in July, it appears that a still greater honor has been conferred upon the people of Bobcaygeon. That picturesque village has been selected by the Buffalo, N.Y., students' art club as the meeting place for their July sketch class, which has a very large membership. The great variety of scenery to be found within easy reach of the village will afford the artists full scope for their talents.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it, because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. Large bottles 50c. and $1 at all druggists. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Eilan street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

Like Paralysis.

"For years I suffered with my back which sometimes became as if paralyzed. I suffered awful agony for months and could not sleep, but now, thanks to your Burdock Blood Bitters, I am strong again, have no pain and can work well, eat well, and sleep well,"—Mrs. Hammerton, 23 Charlotte street, Toronto. 3w25d

Distrustful People

make an exception in favour of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Its known virtues as a cure for diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera morbus and all bowel complaints cause all who use it to regard it as the most reliable and effectual remedy obtainable. 3w25 i

Do not neglect that cough. Go at once and get a bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. All druggists keep it. dw

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Yesterday's Sederunt Devoted Mainly to Discussing Foreign Missions.

KINGSTON, June 12.—This morning when the General Assembly resumed work attention was given to matters arising out of the Home Mission and Augmentation reports. The augmentation fund having been found at the close of the ecclesiastical year to be deficient to the amount of $4000, it was moved by Dr. Campbell that a reduction be made of not less than $30 nor more than $40 from income to those participating in the fund. After a long discussion extending over almost the whole forenoon the assembly did not endorse this proposal, but instead thereof gave special instructions to presbyteries to take an increased interest in augmentation and seek to bring up the fund in another year to a higher state of efficiency.

On motion of Dr. Caven the moderator was asked to prepare an address to be printed and read from pulpits and extensively circulated, with a view to the improvement of augmentation finances.

Sanction was given by the assembly to the formation of young men's and congregational societies in aid of Home Missons and Augmentation.

Rev. A. Findlay, on a vote of 120 to 52, was allowed an increase of $300 on his salary as superintendent of missions for the home mission field in the Muskoka district.

The old scheme of the distribution of probationers was reported unfavorably and by request of the committee the assembly allowed this committee to be discontinued. A new scheme was proposed and handed to a committee for examination to be reported on at a future sederunt. Twelve applications have come before the assembly from ministers belonging to other churches in England, Scotland and the United States to be received into the Presbyterian Church in Canada. These applications will be dealt with later on in the session.

The evening session was devoted to foreign missions. Financially speaking the foreign mission fund has had for the past year a fund of $130,000, while ten years ago the amount was but $40,000.

The foreign work conducted by the Presbyterian Church in Canada is in India, China, and the Northwest Indians, the New Hebrides and Trinidad.

The speakers this evening were Dr. Wardrope, E. Scott, Principal Grant, A. B. Baird, Mr. John A. McDonald, missionary elect to the Indians of British Columbia; Revs. Hugh McKay of Brooklier, W. H. McRae from Trinidad, Mr. Barclay of South Formosa and Narayan Sheshadrai the converted Brahmin from India.

Just as the hour of adjournment had come the clerk informed the assembly through a telegraphic despatch of the death of Dr. Weir at Quebec.

THE RECENT RAINS.

Bradstreet's Weekly Report on the Business Outlook.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's from many of the leading business centres point to the approach of the customary midsummer dullness in general trade. From nearly all points come reports of a declining movement of staple merchandise, slow or only moderately fair mercantile collection and conservatism on the part of lenders of money west and northwest. Wheat harvesting is progressing favorably in Kansas and California, with promise of a large yield. In Texas the crops are all improving and in Louisiana some of the effects of the drouth have been overcome.

In the Canadian Dominion recent rains have helped the cereal crops and thereby improved trade prospects, but country merchants are asking re-discounts more than could be wished. General trade is not active in any line. The Dominion reports 32 business failures this week, against 11 last week and 18 this week last year. The total number Jan. 1 to date is 911, against 825 last year.

REQUIEM IN THE ABBEY.

Impressive Memorial Service at Old Westminster in Honor of Sir John.

LONDON, June 12.—A requiem in honor of the late Sir John Macdonald, the Canadian Premier, was sung in Westminster Abbey this morning. A number of most distinguished people, representing by proxy the Queen, the Prince of Wales and the various members of the Royal family, were present. Among the prominent persons who attended this ceremony were the Marquis of Lorne, ex-Governor-General of Canada, and the Right Hon. William Henry Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, representing the Government. Westminster Abbey was crowded with distinguished people, who sincerely mourned the loss of the great Canadian statesman.

The Maple Leaf League.

MONTREAL, June 12.—There is a movement on foot here to perpetuate the name of Sir John Macdonald by establishing an organization to be known as the Maple Leaf League of Canada, on the same principle as the Primrose League of Great Britain, namely, the maintenance of integrity of the empire, the upholding of religion, etc. It is also proposed that June 6 be observed as a national holiday in commemoration of the late Premier; that every member of the league on that day wear a maple leaf, etc. It is proposed that ladies should take a prominent part in the new organization.

Typographical Union.

BOSTON, June 12.—At the International Typographical Union convention to-day the proposition to create a "law officer" was reported favorably from committee, but was defeated. The committee's report setting apart 3¾ per cent. of the capita tax for a burial fund, $50 to be allowed for burial expenses of each member, was adopted.

W. B. Prescott of Toronto, Ont., was elected president on the second ballot, his opponents being Marion Johnson of Fort Worth, Tex., and S. L. Freeman of Birmingham, Ala.

A Sunstroke Not an Accident.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Judge Pieliips of the United States Circuit Court has decided an interesting point in a suit on an accident policy. Willoughby Dozier, who died about a year ago from the effects of a sunstroke, was at the time carrying an accident policy and suit was brought on the policy by the beneficiary. He sustained the demurrer of the defendant on the ground that a sunstroke is not an accident but a disease of the brain arising from natural and known causes.

WESTPORT, Ont., June 13.—The buildings of the Westport Stove Co. and bookstore of John McGuire were burned this morning. Loss to the stove company $4000, insured for $1500. Mr. McGuire's loss was $3000, insured for $600.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

PRINCE FERDINAND'S THRONE.

It Is Probably Safe as Long as His Money Holds Out.

If the prince is playing king in Bulgaria because he loves the sense of power—and it is exceedingly difficult to believe that he can have any other motive—it is still true that Stamboloff is manager and holds the purse, and that he is likely to change the "star" whenever it pleases his fancy; provided, of course, the Bulgarian audiences still come to the play. In other words, provided the various factions struggling to get control do not break into the theatre and throw the company and properties into the street.

It is also equally true that M. Stefan Stamboloff is to-day by far the most commanding personality in his country. Never a soldier, and always a politician, with only three years' schooling at Odessa, he became when hardly grown a Russian correspondent, and for some years thereafter a Russian agent. Rising rapidly by his own force of character, he was appointed a regent by Alexander when he abdicated, and now when only 36 years of age occupies more of the nervous attention of the governments of Eastern Europe than any other one man west of the Bosphorus.

Stamboloff's plan for governing was simple and to the point. It called for 5,000,000 of rubles and a king. Who this king might be, or where he should hail from, was a matter of detail. Anybody but a Russian or a Turk would do. And so numerous offers were made in a confidential way to various gentlemen who thought they had an especial, divine gift for reigning, and who lacked the opportunity only because of the depleted condition of their bank accounts. At last a fond and ambitious mother and an obliging son with an almost unlimited reserve fund—unlimited for the ordinary needs of life—took the bait.

It was not, however, a harmonious family arrangement; for it was well known that the young prince's uncle, Duke of Saxe-Coburg, did what he could to prevent the final agreement; he being an older and wiser diplomat, and having had a long and varied experience in the ups and downs of several see-saw Governments. Among other things, the duke boldly stated that it was only a question of money with the Bulgarian regents, and that Ferdinand would leave the throne when his guldens were gone, as Alexander had left, to whom the Bulgarian Government then owed three millions of francs. The Duke's prophecy is not yet fulfilled. If, however, the statement of reliable Bulgarians is to be taken, a very considerable portion of Ferdinand's private estate (variously estimated at from one half to all of it) has already been absorbed.—The Century.

A Little Girl Drowned.

OTTAWA, June 14.—Yesterday evening about 7 o'clock a number of children were playing on the outside platform of a boathouse near Ernscliffe, when the 7-year-old daughter of William Smith, Redpath-street, fell in and before assistance could reach her was drowned.

Drowned While Bathing.

DRAYTON, June 13.—James McColgan, a farmer of Maryboro, in company with his youngest son, went in swimming in the Conestoga River and was immediately seized with cramps. The son being unable to render any assistance the father sank before other help could reach him.

A True Bill.

Wm. Gillespie, Wolfe Island, Ont., says: I had indigestion and stomach cough for three years. Vigilant Care.

Vigilance is necessary against unexpected attacks of summer complaints. No remedy is so well known or so successful in this class of diseases as Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Keep it in the house as a safeguard. 3w25d

Dyspepsia.

This disease may be traced to a variety of causes, such as constipation, liver troubles, improper food, etc. There is one cure—Burdock Blood Bitters—which may be thoroughly relied on to effect a permanent cure. It has cured obstinate cases of 25 years standing.

Self Application of Electricity

FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES

BY THE

DORENWEND

ELECTRIC BELT

And Attachments.

HEAD OFFICE—103 Yonge St., Toronto

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASES, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VESTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Send name and address for Illustrated Book on Home Electro-medical treatment and mention this paper. J. D. TULLY, Agent, Peterborough. eod-w
